AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

Two years ago I obtained of Frederick C. Pierce, Esq., of Barre, Mass., all the papers which he had compiled in relation to the family of Thomas Pierce of Charlestown, who was admitted to the church there 21 (12) 1634-5, and who was probably born in England in 1596. He had collected a mass of matter to which has been added as much more, at great expense, time and trouble. In the task of compiling the new matter and properly arranging the whole for the printer, Mr. F. C. Pierce has rendered valuable assistance. He has also corrected the proof sheets and attended to other minute details of the work, for which he has my sincere thanks.

I take this opportunity to tender my thanks and acknowledgments to all those who have so kindly furnished me with information and statistics. My thanks are especially due to Miss Mary F. Pierce of Cambridge, and John Ward Dean, the efficient and courteous librarian of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society.

The matter of spelling the name of Pierce or Peirce, has been the subject of considerable writing and discussion, as will be seen in the article by Prof. James Mills Pierce below. It is entirely a matter of fancy or preference. There are in existence autographs of the original Thomas, as being spelled in three different ways—Pierce, Peirce and Peirece. By following down the autographs of the family, which the author at much pains and cost has collected, it will be seen that different members of the same family have spelled it, and do spell it, in different ways. Some of the descendants of Samuel<sup>3</sup>, Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, sons of Sergt. Thomas, of Woburn, one of the descendants of Benjamin, being the Miss Mary F. above alluded to, have always spelled it Peirce. The descendants of Isaac, of Boston, who married Grace Tucker, have invariably spelled it Peirce. The matter of not belonging to the same family on account of not spelling the name the same way, as has been brought forward by some of my correspondents, has no force whatever.

The author has always spelled his name Pierce, and hoping that he has not given any great offence to the members of the family spelling it the other way, has decided to publish his work under the name—PIERCE.

Very respectfully,

FREDERIC B. PIERCE.

47 Broad Street, Boston.

NOTE ON THE SPELLING AND PRONUNCIATION OF THE NAME OF
PIERCE, BY PROF. JAMES M. PEIRCE OF HARVARD UNIVERSITY, TAKEN FROM THE Genealogical Register.

The spelling of the name of Pierce is generally supposed to have no significance in determining relationships. Certainly a great variety in this regard will be found in printed and written documents, from the settlement of New England until now. But my observation leads me to believe that a high degree of uniformity exists in the spelling, as used by persons bearing the name, in any one family connection. Thus the descendants of Robert of Woburn, and I believe nearly the whole body of the descendants of John of Watertown, from the beginning to the present day, almost everywhere use the spelling Peirce; though John himself appears to sign his will Pers or Perss in an antiquated hand resembling German Schrift. The spelling Pearse in the will of his wife Elizabeth is not written by the testator, who signs only by mark. On the other hand, the descendants of Samuel of Charlestown and of Sergt. Thomas of Woburn most commonly employ the spelling Pierce, which is also, I think, that of the signature of the will of Thomas, senior, of Charlestown, which may, however, be Peirce or Peerce. In the old pronunciation of the name, according to the tradition prevalent in several branches of the family of John of Watertown, the vowel-sound was the same that we now hear in the words pear, heir and their; and this pronunciation is remembered by living persons as having been sometimes used by old-fashioned people. This was probably quite independent of the spelling. The same sound was, according to A. J. Ellis, used in the verb to pierce, in the 17th century, and by some in the 18th century. On the other hand, the verb may be occasionally heard with the pronunciation perce (or purse), which is now the prevalent pronunciation of all forms of the surname in the neighborhood of Boston.

Let me add that the great number of families of this name among the early settlers of New England makes it exceedingly difficult to trace the different lines. Savage is guilty of many omissions under this name, and has committed some decided mistakes. The perplexity in which all printed authorities leave the subject make the matter very difficult for the author.

THE ENGLISH FAMILY.

In the History of the "Peirce Family, of Watertown," written by my friend Mr. Frederick C. Peirce, of Barre, Mass., he alludes to John Pers, the ancestor of that branch in this country, as being "John Pers, of Norwich, Norfolk County, England, weaver."

As yet the ancestry in England of the Peirce family has not been followed out in an authentic manner; but in the "History of Norwich, Norfolk County, England," under the head of St. Peter's Church, in that town, we find the following in relation to the family living there then:—"Sparks Chantry, in this church was granted, July 23rd, in the 4th of Edward VI., with all its lands and rents, &c., in the tenure of Robermore, to Nicholas le Strange. And in the 23rd of Elizabeth, Peter Perse, cousin and heir of Humphrey Cony, late of this town, held part of these lands, being son of Thomas Perse, son of Margaret Perse, sister of John Cony, father of Humphrey."

It will be seen by this that there was a family by the name there at that time, and that also there was a Thomas in the family. It is reasonable to suppose therefore that our Thomas was of this family, and that he was brother of the John alluded to, and also of Robert, of Dorchester, as the same coat of arms is found in that family.

IRISH BRANCH OF PIERCES.

There was one branch of the Pierce family which went into Ireland from England during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. This branch went from Northumberland County, England. Several of the members were soldiers with Oliver Cromwell, and went with him to Ireland in 1649, and settled at Glencanny on Hillywater, two miles from Enniskillen, and the farm upon which they located is still in the possession of the family—owned and occupied by William Pierce, Esq. Seven members of this family were in the battle of the Boyne, in 1690. Four or five were members of the celebrated Enniskillen Dragoons. In the old family bible at Enniskillen, translated by Beza and published by Barker, London, 1599, is the following record:—“Sarah, b. Nov. 16, 1694; Elizabeth, b. April 22, 1698; Edward, b. July 23, 1701; Henry, b. April 9, 1704; John, b. Aug. 17, 1707; William, b. Nov. 14, 1709; Mary, b. May 14, 1712; Cromwell, b. — 18, 1715; Peter, b. — 16, 1718.” The early family records and also the early parish records at Glencanny I am informed were destroyed. The family were members of the Church of England. Edward, b. 1701, m. in Dublin, Frances Brassington, dau. of Marmaduke. In 1737, with his wife and three children he sailed for America—two of the children died on the passage over—and he landed in Philadelphia. He purchased a farm in Delaware County, Pa., and finally settled in Paoli, Chester County, Pa., where he died. His descendants now reside in Pa.

JOHN PIERCE OF LONDON.

The first patent granted by the Council of Plymouth, of land in New England, was to John Pierce of London, and his associates, dated June 1, 1621. This was a roaming patent granting 100 acres for each settler already transplanted and such as should be transported; the land to be selected by them under certain restrictions. Pierce located at Broad Bay, and afterwards found one Brown at N. Harbor, with an Indian deed of the territory, and they joined their titles and continued the settlement already begun at N. Harbor and Pemaquid, which became prosperous and populous as the extensive remains at these points strongly indicate.

Thomas Weston was associated with Pierce in this enterprise, and both were doubtless men of influence in those days. John Pierce's son Richard Pierce was a resident at Pemaquid, or rather Muscongus, and married Elizabeth Brown. Richard Pierce's children were Richard, William, Joseph, Elizabeth who m. Richard Fulworth, George, Margaret who m. Nathaniel Ward, and Francis.

PIERCE PROCLIVITIES.

A prominent and distinguishing trait of character in the Pierce Family is casually exposed to view by the Historian Babson, in his description of the tumultuous proceedings occasioned by the violent party spirit that prevailed in the country after the embargo of President Jefferson in 1806. "At a town meeting held in Gloucester, the two political parties struggled for the mastery through the day and amid darkness until half-past ten at night, and the floor of the church wherein the meeting was held he describes as presenting a scene of wild confusion and discord worthy of Pandemonium itself. The leaders of each party entertained their friends with unbounded hospitality, and each had its own place of refreshment for general resort." But he adds:—"The Democrats not unreasonably expected success as they had the influence of the Pierce family." Young ducks do not take to the water more naturally than the Pierce family throughout the country to democratic principles. Indomitable perseverance is also a trait that marks their character in every department of life, and has generally crowned their efforts with ultimate success, though attained after repeated and sometimes very mortifying failures.

JOHN, the patentee under the Pres. and Counc. for N. E., June 1, 1621, though connected with the Pilgrims of Plymouth, never came, in my opinion, to this shore, yet Willis seems contrary, I, 13. After most respectful consideration of the document referred to in his note I am constrained to express a confidence, that the London clothworker never succeeded in accomplishing, though he undertook, a voyage to Plymouth, the ship being put back in distress. My judgement seems to have confirmation by what is read in Bradford, 140, his son Richard came over and settled in Pemaquid, or rather Muscongus.

JOHN, Dorchester, mariner, came from Stepney, Middsx. Co., Eng., by wf. Parnell had Joseph, b. Sept. 30, 1631 ; Abigail, b. July 17, 1633 ; John, b. March 3, 1634, d. March 30, 1634 ; Nehemiah, b. July 12, 1637, d. Sept., 1639. His wf. Parnell d. Sept., 1639.

July 12, 1647, and he m. then, Aug. 10, 1654, Rebecca Wheeler, wid. of Thomas Wheeler. Ch. Nehemiah ; Samuel ; Mehitable ; Mary ; Marcy ; and Exercise. He was a cooper and d. Sept. 17, 1651. See Hist. Dorchester, p. 71. Savage has these two last Johns confounded.

JOHN, Watertown, freeman, March, 1638, a man of good estate, projected settlement at Sudbury and Lancaster, d. May 9, 1661; and his will of March 4, 1658, was pro. the Oct. 1, following. In it he provides for wf. Elizabeth, eldest s. Anthony, and other ch. which he does not name; but his wid. in her will of March 15, 1666-7, pro. April 2, supplies the deficiency, naming ch. Anthony, John, Robert, Esther Morse, wf. of Joseph, Mary Coldam prob. res. in Lynn, besides gr. chil. Mary Ball, and ano. Ball, Esther Morse, and the chil. of Anthony and Robert; he also had ch. Judith, who m. Francis Wyman; and Elizabeth, who m. John Ball, Jr.; the two latter d. bef. their father. See Peirce Gen. by F. C. Peirce, Esq.

JOHN, Boston, Woburn, Wethersfield, Conn., s. of John, Watertown, by wf. Elizabeth had John and Elizabeth, tws. b. June 16, 1643, d. young; John, b. Nov. 23, 1644; Joseph, b. Sept. 12, 1646; Thomas, b. May 3, 1649.

JOHN, Gloucester, husbandman, freeman, 1651, he m. Nov. 4, 1643, Elizabeth ———, who d. July 3, 1673, he then m. Sept. 12, 1673, Jane Stanwood who d. Aug. 18, 1706, his ch. were Mary, b. Sept., 1650, and John, b. July 14, 1653. He d. Dec. 15, 1695.

JOHN, Boston, s. of Anthony, cannot be the one adm. as an inhabt. Feb. 28, 1643, as Savage states; m. April 15, 1656, Ruth, dau. of Nathaniel and Alice Bishop, b. April 14, 1639, and had Hannah, b. June 30, 1660, d. July 28, 1662; Ruth, b. Nov. 22, 1662; Hannah, b. Nov. 1, 1665; Sarah, b. June 1, 1668, d. young; Ell [?], b. April 15, 1670; Rebecca, b. April 12, 1672, d. infant; Nathaniel, b. April 10, 1678; Rebecca, b. Feb. 15, 1679; Sarah, b. Sept. 9, 1682. His will is dated Oct. 21, 1682.—Suff. Prob. VI., p. 389.

JOHN, Hartford, Conn., 1640, a youth who prob. rev. soon.

JOHN, Charlestown, 1652, s. of Thomas, Sen., of same, but I do not think (as Savage suggests) that he is the one who had a wife Elinor and rev. to Kittery, for John and Elinor were inhabitants of the Colony as early as 1639; but it seems to me prob. that he died soon after his father (1666) and that he is the "unkle John" named in the will of Samuel, Charlestown.

JOHN, Boston, mason or bricklayer, by wf. Isabell, had Samuel, b. Jan. 14, 1659, d. same day; Mary, b. March 13, 1661, m. William Wilson; Sarah, b. Aug. 10, 1665; Jacob, and d. June 20, 1664; Joseph.

Dec. 23, 1673 ; James, b. Aug. 6, 1674, d. Sept. 13, 1685 ; Daniel, b. Oct. 7, 1676, m. Dinah Holt ; James, b. Oct. 8, 1686 ; Ebenezer, b. 1687 ; Joseph, b. Aug. 24, 1688, m. ## ORIGIN OF THE NAME OF PIERCE IN ENGLAND.

PETER claims our attention next. When we consider how important has been the position claimed for him it is remarkable that in an age when, so far as England was concerned, this respect was more fully exacted than any other, his name should be so rarely found, rarely when we reflect what an influence the ecclesiastics of the day themselves must have had in the choice of the baptismal name, and what an interest they had in making it popular. It is to them, doubtless, we must refer the fact of its having made any mark at all, for "Peter" was odious to English ears. It reminded them of a tax which was the one of all least liked, as they saw none of its fruits. It is to country records we must look for the "Peters" of the time. The freer towns would none of it. Among the rude peasantry ecclesiastic control was wellnigh absolute; in the boroughs it was proportionately less. I have already quoted an instance of 133 London names where Peter is discovered but once to thirty-five Johns. In the Norwich Guild already mentioned, the proportion, or rather disproportion, is the same. To 128 Johns, forty-seven Williams, forty-one Thomases, thirty-three Roberts, and twenty-one Richards, there are but four Peters. On the other hand, in Wiltshire, out of 588 names we find sixteen Peters to ninety-two Johns. This wide difference of ratio I find to be fully borne out in all other groups of early names. Thanks then to the ecclesiastics it did exist, and its relics at any rate are numerous enough. It is hence we get the shorter Parr, Piers, Pierce, Pears, Pearse, and Peers. It is hence with the patronymic added we get Parsons, Pearsons, Pierson, and the fuller Peterson. It is hence once more with the pet desinences attached we get our Perrins and Perrens, our Perrets, Perretts, Parrots, and Parrets, our Peterkins, Perkins, Parkins and Parkinsons, besides our Perks and Perkes innumerable.—[English surnames, their sources and significations, by Charles Waring Bardsley, A. M., 1875], pp. 88-9.

1. THOMAS PIERCE, the emigrant ancestor of this branch of the Pierce family, came from England to this country in 1633-4, with his wife Elizabeth Pierce, and settled in Charlestown, Mass. He was b. in England in 1583-4; d. Oct. 7, 1666. His wife Elizabeth was b. in England in 1595-6.

The wife of Thomas was admitted to the church at Charlestown Jan. 10, and he Feb. 21, 1634-5. He was freeman May 6, 1635. Sept. 27, 1642, he was one of the twenty-one commissioners appointed by the Great and General Court, "to see that Saltpetre heapes were made by all the farmers of the colony."

Children, b. in Charlestown:—

2. i. JOHN, probably the one admitted to the Church of Charlestown Aug. 22, 1652. He is not the one (as Savage suggests) who had a wife Elinor and removed to Kittery, for John and Elinor were inhabitants of the colony as early as 1639. He was a "Mariner," and probably returned to England and died there, as nothing can be found of his children in this country. He signed a deed in "Charlowne" the 27th of the 6th mo., 1655, as "John Pierce, Mariner, Doe for my selfe, my wiffe," &c.; in this property conveyed was "a quarter of a cows common, which I bought of my sister, widdow Persis Bridges."

There was a Capt. "John Pierce," who made several voyages between the colonies and England, who is supposed to be this one.

It seems to me very probable that John died in England soon after his father, and that he is the "Unkle John" named in Samuel's will.

*A note at time of proof shows that this will was executed at Thomas Danforth's house in Cambridge. Thomas Danforth was Treasurer of Harvard College, 1650-68. The inventory of Thomas Pierce's property taken Oct. 23, 1666, £413 5 s., was filed Mar. 22, 1666-7 by his widow Elizabeth Pierce aged about 71, appd. by Richard Lowden, Richard Jackson, Thomas Welch (?).

His wife Mary joined the church, Mar. 27, 1670. Their son, Samuel, is, I think, the one to whom the widow, Mary, gave the land in Charlestown, as he moved from Malden.

Apprized by John Cutter, Lawrence Dowse, Nov. 20, 1699.

A petition of "John Lynde of Malden who married with Mary, one of the daughters of Samuel Pierce, late of Charlestown deceased, of William Rand of Charlestown who m. with Persis, another of the dau. etc., of Samuel Counts, who m. with Hannah, another of the daus.,—and of Abigail, a fourth daughter—shewith that whereas the said Samuel Pierce dyed intestate and at his death left a very valuable estate both Real and Personall, of which Administration hath not yet been committed to any person according to Law, nor any Legal settlement made of the same, Wee therefore ——— pray that administration ——— may be committed to the widow of the deceased who yet survives or to some other of next of kin, that so y<sup>e</sup> Petrs. who have been many years kept out of their right, may have their portions." Hereupon the Judge of Probate ordered Mary Pearse and Jonathan and John Pearse of Charlestown, "the surviving souns," to appear before him on Nov. 23, 1699, when he appointed a farther hearing for Dec. 4, of which I find no record. But John Pierce was probably appointed admr. Mar. 9, 1705, John Pierce of Charlestown admr. de bonis non, cum test. annexo of Samuel Pierce late of C. deceased, gives bonds in £300, with Jno. Cutter and James Lowden, both of C., to render account of admr. on or before Mar. 9, 1706, and the same day he exhibited inventory of Est. not administered £25—10—00. Mar. 14, 1706, Abigail Pierce rendered her account for nursing her mother in her sickness from 1698 to her death, Jan. 17, 1705—6, £10—12—0. May 12, 1707, John Pierce admr. de bonis non, renders account of which he speaks of Mary as relict of the deceased.

Joseph Peirce

Joseph Pierce, senior, of Woburn, husbandman (will dated May 27, 1715, entered for probate Nov. 28, 1716), names his wife Mary (exec.); his wife's father, Theophilus Richardson, late of Woburn, deceased; the three eldest ch. of his adopted dau. Hannah Lynde, formerly Hannah Nickols; his "cozen" Nathan Richardson, "that now liveth with me"; his bro. Benjamin Pierce; his bro. Samuel Pierce; his "cozen" Ichabod Pierce; his "cozen" Sumors Pierce, s. to his bro. William and his "cozen" Deborah Richardson, "who now liveth with me." Witnesses, Samuel Baker, Sen., Timothy Snow, John Russell, Jun.

Mary Pierce, widow of Joseph, late of Woburn (will dated Jan. 20, 1716-17, pro. June 16, 1721), names cousin Nathan Richardson, "that now liveth with me" (Exec.); cous. Deborah Richardson, "that now liveth with me"; cous. Thos., s. to her bro. Benjamin Pierce. June 8, 1721, Articles of agreement between John Richardson of Woburn and his s. Nathan, on the one part, and the heirs of Joseph Pierce, late of Woburn, on the other. The former giving bonds to James Pierce, Benjamin Pierce, Joseph Whittemore and Timothy Snow, all of Woburn. The administration of the will of Mary Pierce, Joseph's widow, *Thomas Whittemore was taxed in the Rate of the Country, assessed in Woburn Aug. 26, 1666, and is reckoned among those who were entitled to a share of the common lands of the town in 1668, but not being taxed in the Rate for the Meeting-house in 1672, he appears to have previously removed to some other place; or, more probably as Mr. Savage thought, to have died in Mar., 1670, for the "5th of Apr. that year his wife had administered."

was committed during the minority of the Exec. to James Pierce, John Pierce and Timothy Snow.

Savage calls this Joseph, "prob. s. of Thomas." The opinion seems to me correct, for the following reasons: John of Woburn is not known to have had any son Benjamin, Samuel or William: Thomas of Woburn had sons Samuel and William. The parentage of Benjamin of Woburn, who had a son Thomas, is doubtful. He is not a son of Robert, and may have been son of either Thomas or John—probably the former. Again, the only Ichabod Pierce we know was the son of Nathaniel, a son of Robert and his second wife Elizabeth Foster, who was, says Savage, "perhaps the widow of Hopestill Foster." If this conjecture is correct, she was, before her first marriage to Thomas Whittemore, Elizabeth Pierce, "prob. d. of Thomas Pierce," and this relationship would explain Joseph's calling Ichabod "cozen" (i. e., as commonly used at that day, Nephew). On the whole, therefore, it appears that the hypothesis of Joseph's being the son of Thomas is that which best explains the various facts of the case. At the same time, we must regard Benjamin who m. Mary Reed, William who m. Abigail Somers, and Elizabeth the second wife of Nathaniel Peirce, as children of Sergt. Thomas Pierce.

Jan. 24, 1743, for at that time he m. 2nd, Lydia Gibbs. He d. Mar. 10, 1768. He first went to Leicester, then to Hopkinton. His wife was admitted to the church in that town in 1730, by letter from the church at Leicester. In 1747, he resided in Framingham. Thomas Pierce of Framingham, yeoman, advanced in age (will, Feb. 22, 1768, pro. Apr. 5, 1768), names his w. Ledy (Exec.), his children, viz: Jonathan, John, Elizabeth, Mary, Martha, Mehitable, his s. Thomas, his s. Benjamin, the heirs of his s. Timothy dec'd, his s. James, his d. Hannah Ballard, his dau. Hephzibah Dolby (Dolbier). Agreement of children and heirs signed by Mary Pierce, Thomas, Martha, Jonathan, John, Elizabeth (all Pierce), Hannah Ballard, William Ballard, Hitte Pierce. John (over 14) was put under guardianship Apr. 5, 1768.

A very singular error was five times repeated on the Middlesex Probate records in 1747, where guardians were appointed to the children of the first wife, her father having deceased, leaving the children property. In the records of the appointment of guardian, it is recited that they were "the children of Thomas Pierce, late of Framingham, deceased," when in fact he did not die till twenty-one years after. It was the wife who had "deceased."

The History of Wyoming has the following: Major Ezekiel Pierce, the father of the Pierce family, was the ready writer of early days and for a succession of years clerk of the town, the records being in his handwriting. He had five sons all grown to manhood when he moved from Plainfield, Conn. to Wyoming in 1771—and must therefore been advanced towards the decline of life. Their names were Abel, Daniel, John, Timothy and Phineas. When in June, 1778, the two independent companies were consolidated into one under Capt. Spaulding, Timothy and Phineas were commissioned 1st and 2nd lieutenants. Timothy was one of the three who rode all night before the battle, arrived after the troops had marched out, followed and fell. John also was slain in the engagement.

Captain Silas Pierce was born in Shirley in 1750, and died in Peterboro', N. H., Nov. 22, 1809. He married Hannah Woods, daughter of General Woods of Pepperell. He purchased in 1790 the farm of Asa Pierce of Peterboro', N. H., with the exception of the widow's third, and a part of the Hogg or Shepard farm. He was an officer in the army of the Revolution during the war. The late Gov. Benj. Pierce of N. H. was his cousin, and said to have been his waiter in the army for a time. Captain Pierce was wounded in the left arm, in consideration of which a pension was granted him. His arm was rendered stiff by the wound. He was a short, thick-set man with a Roman nose and commanding personal presence. After the war he moved to Peterboro', and went into trade at Hunt's Corner, soon failed by some bad management of a partner, and was left burdened with debts. He and his wife now laid aside all show of gentility, to which they had before made some claim; moved into a log-house on the hill east of the house of the Hayes family; went to work,—he as a layer of stone-wall for fence, she as a weaver. They soon moved into better quarters, but still humble, near the house which he afterwards built, in which Moses Fairbanks now lives. They both worked very hard for many years, paid off all their old debts, and purchased of real estate and acquired the means, with the aid of a small property left to Mrs. P. by the will of her father, to pass the latter years of their lives in comparative ease and comfort. But he did not live long to enjoy his improved condition. They were both much respected. The widow Pierce married James Brazer, Esq., of Groton, Mass., a wealthy merchant of that place. They had no issue.

(By Josiah Throop.)

To Mr. ISAAC and Mrs. MARY PIERCE.

When you recount the qualities that shone
Conspicuous in an amiable son,
Especially his fortitude and zeal,
Above his years, to save the common weal
And then reflect by what a sudden stroke
The prospect of your future joys was broke,
Your grief stands justified as reason's bar
And virtue must approve each generous tear.
Yet heaven afford some comfort, some defence,
Against this seeming frown of Providence;
In the bright list of heroes see his name,
Enrolled by the kind hand of deathless fame.
For when New England estimates the cost
Of civil discord by the sons she's lost;
When Freedom is established in the land,
And Peace and Confidence walk hand in hand,
Then those who in the glorious cause were slain,
In every grateful heart shall rise again.
Their names shall live and flourish on the stage,
Till time itself shall perish with old age.
If this reviving thought yield no relief,
Throw back the gloomy curtain of your grief,
And by the penetrating eye of Faith,
Scatter the melancholy shades of Death;
Pass by a day or two that hangs between,
And views Time's grave, important, final scene.
See this young Warrior, in his Heaven-built car,
Crowned with the Triumphs of a righteous war
In which he fell, while by Almighty wrath,
Each sceptered Tyrant dies a second death,
Behold the dazzling glories of the train
Of heroes, who in Freedom's cause were slain;
Each an immortal crown of victory wears,
Blazoned with sunbeams, interspersed with stars,
In which some mystic mark is fixed, to tell
The Heaven-defended cause in which they fell;
While in the midst we see young PIERCE appear,
Let this calm every sigh, dry every tear.

She was the daughter of John Lamson by his second wife, Abigail. They came from Reading in 1714, his wife Elizabeth bringing a certificate from that church June 6, 1714. They res. in Leominster and Jaffrey, N. H. He d. Aug. 11, 1827.

Jacob Pierce went to Jaffrey, N. H., in the spring of 1777; he had purchased his land prior to this time, and had erected thereon a log cabin. He was brought up in Leominster by a man named Carter. He was orderly sergeant in the War of the Revolution, and was at the battle of Bunker Hill. He borrowed his brother Samuel's gun because it was lighter and a better one than his, and he said he fired it seventeen times in that battle, and it became so hot that he could hardly hold it in his hands; he said he took good sight at men before he fired, but never knew or never wanted to know whether he killed any one or not. He was in Charlestown when the foundation for Bunker Hill monument was laid.

† Josiah Pierce (son of Josiah Pierce and Ruth Thompson, widow of Benj. Thompson, and mother of Count Rumford), born at Woburn, Mass., Aug. 27, 1756, died at Baldwin, Me., Jan. 23, 1830, was a man remarkable for his ability, energy, success in life, and superior physical and moral character. His father, Josiah Pierce, possessed 50 acres of tillage land in Woburn, opposite Col. Baldwin's place (inherited from his ancestor who settled there, as to 40 acres as a settler, and by acquisition of 10 acres more from some other settler), and also a lot of 30 acres (called "Wood-acre"), acquired by purchase. Josiah Pierce (born 1756), accompanied his half-brother Benj. Thompson (Count Rumford) in his escape from America, but took some part in the American Revolution, crossed Charlestown Neck during the engagement at Bunker Hill, with supplies for the troops, and was a member of a Company of Minute-men, and afterwards was an officer of the State in Shays' Rebellion. About 1780, he was engaged in the business of Col. Loammi Baldwin, and a partnership was formed between them under the name of "Baldwin & Pierce," through which they purchased the rights of several grantees to lands in Maine, chiefly in Flintstown (afterwards Baldwin), Maine; the partnership was dissolved in 1802. Meanwhile Josiah Pierce came to Baldwin about 1785, and then stopped at a settler's (Lowell's), where forty carcasses of deer killed on the hills near by, were in the house. Bears were frequently seen there then. Now a railway passes through those grounds, and it is rarely that one sees a partridge or squirrel. He set up a potash factory, a corn-mill, and timber-sawing mill, and built a house, square, old-fashioned, of the Massachusetts pattern (which is still standing), came back to Massachusetts and was married in March, 1787, to Phebe Thompson (dau. of Daniel Thompson who was killed at the battle of Lexington), carried her to Baldwin on a pillion, and lived there till his death. When he closed his partnership with Col. Baldwin in 1802, he took the lands in Maine, and his partner the debts to them on account—and he held afterwards during most of his life a large extent of timbered land (10,000 acres or more), and employed it usefully. He bought up his father's and mother's property in Woburn, and they came to live near him in 1791, and died in Baldwin. His business increased and gradually became chiefly that of manufacturing or supplying lumber or deals. At one time he owned thirty saw-mills. In politics he was a Federalist of the old school, and was by some called a Tory, from his old-fashioned ways. He was a Justice of the Peace, and had much to do in that capacity. He was almost always on horseback, the roads being bad at first, and from custom afterwards. To the close of his life he wore the old-fashioned queue, tied with black ribbon, and was careful of his dress, usually wearing a suit of gray cloth. His house was open to all guests, and his hospitality was famous through all the country round. He sometimes employed as many as a hundred men, on his farm of 400 acres, and on other work in the neighborhood. Although without a classical education, he was very fond of books, and read and knew almost all the best literature of his time, preferring metaphysics, and having as favorite authors Dugald Stewart, Brown, Burke, Locke, Pope, and Adam Smith. His conversation was remarkably pleasant and entertaining. It is said that when he went to Portland on business and stopped at an hotel, twenty or thirty of the old citizens would gather there to hear him talk. He gave all his children a good liberal education. Two of his three sons graduated at Bowdoin College. He was physically very superior, very strong, never ill, six feet in height, erect, broad-backed, and firm. He left a large family, well-trained, and well-placed—a memory still honored—a considerable property, and an example of the solid old Massachusetts Federalist.

Benjamin Pierce

The first account we read of in the History of New Hampshire is that in 1813 some contention took place between two parties, called Republicans and Federalists, in which Benjamin Pierce, Sheriff of Hillsborough, was removed from office. To this place he was again appointed. At this time debtors were imprisoned and Gen. Benjamin Pierce interested himself in behalf of three aged prisoners who had been in jail four years. Their names were Moses Brewer, Isaac Lawrence and George Laney. Speaking of General Pierce, Barstow, the historian, says:—"He fought for liberty and enjoyed it. In his character were united the generosity of the soldier with the liberal sentiments of enlightened philanthropy." This liberation took place on the 20th of November. Sixty-one years before this time, Gen. Pierce was born at Chelmsford, Mass., and was the son of a farmer. On the memorable 19th of April, 1775, while he was plowing in the field, a horseman rode up to the door, and having delivered a brief message, hastened onward to alarm the country. Leaving the plow, young Pierce immediately set out on foot for Lexington; he found on his arrival that the British troops had fallen back upon Boston, and he proceeded to Cambridge. It was here that young Pierce, then but eighteen years of age, enlisted as a private in the army of the revolution, and attached himself to the regiment of Col. Brooks. He was in the midst of the battle of Bunker Hill and from that time to the close of the revolution he followed the fortunes of his regiment, fought whenever it was called into action, and was invariably distinguished and commended by his superior officers for gallantry and good conduct. He rose from the ranks to the command of a company, which he held at the disbanding of the army in 1784. He returned to his native village and found that his nine years' pay in Continental money had so much depreciated that it would not suffice for the purchase of a farm. He was therefore obliged to go into the wilderness where lands were cheap and begin the cultivation of wild land. In the autumn of 1786, President Sullivan having resolved to form the militia of the county of Hillsborough into a brigade, sought out the veteran soldier, then far into the woods, and commissioned him as a Brigade-Major. He immediately took the necessary steps for the perfect organization and discipline of the several regiments. He had already served more than eight years in the regular army and he continued to serve Massachusetts and New Hampshire for twenty-one years in the militia, leaving it finally in the capacity of a Brigadier-General. The regiment which furnished a Miller, a McNiell, was for many years commanded by him, and many other valuable officers who have distinguished themselves in the public service have been proud to say that they received their first lessons in military discipline from the veteran General Pierce in the Militia of Hillsborough. From 1789 to 1802 he was a Representative to the General Court, and in 1803 was elected to the Council, where he continued six years, five of which were passed in the council of Gov. Langdon. It was not until 1827 that he was elected Governor of the State of New Hampshire and was re-elected in 1829, having been omitted one year on account of his opposition to John Quincy Adams. At the commencement of the last war with Great Britain his spirit entered into the contest, but the infirmities of age admonished him that he could hasten to the battle field no more. Two of his sons with his consent and advice entered the public service. He was noted for his integrity of character. At his death the public felt the loss of a man who had faithfully served his fellow men and his country.

A VISIT TO THE PIERCE MANSION.

The traveler, as he passes through Hillsborough, N. H., will notice on the old turnpike leading from Francestown through the upper village, and not far from what was once the terminus of the Contoocook Valley railroad, a stately, old-fashioned farmhouse. It is a square, commodious, two-story structure, with an L, also two stories, and a barn attached, and all painted white. Externally the building presents an appearance no different from many other old houses scattered up and down our country towns, but when once your footsteps have taken you up the walk to the entrance door, our word for it, you will not regret that you have strayed to its portals. Built during the last decade of the eighteenth century, it was for forty years the residence of Governor Benjamin Pierce, and the place where his yet more illustrious son was born on a late November day, seventy-four years ago. So the old house has a history, and a rare one, too, which fairly challenges our inquiry.

It was in 1785 that Col. Benjamin Pierce, a patriot of the revolution, who fought all through the battles of that bloody struggle, came to Hillsborough and erected a log cabin near the spot where the mansion now stands. He purchased a hundred-and fifty-acre lot, and commenced clearing it, married and remarried, his first wife dying within a year after their union. It was up-hill work at first, but industry and perseverance brought success, and the pioneers prospered. The log cabin was pulled down to make way for a better house. Acres were added to the original purchase and Benjamin Pierce became a man of means, the squire of the village, and a rising politician. Nine children played around his door, the seventh of whom became the fourteenth president of the United States.

The Pierce mansion stands in the midst of grounds which in former years, were laid out with elegant taste, and embellished with fruit-trees and shrubbery. Some handsome, stately trees embowered the venerable roof. Around the front side of the building extends a piazza; that at the end, facing the highway, is covered by a balcony, which forms a glorious retreat in the warm summer days. Here, in the ancient time the governor's guests were accustomed to retire for the purpose of tea or punch drinking. A visitor arriving in a carriage either alighted at the front entrance, or passed by the broad drive under the shade of thrifty maples to the swarded courtyard. Emerging from the east entrance door the old proprietor mounted his horse to ride to Exeter court-house where, as a member of the New Hampshire assembly, he long served his fellow-citizens of Hillsborough. At a later day he rode in a coach which carried him in state to the capitol at Concord, the people all flocking along the way to get a glance at "the governor."

Along the east side of the mansion extends an inclosed garden of half an acre or more, with walks, a summer-house, and in the centre an artificial pond, now choked with albris and weeds, but in the old governor's time well stocked with trout. These grounds must always have been a favorite resort of the family and their guests. On one of the trees an acute eye can still decipher a wound in the bark said to have been the linked names of Hawthorne and Franklin Pierce, cut there by the former in their college days. In the summer-house, covered by climbing grapevines, have sat grave judges and courtly scholars, and doubtless its walls might whisper of many a love-tryst.

Entering the house by the south door we step into a large hall, which formerly extended through the middle of the mansion, but has since been shortened. The walls of this room are lined with family portraits, those of the governor and his lady, President Pierce, Gen. John McNeil and wife, and their daughter, Col. and Mrs. C. E. Potter. We notice the broad stairway and the elaborately-carved balusters, and are transported to the time when a powdered, dignified gentleman used to go up and down the stairs, and when a merry group of children played upon this very floor, among whom was a boy with hazel eyes and brown, curly locks, who, less than fifty years afterwards, was to sit among the great rulers of the earth, in the place which Washington had occupied before him, and which Jefferson, Adams, Van Buren and Jackson adorned. What a lesson for the young is exhibited by the life, stranger than any romance, of the simple country youth, who, from an humble station, rose by honest and persevering toil to be the peer of kings!

On the left of the hallway is the great parlor, with its large chandeliers, its heavy cornice, its massive hearthstone, with antique brass andirons, and its walls covered with the original paper put on more than eighty years ago. This paper is very thick and extends from ceiling to floor, embossed in gorgeous colors, with landscapes, tournaments, marine views and civil festivals. The room teems with historic associations. Here were married all of the governor's children, and brilliant ceremonies attended some of these events. Beautiful and antique relics are distributed about, war trophies of the Pierces and McNeils, Mexican curiosities, curious old mirrors and chairs, and a host of articles too numerous to specialize, which are now the property of Mrs. Potter.

There are eight rooms on the ground floor of the square part. In the northeast corner, now used as a sleeping-room, is the apartment where Franklin Pierce was born. His cradle is still preserved here, and in this room is also the old governor's sideboard, which oldtime hospitality required should be always garnished with wines or a huge bowl of punch. That was in the ante-Washingtonian days, when men could drink their pint of Antigua without fearing any enemy but the gout, and when the aroma of good old Xeres was not distateful to the ladies.

The second floor is provided with six chambers, all opening on a spacious and airy hall. None of these rooms demand special description. Descending to the cellar, we have pointed out to us the various compartments of the old governor's domestic repository. Everything is on a grand scale. In the wine-cellar there were annually stored twenty casks of wine and fifty barrels of cider—the good old New England beverage. The potato-bin will accommodate three hundred bushels of tubers. The founder of this mansion was a great man in his day, and with but one exception, was probably the most popular governor ever elected in New Hampshire. Even to-day, after a lapse of forty years, his very name touches the heart almost to a burst of enthusiasm. His personal appearance, as it has been preserved by the portraits on the walls of the mansion, is indicative of the man. There is something of the look of a Jackson in that face. The jaws have the same lion-like solidity, the lips are firm and the nose identical with that same feature which we observe on the medals of the Roman emperators, but the eyes have a merry gleam, and the rubicund visage, and the thick-set, portly figure tell more plainly than words can of the good-natured, good-living, hospitable squire, whose name could rally more voters to the polls than that of any other man in the State, after John T. Gilman.

One would hardly think, gazing at the house, that it had been the scene of so much romance and glory. Yet in some of these old rooms, the embryo statesman and president must have slept and ate and studied through all his boyhood days. Out of some of those windows looked the eyes that were to gaze on the splendors of the White House and the varied scenes of foreign lands. In this very yard sang the voice which was to stir listening senates with its tones. Around this place centre all of the associations connected with his youthful years. Here was the theatre of his early sports, here his school-days began, here he had his first visions of future eminence, or of the possibility of it. Through this very door he passed with his college honors upon him; the friend of Stowe, of Hawthorne, of Longfellow, and others equally known to fame. Great men, statesmen, writers, divines and soldiers have been domiciled under this roof. Nearly all of the leading men of New Hampshire for fifty years visited at Squire Pierce's house. Isaac Hill, Charles H. Atherton, Ebenezer Webster, Judge Woodbury and John T. Gilman were more than guests of the governor. And, afterwards, Hawthorne, Dr. Appleton, the McNeils, and others came to see the young lawyer, their friend. John McNeil, in particular, was long a visitor there, coming every Sunday night, to pay his addresses to a certain staid, beautiful maid, who afterwards became his wife.

There were several fair daughters in the house of Pierce, but Elizabeth, the eldest, was the queen of the family. At all the sewing-bees and tea assemblies of the countryside Elizabeth Pierce was the belle among the village maidens. Many of the leading young men of the place had a desire for her fair hand and the heart that went with it. But John McNeil, the son of an old comrade-in-arms of her father, tall, handsome and manly, was the favored suitor. Who would not like to know the particulars of that courtship? When Alphonso and Juliana, after flirting with and kissing half-a-dozen other girls and men, engage themselves nowadays, between the pauses in the waltz, and hie away the next morning to announce the fact to all their friends, the story does not seem sweet at all. But it was different in the early days of our century. Young lovers saw each other only in the presence of others; letters were studied and formal, and the engagement was kept secret according to custom. Human hearts, however, are the same in all ages, and love was as strong and fiery then as now, though hidden under modest reserve. Many a time, undoubtedly, John and Elizabeth walked arm-in-arm along this path, talking the same old story that lovers always have. One almost envies them the delicious thrill of the sacred secret when their hands touched in the stately quadrille, or their eyes told the sweet, unspoken story. They were married on Christmas day, 1811. John McNeil became a general and a famous New Hampshire worthy, and his Elizabeth made a most true wife and loving mother. Both died before their famous relative went into the White House.

On the opposite side of the road stands a long, low building, in good repair. This was formerly the old horse-shed, in one corner of which a room was finished as a law office, where the future president first "set up in business." It was in the year 1827 that young Pierce began his practice of law in this place. Few who saw the young attorney then imagined they were looking on the future chief magistrate of the nation. Not much above the middle size, nervous and hesitating in speech, he did not even look as though he would succeed as a lawyer. Indeed, his first effort as an advocate was a marked failure. But there were elements of greatness in the young man, and he could not be discouraged. Said he to a friend who consoled with him, "I will try nine hundred and ninety-nine cases, if clients will continue to trust me, and if I fail just as I have to-day, will try the thousandth. I shall live to argue cases in this court-house in a manner that will neither mortify myself nor my friends." He made his assertion good, and even as a lawyer Franklin Pierce had few superiors. George Barstow, Esq., was the last practitioner of law who used the office. The innovation of railroads left the old village out in the cold and carried its business to other places, and the law-office of an American president is now devoted to the humble use of a carriage-house.

The old house still remains in the family, practically speaking. Governor Pierce died in 1839, and some years prior to that event

Franklin had removed to Concord. The homestead became the property of Mrs. McNeil, with whom it remained until her death, in 1852. Her daughter, Fanny Maria McNeil, inherited it and lived in the old mansion many years with her talented husband, the Hon. Chandler E. Potter. For the last few years the property has been owned by General Samuel Andrews, a nephew of Governor Pierce's first wife.

FROM THE HISTORY OF PRESIDENT PIERCE.

Benjamin Pierce was a native of Chelmsford, Mass. He never received a liberal education; in fact, he was almost entirely a self-educated man, gaining his knowledge more from men than from books. At the early age of seventeen he bade farewell to his plow, and enlisted as a common soldier in the great war of the American Revolution. On the 19th of April, 1775, the revolutionary committee sent couriers out in every direction; one of them drove up before the farm-house of the uncle of Benjamin, and told his brief tale of the news of the battle of Lexington. The simple account of the courier was all that was needed to fire the brave heart of the young farmer, and he shouldered his musket, and with the blessings of his parents, started on foot for the seat of war. He soon arrived in Boston, where he enlisted as a private in the regiment commanded by Colonel Brooks. He was in the great battle of Bunker Hill, the 17th of June following, and there distinguished himself by his bravery. In one of the many important actions in which he was subsequently engaged, during the hottest of the battle, when the leaden rain was fiercest, Benjamin Pierce saw the flag of his regiment wave to and fro, and as if the bearer were unable longer to uphold it. Although the act was accompanied with the greatest danger, he rushed forward, and grasping it, held it proudly in its proper place, while the old bearer dropped dead at his feet. And until the action was finished and the victory complete, he continued to uphold it. The brave action was noticed, and the next morning the young farmer was rewarded with an ensigncy. His superior bravery, and his military talents, attracted attention, and when the Revolutionary War was brought to a termination, he quitted the army with the rank of captain. Such was the wretched pecuniary condition of the treasury, that the soldiers were paid off for their services in a depreciated currency, and Captain Peirce found that he possessed only about $200. He was necessitated, therefore, to retire to the wilderness, where land was cheap, and purchase himself a farm. In the fall of the year 1786, General Sullivan, who was then a resident of New Hampshire, determined upon forming the militia of Hillsborough county into a brigade, and appointed Benjamin Pierce a brigade-major. His services were of great value to the militia of New Hampshire, and he finally rose to a brigadier-general. In 1789, he was elected from Hillsborough to sit in the House of Representatives at Concord, and continued to represent that town in the House for twelve consecutive years. In 1803, he was elected a member of the Governor's Council, in which office he continued until 1809, when he was appointed Sheriff of Hillsborough county. This office he occupied for four years. For many years following he was either Sheriff of the county or he was a member of the Governor's Council. In 1827, Benjamin Pierce was elected Governor of the State of New Hampshire; in 1828, in times of great political agitation, he was for once defeated in his election, but was triumphantly re-elected again in 1829.

Without the advantages of early education, without opulent and powerful friends, Benjamin Pierce grew to be the most influential man in New Hampshire. His influence in the county of Hillsborough was overwhelming, and indeed through the State. He was, in fact, a man of great native talent. Shrewd, good-natured, and possessed of common-sense, he soon took his position as a leader of men. In personal appearance he was striking. He was rather short, and thick-set, had a rigid, honest-looking face, resembling, to a degree, the best portraits of Gen. Jackson. He was a universal favorite—fearless, frank-hearted, entirely devoid of all aristocratical pride—he was calculated to please the great body of the people.

In the jail at Amherst, N. H., there were three aged prisoners, viz. : Moses Brewer, Isaac Lawrence, and George Lancy; one of them had remained there for four years, in the closest confinement, all for the non-payment of a trifling debt. When Benjamin Pierce was elected Sheriff of the county, one of his first acts was to appoint a day for the releasement of these prisoners. The people thought the occasion worthy of a public meeting, and when the day arrived, Nov. 20, 1818, a large number attended.

FROM THE HISTORY OF THE CINCINNATI SOCIETY.

Benjamin Pierce was born in Chelmsford, Mass., Dec. 25, 1757. Losing his father when he was but six years of age, he labored on the farm of his Uncle Robert until April 25, 1775, when he enlisted in Ford's company of Bridge's Regiment and was in the battle of Bunker Hill. He was orderly-sergeant of Jackson's (8th) Regiment, and was promoted ensign for gallantry at Bemis Heights, Oct. 7, 1777; he was subsequently commissioned lieutenant, July 7, 1782. He was a prisoner in New York, and was grossly insulted by a British officer, whom he ran through the body in a duel. After the evacuation of New York, in 1786, he commenced clearing land for a farm in the valley of the Contoocook River in N. H. He was representative to the General Court in 1789 and 1802. Successively Major, Colonel and in 1805 Brigadier-General of Militia. Member of the Council 1803 to 1809 and 1814 to 1818. Sheriff of Hillsborough 1809 to 1814 and 1818 to 1823. Governor of N. H. 1827 and 1829, and Vice-President of the Mass. Society of the Cincinnati, from 1836 to his death at Hillsborough, N. H., April 1, 1839.

The death of Mrs. McNeil, widow of the late Gen. John McNeil and daughter of the late Gov. Pierce, of New Hampshire, was announced some weeks since. Mrs. McNeil inherited the same strength of mind, nobleness of soul, and generosity of heart of her father, in whose bosom patriotism, liberality and charity ever burned. A portion of her life was spent in the wilds of the west, whither she followed him in whom she had "garnered up her heart." She was bland in her manners, and possessed a richly endowed mind; and the christian generosity which was extended to all without distinction, made her the friend of the needy who always found relief at her hands. She was proud of her country, and was ready to make great sacrifices for its protection and advancement when public services called her husband beyond the pale of civilization, in the flush and enthusiasm of her youth, and with the devotedness and self-sacrificing spirit of the best and truest of her sex, she shared his dangers and sufferings with a high sense of woman's duties. Fit consort for such a man she has followed many loved ones *Lieutenant McNeil was the son of General John McNeil, of Boston, Massachusetts, and grandson, on his mother's side, of the late General Benjamin Pierce, of Hillsborough, New Hampshire. He was born on the Island of Mackinaw, Michigan Territory, February 17, 1817. He remained several years with his parents at Chicago, Illinois, while his father was commandant of the United States troops of that station. In 1824, he returned with his parents to New England; was at West Point; spent some time in the office of Hon. Franklin Pierce, at Hillsborough, New Hampshire, and entered the United States Army in the spring of 1838, as Lieutenant of a company in the 2d Regiment of Dragoons. He recruited through the summer, and in the following winter was ordered to Florida. He continued in the service, and was out in several skirmishes till the fall of 1837, when he fell in a fight with the Seminole Indians on the morning of September 10.

The circumstances of that encounter were these: General Hernandes on the 7th set out an expedition from Head-Quarters, at Picolata, in the vicinity of St. Augustine, against a body of Indians that had taken a position about sixty miles to the southwest. In the absence of their superior officers, the command of the battalion, under the direction of General Hernandes, was given to Lieutenants McNeil and Peyton. On the evening of the 9th the battalion approached the Indians, who occupied a position deemed almost impregnable by reason of a swamp and thicket that surrounded them. The battalion halted till dawn of day (Sabbath morning), when the attack was made in two columns, headed respectively by Lieutenants McNeil and Peyton. The savages had time to give but one fire before they were surrounded and taken. While McNeil was advancing at the head of his column, he saw their chief, Uchee Billy, level his rifle at him; and at the moment he drew his pistol, the rifle of the chief was discharged, the bullet passing through his pistol hand and taking effect in the abdomen. McNeil remained on the field through the action; and when the Indians were secured, he was carried on a litter to the camp, about ten miles distant. The next day the battalion set out for St. Augustine, but McNeil died on the way, Monday night at 10 o'clock. His remains were carried to St. Augustine, and buried with the honors of war; after which the officers of the army met and passed resolutions expressive of their sense of his character as a soldier and as a

to the mansions of rest, and slowly waited till her spirit took its flight to that brighter world on high. "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it." Eccles. xii: 7. During her severe illness, her youngest daughter, like the ministering angel of mercy, watched over her, "smoothed her dying pillow," and with words of heavenly cheer and comfort, "soothed the pain and anguish of her disease." Soon, ah! too soon, and that which was born of the flesh gave way, and the earthly tabernacle sank man. Though only about twenty years of age when he fell, he was as brave an officer as ever commanded troops. Had he lived, and circumstances concurred, there is every reason for believing that he would have worthily emulated the bravery and generalship of his distinguished father.

"To the memory of

Lieutenant JOHN W. S. McNEIL, of the United States Army, who fell in an engagement with the Seminole Indians, near St. Augustine, Florida,

September 10, 1837.

In that wild land drenched by our bravest blood,
 Poured out in torrents like the Autumn rain,
 Of all the young and gallant multitude
 Whose bones have whitened many a fatal plain,
 Repose no nobler relics of the slain
 Than thine, McNeil, the generous, mild, and brave!
 Why should we mourn his early fate in vain?
 For he has gone into a glorious grave,
 Wet by the grateful tears of those he died to save.

And when the turf was laid upon his breast,
 His country's cannon thundered o'er his head
 A requiem fitting for the Soldier's rest—
 There sleeps he on his gory-mantled bed
 Among a nation's unforgotten dead;
 Fain would I rest where he is sleeping now!
 The patriot's life-blood for his country shed
 Blooms up afresh in the perennial glow
 Of Laurels twined by Fame around his glittering brow.

The generous flame that burned within his soul
 Was lit by nature at a kindred fire:
 Sprung from a race that never brooked control,
 Rightly to glorious deeds he might aspire,
 The highborn offspring of a noble sire!
 And she who, with a mother's untold grief,
 Yearns o'er his early tomb with vain desire,
 Was daughter of New Hampshire's bravest chief,
 Late gathered to his rest like the o'erripened sheaf.

And as the Spartan matrons searched of yore
 The bodies of their sons in battle slain,
 And when they found the mortal wounds before
 Knew they fell bravely, and in gladsome train
 Exulting bore them from the bloody plain
 With proud though bitter joy,—so now may they Lament his loss with no complaining strain;
 Though pierced, he sank not through the well-fought day,
 Till Victory's joyous shout wafted his soul away!

MAY 3, 1842."

in death while that which is spiritual still exists, binding soul to soul. Never was a mother worn down with the fatigues of an eventful life and the workings of disease, more blest than was Mrs. McNeil in the untiring attentions of the child of love.

All that purest affection could prompt submissive hands procured, but finite love, though stronger than death, could not save. Child of sorrow, thou art surrounded by many dear friends, and thou art supported with the consciousness of having administered to the wants of a sick and dying mother. God has blessed you in that mother, dearly beloved by all her children.

Another Relic.

The good sword of a brave man was recently deposited among the mementoes of the revolution in the museum at Independence Hall. It was borne by Benjamin Pierce (father of President Franklin Pierce), who rallied at Lexington to defend his country, and thence continued in the army, fought at Bunker Hill, at Long Island and at the siege of Yorktown. He remained in the service until the final disbanding of the army, at West Point, in 1784. He retired in command of his company and continued in the line of well-earned promotion; was twice elected Governor of New Hampshire. His granddaughter, Mrs. C. E. Potter, of Hillsborough, N. H., is the depositor.

Joseph Pierce died in Boston Jan. 1, 1828; was graduated at the Boston Latin School, 1756. Joseph was a prominent merchant of the times and a man of great integrity, and possessed considerable influence with his fellow-citizens. Feeble health and a young and increasing family prevented his taking an active part in the struggle for liberty, which, however, received the aid both of his purse and his influence. From his store on the north side of State street he witnessed the "massacre" of Nov. 5, 1770. In connection with the sufferings of the inhabitants of Boston during the siege he often spoke of the fact that rats were eaten, occasionally, to appease hunger. He was the founder of the Provincial Grenadier corps and its commander on the occasion of its first parade, June 8, 1772, Henry Knox, afterwards Major-General and Secretary of War, being second in command. The splendid uniform, military appearance, drill, and the efficiency of its corps, are of traditional renown. It elicited the commendation of the British officers then in Boston, and received the special notice of Gov. Gage on his public entry into Boston in May, 1774. He was the friend and correspondent of Gov. Knox, with whom he afterwards associated himself in the proprietorship of large tracts of land in Maine. Knox's letters were unfortunately lost in 1811 by the burning of a store in which they were deposited. Capt. Pierce, from his personal acquaintance with the leaders of the Revolution and the principal officers of the army, and having himself participated in the early events of the contest, was, in his old age, full of reminiscences and anecdotes relating to them, and was consequently a most interesting and instructive companion. Res. in Boston. Children:—

He was born of poor but respectable parents, in the town of Hopkinton, Middlesex Co., Mass. He lived for about a year with his maternal uncle, Noah Havens, in the south part of Dedham, Mass., when he was about ten years old. His parents at that time moved to Hubbardston, Worcester Co., about 40 miles. Thinking they were going so far that all intercourse of communication would be cut off they took Eliab with them. When nearly eighteen Eliab enlisted in the Militia Co. then doing duty in R. I., where he served under sordid officers and was cheated out of his rations and most of his pay. The next summer he re-enlisted and went to West Point and vicinity, where he served under Benedict Arnold.

Captain Joseph Pierce was born in Boston, on the 30th of July, 1783, and was consequently nearly eighty years of age at his demise. At an early age he chose a sailor's life and went to sea. He pursued this adventurous career for many years, during which he circumnavigated the globe, visiting nearly all the important places of the world. As early as 1802, while employed on board the armed ship Juno of Bristol, R. I., he entered the Oregon river and Puget's Sound on the Pacific coast—points then almost unknown to commerce. During the war of 1812, he was engaged in the naval service of our country; in what capacity we are not informed, but if we mistake not he was taken prisoner and suffered confinement, for a time, in one of the noted dungeons of England. In 1818 he emigrated to the West and engaged in the navigation of the western waters, and for many years was known as one of the most successful commanders on the rivers. Identifying himself with this pursuit he ever afterward retained a deep interest in all the improvements which have characterized our river trade. No man in the community was better posted in all matters pertaining to steam power, the machinery, equipments, architecture and finish of our river craft. It is nearly or quite a quarter of a century since his first appointment, by the Insurance Companies of Cincinnati, as Inspector of Steamboats; which position he continued to occupy till his death, without intermission. His previous life and occupation pre-eminently qualified him for the duties of this department—and the length of time he filled the place bespeaks the confidence reposed in him by the institutions he served.

Politically, Capt. Pierce was a Whig of the Henry Clay school, and stood firm and unshaken in his faith through all the vicissitudes of the party and its leader. The principles he then embraced he retained to the last; yielding only to the imperious demands of fate which, for the time being, swept them in part from the political platforms of the day. He could never sympathize in any degree with the radicalism of any party. Above all personal or party considerations, his country and its government, whether administered by political friends or foes, occupied the first place in his affections; and unsparing and terrible were his denunciations of him who dared, in his presence, to suggest even the possibility of a dismemberment of the great family of States. No heart ever beat in truer loyalty than his. His patriotism was untarnished by a single corrupt thought. When the present rebellion was inaugurated, the highest regret he entertained was that age and physical disabilities prevented him from taking up arms for the defense of his country. To his dying hour his purest earthly aspiration was expressed in the wish that this Government, consecrated by the sacred blood of our fathers, might survive the shock of civil war under which it now trembled, and stand forth before the world an exemplification of the principles on which it is founded, furnishing in all time to come proofs of a higher civilization than has been elsewhere attained—a monument of the wisdom which laid its foundations in blood.

Socially, Captain P. was in the highest sense genial; his eventful life and its stirring incidents, rendered him capable of affording pure entertainment to the social circle. When the Spring Grove Cemetery was orgnized (nearly twenty years ago), he became one of the original lot owners—selecting the spot where he desired his remains might repose after life's journey was accomplished. His interest in its preparation was for a time intense. At great expense he provided a vault and erected a monument, which was among the most creditable structures, in its early days, of this now almost unequalled "city of the dead." The remains of his wife, deceased many years before, he removed from Boston and placed them in the only niche in the vault, besides the one prepared for himself. He procured a coffin for his own body, made strictly after his own instructions, and accurately adapted to the place it was intended finally to occupy. A silver plate to be adjusted to the same was also procured, and suitable inscriptions of his name, date of birth, with a blank for the date of his death, and appropriate masonic emblems (of which fraternity he was a member), all engraved on the same so that the least possible additional service, preparatory to his burial, would be required. This plate for safe keeping, he placed in a frame and hung it in his room. On the back of the frame he had attached in manuscript in his own handwriting, the form of an epitaph, which he designed for his monument after his decease. This recounted briefly the date of his birth—the principal events of his life—and leaving a blank space for the date of his death, it closed with a declaration of his religious faith in the certainty of "future happiness and in the existence of a just God."

Barnard, Brandon, Vt., and Whitehall, N. Y. Dea. Pierce was a native of Southborough, Mass. At the age of 17 he united with the Congregational Church at Barnard, Vt. About 40 years before he died, he removed to Brandon, Vt., where he was soon after elected a deacon. For more than twenty-five years, he was an elder in the Presbyterian Church in Whitehall. His singular consistency of christian character commanded the respect of all. The following testimonial of his worth was placed on the records of the church of which he was the oldest member: "In recording the death of Dea. Nathan Pierce, the senior member of this body, this session would express their sincere regards for the integrity and christian principle which marked his character, as also the high estimation in which they held his discreet counsels and earnest prayers. While they mourn their own loss in his removal as well as that of his family, the church and the community of which he was a member, they record their humble gratitude for the clear evidence he left that for him to die was gain. When asked in his last hours if he had any wish to express, he answered, 'only that the name of the Lord be glorified.'"

SKETCH OF DR. AARON PIERCE.

BY MRS. J. K. COLBY.

Dr. Aaron Pierce was the son of Deacon David and Sally Pierce, of Barnard, Vt. He was born Nov. 23, 1787. He died June 1, 1860, aged 72 years. "His father's family embraced eleven children. It was a household penetrated with much of the Puritan spirit." If there was sometimes an apparent want of gentleness in it, there was always evidence of strong christian love and principle. The support of such a large family from a farm of little natural fertility, required hard work and strict economy. The life which was the result of these conditions, gave to the family a large share of that robustness which has distinguished the New England character.

Aaron, the third son in this family, labored on the farm until he was 22 years of age. He then fitted for college intending to enter at Middlebury, Vt., and after completing his undergraduate course to study for the ministry. Alarming symptoms of lung disease, however, compelled a change in his cherished plan for life, and led him to begin the study of medicine. After studying for a time with a physician of experience in his native town he attended lectures at the Dartmouth Medical School, at Hanover, N. H., but, like many, at that time, did not include surgery in his course, and began the practice of his profession at Cornish, N. H.

In this place, Dec. 29, 1819, he was united in marriage to Sarah Hough, daughter of Thomas Hough and Sarah Kimball, of Lebanon, N. H., a woman of most lovely christian character. She was born at Lebanon, N. H., March 21, 1797, and died at Barton, Vt., Oct. 3, 1842. [For genealogy of Houghs, see history of New London, Conn., by E. M. Caulkins]. To them were given ten children.

On the 9th of July, 1844, Dr. Pierce was united in marriage to Mary Billing, who was born at Lebanon, N. H., Feb. 8, 1799, and died at Barton, Vt., Feb. 13, 1879.

Although he remained in Cornish only a few years—a more lucrative practice being offered to him in Weathersfield, Vt., he was long remembered there with respect and affection. After practising eleven years in Weathersfield, he removed to Irasburgh, Vt. From this place he removed in 1842 to Barton, Vt., where, for a time, he united to some extent the practice of both towns—Irasburgh and Barton.

His personal appearance commanded respect. He was a little more than six feet in height and well proportioned. He was always dignified in his bearing. His convictions were strong, and, if he thought occasion required it, they were apt to be expressed with far more regard for the truth than for the opinion of others. He was sometimes abrupt to a degree approaching harshness. An anecdote illustrating this characteristic is related of him soon after he went to Irasburgh. A woman in a neighboring town who had an idiotic child, hearing that a physician of skill and experience had come to reside near her, summoned Dr. Pierce. He looked at the child, examined it for a few minutes, but remained silent. The mother then asked, "Can you do anything for my child?" "Nothing, Madam, your child is a fool!" was the reply.

To his family, though sometimes stern in discipline, he was affectionate and confiding.

"In his profession, he was skilful and successful. His counsel was often sought and highly valued. A physician who knew him well, says of him, that his information was extensive, that he ranked among the first physicians in the region where he resided and was second to none. His information was well digested into serviceable knowledge," which he was quick to apply as occasion offered. He was a diligent student of medical books, and was a regular subscriber to the most approved medical journals. The extreme accuracy of his information never permitted him to pass unnoticed a mistake even in pronunciation or quotation, and if made by one of his family, it never failed to receive correction even during his last sickness. He was enthusiastically fond of his profession, still he never lost his love for that of his first choice. More than thirty sermons were found among his papers after his death. These were written during his residence in Irasburgh, and most, if not all, were read by him on the Sabbath, at intervals, when the church was without a pastor. Neither did he lose his love for the employment of his boyhood—farming. In every place where he resided after leaving Cornish, he owned some land, and enjoyed much the care of its cultivation. Though diligent in his profession, he left only a small property. This was not due to any want of accuracy in book-keeping, neither to failure in collecting his bills, nor in the practice of strict economy; but to the small fees which the time and region where he practised allowed, and the still smaller returns in cash.

In politics, Dr. Pierce was a decided Whig. Earnestly opposing Jackson's Bank and Indian policy, and predicting, at an early period, civil war as the result of the slavery conflict, he found himself in hearty sympathy with the anti-slavery party. Still he never took an active, public part in relation to any of these questions. He had no political ambition to gratify. He held no office in state or church. His profession was his life work.

In religion, Dr. Pierce was an earnest christian. A member of the Congregational Church, he labored to advance its interests wherever he lived, and to the utmost of his ability he aided the spread of the gospel. Whenever it was possible, he was present at the services of the sanctuary, leading for many years the choir of singers with his own rich tenor voice. In the social meeting, he was a helper. "His christian experience was mature, founded on a sound basis of Biblical knowledge." He loved the Bible, and his "Scott" bears the marks of diligent use.

He also loved the Calvinistic doctrines, but he did not teach them at second hand. He could state and defend them ably from the Bible. His reading was largely of a religious character, well chosen, digested and made his own. His thoughts on moral and religious subjects and on other topics which interested him, were well defined and clearly expressed, both in writing and conversation. "His mind was of a high order."

Toward the close of his life he suffered several years from abnormal action of the heart, and, at times, from inflammation of the kidneys. A cold, increasing the trouble of the heart, occasioned his death.

A true child of the Puritans, he gave to his generation the service of a good citizen, a trusted physician and a spiritually minded man.

Died at his residence in Woodstock, Vt., Monday evening, the 23rd instant, Dea. Dana Pierce, at the age of seventy-four.

Dana Pierce was born in Lancaster, Mass., the 7th of September, 1795. In the winter of 1796-97, his parents removed to Barnard, Vt., and there settled. Dana Pierce was brought up in that town and spent there nearly thirty-nine years of his life. On the 10th of June, 1819, he married Diademia Paul. He united with the Congregational Church in Barnard, in the autumn of 1822, and was elected a deacon in that church in June, 1825. In April, 1835, he removed to Woodstock and settled on the farm now owned by Henry C. Johnson. On the 2nd of July, 1841, he was chosen a deacon in the Congregational Church in this place, which office he actively filled to the very close of his life. Deacon Pierce was a model of an industrious farmer, faithful always to his vocation, believing in its dignity, and drawing his inspiration as well as the means of subsistence from the soil he cultivated. To whatever work was to be done he applied himself vigorously, and never spared his strength in the hours of toil. Believing that every good thing is the gift of Divine Providence he realized as truth that children are an heritage of the Lord, and that happy is the man who has filled his quiver with them; having himself in the course of a long life met the smiles of numerous offspring of his own, most of whom are still living to revere his memory. Though Deacon Pierce shared in the frailties that are the common lot of humanity, you could not but feel that there was an odor of sanctity about him to give the world assurance of the honesty of his professions. Here was no vain show of religion, but the substance, proven in the sincere piety that adorned his whole life. A little stern, perhaps, he stood in the eye of the beholder a rugged oak, breasting the storms of life, but with branches ever raised Heavenward as if reaching after the serene atmosphere above. Firm in his faith, yet without enthusiasm, he was possessed with a deep settled conviction that it was his duty and his special privilege to live for the glory of God. His humanity, however, was such as to persuade him that at best he imperfectly fulfilled his calling. We honor him for his integrity. We thank him for his example, and we especially thank him for proving anew that a New England deacon is not necessarily the embodiment of cant and hypocrisy, and we deem the church happy which has been permitted to count such a man among its members.—

Hon. Josiah Pierce, late of Gorham, Maine, eldest son of Josiah and Phæbe (Thompson) Pierce, was born in Baldwin, Maine, August 15, 1792, and died in Gorham, June 25, 1866. After preparatory studies, chiefly at Bridgeton Academy, he was matriculated at Bowdoin College in the class which graduated in 1818, when he received his degree of A. B., with the honor of one of the first parts at Commencement, and an election to the Phi Beta Kappa Society. He studied law in the office of Hon. Stephen Longfellow, of Portland, Maine; was admitted to the Bar of Cumberland County, in 1821; in which year he also received the degree of A. M. from Bowdoin College, and opened his office for the practice of his profession in Gorham, where he continued to reside till his death. On the 20th of September, 1825, he married Eveline, daughter of Major Archelaus Lewis (an officer of the Revolution), and his second wife Elizabeth (Brown). Mrs. Eveline Pierce was born Nov. 13, 1795, and died Oct. 5, 1870. They had four sons and three daughters, of whom three sons and two daughters were living in 1881.

Mr. Pierce became early in life a member of the Baptist (Calvinist) church, and remained a faithful, devout, charitable, practical Christian, a diligent student and teacher of the Bible. He was a prominent member of the Democratic party, and as such represented his town in the State Legislature, in 1832 and 1833, and his county in the Senate from 1833 to 1836, being President of the Senate in 1835 and 1836. After this date he returned to a more close practice of his profession, which was at that period very considerable, and he was much esteemed as an upright, careful and able lawyer. Several young men read law in his office, most of whom attained distinction in their profession afterwards, especially the Hon. S. S. Prentiss of Mississippi.

Mr. Pierce was appointed Judge of Probate for Cumberland county in 1846, and held that office until 1857. Bringing to the place not only abundant professional ability, but an urbanity and a quick and tender sympathy for all who were in trouble "of body or estate," which were marked traits of his character; he was a faithful and efficient, an honored and beloved judge.

Mr. Pierce was a working member of the Masonic fraternity, and was Master of Harmony Lodge in Gorham, for some time, much beloved by his brethren and active in their charities. He was a useful citizen of his town, always much interested in its prosperity, and particularly well-informed as to its history. He delivered the address at the celebration of its one hundredth anniversary, in 1832, and in 1862 published a History of the Town. He was a member of the Board of Trustees of Gorham Academy and attended faithfully to its interests. He was a Trustee of Waterville College; and also an Overseer, and during the latter part of his life a Trustee, of Bowdoin College, performing his duties in this respect with great fidelity, and rarely missing attendance at the meetings of these boards. His attachment to his Alma Mater (Bowdoin) was exceedingly strong, and his three sons were educated there. He was also an active member of the Maine Historical Society, and of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society; contributed many articles to newspapers, chiefly on historical and biographical topics, and was a great reader and student through life; fond of poetry and classical literature, with a retentive memory and highly cultivated mind, a strong sense of humor, great aptitude for narrating anecdotes, and both in conversation and in public speaking was interesting, instructive and often eloquent. In person he was of medium stature, with dark curling hair and bright eyes, active in body as in mind; in manner gentle and courteous, charitable in judgment and considerate in conduct, never willingly making an enemy or alienating a friend, and living truly more for others than for himself.

The following tribute to the memory of a noble woman was written by Gov. Alexander H. Rice of Massachusetts, for the Boston Journal :—

The Woman's Prison.—How the Chaplain Lived and Died.—A Fervent Tribute to the Memory of a Maine Woman.—Those who were at the Woman's Reformatory Prison in Sherborn on Tuesday last were witnesses of a spectacle of deep and impressive pathos. It was just enough rare in personality and circumstance to lie outside the course of common experience, and yet so tender and profound as to strike the hidden chords that sound the sacred and solemn harmonies of the uplifted soul. The Chaplain had died. She who less than a year ago came to the place a stranger, and whose remains on this day lay in the marble beauty of death, surrounded by bleeding hearts and streaming eyes. Miss Eliza L. Pierce was a native of Maine, daughter of the late Josiah Pierce, Esq., of Gorham, well connected, finely educated and endowed with intellectual gifts and graceful accomplishments which would make her welcome in any society she entered. Her nature was as guileless as a child's, and was coupled with great sweetness of disposition, courage and discretion. Upon these was built a blameless and holy life, the centre and inspiration of which was a devout personal consecration and unlimited love of God and of human beings for the Saviour's sake. Unostentatious and almost shy in the discharge of her duties, she allowed nothing to stand between herself and their performance. She had a somewhat lengthy experience in saintly work in a parish church in England, and after returning to her own country, seemed to burn with a new desire to throw all that was valuable in her life into the beneficent means and influences of American society.

The Chaplaincy of the Reformatory Prison for Women had become vacant and was waiting a suitable incumbent. Few places are more difficult to fill. The inmates of the prison represent nearly every form of vice and every variety of disposition and character. Nowhere would dissemblance or cant be more immediately detected in a spiritual teacher. Nowhere would mere formalism or insincerity sooner work spiritual disaster. Nowhere would a heartless or mercenary service be more instantly discovered; and, it may also be said, that nowhere would the excellence of a simple and loving soul which gave its efforts and its sympathy to the reckless and unthankful, as well as to the sorrowful penitent, be more quickly discerned or more certain of victory. Miss Pierce was not an applicant for the place. In her first interview with the governor, held at his request, the characteristics of the position were fully set forth to her—its opportunities for noble work, as well as its hardships, responsibilities, discouragements and dangers all exposed. She listened with earnest attention, her face becoming radiant with expectation and enthusiasm as the recital proceeded. At its close she replied that she had consecrated her life to God and to His service in the world; that she cared little for conspicuous position, less for salary or compensation, feared neither hardship nor danger, but desired only to spend her life absolutely for God and humanity; that she could not, must not, take any place of ease or of doubtful usefulness, but desired a place of opportunity sufficient to absorb all that she had to give.

In answer to an inquiry how soon she could enter upon her duties if appointed, she said "Immediately;" and in four days thereafter she was installed in the chaplaincy which proved to be her field of final labor. Those who were witnesses of her daily life speak of it as saintly and sincere; and the very atmosphere of the prison seemed fragrant with the holy influence of her presence. Every morning and every evening the prison family assembled in the chapel for prayer and praise under her leadership and direction. If any came reluctantly at first, most of them came joyfully afterward; and through the livelong day she went from workroom to dormitory, hall and cell, inquiring into the individual weakness, sinfulness or sorrow of each erring inmate, exhorting and persuading with Christian faith and fortitude and with a sister's tenderness. In this way she knew the secret history of every one of her charge. She never betrayed their confidence and never ceased to labor with and for them in the line of their individual necessity.

One day in the week only did she give herself any rest, and then it was not the repose of idleness that she sought, but refreshment in the deeper contemplations of spiritual truth, and in the ordinances of the church of her affection and choice. On Sundays she held a fuller service in the chapel than on week days, comprising prayers, Scripture lessons, psalms and hymns, and Bible reading with simple explanation. She never attempted preaching nor the administration of ordinances; but she cultivated the spirit and practice of devotion, and through her example made attractive the religion which she taught with earnest simplicity. She became a universal favorite. The strong, though wayward, admired the beauty and sincerity of her character; the weak leaned upon her for guidance, and the hopeless and despairing clung to her as to a ministering angel. Even the little children in the nursery, unconscious prisoners brought into custody with their erring mothers, stretched out their tiny arms and raised their wistful eyes as she came among them, as if the innocency of their natures recognized the guilelessness of hers.

What wonder then, that this prison household sobbed and cried when the Chaplain lay dead before them? What wonder that they bowed themselves in unutterable grief, and covered with kisses the cold form, out of which had gone forever the life that had softened and sweetened a world, which, to so many of them, had been hard and unsympathizing and friendless? Let those who have known the darkness which comes over the soul when a great hope has failed, realize what to these poor, mourning women it is to look for the last time upon the brightest joy that had ever shone into their desolate lives.

The Chaplain endured her illness with fortitude and even with cheerfulness. Every care was given her which skill and loving solicitude could furnish, but she went beyond recovery; and after a brief sickness, passed away on Easter morning under such peace of mind and glory of outward circumstance, as to give to her death, amid all its solemnity, the aspect of poetic beauty. She woke early in the morning and asked that the blind of a window might be opened, so that she could look out into the daylight. The rising sun was just throwing its full effulgence over the face of Nature, illuminating the earth and filling the great dome of the sky with warmth and brilliancy; and seemingly the Son of Righteousness in like manner illumined her soul with ineffable radiance. "He cometh forth as a bridegroom out of his chamber," she feebly said; and these words were her last connected utterance. A few moments later the lady superintendent of the prison entered the sick chamber with the Easter salutation: "Christ is risen;" the dying Chaplain turned toward her with an assenting smile, and that was for herself "the last of earth."

On Tuesday her funeral was attended in the chapel of the prison—the inmates and officers, the immediate relations of the chaplain, the prison commissioners, and a few friends, including the present and the last Governors of the State, constituted the assembly. The beautiful and impressive ritual of the Episcopal church was used, and the hymn,

"There is a land of pure delight,
Where saints immortal reign," was sung by the prisoners, with a tenderness and pathos seldom equaled. The Rev. Mr. Hall of the Church of the Advent, Boston, then delivered an extemporaneous address, which was notable for the absence of personal eulogy of the deceased and for its earnest presentation of the significance of death, the certainty of the resurrection, the incentives to purity and holiness of life presented in the example of Christ and the promised immortality of blessedness in Him. The preacher seemed to feel that no words spoken could equal in eloquent persuasion the example of the life which had gone from the silent form before him. The crisis of the final separation showed that human nature never goes so far from rectitude as to lose hold of its instinctive virtues. As the prisoners passed from the chapel there was scarcely an eye not wet with tears. There was an evident struggle for composure among them all, and an almost equal failure as their eyes fell for the last time upon the noble and placid features of their steadfast friend. Many doubtless felt that she had given her life for them, and were almost inconsolable.

The funeral cortege passed from the prison grounds while the bell, which so often summoned to praise and prayer, tolled its mournful farewell, and the prison family, in their permitted freedom, crowded to the windows and watched the receding hearse until there was nothing left visible to them but a flood of tears. There are moments in each of our lives when we seem to be more than ourselves. The greatest of these is when we stand in the presence of the holy dead and rise to the sublime contemplations of immortality. Some who were present at the prison on Tuesday felt all of this as they stood by the lifeless form of the dead Chaplain and followed her spirit away through the victories of Easter morning.

George Washington Pierce was born in Baldwin, Maine. His father, born in Woburn, was half-brother of Benjamin Thompson (Count Rumford). Mrs. Phebe Pierce was the daughter of Daniel Thompson, who, at the fight of Lexington, was shot through the heart by a retreating British soldier.

From his earliest childhood he was remarkable for an ardent temperament, a desire for noble distinction, for lively fancy and quick intelligence, for prepossessing manners and social tact, for becoming the especial favorite of his old friends, and for easily gaining new ones. He was prepared for college, partly in the academies of Fryburgh and Saco, and partly at home, under the tuition of Mr. Joseph Howard, now Judge of the Supreme Court of Maine. His chum through the college course at Bowdoin was the Rev. Daniel Shepley. As a member of the Pencinian Society he diligently improved its opportunities for debate and practice in writing, and among the Bowdoin students of that day, since so distinguished at the bar, in the pulpit and in general literature as writers and speakers, he was soon acknowledged eminent for ability in discussion and for vigor and elegance in composition. He observed strictly the maxim of Apelles, Nulla dies sine lineâ—in permitting no day to pass without studiously writing at least a page on some subject of present interest. Although he ranked well in the recitation room he became greater in the libraries, and was doubtless a more earnest student of the English classics than of the college text-books. Being among the youngest of his class, and very social, active and mirthful, he was a loved and constant companion in the joyous and open-hearted intercourse of college gaiety and sports, but wisely avoided college disgrace, and was graduated honorably. His commencement exercise was a discussion with George B. Cheever, and the two disputants were thought to be well mated. After leaving college he never ceased to manifest a worthy and reciprocated attachment and respect for the officers and fellow-graduates of his alma mater. He chose the law. One year of the required period was passed at Gorham, in the office of his brother Josiah—part of another year in Portland with Mr. Longfellow—and more than a year at the Law School in Northampton, Mass. At Northampton, his classmate was Frank Pierce (afterwards President of the United States). The learned and clear-minded judge Howe was his instructor and encouraged him with many marked expressions of interest and praise. A refined society of which the learned historian George Bancroft, residing at Round Hill, was a leader and example, admitted him to the communion of its courtesies and enjoyments. He passed the Spring and Summer of 1828 at his brother's house in Gorham—an invalid, but an active one. It was a time of warm political conflict. The presidential canvass was pending. Mr. Pierce advocated the election of Gen. Jackson, and no one wrote more circulars or spoke at more caucuses, or communicated more articles to the newspapers, than he did. In looking for a place to settle, the great West seemed most strongly to invite him, and he determined to go and see for himself. Taking Washington on his way, he remained there several weeks. His letters to his friends at this time are filled with most animated and graphic descriptions of the men he met and heard—of Clay and Calhoun, and McDuffie, and Adams, and John Randolph—of his conversations with them, of their personal appearance and manners—of the Congress generally, the Capitol, the city and Mt. Vernon, which he visited with deep emotion. His western tour extended to St. Louis. In April he returned from the slow, difficult and sometimes dangerous journey, quite willing to be governed by the friends, who advised and besought him to stay where he was. In July, 1829, he opened an office in Portland, Me. After thus committing himself to his profession, distinction in it became the chief object of his care. He read law diligently, and never ceased to do so while he lived. He admired physical accomplishments, and acquired some skill in fencing, boxing and other manly exercises;—became tolerably versed in the French language, and was a prominent actor in the literary society of the town. He had already become known to the Democratic party in the vicinity as a ready and able writer, and the services of his pen were soon desired and freely given for political articles in the Portland Argus, the chief journal of that party in the State of Maine. Newspapers of that day, and indeed during both terms of Gen. Jackson's administration, were savage in their attacks on men and measures connected with the hotly disputed questions between the two great parties. It was a time of revolutionary excitement throughout the world—of intense discord in the United States regarding the Bank, the tariff, internal improvements, and the right of secession—to which was added extraordinary local agitation in Maine upon the negotiations respecting the North-eastern boundary, and from the new current of speculation in the State lands,—Mr. Pierce was an increasing contributor to the Argus in these controversies; and once so enlisted, he could not withdraw from it. The applause of his party, his warm personal feelings, his facility in writing, the necessity of defending positions he had taken, secured him and made him well known as a political disputant. Many young men of great ability, who have since attained high national distinction, were then in Maine, as rivals or opponents, and the leading Whig journal of the State was then edited by the Hon. James Brooks, now of the New York Express, with his well-known ability, in the keenest opposition to the Argus. Thus led into political strife Mr. Pierce continued actively engaged in all public movements of the Democrats in his county. During the years 1831 and 1832, at their caucus meetings, conventions, and festivities, he was constantly in requisition for speeches, resolutions, etc. On the 4th of July, 1832, at the great Democratic celebration, he delivered the oration. But amid all this, he endeavored to give his best thoughts and work to his profession. In September, after a warm contest, he was elected to the Legislature as Representative. In November he married Annie Longfellow, daughter of his former instructor, and sister of his classmate, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the poet, and at once began housekeeping. During the session of the Legislature he was constant in attendance and active and useful. One speech, in particular, on the South Carolina Resolutions was thought to be very able. In March, 1833, he was appointed County Attorney for Cumberland, and entered at once upon the duties of the office. At the following city municipal election he was chosen a Common Councilman. Such was his popularity, that the Democrats insisted on again sending him to the Legislature. He resigned, not without reluctance, the County Attorneyship, and was elected by a large majority. After another busy and useful winter at the seat of government, he returned to Portland, quite resolved to give himself, thenceforward, strictly to his profession, and to the beneficial influences of his happy and refined home. His legal practice increased and extended to all the courts, but he most esteemed and sought the liberal and technical system of civil law in the Admiralty Court. Evidences of his industry and ability may be seen in the law reports of the time. Sometimes he appears to have relieved the severe labors of his profession by literary writing for the Magazine. Late in the Summer of 1835, the Argus was enlivened by a series of letters from his pen, descriptive of the Northern journey, in which he was accompanied by his wife and her parents. At that time, Canada and the White Mountains were not quite so familiar as they are now. On the 14th of October, he was appointed the Reporter of the Decisions of the Supreme Court of Maine, an important and then lucrative office. His reputation as a lawyer—as an influential and public spirited-citizen—had become well and widely established. Conscious of natural abilities and accomplishments, certain of devoted political and personal friends, of a dignified and pleasant professional position, and of means to secure him from want, and secure in the possession of soothing and ennobling domestic life,—he was now suddenly cut off by death. Making an impression so striking and sad of bereavement to his friends, and of loss to the whole society of which he was a part, that it has never yet changed its hue. He was attacked with typhus fever and after a painful illness of four weeks, died on the 15th day of November.—[From the forthcoming history of Bowdoin College.]

Prof. Henry W. Longfellow, writing in reference to Mr. Pierce, says :—

“I have never ceased to feel that in his death something was taken from my own life, which could never be restored. Though particular incidents have faded from my memory, the general impression of his person and character remains ineffaced and unimpaired; perhaps even more perfect and complete from the lapse of time, as distance enables us to estimate more truly the exact proportions of an object. I have before me always his tall and erect figure, in the vigor of early manhood, his frank and handsome countenance, in which sweetness and energy were mingled, and which in its outlines, though less stern and cold, much resembled the portraits of his grand-uncle, the Count of Rumford. I have constantly in my memory, also, his beautiful and manly character; frank, generous, impetuous, gentle; by turns joyous and sad—mirthful and serious; elevated by the consciousness of power, depressed by the misgivings of self-distrust; but always kind, always courteous, and, above all, noble in thought, word and deed! Such was the friend of my youth, of whom I have said elsewhere—

‘He, the young and brave, who cherished
 Ardent longings for the strife,
 By the road-side fell and perished,
 Weary with the march of life.’ ”

745. SHEPPARD<sup>7</sup> PIERCE (Josiah<sup>6</sup>, Timothy<sup>5</sup>, Timothy<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>), b. April 29, 1780. He went with his parents to Pennsylvania when a small boy, and settled where Waverly now stands. The writer of this article has often heard him say that his father kept the first public inn that was kept or opened in that vicinity or section of country. After spending several years there, he went with them to Western New York, then known as the far-famed "Genessee Valley," where he spent several years, and buried his father at Caledonia, N. Y. He then returned, and purchased, in 1806 or 1807, the property upon which he has since lived and died, when the country here was almost an unbroken wilderness; there being but few settlers then in Wysox, and but one solitary log-hut where Towanda now stands. He lived for sixty years in this vicinity, honored and respected, then he passed away as the fruit, when full ripe, is severed from the branch by the autumn frosts. He always entertained an almost reverential love for what he termed the beautiful Valley of Wysox. He had traveled much in his life, and observed much, and said it was the most lovely spot he had ever beheld. He m. Dec. 20, 1810, Sarah Colbaugh, b. Dec. 25, 1790, d. Sept., 1850. He d. 2650. ix. SUSAN, b. Feb. 22, 1808; m. E. A. Hough. Died.—At the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Lydia C. Ayers, Rochester, N. Y., July 11, 1880, Mrs. Susan Pierce Hough, in the 73d year of her age. Her funeral took place from their home, July 13th; the burial from the residence of her niece, Mrs. Geo. W. Underwood, in Potsdam, Wednesday, July 14th. Mrs. Hough was born in Royalton, Vt., on the 22d day of February, 1808. Her maiden name was Susan Pierce. She removed with her parents from Vermont to Potsdam, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., in the year 1826, being 18 years of age. Three years after—April 29, 1829—she was married to Mr. Erastus A. Hough, and became the mother of seven children, two sons and five daughters, of whom four are now living. From the time of her removal from Vermont, in 1826, until the year 1873, she remained a resident of Potsdam, where her husband and three of her daughters are buried. Then she removed to Rochester, N. Y., to live with her daughter, Mrs. Lydia C. Ayers. The next year she was stricken with paralysis, and for the last three years of her life was closely confined to the house. Yet her long confinement—during much of which she was called to endure great suffering—was borne with patience and cheerfulness, and with a Christian faith which never seemed to falter. Her elder son—Eugene K. Hough—is now residing with his wife, in Trinidad, in the West Indies. Her younger son—Sylvester E.—with his wife and child, reside in New York city. Her two surviving daughters—Mrs. Lydia C. Ayers and Miss Mary B. Hough—are in Rochester, and have devoted themselves to the care of their mother during the last years of her life. Everything has been done, by all her children and children-in-law, that the tenderest love could suggest and the most thoughtful generosity provide, to make the suffering mother comfortable and happy. Blessed in her children, firm in her faith, sure of her Saviour's love, a member of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, of Rochester, at the time of her death, and for more than fifty years a member of the Church of Christ; leaving behind her many mementoes of her industry and skill, wrought by her during her last years; and the rich legacy of a mother's prayers for her children, she passed up, through death, into the everlasting life, on the morning of July 11th. This date is, to the daughter, Lydia, a memorable one—and the coincidence is, indeed, remarkable—that just twenty years before the day of her mother's death, her father died—both on her birthday.

He married first Clarissa Williams, daughter of Dr. Jesse Williams, of Mansfield, Conn., April, 1794, who died January 27, 1842, aged 69 years, 11 months and 12 days, and by whom he had nine children. In January, 1844, he married for his second wife Nancy Ladd, of Winthrop, Me. Mr. Pierce was one of the most industrious, energetic and practical farmers in the State. He was the first who introduced the art of dairying in the State, and his farm will long live in the remembrance of the citizens of the town and State for his great perseverance and original tact in carrying forward the manufacture of the best cheese and the largest amount known at that time. He was a pious and devoted Christian and ever ready to do good whenever opportunity offered. He was a strong helper in the cause of education, as one of the trustees of the academy in Monmouth. He was secretary of the board for many years and also a great lover of the public schools. For many years he was President of the Monmouth Mutual Fire Insurance Company, the largest of any in the State. His soundness of judgment and integrity of character often found him appointed to offices of trust from the county and the executive of the State, as commissioner of public roads and many other important duties where decision and discretion were required.

792. DR. DELANO<sup>7</sup> PIERCE, JR. (Delano<sup>6</sup>, Benjamin<sup>5</sup>, Timothy<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>), b. in Brooklyn, Conn., July 19, 1786; m. Nov. 22, 1813, Anna Nichols, b. 1791, d. Feb. 2, 1860. He d. Jan. 9, 1871, in Grafton, Mass.

He remained at home and worked on the farm in summer, attending school a part of the year, until seventeen years of age; then went to Plainfield Academy and spent two years in study, with intervals of teaching in winter. At nineteen years of age he commenced the study of medicine with the late Josias Fuller, M.D., of Plainfield, but was induced to take charge of a High School in Stonington for six months, intending to devote himself to the study of medicine at the expiration of that time, but consented to continue in the school the remainder of the year, having made an arrangement whereby he could read medicine with Dr. Hyde, a physician of the place, in his leisure hours. He then returned to Plainfield, and finished his medical studies with Dr. Fuller, at the age of twenty-three; was examined by, and received his diploma from the Connecticut State Medical Society, in August, and went in November into several towns in Connecticut and Rhode Island, introducing vaccination or cow-pock, which at that time was little known, and which met with much hostility owing to ignorance and prejudice on the subject, which, however, he was successful in overcoming to a great degree.

In the year 1811, he started on horseback from his father's house in pursuit of a place for the practice of his profession, and on arriving at Oxford, Mass., decided to locate there. On the 8th day of June, 1813, he was commissioned by His Excellency Caleb Strong, then Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Surgeon of the Fifth Regiment of Infantry in the First Brigade and Seventh Division of the Militia of this Commonwealth, which office he held until he tendered his resignation and from which he was honorably discharged on the 6th day of November, 1818. He was energetic and persevering in whatever he engaged, and carried through every undertaking with remarkable vigor and unfaltering trust in his own ability. The first start in life financially he obtained in the manufacture of cotton cloth. Some time during the early introduction of machinery in the manufacture of cotton cloth, he had a conference with Mr. Slater of Webster, who was then making it by hand looms, he made a proposition to him to furnish material and pay a fixed sum per yard for making cloth by machinery. An arrangement was made, he hired a grist-mill, placed in it a few looms and employed hands to weave. This in connection with his practice, he carried on one or two years with satisfaction to Mr. Slater, who at first had doubts that cloth could be made by machinery equal in quality to that made by hand.

After an extensive and successful practice in Oxford, of about twenty-three years, and having disposed of his practice to Dr. Knight, he removed to East Douglas in 1834, and formed a co-partnership with the late Dr. Ezekiel Wood, which lasted two years with much cordiality and unusual harmony. While there a select school was established through his influence, it being the first in the village where classical studies were pursued. In the spring of 1836, he came to Grafton, and purchased of Mr. Ephraim Wilson the estate now owned by Mr. Charles A. Pierce, where he lived until 1841, when he removed to the estate formerly occupied by the Rev. John Miles.

The old house was removed to the rear, remodeled and rebuilt, and was his residence until his death, which occurred Jan. 9, 1871. This house is now the residence of Dr. T. T. Griggs, who married his daughter and only child.

Dr. Pierce was a faithful and skillful physician, and loved his profession—merciful in his charges—and very considerate to the poor. He was a man of good natural abilities, sound judgment, social and gentle in disposition; of vigorous muscular powers, and never seemed to tire or become weary in responding to the various duties attendant upon his profession. He was industrious and economical in his habits, and was ever ready to aid those who made any exertions to help themselves to an honest living. He was charitable in all those little things which contribute so much to make life happy, and which, perhaps, accomplish more than greater charities but seldom performed. He practised medicine nearly fifty-nine years, and by strictly temperate habits was enabled to endure this vast labor with scarcely any interruption until within about two years of his decease. Watching the symptoms of approaching dissolution and conscious that his end was near, he resigned peacefully to his fate with hopes of a more glorious and brighter day in realms of light and life.—[*History of Grafton, Mass., by F. Dr. Thomas T. Griggs, in early life, was employed in a store, attending school in Sutton. He attended a commercial school in Boston to qualify himself for book-keeping and mercantile pursuits. He subsequently attended school at Northfield Academy, and also at Wrentham Academy. In March, 1839, he came to Grafton, and was associated with his brother, Salem Griggs, for a short time in the sale of drugs and medicines, and general merchandise, occupying the brick store erected by the late Lovel Stow. After which he studied medicine with Dr. Delano Pierce, whose daughter he married, Feb. 16, 1842. He also pursued the study of medicine in Brunswick, and in Boston, and received the degree of M. D. from the medical department of Harvard University, July 18, 1849, and immediately commenced the practice of his profession in Grafton, in connection with his father-in-law, continuing it to the present time. He is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society; has held a Justice's commission; served on the board of selectmen; and in 1875, represented his district in the General Court, where he was assigned a place on the committee on towns.—[*History of Grafton, Mass., by F. FRANKLIN PIERCE was the fourth son of the late Gov. Benj. Pierce of Hillsborough, N. H., and was born Nov. 23, 1804. His father sent him to an out-of-town school at an early age; an elder brother, then in the army, had the sagacity to perceive the powers of his mind, and was exceedingly anxious that he should receive a thorough education. For several years he attended school in the neighboring towns of Hancock and Francestown; while a resident of the latter town he lived with the mother of the lamented Judge Woodbury, who was a lady of superior mind and attractions. Over Frank she had a most beneficial influence, as he very often acknowledged. He left Francestown for Exeter Academy where he completed his preparatory studies, and entered Bowdoin College at the precocious age of sixteen, in the year 1820. During his first two years in college Frank Pierce was not distinguished for his devotion to his studies. He was not dissipated, but having naturally a full flow of spirits, he was a little wild; but among all his classmates he was extremely popular. Possessing frank manners and a generous disposition, it could not well be otherwise. While in college his young friends formed a military company and elected him its Captain. Mr. Pierce took his degree in the year 1824 with high honors, and left Bowdoin College and his numerous circle of friends there with regret, for among them he had spent some of the happiest portions of his life. The three following years were spent successively in the offices of the Hon. Edmund Parker at Amherst, N. H., Hon. Levi Woodbury at Portsmouth, N. H., and in the law school of Judge Howe at Northampton, Mass. In 1827 Mr. Pierce was admitted to the bar and opened an office opposite to his father's residence in Hillsborough. At this time Gov. Benj. Pierce enjoyed a commanding influence in New Hampshire. His popularity was such as is not often witnessed in the world of politics. As a matter of course, the success of Franklin was almost instantaneous. Under common circumstances a young lawyer is obliged to make his abilities known to the world before he can hope for success; but in this case the high position and popularity of Gov. Pierce gained for his son immediate practice. But had he lacked eminent abilities, it would soon have been discovered, and he would have lost that patronage which he had secured from the reputation of his father. He needed not only great abilities but severe and constant labor to maintain the position which it was on all hands conceded he must take. We need not say that he not only met the highest expectations of his friends, but far exceeded them. He rose daily in their esteem and admiration. Mr. Pierce at once espoused the cause of the Democrats with unbounded zeal, and such was the confidence reposed in him by his fellow-townsmen that in the second year of his practice, at the age of 25, he was elected to represent the town of Hillsborough in the State Legislature at Concord. The three successive years he was elected to that body, and such was their opinion of his abilities that in 1832 and 1833 he was made Speaker of the House of Representatives. At this time there was great agitation throughout N. H. in reference to Gen. Jackson. The State in the year 1829 came out boldly and grandly in favor of the hero of New Orleans, Benj. Pierce being elected Governor by more than 2,000 majority, and an entire Congressional delegation in favor of Jackson's administration and a legislature returned thoroughly Democratic. Through all these exciting scenes Mr. Pierce, though a young man, took an important part. Thus in a few years Frank Pierce had raised himself to a commanding position in his native State. In his own party, among his own adherents, his position was most amicable, and indeed he was beloved and admired by his political enemies. Although young yet, he continued to conduct himself in so modest yet able a manner as to raise the admiration of the older leaders among the Granite Democracy of N. H. A political critic, noticing his career at this portion of his life, remarks: "Thus, in five years, he attained an enviable position among his associates; and won it, not by undermining his rivals, or by adroitness in political intrigue, but by a firm adherence to political principle, eloquence in debate, unquestioned capacity for public business, unvarying courtesy and exhibition of frankness and manliness of character. So honorable was his ambition, that while he was ranking his associates, he retained their love and commanded their respect.

In the summer of 1833, Mr. Pierce was elected from his native district to the lower house of Congress for the term of two years, and took his seat in that body in December of the same year. In 1837, Mr. Pierce was elected by a large majority of the New Hampshire Legislature to the U. S. Senate. He took his seat in that body the 4th of March, 1837, the day on which Martin Van Buren was inaugurated as President. While in the Senate Mr. Pierce served on some of the most important of the committees,—on the Judiciary, on Military affairs, on Pensions, etc., etc. He was emphatically a working member. In June, 1838, one year after his election to the U. S. Senate, Mr. Pierce changed his residence from his native town of Hillsborough to Concord, the capital. His large circle of friends in Hillsborough could not allow the occasion to pass without a testimonial of their affection for Mr. Pierce, and consequently invited him to a public dinner.

In Feb., 1842, Mr. Pierce resigned his seat in the Senate, to the great sorrow not only of his constituents but of his friends in Washington. The causes for this step were mainly of a personal nature. His wife was always of a retiring disposition, and was ill-suited with the excitement of Washington life, and when to this was added the misfortune of poor health, she was compelled to leave Washington and Mr. Pierce felt it to be his duty to accompany her to Concord, and therefore resigned his seat in the Senate. For three successive years Mr. Pierce had little visible connection with politics, though he was the most influential man in the Democratic party of N. H. In 1845, Mr. Pierce was appointed by the Governor to fill the vacancy in the U. S. Senate, occasioned by the resignation of Judge Woodbury, he having been appointed by President Polk to the Superior bench. Such was Mr. Pierce's popularity, that at once all the presses in the State pointed him out as the most suitable man to fill the vacancy. He was urged with vehemence by the most influential men in the State to accept the position, but he positively declined the honor. About this time the President offered him the office of District Attorney of N. H., which he accepted, as the duties which belonged properly to it came in the line of his profession. He continued to hold this office until 1847.

In 1845 a convention of the Democracy of the State nominated Mr. Pierce to the office of Governor, but in a most eloquent speech, he declined this honor. In 1846, his old friend, President Polk, with whom he had served in Congress before, offered him a seat in his Cabinet. He was well aware of the great abilities and thorough devotion to principle which characterized Mr. Pierce, and was anxious to secure his services at Washington. This honor also was declined.

Gen. Pierce was during his whole political life a modest and retiring man. We see him resigning his seat in the most august legislative body in the Union at the call of affection. We see him refusing the highest office within the gift of his native State, refusing to accept an appointment to the U. S. Senate, and finally refusing a seat in the Cabinet of the President when invited in the most flattering and pressing manner. Truly, this is not an ordinary political character; and in looking at his life and acts, one is carried back to the earlier days of our republic, when offices sought men, not men sought offices. When the Mexican war broke out Mr. Pierce enlisted as a private soldier and went through the drill exercise as such. He however was appointed Col. of the old Ninth N. H. by Pres. Polk, and subsequently raised to Brigadier-General. Gen. Pierce sailed from Newport in the bark Keple, and arrived after a tedious voyage at Vera Cruz, June 28, 1847. After landing, his line of march was a most harassing one, beset on all sides by Mexicans and Guerrilla bands whose object was to intercept all recruits. Fifteen miles from Vera Cruz, the courage and decision of Gen. Pierce were put to trial. He was there attacked by a fierce guerrilla party, and gave an order to charge upon the chaparal. His Colonel "The brave Ransom!" disputed the propriety of the movement, but Pierce replied firmly and boldly: "I have given the order." The enemy was completely routed after some severe fighting. At the National Bridge he was attacked by the guerrillas, who barricaded the bridge with chaparal. He ordered Capt. Dupreau to dash over the barricade and charge the enemy. The order was promptly executed, and with success. In this skirmish, Gen. Pierce received two bullets through his hat. The men under his care were principally Northern recruits; they had suffered much by disease; had been attacked five times by guerrilla parties, and yet Gen. Pierce had lost scarcely a man though in the heart of an enemy's country. After the surrender of the Mexicans, Gen. Pierce resigned his commission in the army, and returned to his residence in Concord.

In 1852, the Democrats of N. H. presented Gen. Pierce as their candidate for the Presidency. This he also declined. It is not necessary to give a detailed account of the doings of the Democratic National Convention held in Baltimore. After four days spent in earnest attempts to come to a decision, on the 36th ballot the Virginia delegation cast their vote for Franklin Pierce of N. H. State after State wheeled in to the support of the General, until the vote stood: Gen. Pierce 282; all others 11. He was triumphantly elected and his record stands unblemished.

The following letter, in Nathaniel Hawthorne's handwriting, seems very curious in its accurate foreshadowings. It was written forty-five years ago to Franklin Pierce, when both young men could not have been long out of college. Its prophetic intimations, in the light of what has since occurred in Pierce's career, sound weird and startling, and the epistle is worth perusal. It is addressed to "Colonel Franklin Pierce, Hillsborough, New Hampshire":—

"SALEM, June 23, 1832..

Dear Mr. Speaker.—I sincerely congratulate you on all your public honors, in possession or in prospect. If they continue to accumulate so rapidly you will be at the summit of political eminence by that time of life when men are usually just beginning to make a figure. I suppose there is hardly a limit to your expectations at this moment; and I really cannot see why there should be any. If I were in your place I should like to proceed by the following steps,—after a few years in Congress, to be chosen governor, say at thirty years old; next a senator in Congress; then minister to England; then to be put at the head of one of the departments (that of War would suit you I should think), and lastly,—but it will be time enough to think of the next step some years hence. You cannot imagine how proud I feel when I recollect that I myself was once in office with you on the standing committee of the Athenian society. That was my first and last appearance in public life.

I read the paper which you sent me from beginning to end, not forgetting Colonel Pierce's neat and appropriate address. I also perused ——'s speech in favor of grog-shops; he seems to have taken quite a characteristic and consistent course in this respect, and I presume he gives the retail dealers as much of his personal patronage as ever. I was rather surprised at not finding more of my acquaintance in your legislature. Your own name and ——'s were all that I recognized.

I was making preparations for a Northern tour when this accursed cholera broke out in Canada. It was my intention to go by way of New York and Albany to Niagara; from thence to Montreal and Quebec, and home through Vermont and New Hampshire. I am very desirous of making this journey on account of a book by which I intend to acquire an (undoubtedly) immense literary reputation, but which I cannot commence writing till I have visited Canada. I still hope that the pestilence will disappear, so that it may be safe to go in a month or two. If my route brings me into the vicinity of Hillsborough I shall certainly visit you. As to the cholera, if it comes, I believe I shall face it here. By the by, I have been afflicted for two days past with one of the symptoms of it, which makes me write rather a tremulous hand. I keep it secret, however, for fear of being sent to the hospital.

I suppose your election to Congress is absolutely certain. Of course, however, there will be an opposition, and I wish you would send me some of the newspapers containing articles laudatory or abusive of you. I shall read them with great interest, be they what they may. It is a pity that I am not in a situation to use my pen in your behalf, though you seem not to need the assistance of newspaper scribblers.

I do not feel very well, and will close my letter here, especially as your many associations would not permit you to read a longer one. I shall be happy to hear from you as often as you can find leisure or inclination to write.

I observe that the paper styles you the 'Hon. Franklin Pierce.' Have you already an official claim to that title?

Your friend,

NATH. HAWTHORNE, alias 'HATH.'"

Composed by EARL PIERCE, on his eightieth birthday, April 3, 1878, at Mansfield.

My eightieth birthday now has come,
 North Mansfield is my native home;
 It seems the most like home to me
 Of any place where I can be.
 I think I live among my friends
 On whom my happiness depends;
 I like this eastern country best,
 Instead of going further west.
 If I should live another year,
 Perhaps my friends will find me here;
 The time is short for me to stay—
 I may not live another day.
 I 'm growing older every breath,
 I ought to be prepared for death,
 And strive to act the better part,
 And serve the Lord with all my heart.

Composed by the same on his eighty-first birthday, April 3, 1879, at Mansfield.

Another birthday now is mine,
 The third of April, 'seventy-nine;
 Another year is now begun—
 My present age is eighty-one.
 I thank the Lord for blessings past,
 For special favors first and last;
 And hope to meet Him as a friend,
 When birthdays here shall have an end,
 And find an everlasting Home,
 To praise Him in the world to come.

Earl Pierce

Major Pierce was a man of most elegant presence. He passed several years abroad. In 1802-5 was Lieutenant, with rank of Major of the Independent Corps of Cadets; was also some years aide-de-camp to several Governors; was Secretary of the Board of War; Clerk of the Municipal Court and from his dignified presence was often mistaken for the Judge. In 1824 he was appointed agent of Massachusetts for claims against the General Government growing out of the war of 1812, and passed the season in Washington. His daughters were celebrated beauties; Frances, the eldest, a blonde, was said by Joseph Bonaparte, who met her at a ball in Boston, to be the handsomest lady he had ever seen in America. Major Pierce was lost at sea with his wife while on a passage from New York to Mobile and New Orleans.

A brief biography of Thomas Blanchard, the inventor of the mechanical combination for turning irregular forms, who died at Boston in 1865, has just been issued. The writer, Asa

H. Waters, says that although the name of Thomas Blanchard is not so popularly known as many others who have achieved fame from single inventions, the writer boldly asserts that—It may be questioned whether another inventor can be named in this country or in Europe, during the last century, who has produced so many different labor-saving machines, applicable to such a great variety of uses, and which have contributed so largely to the common necessities, comforts and economies of life. This language may seem extravagant, but it must be remembered that not an armory exists in this country or in England where guns are made—hardly a human being that wears boots or shoes—scarcely a vessel that sails upon the ocean—not a school where slates are used—not a carpet laid down, but that owes tribute to the genius of Thomas Blanchard for producing articles cheaper and better. The same may be said of carriage wheels, ploughs, shovels and various articles of furniture. Latterly, his machines have been applied to carving, to architectural designs and even to statuary—much to the surprise of artists. Indeed, there seems to be no limit to the uses made of Blanchard's inventions, and it is impossible at present to enumerate them. One can hardly go into a tool shop, a machine shop, or a workshop of any kind, wood or iron, where motive power is used, in which he will not find more or less of Blanchard's mechanical motions.

Blanchard was a native of Sutton, Mass., and was born June 24, 1788. His father, Samuel, was a farmer, and lived on a poor, remote strip of land, where there was absolutely nothing to suggest a mechanical motion. While on the farm Thomas gave little if any promise of the latent powers within him. There was nothing in his surroundings to excite them. He was misplaced; schools were remote, and he seldom attended, for he was afflicted with a perverse impediment of speech, so that the boys called him "Stammering Tom." At the age of 18 he was engaged by his elder brother, Stephen, to assist him in his tack-mill, which he had just started in West Millbury. Young Thomas's duty it was to head the tacks in a vise, with a hand hammer, one by one. Once in a mechanic shop his dormant genius began to wake up. Ere he had spent many months heading tacks, one by one, he had designed, constructed and put in operation a machine which would cut and head them at one motion twice as fast as the ticking of a watch, and better finished than those made by hand. So perfect was it in design and construction it was continued in use more than twenty years. It is said to be still in existence, and experts who have seen it say no essential improvement has ever been made upon it. The reputation of the boy's success in his brother's tack factory led Mr. Asa Waters, who had in the same town of Millbury an armory, where he manufactured arms for the government, to send for the budding inventor, and there young Blanchard, at almost a glance at the old processes for shaping gun barrels, suggested an improvement by which the irregular butt of the barrel could be turned by machinery, and afterward produced a machine for turning out the gun stock. The germ of the stocking machine lay in that cam motion, and it was then and there, as he afterwards said, that the idea of his world-renowned machine for turning irregular forms first flashed through his mind, although it required some months to elaborate and bring it out. Blanchard was afterwards called to the Springfield armory, where his machines were introduced and adopted by the government. His machine for producing irregular forms was applied to a vast number of special purposes. Unlike many other inventions, this was really the discovery of a new principle in mechanics, whereby the machine is made the obedient, faithful servant of man, to work out his designs after any given model, be it round or square, crooked or straight, however irregular and made to reproduce the original shape exactly, every time. This perfect uniformity of Blanchard's work suggested the idea of having all the parts of the guns made at the armories perfectly uniform, so as to be interchangeable. Hitherto they had been fitted separately, like Swiss watches, and carefully lettered or numbered. This is the method in all our workshops, even to the bolts of a carriage or a common bedstead, and woe to him who misplaced one. It was Blanchard who first rendered possible the accomplishment of the desired result with respect to arms, and to him the writer gives the credit of the origin of the "uniformity system" which has revolutionized mechanic processes in all our workshops; perfected and greatly cheapened mechanic products, and driven from use the old system of numbering.

Blanchard realized but little pecuniarily on his patents, for they were so pirated upon that he had to spend many thousands of dollars in defending his rights in the courts. He succeeded in getting an extension of his patent for producing irregular forms, but at the end of the extension he had made practically nothing on it, and began to think of trying for a second extension; but such a thing was unprecedented, and Blanchard, knowing that great opposition would be made to another renewal, thought he would resort to a little stratagem. He fitted up a machine for turning busts from marble blocks, took it to Washington, obtained plaster casts of the heads of Webster, Clay, Calhoun, and others, and exhibited the busts in the rotunda of the capitol. The members were quite astonished when they found that these busts were wrought out by a machine and that they were more exactly like the originals than any human hand could make them. It produced a great sensation. They all supposed it a new invention. Blanchard said, "No, not a new invention, but a new application of an old one of mine from which I never realized much, and I want the patent renewed." A resolution was introduced in the Senate by Webster to renew it for a term of years, and it was rushed through without delay.

When the news was first proclaimed from Springfield of a machine which turned gun-stocks, mechanics came floating from near and far to see it. Among those attracted were two members of the British parliament, then traveling in this country. When they returned to England they reported the wonderful invention of Blanchard, by whom the Americans were getting greatly in advance of them in gun manufacture, and moved a resolution for the purchase of similar machines. A true John Bull member then arose and ridiculed them unmercifully for being so badly sold and played upon by the cunning Yankees. "The very idea of turning a gun-stock is absurd on the face of it, as all must know who ever saw one." Finding the resolution would fail the two members withdrew it and moved for a committee to go to the United States armory and report upon the facts. The committee came over, examined the workings of the machine, returned and reported the facts to be as at first stated. The doubting Thomas rose and said the Americans might have got up something to work their soft woods, pine and poplar, but it would never stand the test of "our tough English oak and hickory." Upon this, doubting Thomas himself was chosen a committee to go over and examine. He was not to be imposed upon; he would expose this humbug. Selecting three rough stocks of the hardest, toughest timber he could find, he went to the Springfield armory incognito, brought his stocks to the stocking room, and inquired of the overseer if he would grant him the favor of turning them. "Certainly, sir; take a seat." Without making the least alteration of the machine the overseer run the stocks through in a few minutes, and then went on with his work as though nothing unusual had happened. The Englishman examined the stocks, found they were turned all the better for being of hard wood, and he was completely dumbfounded. After musing awhile, he frankly confessed who he was, why he came, and his thorough conviction of the utility of the machine. Before he left the city he gave an order in behalf of the British government for this and the accompanying machines, some six or eight, which amounted to some $40,000. The machines were built at Chicopee, shipped to England, and have been in use there from that day to this.

The five daughters of Major Joseph Hardy Pierce while in Washington attended a grand ball given by Mrs. John Quincy Adams, on the 8th of January, 1824, the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. It was estimated that one thousand persons were present, many very distinguished. The Washington Republican at that time published the famous poem by "Orlando," which is still remembered by many of our older people. In it the Pierces were gallantly noticed as follows:—

"Wend you with the world to-night?
Sixty gray—and giddy twenty,
Flirts that court and prudes that slight,
State coquettes and spinsters plenty.

Mrs. Sullivan is there,
 With all the charms that Nature lent her;
 Gay McKim, with city air;
 And winning Gates and Vanderveuter;
 Forsyth, with her group of graces;
 Both the Crowninshields in blue;
 The Pierces, with their heavenly faces,
 And eyes like suns that dazzle through.
 Belles and matrons—maids and maidens,
 All are gone to Mrs. Adams'."

Lines written by Thomas Bulfinch, author of "The Age of Fable," etc., on board the schooner Zephyr, at Alexandria, May 13, 1824, on the departure of the five daughters of Major Joseph Hardy Pierce, for Boston:—

Brave vessel! know'st thou what a freight
 Thy gallant timbers soon shall bear?
 The famed Venetian bark of State
 Ne'er bore a freight so rich and rare.

Fair Delia with the dimpled cheek,
 And Marcia with the pensive brow,
 And Laura with the eyes that speak,
 Ere from her lips the accents flow.

And Ann, the conqueror of hearts,
 With charms at will—a very fairy;
 And there arrayed in Beauty's darts,
 Hebe—(the mortals call her Mary).

Brave vessel—may thy oaken sides
 Cleave old Potomac's billowy breast,
 And homeward speed as swift as glides
 The parent swallow to her nest.

General James Pierce was born in Swanzey, Cheshire county, New Hampshire, on the twenty-fourth day of September, 1810, and remained with his father, working on the farm, until he was twenty-one years of age, receiving in the meantime such limited education as country schools of that period furnished.

The history of those who, under adverse circumstances have, by their own unaided efforts and native force of character, achieved success in any department of human enterprise, is always interesting, and should be especially so to young men about to engage in the active duties of life, as examples for their imitation.

In the hurried preparation of a newspaper article, we can only expect to give a brief outline of the General's life, but even this will serve to show what can be accomplished by a man possessing an indomitable will, enterprise and perseverance,—the three leading characteristics so peculiar to Mr. Pierce.

At the age of twenty-one he left his father's house and hired himself by the month to work at the lumber business, at which employment he continued about two years, and then commenced the same business on his own account, which was the manufacture of shooks for sugar hogsheads, conveying them to market down the Connecticut river.

He and a cousin, named Jervis Bates, came to Erie county in 1844, bringing with them cotton and woolen cloths, which they disposed of and turned the proceeds into horses, which they took back with them, when they returned home. They made the journey out in wagons and sleighs. Mr. P. came here again in December of the same year, and staid all winter. This time he was engaged in selling cloaks through Erie and Crawford counties. There being very little money in this section at that time, his accumulations, about $1,000, consisted wholly of Pennsylvania and Erie canal bonds. Being unable to obtain the interest on the bonds at Erie, he disposed of them for a lot of stoves.

Possessing an enterprising spirit, and desiring a wider field for the display of his energies, he sold his property in New Hampshire, and in the year 1845 emigrated with his young family into Pennsylvania, settling at Cranesville, in Erie county, where he remained until the spring of 1847, when he removed to Clarksville, Mercer county. The first business enterprise in which he engaged here was mining and shipping coal in the vicinity of Clarksville, in the year 1847. Coal then found its market at Erie, and was transported to that point via the Pennsylvania and Erie Canal, the business being then in its infancy in the Shenango Valley. This first adventure was only moderately successful,—the mine, being limited in extent, soon became exhausted. He then opened new mines near to his late residence at Mount Hickory. These proved very valuable, and here was laid the foundation of his subsequently eminently successful business career. To convey the coal from these mines he constructed a tram road, operated by horse-power, which was regarded at that time as a wonderful achievement of individual enterprise, and which answered a most valuable purpose until it was superseded by the completion of the Erie and Pittsburgh and the Sharpsville and Oakland Railroads.

In the construction of both these roads he took a most active interest. In the former he was a large stockholder and a director; in the latter the principal stockholder and its President and General Manager from the beginning to his death.

These roads have performed an indispensable part in the development of the iron, coal and other industries of the country through which they pass, and to the energy and public spirit of Mr. Pierce is the community indebted for the existence and beneficial results of these improvements.

Among the first to engage in the coal business in Mercer county, so had he continued until the day of his death to be among the more prominent and successful operators, being connected with extensive mines both in Mercer and Lawrence counties.

His connection with the furnace business commenced in the year 1859. Becoming the proprietor of the Sharpsville Furnace, he put the same in blast that year, and with the exception of occasional stoppages for repairs, it has been in successful operation until the late depression in the iron business made it expedient to lessen the production of Pig iron throughout the country. He was President and principal owner of the Iron Banking Company, of this place, and a stockholder in the Sharon Banking Company.

His farming operations were conducted on a very extensive scale, and with more science and system than is generally employed. Mt. Hickory is a model farm. The mansion and outbuildings are superior to any in the county, and perhaps not surpassed by any of their kind in Western Pennsylvania. The land is in the highest state of cultivation, abounding in all the fruits suitable to this latitude; and, in short, with everything to make it a most pleasant and desirable residence. His extensive herd of thorough-bred cattle was greatly admired by farmers and stockbreeders. That he had very superior stock is evidenced by the many premiums awarded him this year at the North Western Pennsylvania Fair and elsewhere.

He had just completed, and had nearly ready for occupancy, at a cost of over $100,000, a palatial residence in this place, which for architectural design, beauty of finish, and convenience of arrangement, will compare most favorably with the best city or suburban residences to be found anywhere.

He always manifested a deep interest in the cause of education, devoting much personal attention—as a director for a number of years—to our common schools and in liberal contributions in lands and money for the erection of school-houses, aside from the large amount of taxes paid by him annually for their support. A noted instance of his liberality is seen in the contribution of $10,000, made in the name of his wife, towards endowing a female professorship in Buchtel College, Akron, Ohio, to be called the “Chloe Pierce” professorship. This is a new institution of learning, of which he was one of the trustees, and is in a very prosperous condition.

Several of the churches in Sharpsville also received generous donations from his hand, while public and private enterprises have been greatly aided and fostered through his liberality.

THE OBSEQUIES.

Friday afternoon, at one o'clock, was fixed as the time for the obsequies. All the business houses in Sharpsville were closed and work generally suspended during the day. An hour or more before the time announced for the ceremonies to begin numbers of carriages could be seen on their way to the residence of the deceased. By one o'clock a very large gathering of people had assembled, many of them, however, being unable to gain admission to the house on account of the crowd present. The casket was placed in the library, and the religious services were conducted in the hall, at the door of the parlor. The Universalist choir opened the services by singing "We shall know each other there," after which Rev. S. H. McCollester, President of Buchtel College, Akron, Ohio, read a portion of Scripture and offered up a fervent prayer to the Throne of Grace. Rev. Charles Shipman, of Girard, then delivered a very sympathetic, eloquent and appreciative sermon, at the close of which the choir sang "He has gone to the silent land."

The pall-bearers were Hon. Wm. L. Scott, of Erie; Major J. W. Ormsby, of Sharon; Dr. Wm. Gibson, of Jamestown; Dr. J. M. Irvine, of Sharon; Samuel Sherman, of Albion, Erie county; Alex. Nimick, of Pittsburg; Judge Maxwell, of Greenville; John Phillips, of Neshannock; John McCleary, of New Castle; A. McIntyre, of Neshannock; Hugh Young, of Hermitage; Robert Oaks, of Oakland; Seth Hoftus and A. J. Nickel, of Sharpsville.

Mr. Sherman, one of the pall-bearers, was the first person with whom Mr. Pierce became acquainted when he settled in Erie county.

The procession, as it slowly wended its way to Riverside cemetery, which is about three miles from the residence of the deceased, presented a sight seldom seen in this section. Its entire length was fully a mile, 250 carriages being in the procession. Every follower seemed impressed with the idea that he had lost in the deceased a personal friend. On arriving at the burial-ground, the school children, numbering about three hundred, were formed in line and sang "Bright Jewels" as the procession passed in, after which they marched by the casket and took a view of the corpse.

Editorial from the Sharpsville Advertiser.—It is with no ordinary feelings of sadness that we chronicle his sudden death. The news came to all who knew Mr. Pierce with a feeling of personal bereavement, for he was a noble man, whose kind heart was ever prompting him to good deeds and a conscientious fulfillment of his highest conceptions of duty. His kindnesses passed from his hand not as credits to be returned with use, but as souvenirs sacred to his memory, and as such will be cherished in perpetual remembrance. His memory will long be retained in the hearts of those whom he has befriended and assisted by counsel, advice, and pecuniary aid—and among them can be numbered many poor men who have been brought to a prosperous condition, if not to affluence and wealth. The strict rule of rectitude was the magnet by which he moved, and the guide-star of his business career. Honesty, and not cupidity, governed him. Purity of purpose and of principle crowned him as a chief of excellence, and by these he merited no common exaltation. He was, indeed, a shining mark; and as death courts a glittering prize, we must bow submissively to the mandate that called him hence, leaving us to grieve with no common grief, and sigh with no common sorrow, that we are bereft of one of our most useful and upright citizens. The members of this community are not the only ones that grieve over his loss. There are others whose hearts are stricken with sadness. His home has been mantled in the drear habiliments of mourning. There they weep that will not be comforted, because he is not. Let them have our sympathy and condolence.

The loss of such a man to any community cannot be estimated. It is irreparable. His enterprise knew no bounds, and but for the intervention of the business depression, many projects of a valuable character, that he had in contemplation, would now be under way.

Dec. 17, 1829, Hannah R. Homer, dau. of Joseph Warren Homer, of Boston, b. Dec. 25, 1806. He res. in Dorchester District, Boston.

Samuel B. Pierce was born on a farm in Reading, Vt., to which place his father, who was born in Woburn, Mass., moved Aug. 11, 1806. He lived on the farm until he was fourteen years old, attending the public schools of the town whenever practicable, going over long steep hills to do so. His father having died when he was young he started for Boston, riding all the way on top of an ox load of produce, driven by his elder brother, who on his return carried back goods to the merchants of the town—arriving at the Hub of the Universe he found employment at the crockery store of Moses Pierce, then located near Hanover street and Marshall lane, where he remained for three years, going then to work for Robert Briggs for four years, at the end of which time he went into business for himself putting out his own sign on his 21st birthday. He continued in the crockery business until 1869, when he retired from active business, being one of the oldest living merchants in that line in the county, many of the older merchants in this business in Boston, have been boys in his store. In 1844 he moved to what was then Dorchester, building a large house for himself at Upham's corner, which was then considered some distance out of town. He continued to reside there until a few years ago, when he moved into a handsome residence which he had then just finished, three of his children living within a stone's throw of him. He has built quite a number of houses in that part of the city and is at present building more.

He was the son of Asa and Caroline (Worthington) Pierce, and was born in Hinsdale, Berkshire county, Mass., July 17, 1819. By the death of his father he became an orphan when but six weeks old. In consequence of the largeness of his mother's family (the four youngest born were two pairs of twins, with but fourteen months difference in age), he was taken when yet an infant into the family of Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Frissell of Peru, Mass., with whom he spent most of his time until he was sixteen years of age, though his mother did not resign her claim to him, and he remained with them by mutual consent. These earlier years were devoted to ordinary farmer-boy pursuits, varied only by the privilege of going to the district school three months each winter and three in the summer until he had reached the age of ten years, after which his schooling was confined to the winter months.

In the year 1831 his mind became subject to religious influences, and cherishing a hope that he had entered upon a Christian life, with many others, subjects of a general revival which visited the place that year, he made public profession of religion, his mother and his foster-parents giving their approval. In connection with this change of feeling he received his first impression that he ought to devote his life to preaching the Gospel, but as he saw no way in which a suitable education could be acquired as preparative to the work, the notion was dismissed and other life-plans began to take shape and importance before his mind for the present.

He studied at "Green Mountain Seminary" and at Monson Academy, and closed at Amherst College. He was entered in that institution in the autumn of 1839 and graduated in the class of 1843—each winter term being spent in teaching. After graduation about two years were spent in the effort to liquidate some obligations incurred in the College course and also in securing funds with which to prosecute the theological course, the first year in charge of a "Select School" at Granby, Mass., and the second as principal of the Academy at Madison, Morris county, New Jersey.

In the spring of 1845 he connected himself with the "Theological Institute of Connecticut," then located at East Windsor, Conn., and since removed to Hartford—his Theological Professor being Rev. Dr. Tyler. During the course here he was obliged to resort to teaching, in which occupation he engaged two terms at Ware Village, Mass.

The theological course was completed in the summer of 1847, and he had already received "licensure" from the "Berkshire County Ministerial Association." Before leaving the Seminary, and for a few months after, he engaged in pulpit labors as a temporary supply at Westminster, Conn., where a blessing attended the "Word," and the feeble church was strengthened by an addition of about twenty to its membership.

In January, 1848, he commenced religious services at Holyoke, Mass., then in the infancy of its days, where a church was at length gathered and was duly recognized in the May of 1849. He received a "call" to the pastorate of this church and was ordained by Council which was convened September 20, 1849. The sermon was preached by Rev. Walter Clark, D.D., then of Hartford, Conn., but since deceased. In consequence of the financial reverses which came upon the place and the removal of a large part of his people, in June, of 1851, he sought and obtained a dismissal from this society.

In January, 1853, he began pulpit labors in Hartford, Conn. He remained here until July 1, 1866, when on account of financial troubles he obtained a dismissal. He entered immediately into an engagement with the church of Durham, Conn., where he was engaged from year to year, until Sept. 1st, 1870, when preferring a regular settlement in the pastoral office, he accepted a call to his present parish, Brookfield, Conn., where his installation took place October 19, Rev. Nahum Gale, D.D., of Lee, Mass., preaching the sermon.

Apr. 8, 1846, Frances Ann Ely, b. Oct. 22, 1817. He d. Apr. 11, 1880. Res. Warren, Mass.

The Doctor entered Amherst College in his twenty-first year and was graduated in the class of 1842. After teaching a year he became a member of Union Theological Seminary, New York. Receiving his license to preach 1846, he became pastor of a small church in Whippany, near Morristown, New Jersey. So successful were his ministrations and so strong a hold did he gain upon the affections of his people that they refused to hear of his leaving them. At the expiration of his fifth year, however, his health, never strong, made a temporary rest necessary. He determined to allow a year for recuperation, but chancing to supply the pulpit of the 12th St. Reformed Church of Brooklyn, N. Y., they extended to him a hearty call and he became their pastor, preaching his first sermon as their settled minister the first Sabbath of April, 1851. Here was his field for the greater part of his life work. For nearly twenty-five years he went in and out among this people breaking unto them the bread of life. No greater testimony of his success is needed than this long pastorate. He that can hold a city congregation for nearly a quarter of a century, in spite of "itching ears" and desire for a change, must be one of rare ability and able to gain the love of his people. One by one the senior ministers of his denomination in Long Island dropped away till Dr. Pierce became the patriarch of the classis. The church increased from a membership of forty to nearly four hundred, and the Sabbath school numbering less than one hundred at first grew to more than one thousand two hundred, becoming the largest school in that city of churches. In 1871 the degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Rutgers College and for several years he was a member of the examining committee of the Theological Seminary in New Brunswick. At last the intense activity of his mind wore out the body. Despite the protestations of his people he resigned his charge, hoping that a sea voyage and rest in Europe would improve his health. In May, 1875, his farewell sermon was preached and in June he went abroad for four months. Though somewhat benefited in health it was too late for perfect recovery, and to his intense disappointment he was obliged to give up all hopes of another pastorate. It was a heavy trial. He would have preferred to die with the harness on, but God willed it otherwise. Coming to Warren, he took up his abode in our midst. What his life has been we all know. Earnest and active in every good work he could not remain idle and often his zeal outran his bodily strength. His sermons preached at the Congregational Church and especially his address at the Dedication of the Town Hall, will linger long in our memories. A year ago he was elected a member of the School Committee and was appointed its chairman. Accepting the trust he carried it with him night and day, endeavoring to benefit the schools. As a member of the library committee he assisted them by advice and counsel. His interest led him to contribute many valuable books from his private library. At several different times it was supposed his end was near but his determination to live triumphed over his body till last Sabbath evening when murmuring "Come quickly, Lord Jesus, come quickly," he fell asleep.

Funeral services were held in the Congregational Church, Tuesday afternoon, with a sermon by Rev. Jesse F. Forbes, who paid an eloquent and glowing tribute to the memory of the deceased. The schools in town were all closed during the afternoon. Yesterday forenoon the remains were interred in the cemetery at West Springfield.

He retired from it at an early age on account of ill health, and thereafter devoted most of his time to agricultural pursuits. Alvares Pierce with three motherless children moved into the wilds of Northern Penn. some time about the year 1837-8. He was then about 46 years old, and for several years with his children experienced the hardships incident to a new country. He penetrated farther than any who had preceded him, and for some time his home was at the "end of the road." A large territory around was then an almost unbroken forest, and the few scattered settlers had little food for themselves and none for those that followed them : so the only alternative was to go to Egypt, and that Egypt was some 70 miles off, part of the way over barren mountains with scarce any inhabitants save wild animals and rattlesnakes. Great hardships were endured by those who went to buy food, and equally great perhaps were the trials of those who tarried at home. On one occasion while Mr. P. was gone for supplies the meal barrel was exhausted and he did not return,—and their poor neighbors had none to spare. The children had a step-mother then, and she contrived to drive the wolf of hunger from the door. Taking a little girl, the youngest, she went to the field near the house and dug up the newly-planted potatoes, although somewhat sprouted, washed and boiled them, and with the addition of cooked leeks, milk and a few trout, subsisted until he came home. The town in which he lived had two settlements, one on the north and the other on the south side of a large forest. To go from one to the other a foot path was used. One day Mr. P. went from home to the other settlement three or four miles to procure a pig, which having got he swung in a bag over his shoulder and started for home. After going some distance he lost the path, and towards night found it quite certain he could not get home before dark. A thunder storm came on and darkness set in and he could proceed no further, and laying his bundle at the foot of a tree he passed the rainy night, standing up most of the time to prevent being wet through. In the morning he found himself on the banks of the same brook that ran past his log house, but some distance off. He took up his bundle and went to the hut of a neighbor, got some breakfast and then started home, which he reached all right with his burden.

son, Chesterfield and Peru, N. Y. Earl Pierce, after his marriage, in 1806, resided in Washington County for fifteen years, dividing the time about equal between the two towns. During all of this time he was engaged in farming and lumbering. In 1820, he formed a business connection with Thomas McLean and Isaac Huestis and purchased a tract of pine timber land, embracing a valuable water-power and privilege, in Peru, Clinton County, N. Y. It was then an almost unbroken wilderness. As Mr. Pierce was to be the pioneer in the erection of dams, mills, &c., in this wilderness section, he moved his family from Greenwich, Washington County, to Peru, Clinton County, in May, 1821. The distance, 120 miles, was made in a covered wagon in just six days time. There were eight persons in the family besides two servants. Having got his family comfortably settled he went immediately at the work in hand, which consisted in clearing the lands, erecting dams, flumes, saw-mills, forge, blacksmith shops, store, dwelling houses, barns, fences, &c., &c., which consumed about three years time to put things in good working order. A school-house of suitable size to answer also for a place of worship was early provided for. So in truth it might be said that the desert was made to blossom like the rose. Mr. Pierce being well settled in a comfortable home, after the great strain upon him during the first few years of his pioneer life, finds himself at the head of a large manufacturing business, of both lumber and iron, and also has a large farming interest, and other industries to look after, has but a sparse time to devote to objects outside of his business. His office was in his store for the convenience of his business.

But amid all his hurry and press of business he always took time to attend to his religious duties. He was an active and devoted christian, an ardent temperance man, and strict observer of the Sabbath. His standing in the community was high, and he was regarded as a shrewd, energetic, industrious and persevering business man. In the midst of his active busy life the Lord called for him. A ladder on which he was descending, slipped on the barn prostrating him to the floor, a distance of 20 feet, and fatally injuring him so that after four days of suffering he died. When his family physician told him that he could live but a short time he looked around wishfully and said, "if it is the Lord's time it is my time," and continued to talk while his strength lasted. He was perfectly conscious to the last, and bade his wife and each of his children an affectionate farewell—dying in the triumphs of faith, at the age of 51 years and over.

[2625. The following sketch of the life of Dr. Caleb Pierce of Madrid, New York, was received too late for publication in its proper place, and is therefore inserted here].

In the front rank of the honorable profession of medicine in St. Lawrence County, New York, he of whom we write has for many years occupied a prominent and honorable position, and deservedly and justly so. Winning this place by skill and erudition, he has maintained it well in the general estimation of his fellow-citizens.

Dr. Caleb Pierce is the first son of Bester Pierce and grandson of Nathaniel Pierce, of Plainfield, Conn., the family being of English descent, and claiming ancestry among the Percys of Northumberland. The first wife of Bester Pierce was a daughter of Eden Burroughs and was the mother of Caleb, Collins R., Minerva, and Laura Pierce. She died April 4th, 1813. About the year 1816 Bester Pierce married Margaret McChesney, a native of the State of New York, who bore to him two sons, John and Robert. The only surviving children of both unions are Caleb, John, and Robert. Dr. Caleb Pierce was born in Royalton, Vt., August 6th, 1800, and at the age of six years came with his father and family to St. Lawrence County, and settled in Potsdam. He was reared as a farmer, and attended the common district schools until the opening of St. Lawrence Academy, when he entered that institution, and pursued its course of studies for three years.

At the age of nineteen he evinced a strong desire to prepare himself for the practice of the medical profession, but owing to the limited circumstances in which his father was placed, no assistance beyond a mere pittance could be awarded from that source. The young man, however, was undaunted, and had the courage and will sufficient to face even poverty in the struggle to accomplish his cherished desire. He therefore went to Lebanon, N. H., and began the study of medicine with Dr. Phineas Parkhurst and Prof. R. D. Muzzy, members of the Faculty of Dartmouth College. During his stay with these gentlemen he attended three full courses of medical lectures, and received a diploma as a doctor of medicine in the fall of 1822, and also a diploma from the Vermont State Medical Society. In the year 1823 Dr. Pierce settled in Madrid for the practice of his profession. Here for a few years the shades, as well as a few of the lights, of the practice of medicine in a new country fell on his pathway. Though he was struggling with poverty, and money was hard to get to replenish the soon depleted stock of medicines, yet he never refused to attend the calls of his chosen profession, though they came from those unable to pay even for the necessaries that made them whole. Rich and poor were alike served well, and his ministrations to those engaged in the sister profession of the Gospel have ever been gratuitously supplied, whatever their doctrines or creeds. Soon after his arrival in Madrid he connected himself with the St. Lawrence Medical Society, of which he is still a member, receiving from that society in 1821 its certificate of authority to practice his profession. He has been the President and Vice-President, and repeatedly one of the censors of the society; and has also a diploma of honorary membership from the Castleton Medical College of Vermont, granted in 1848. He received also in 1871 the honorary degree of M. D. from Dartmouth College. He has represented the County society many times in the State medical society as a delegate to its annual meetings. Thus was he thrown into the circle of cultivated and enlarged minds at a period in his life when his enthusiasm was enlisted in an honorable pursuit; and the influences then surrounding him so moulded and directed the student that the practitioner of later years felt and acknowledged their power and benefit.

At the age of twenty-five years he married an estimable lady, Miss Sarah, daughter of General James Farnsworth of Fairfax, Franklin County, Vt. She was a woman of no ordinary ability; and possessed of a finely cultivated mind, and ever-willing heart to lend a helping hand to those in distress. As a wife and mother she performed her duties and obligations with a scrupulous regard for right, but always full of sympathy for the poor and afflicted, a well-chosen mate for her husband, who reciprocated her generosity and charities. Her religious belief was in consonance with her early training, coupled with her own logical deductions. She was an active member of the Congregational Church of Madrid for many years. To Dr. and Mrs. Pierce six children have been given: William Cornelius, James Farnsworth, Henry Clark, John Horton, Harriet Melinda, and Granville S., of whom James F. alone survives.

In politics Dr. Pierce has been a life-long Democrat of the Jacksonian school; always active in public affairs, but never soliciting office nor neglecting professional business for political preferment.

As a physician of over half a century's practice in the County of St. Lawrence, he has met with great success, and from bare-handed circumstances has by prudence and economy, gathered to himself a sufficiency of this world's goods to give him comfort and ease to his declining days.

4066. i. GEORGE G., b. Nov. 2, 1834; d. June 30, 1864. Hon. George G. Pierce at 21 years of age emigrated to Kansas to practice surveying. It was at the time of the Border Ruffian War there, and he being a strong anti-slavery man was obliged to leave Leavenworth and go to Nebraska for a time until the excitement was allayed a little; he then returned and helped to make Kansas a free State, and was twice chosen to the Territorial Legislature. He enlisted in the union army against the rebellion, and died June 30, 1864, of wounds received before Petersburg. He is buried at Arlington, D. C. In an article written by Senator Lane at the time, he says:

"I learn that the Hon. George G. Pierce who represented this district in the Territorial Legislature for two years is dead. He died in a hospital at Washington, D. C., of wounds received before Petersburg. George G. Pierce was a good man: his friends loved him, his enemies respected him. Of an indomitable and persevering spirit, sanguine temperament, and a fervent enthusiast in the cause of liberty, no obstacle was too great for him to overcome, no path too rugged for him to climb, no night too cold, too dark or too stormy for him to labor; and recognizing these qualities while he was among us, the friends of freedom in North-Western Kansas proudly acknowledge him their first successful champion. Sacred is his memory. He sleeps the sleep of the brave; he rests like an American upon the bosom of his country for which he gave his life that she might live."

He was born in Townsend, Middlesex Co., Mass., Oct. 17, 1815. His father was a farmer, as was his grandfather before him, and he himself has followed that calling all his life. He received his education at the common school. At the age of 22 he married Abigail Turner, who died of consumption, December, 1858. He afterwards married Sophia G. Hills (widow of Dr. E. P. Hills of Shirley, Mass.), his present wife. By his first wife he had three children, who still live—Susan, Richard and Granville. Richard is now at work on the old farm. He is married and lives near his father's home. Susan is now a widow, and is living at her father's. She has one child.

Mr. Pierce has been in town office several times—has twice served as Selectman, Overseer of the Poor, and Assessor. In 1868 he was representative in the State Legislature. In the various offices he has filled he has been distinguished for his good judgment in practical matters quite as much as for anything else. He is not wealthy, but well-to-do. The estate of his father was left him—under certain conditions relating to the other children and the widow to be fulfilled—and he has improved the estate very much—both the land and the buildings, beside adding thereto both land and outbuildings. He has been a hard-working man nearly all of his life. He is a member of the Unitarian Church, as is also his present wife.

LUCIUS DARWIN PIERCE, son of Ezekiel Porter Pierce, Esq. and Susannah Porter, was born August 9th, 1820, at Chesterfield, N. H., nurtured in a tavern and upon his father's farm. In boyhood and youth he enjoyed such limited advantages for acquiring an education as the common schools and Academy in Chesterfield afforded. About the year 1841 he entered Norwich University, Vt., gained a commendable proficiency in the Ancient languages, and while yet an under-graduate was appointed to and accepted the position of Professor of Languages in a seminary in Portsmouth, Va., and served in that capacity in Virginia till he found the climate did not suit his constitution, when he resigned and returned, and graduated A. B. in full Collegiate Course at Norwich University in the class of 1846. He studied law in the office of Hon. William P. Wheeler, at Keene, N. H., and was admitted to the Bar in New Hampshire in 1849, successfully practiced Law in Marlow, N. H., till November, 1853, when he moved to Winchendon, Mass., and formed a Law copartnership with Benj. O. Tyler, Esq., a lawyer in extensive practice; continued with Tyler for a year, when Tyler, who was also engaged in manufacturing, becoming financially embarrassed, he withdrew from Tyler and opened an office by himself, and from the first did an extensive, increasing and lucrative business in his profession to the time of his death, which occurred May 8, 1858.

He was a gentleman of culture and refinement; had a genial, affable disposition, courteous, obliging address, and studious, industrious habits. While in practice in New Hampshire, he held a commission as Justice of the Peace and at the time of his death held commissions as Justice of the Peace and Notary Public for Massachusetts, and Commissioner for New Hampshire and Vermont. Jan. 2d, 1854, he married Miss Lucy C. Fuller, daughter of John H. Fuller, Esq., of Keene, N. H., but died without issue.

Captain HORACE TRUMAN HAWKS PIERCE, son of Ezekiel Porter Pierce, Esq., and Susannah Porter, was born at Chesterfield, N. H., Feb. 22, 1822; was brought up on the farm and in the tavern of his father and enjoyed such advantages as the common schools and Academy in Chesterfield afforded, and pursued a partial course of studies at Norwich University, Vt., which, in addition to the usual Collegiate and Scientific course of studies, required its members to be instructed in military tactics, to which, while he remained in the University, he gave considerable attention, being naturally of a military turn of mind, and in after years turned his acquirements to good advantage. On leaving the University, he became a mechanic, for a while manufactured, and later became a brick mason, and followed that trade, residing with his family in Keene, N. H., till the War of the Rebellion broke out, when, upon the first call of President Lincoln for 75,000 three months' volunteers, he was among the first to offer his services in defence of the Union; and having raised a company of men, as Lieutenant, he joined the 2nd Infantry Regiment New Hampshire Volunteers and served out his term of enlistment with credit. On being discharged from the three months' service, he at once set himself about raising three years' men, and succeeded in raising a company at Keene, which joined the 5th Regiment New Hampshire Volunteers as Co. "F," and he was commissioned by the Governor of New Hampshire its captain; served under Colonel Cross and General McClellan all through the Peninsula Campaign against Richmond in the spring and summer of 1862, was in command of his company in the memorable battle of Antietam, September 17, 1862, and in pursuit of the enemy on their retreat to Fredericksburg, soon after which he was honorably discharged for physical disability. He was an intrepid, resolute officer, cared for and beloved by his men; he fearlessly discharged his duty, with dignity and honor. Upon his return from the war he resumed his occupation as a brick-mason, at Keene, which he followed with his characteristic resolution and enterprise till his health and strength gave out. He married Miss Sophia E. Dickinson, daughter of Mr. William Dickinson of Hinsdale, N. H., June 12, 1850, by whom he had three children—Julia L., William E. and Frank, and died at Keene, N. H., Jan. 7, 1877.

LAFAYETTE WASHINGTON PIERCE, Esq., son of Ezekiel Porter Pierce and Susannah Porter, was born at Chesterfield, New Hampshire, May 20th, 1825, and was reared in the tavern and upon the farm of his father. In boyhood and youth, obliged to labor when not attending school, his opportunities for acquiring an education were meagre indeed, and confined to the very limited advantages of the public schools in Chesterfield; notwithstanding, in the autumn of 1844, at the age of nineteen years, he entered Norwich University at Norwich, Vt., though he was obliged to earn for himself means for defraying his expenses at the University and other institutions of learning which he attended in pursuing his collegiate and law courses of studies; this, in the practice of the most rigid economy and untiring industry by manual labor and teaching schools, he was able to accomplish, and graduated in full Collegiate course at Norwich University, August 22d, 1850. After graduating he followed teaching for a while, in connection with studying law, becoming successively principal of the Cæsar Seminary at Swanzey, N. H., at Wilmington, Vt., and Alstead, N. H., High Schools, meeting with a good degree of success teaching. He was one of the constituent members of the "Cheshire County, N. H., Musical Convention and Institute," at its original organization in August, 1853, and was elected and served as its first President through its several sessions that year. He studied law with Hon. F. F. Lane, of Keene, N. H., and Messrs. Tyler & Pierce, counsellors at law, at Winchendon, Mass., and upon examination by Judge Thomas of the Supreme Judicial Court, was admitted to practice law in all the courts of Massachusetts, at the Worcester County Bar, at the April Term of the Supreme Judicial Court, April 28, 1854. He practiced law one year in Oxford, Mass., then between three and four years in Westborough, in the same County, finally removing to and opening a law office in Winchendon, Mass., and there continuing the practice of his profession in the courts of Massachusetts and New Hampshire to the present time. He has made a specialty of the prosecution of pension and other government claims in which he has been quite successful, making glad many a worthy soldier and dependent relatives, in the successful prosecution of their claims. He is and for thirteen years has been a confidential contributor of a leading journal in Worcester County. He was commissioned a Justice of the Peace by Gov. Emory Washburn in 1854, and holds that office at the present time. Was commissioned in 1858, by Gov. Wm. Hale, a Commissioner of New Hampshire for Massachusetts. He is a member of the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Massachusetts. And has several times been elected by his lodge its special representative to and attended upon the sessions of the Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F., and been promoted to many positions of honor and trust in the Order.

Miss AUGUSTA ELIZABETH PIERCE, youngest daughter of Ezekiel Porter Pierce, Esq., and Susannah Porter, was born near Spofford's Lake in what is called the Lake House on the "Old Pierce Homestead," Chesterfield, New Hampshire, January 29, 1830. Her parents, in point of character, were among the most respectable inhabitants of the community. Her father, a manufacturer, merchant and farmer, was a representative man of great energy and enterprise, and of sterling integrity. Her mother was a remarkable woman of excellent character, possessing a high degree of refinement and more than ordinary intellectual qualifications, having been educated at Farmington Academy, Me. Augusta is a woman of refinement and culture, having inherited many of the sterling qualities of her parents, she is industrious, enterprising and energetic. Like her brothers, her early education was acquired in the public schools and at Chesterfield Academy, which for many years stood prominent in the State as a literary and scientific institution.

When but six years of age, she resolved to qualify herself for teaching, and in after years followed up that resolution. At the age of eighteen she commenced teaching public schools in her native town. Success crowned her efforts and she zealously devoted her time to teaching and attending school at different seminaries of learning. Entering Mount Holyoke Seminary in 1856, she pursued a partial course of studies there, fitted for and chose teaching as a profession, and followed it with marked success for many years, insomuch that her services were eagerly sought far and near, being for several years Principal of Wilmington, Vt., High School, and Preceptress in Wilmington Academy, Vt. Taught several terms of school in the City of Keene, N. H., and the High Schools in Marlow and Hinsdale, N. H., and was principal of the Grammar School at Shelburne Falls, Mass., and Chesterfield Academy, N. H.—having taught seventy-seven different terms of school with usual success. She has always taken great interest in all moral and religious reforms, being a staunch advocate and supporter of the Union cause during the “Great Rebellion.” At times she has been elected to fill public offices in her own district and as a member upon the board of education in her own town, being elected to the office of superintending school committee of Chesterfield, and has always resided at what is now called the “Old Pierce Homestead” or “Lake House,” Chesterfield, N. H.

JOSIAH PIERCE, the youngest and only son of Elihu Pierce that survived infancy, was born in Hadley, Mass., February 4th, 1824. The death of his father in his fifth year compelled the restriction of his school days to the few short winter months preceding his fourteenth year.

The death of his mother during the following year, left him entirely dependent upon himself for support, which he earned by farm labor until sixteen years of age; serving the remainder of his minority as cabinet-maker's apprentice in Northampton. At the expiration of this time he went to Bristol, Conn., where he obtained employment in the clock manufactory, a business which he followed during the greater portion of his life. In this village upon the third of May, 1848, he married Hannah M. Muzzy, who became in good time the proud and happy mother of four boys.

While his eldest son was yet an infant he removed to Ansonia, Conn., where he remained until the spring of 1866, when he removed to the city of New Haven, his present home. In this quiet old "City of Elms" he buried his wife upon the 7th of October, 1875, and four years later, upon the 9th of the same month, he laid his oldest boy by her side. Children :—

1834. His early life was spent on the farm, with such opportunities for education as his native town offered in its public schools and academy. He entered Williams College in 1853, and graduated in 1857. After graduation he taught for one year in an Academy in Topsfield, Mass. In 1859 he entered Andover Theological Seminary and completed a two years' course of study, when he was called to a tutorship of Mathematics and Latin in Williams College. Here he remained two years, and during this time was licensed as a preacher. Resigning his tutorship he returned to Andover Seminary to complete his course. At the same time he took the supply of the Congregational Church in West Boxford, Mass., over which he was installed Sept. 2nd, 1863, Rev. S. M. Worcester preaching the ordination sermon. August 12th, 1863, he was married to Elizabeth M. Peabody, of Salem, Mass. He was dismissed from the church in Boxford, July 17th, 1867, and spent the year following as instructor in Mathematics in Williams College. In April, 1868, he assumed the supply of the Congregational Church in Middlefield, Mass., over which he was installed July 1st, 1868.

Mr. Pierce was born on the 10th of Nov., 1810. He is English, of Welsh descent. His father, Earl Pierce, died in 1836, in Au Sable, Clinton County, where his mother is still living. He removed with his parents to that place in 1821. He was educated at Potsdam and Keeseville Academies, and in 1831 went to Jay, Essex County, N. Y., where he engaged in the sale of goods in connection with the manufacture of iron. On the death of his father he sold out his business and returned to Au Sable and was the acting administrator of his estate. In 1849 he disposed of all his business enterprises and in May, 1851, removed to Plattsburgh where he now resides. Mr. Pierce held almost continuously some town office from 1833 to 1851, when he was appointed Deputy Collector of Customs and clerk and cashier in the custom house at Plattsburgh, N. Y. This office he held till January, 1854, when he resigned to assume the duties of the office of County Clerk, to which office he was elected in November, 1853. This position he occupied for three years. He claims to have been formerly a Henry Clay whig and is now a republican, although elected to his present position by a combination of Americans and republicans. He is a man of fine business capacity and discharges his duties with an industry and promptness that commend him alike to his constituents and his legislative associates. Mr. Pierce was married in 1834 to Miss Perley H. Sanford, daughter of Hon. Renben Sanford, and is an elder in the Presbyterian church. He is a staunch friend of temperance and education.

The foregoing was written in the winter of 1859.

On his return home from the legislature in the spring of that year, he was tendered the position of cashier and clerk of Clinton Prison, which he accepted and held for five years, when another position, much more to his taste and liking, was offered to him in the Plattsburgh custom house as deputy collector, clerk, cashier and special deputy, which he accepted, and entered upon the duties May 1, 1864, and this position he held and continued to fill for over twelve years, retiring June 1, 1876, since which time he has not engaged in any business enterprises. His two sons, Edgar, the oldest, is engaged in the manufacture and sale of furniture in all of its branches in Plattsburgh, and his other son, Fred, is a merchant at Morrisonville in this county, about five miles from this place. In looking after them it affords him very pleasant exercise and pastime in advising and assisting them in their business, and renders him less liable to rust out.

James F. Pierce was born in Madrid, St. Lawrence County, New York, on the 8th of April, 1830. His parents were both natives of New England. His father, Dr. Caleb Pierce, is a physician, and a graduate of Dartmouth College, New Hampshire. He was born in 1799 and removed in 1825 to Madrid, where for more than half a century he has been not only the physician, but the guide, counsellor and friend of several generations of patients. He is still in active practice.

James F. Pierce was prepared to enter college, having been educated in the preliminary steps for the collegiate course in the St. Lawrence Academy at Potsdam; but indications of pulmonary disease hereditary in his family, compelled him to abandon all ideas of further study. By careful attention to his health he was enabled to enter upon the study of law in the office of Judge Henry L. Knowles. He remained pursuing his studies for fifteen months, when he removed to the city of Troy and entered the law office of William A. Beach and Job Pierson, where he completed his studies. He was admitted to the Bar at Albany in the year 1851, just as he had attained his twenty-first year.

Very truly yours

Shortly after his admission to the Bar, the disease which he had inherited made serious inroads upon his health, and under the advice of eminent physicians in New York, he sought the mild climate of St. Augustine, Florida, where he remained for nearly three years. The balmy air of that locality and a continuous residence there restored him to his usual health. While at St. Augustine, Mr. Pierce occupied an office with the Hon. Isaac H. Bronson, now deceased, then United States Judge for the Eastern District of Florida, whose friendship he retained up to the period of his death. He there formed the acquaintance of Gov. Marcy, which ripened into intimate personal relations. During the campaign which resulted in the election of Franklin Pierce, President, he took an active part on the stump and otherwise and was a frequent contributor to the Democratic paper then published at St. Augustine.

On his return to the North from Florida, he resumed the practice of his profession and in 1856 settled at Canton, the county seat of St. Lawrence County.

Mr. Pierce has at all times possessed an instinctive passion for politics. He seems to glory in the excitement incident to a political career and to be charmed by the vicissitudes of political life. In St. Lawrence County, as a Democrat, he was in a hopeless minority, the county having become at an early time in the history of the Republican party one of its firmest strongholds in the State of New York. For many years Mr. Pierce was a regular delegate to the Democratic State Convention from his district, and thus he became intimately acquainted with the representative men of the party of his State, whose confidence he always enjoyed.

At the breaking out of the Rebellion, Mr. Pierce became an ardent supporter of the cause of his country and took an active part in raising troops in St. Lawrence County to sustain the honor of the flag of the Union. He still, however, remained faithful in his adherence to the party and its principles, to which he has ever been warmly attached. In 1862 a union ticket was formed in St. Lawrence County and Mr. Pierce was nominated for one of the principal offices as a slight acknowledgment of his services in raising troops and the interest which he took in the cause of the Union. A strong and desperate effort was made to defeat him, but he came out of the contest successful, his majority being about one thousand. The idea of a Democrat at that time being elected to a county office in St. Lawrence County was looked upon as a remarkable event, and Mr. Pierce attending the Democratic State Convention while holding the important position he did in St. Lawrence County, was an object of interest and curiosity. In 1865, Mr. Pierce removed to the city of New York and entered into partnership with Mr. Robert Sewell, establishing the law firm of Sewell & Pierce. Very soon the firm became prominently known in legal circles in New York and were retained in many important cases, in a few years, working into a prominent position among the legal firms in the city. In the Fall of 1866, Mr. Pierce took up his residence in Brooklyn and in the following year was nominated by the Democrats of the Second Senatorial District for the Senate. The District had hitherto been represented by a Republican. Mr. Pierce was a comparative stranger in the District, yet he was elected by 4000 majority. At the expiration of his term, Mr. Pierce was again elected to the Senate and he served for two consecutive terms in that body. During the first session he acted on the committees of Commerce and Navigation, Insurance and Retrenchment, and during the second term on those of Railroads, Insurance, Commerce and Navigation, and Public Printing.

In 1877, Mr. Pierce was again put in nomination and was again triumphantly elected and took his seat in the Senate on the 1st of January, 1878, where he was placed upon the committees on Judiciary, Canals, Public Buildings, and Retrenchment.

In person Mr. Pierce is above the medium height, somewhat slightly built, straight and upright in his figure, with large hazel-gray eyes and dark brown hair, rapidly changing to gray, and now in his 51st year, Mr. Pierce bears upon his outward form but little trace of the physical sufferings which he has for many years endured. His hereditary disposition to pulmonary complaint, although conquered in his early years, frequently threatens to return, constantly suggesting to him the necessity of caring for his health. His physical sufferings, however, never affect his temper, and he preserves the same genial manners and kindly disposition in all conditions of his health.

It is, however, for the greatness of his heart that Mr. Pierce is most remarkable; it may safely be said of him that a larger one does not throb in any human breast. His sympathy for suffering knows no bounds of caste, religion or nationality, but extends, a broad and swiftly flowing stream, carrying with it gentle consolation and substantial relief to every suffering creature that comes within his ken. It need hardly be said that these qualities make him remarkably popular, whether in society, in his professional circles or in politics. The man who will toil all day to do another a kindness is sure to be loved of all men, and such in an especial way is the lot of Mr. Pierce. This accounts for his large majorities in popular elections in districts where his party do not usually prevail; and if his life is spared there is no doubt but that the people reserve for him still greater honors and higher positions in the State and Nation.

James F. Pierce, and who graduated at the recent Commencement, June 1877, at the Packer Institute, displayed in the poem, "The Three Knights," which she contributed as her part of the literary exercises of that beautiful occasion, a scope and depth of genuine poetical thought and expression noticeably greater than young ladies of her age often exhibit. The critical readers of the Eagle have already enjoyed the production which was published in the report of the Commencement proceedings, and it is due to say that in the reading of it to the audience the fair authoress demonstrated an elocutionary and dramatic ability of a very vigorous and refined order.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

He was mustered into the Volunteer service as Captain of Company H, 49th Regiment, Wisconsin Infantry Volunteers, March, 1865. His regiment was ordered to Missouri, where it remained doing guard and provost duty until the soldiers were mustered out, in November of the same year. He remained at Fort Atkinson until 1868, when he came to Monmouth, Me. His father dying in 1871, he succeeded to the estate. Rev. Granville Pierce was born in Townsend, Mass., Dec. 17, 1847. After he was 21 years of age he pursued academic studies at Easthampton and Wilbraham, Mass., and during the winter months he taught school for pecuniary help. In Sept., 1871, he entered the Meadville Theological School and studied theology for nearly two years. He was ordained in Berlin, Mass., Nov. 19, 1873, the Rev. H. P. Cutting of Sterling preaching the sermon. He remained in Berlin until Oct., 1876, when he received a call from the First Unitarian church in Westboro for one year. In Oct., 1877, he was installed pastor of the church in Medfield. The societies at Berlin and Westboro were very anxious that Mr. Pierce should remain as their pastor, and on his departure they both passed resolutions highly complimentary to him as a spiritual adviser. He is now (1879) the pastor of the First Congregational Unitarian Society in Medfield, Mass.

The following is from "Citizens of Indianapolis."

Henry Douglas Pierce, or Harry Pierce as he is more generally known by his numerous friends, was born on the 9th of April, 1849, while his parents were en route to California. He was named in honor of the late Stephen A. Douglas, who was a personal as well as political friend of Henry's father, Doctor Winslow S. Pierce. In their younger days Doctor Pierce and Mr. Douglas agreed that whoever should first have a son he should name him for the other; hence the Douglas occupying a middle position in Harry's name. With his father he came to Indianapolis in 1854; he received regularly the rudiments of his education in the public schools preparatory to college. He was with the Rev. L. G. Hay and Luther H. Crull at their academy. He finished his education at Princeton College, New Jersey, attended two courses of medical lectures at the Ohio Medical College during Doctor Parvin's connection with it; the other at Berkshire Medical College when at the age of eighteen he passed the examination, standing fourth in a class of thirty, and received a certificate entitling him to a diploma of M. D. on becoming of age. At the age of twenty-one he received his diploma, but never intended to practice medicine, but wished a knowledge of it as a part of his education. He then studied law in the office of his uncle, Governor Thomas A. Hendricks, in this city (Indianapolis, Ind).

After he had finished the study of his profession, including a course at the Indianapolis Law School, he practiced one year alone. Since that time he has been connected as partner with ex-United States Senator David Turpie in the practice of law.

Rev. David Jonathan Pierce, oldest son of David, was born in Montpelier, Blackford County, Indiana, July 18, 1841, whither his parents had removed from Chester, Vt., two years before. At his father's death four years later the family returned to Vermont, where David was bound out to a cousin, Wm. H. Thomson, with whom he remained until 21 years of age, and left broken in health, to gain an education, against the protest of his physician. After five years' study in New Hampton Literary Theological Institute, Fairfax, Vt., he taught two years as Principal of Derby Academy, Vt., completed his studies in Newton Theological Institute, where he graduated in 1870, was married to Miss Marietta A. Hall at New London Literary Institute, N. H., July 7, 1870, the day after her graduation at the Institute, and the young couple started at once for Laramie, Wyoming, whither he was appointed as Pastor of the Baptist Church, then just formed by the American Baptist Home Mission Society. Being the second Protestant pastor in the place he labored at formation work for four years, building churches at Laramie, Evanston and Greeley, Col., acting as Principal of the Wyoming Institute at Laramie, and preaching for fifty miles along the U. P. R. R. After four years' pioneer labor he accepted a call to the Baptist Church, Portland, Oregon, where he labored for three years, baptizing over eighty members, twenty of whom were Chinese converted through a mission school. He left the church with 215 members, and returned to the mountains, broken down with bronchitis. The high, dry air of Wyoming has brought back his health, and he is now acting as pastor at Laramie and Cheyenne, Wyoming. Children:—

Dwight Edward, the second son of Josiah Pierce, was born in Ansonia, Conn., May 13th, 1854. His early education in the three "R's" was tacked on or beaten in in accordance with the feruling custom then extant in the district schools. In the spring of 1866 his parents moved to the city of New Haven, where there were at his disposal many excellent educational advantages. At the age of eighteen he entered the scientific department of Yale College, where, notwithstanding the many petty interruptions belonging to a limited purse, he graduated with much honor in the summer of 1875. Immediately upon graduation he received an appointment as instructor in Mathematics in the Hopkins Grammar School or Preparatory Department for Yale, from which he had graduated but three years previous. Here he remained until called to fill the chair of Mechanical Engineering in the Lehigh University of Pennsylvania in the spring of 1877. On the 26th of June of the same year he married the only daughter of William R. Lloyd, who, after the manner of woman kind, presented him with a blushing daughter upon the 13th of February, 1879.

Hon. William P. Pierce was born in the village of Hamlet in the town of Villanova, Chautauqua County, New York, March 25, 1830. He graduated at the University of the City of New York in March, 1852. He practiced medicine in Marshall County, Mississippi, from the fall of 1852 until the spring of 1856, when he returned to Lisbon, Kendall County, Illinois. He was married to Miss Mary H. F. Rood, daughter of Levi H. Rood, Esq., of Sheridan, LaSalle County, Ill. On the breaking out of the war of the rebellion he raised a volunteer company, which was mustered into service as Company D, 36th Regiment Illinois Volunteers, and with which he served for about eighteen months as Captain. In the winter of 1862 and 1863 he applied for an examination for a transfer to the Medical Staff of the Army and received a commission in Feb., 1863, as Surgeon of the 88th Illinois Infantry Volunteers, in which capacity he served until the close of the war.

He was elected to the lower house of the Illinois Legislature from Kendall County, in 1867, and served one term. In 1868 he removed his residence to Minooka, Grundy County, and in 1869 was elected delegate from Grundy and Will Counties to the Illinois Constitutional Convention. He had the honor while in that convention to propose and carry out the provisions in our State Constitution limiting the capacity of Counties, Cities, and all municipal corporations to incur indebtedness, and also the provision forbidding all Municipalities from loaning money or making donations in aid of railroad or other corporations. In the winters of 1870, 1871 and 1872 he held a seat in the Illinois State Senate, representing the Counties of Grundy and Will Then political duties so far interfered with his professional prospects that after the close of his Senatorial term he removed to the place he now resides in, Lamont, Ill., and renewed his practice and took himself out of the political field. In October of 1876 he stumped his old district for Hayes and was highly gratified with the result.

Rev. Leroy Matthew Pierce fitted for college at Springfield, Vt., where he united with the Congregational Church. He entered Middlebury College in 1861. In 1864 he served five months in the Christian Commission with the Union Army in front of Petersburg and Richmond, and in the hospitals in Washington and at City Point. He graduated at Middlebury in 1866, and the same year entered Andover Theological Seminary, where he graduated in 1869. After graduation he spent nearly two years at Glenwood, Mo., where he preached the gospel as a Home Missionary. He returned East in 1871. In October of that year he engaged to preach for the Congregational Church of Provincetown, Mass., for one year. At the termination of his engagement he received a cordial invitation from both the Church and Society to become their settled pastor, but on account of the nervous prostration caused by typhoid fever, by the advice of physicians he declined their invitation. After nearly a year of recreation, much improved in health he began to preach for the Orthodox Congregational Society in Bernardston, Mass., beginning Nov. 1, 1873. He is still pastor of that church. He married May 24, 1876, Catherine Billings, a daughter of Wm. Billings, Esq., of East Arlington, Vt., and a graduate of the Mount Holyoke Seminary.
