PREFACE.

This is the Third Edition of the Directory of the Three Counties in its present form. It has been found that in the more immediate suburbs of London there is very little demand for the County Directories, whilst there is a continually increasing demand for Annual Local Directories of these places, which have since the last edition of this volume been constituted Metropolitan Parliamentary Boroughs, viz.:—Fulham, Hackney, Hammersmith and Hampstead; of each of these a Local Directory, price 1s. 6d., is published annually.

The contents of the present Volume are similar to those of previous editions—a general account is given of each County; Lists of Hundreds and Poor Law Unions are included; a sketch of the Geological Features of each County, by Mr. W. J. Harrison, is given: then follow the Places in each County, alphabetically arranged, with their Inhabitants, both Private Residents and Commercial; it is stated under each Parish in what Hundred, Union, and County Court District and Division of the County, as formed under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," it is situate; as also in what Diocese, Archdeaconry, and Rural Deanery it is situated; and the College and University of every Beneficed Clergyman have been given, as far as they can be ascertained: the names of the Parish Clerks are given under each Parish; lists of Farm Bailiffs of Gentlemen farming their own land are included; and the population of each place, from the Census of 1881, has been inserted.

E. н. & м. а 2

A Map of each County on a large scale is given. Indices referring to all places and persons mentioned in the Topographies are prefixed.

The County Councils created under the "Local Government Act, 1888," will be found duly inserted, with the names and addresses of the Members.

The Proprietors have to thank those Clergymen and other Gentlemen who have given the work the benefit of their local knowledge by the assistance rendered to their Agents while collecting the information.

 The Letters S.O. and R.S.O. at the end of addresses in various parts of the book are abbreviations adopted by H.M. Post Office to represent Sub-Office and Railway Sub-Office; and if these Initial letters, with the name of County, are added to the addresses of letters in lieu of the usual name of Post Town, the delivery of such letters will be accelerated.

BARKING.

WITH RIPPLESIDE.

Burine is a town and parish and railway station, 7 miles tom Whitechapel church, 2 south from Hiford and 6 southwest from Rounford, in the Southern division of the county, becourse hundred and petty sessional division, Romford Barling, archdescoury of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The parish is separated from Dagenham by the river Rom, aring the Thames on the south, and from East and West Ham and Little liford by the river Roding, which is navigthe for burges from the Thames to Great Ilford. The parish was separated from Ilford 29 Sept. 1888, by Act of Arthument, and is now a distinct civil parish of itself: in March, 180, boundary posts were erected by the parish at a cost of about 170, to mark the boundary between Barking and East Ham, Hord and Dagenham. The parish is under the junshiction of the Metropolitan police. The town is greened by a Local Board of nine members, formed Oct. 14, 1832, under whose direction the town was sewered in 1855, at a cost of £18,000; the outfall is on land at Laby's March, where are precipitating tan'ts of concrete, each boding 200,000 gallons, the effluent passing into the Trames. The London, Tilbury and Southend Railway Conjuny has a station here, and in Jane, 1888, completed and opened for traffic their direct line from this place to Itea and Southend.

Barking is called in the Domesday Survey "Burchingas." of the place little or nothing is known until the foundation of the brackettine abbey, about the year 670, by St. Erken-will, Bishop of London (675-85), in the reigns of Sighere and old (603-693), kings of the East Saxons: the founder leng grandson of Uffa, the first Saxon king of the East dages (575-82), and the first bishop who sat in the see of barban after the erection of St. Paul's by King Ethelbert: the obley was dedicated to the Virgin, and is said to have been the first religious house established for women in the implem. The original charter of endowment by Hodelied, father of King Sebba, is among the Cottonian MSS, in the British Museum; but the names of the estates or lordships are so changed that it is utterly impossible to trace them. William the Conqueror confirmed the original grants, as did also all the succeeding monarchs down to Henry VII. The instabless was Ethelburga, sister of the founder; and it is a lact worthy of note as showing the importance of the parish as part ages that most of the abbesses were of high rank, and some of them of the blood royal; one being Oswyth, bugster of Ethelfrith, King of Northumbria (593-617), and as ther Ethelburga, wife of Ina, king of the West Saxons 753-728). Maud, or Matilda, daughter of Malcolm III. http://dischard.com/dischard-ranker/d the destinies of the monastery, as did also another Maud, dinghter and heir of Eustace, Count of Boulogne, and wife thing Stephen; in succession to whom Henry II. appointed Many sister of Thomas-à-Becket, as abbess: during these periods several kings are related to have dwelt within the abby walls, and William the Conqueror is said to have taken up his abide here during the building of his fortress in Loudon. In 1376 a great inundation broke down the banks of the Thames at Dagenham, the repairs of which creatly impoverished the nuns; Eleanor (de Bohun), widow of Thomas Plantagenet (of Woodstock), Duke of Gloucester, retired hither on the death of her husband in 1397, and here the died, 3rd October, 1399; here also Edmund and Jasper Tider, sons of Catherine of Valois, daughter of Charles VI. of France and wife of Sir Owen Tudor, were educated: the nal rank by virtue of their landed possessions. The abbey 1539, at which time its revenues amounted to £1,084 yearly, an annual pension of 200 marks (£133 6s. rod.) being granted to Dorothy Barley, the last abbess. The site of the monastery with its demesne lands was leased by the king to Sir Thomas Dennye and not long afterwards granted by Edward VI. to Edward Fynes, Lord Clinton, who immediately transferred it to Sir Richard Sackville; subsequently it was again vested in the Crown, and was granted by James I. to Augustine Steward, who died seised of this property in 1628: in 1747 it was purchased by Joseph Keeling, and is now held by Sir Edward Hulse bart. D.L., J.P. of Breamore House, Salisbury: there is scarcely a vestige now remaining of the once magnificent abbey, nor have any of the main buildings been standing for centuries. Mr. Lethieullier, when lord of the manor, by digging about the ruins, procured a ground plan of the abbey, or of some considerable portion of it: in 1876 the foundations of the Ladye Chapel and the skeletons of two abbesses, buried in front of the altar, were discovered in the grounds belonging to the National Schools, a part of the site which does not appear to have been excavated by Mr. Lethieullier: at the entrance to the churchyard is an ancient gateway tower of two stories, with an embattled parapet and an octagonal turret at one angle, rising above Rood; this tower, although erected in the Decorated period long subsequently to the foundation of the monastery, is sufficiently interesting, from the fact that within its walls the curfew bell is said to have tolled at eight o'clock; it is by some called the fire-bell gate, and this may be so, for the curfew bell was as well a note of alarm as an indication of the hour of rest: during six months of the year one of the bells in the church tower is still tolled nightly at eight and in the morning at five o'clock, merely as perpetuating an ancient custom: another gateway, leading into the precincts of the abbey, was pulled down in 1881.

The church of St. Margaret is a structure of Kentish rag chiefly of Perpendicular date, with some Norman and Early English features, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, two north aisles running parallel to each other for the whole length of the building, north porch and a lofty embattled western tower containing a clock and 8 fine-toned bells: it was originally appropriated to the monastery, and previously to 1328 there had been two vicarages in the church of Barking, distinguished as St. Margaret's-on-the-North and St. Margaret's-on-the-South, but about this period they were united, although it was not until 1398 that they were legally consolidated: in the year 1452 several disputes had arisen bo-tween Catherine de la Pole, the abbess, daughter of Sir Wichael de la Pole, and Sir John Greening, the vicar, which being referred to arbitation, the vicar was awarded "provisions every day in the convent for himself and servant so long as he should not be of a litigious disposition, but if he should, without license of the abbess, hold any discourse with the nuns, for the first offence he should lose his diet for a week and for the second offence he should lose it for a month, and if he offended a third time he should be excluded the convent : " the church was not then endowed with any the convent: "the church was not then endowed with any of the great tithes: in the year 1536 an agreement was entered into between the then abbess and vicar for the payment by the former of f to yearly in lieu of diet, and this sum the vicar still receives: among the fine monuments in the church is one to Sir Charles Montague, of Cranbrook, the church sole with the field of battle; and there is a mural tablet to Sir Orlando Humfreys: in the chancel are brasses with effigies to Thomas Broke, ob. 1493, and Alice, his wife, with a son and daughter; to John Tedcastell, gent. and Elizabeth (Mey), his wife, ob. 1596, with nine sons and seven daughters, and one of a priest, in academic dress, with chalice, the inscription gone, c. 1480: in the pave and south aisle are brass inscriptions to Elizabeth Hobart, widow, ob. 1590; Christopher Merell, citizen and goldsmith of London, ob. 1598, at. 60, and his sister Anne Yardley, a widow, ob. 1579, and another inscription to seven sons, c. 1530: the chancel retains several aumbries: there are sittings for 930 persons. The rectory, which in 1541 and the as had not Mary Blackenhall, consisted of all such tithes as had not have been been such that he hands been previously leased; it subsequently fell into the hands of the Crown, by whom it was sold in 1550 (together with the advowson of the vicarage) to Robert Thomas and Andrew Salter; the greater portion of it afterwards passed to the trustees of the will of William Pownsett, of Loxford (steward to the last abbess), who, being desirous of bestowing his substance on charitable objects, gave the rectory and advowson to the Warden and Fellows of All Souls College, Oxford. The North Africa Mission has offices here, at 19 and 21 Linton road: its object is to evangelise Morocco, Algeria, Tunis, Tripoli &c: it has 50 missionaries in these countries, is interdenominational and is supported entirely by free-will offerings: the income for 1889 was a little over £4,000; Mr. E. H. Glenny, hon. sec.

A Cemetery, 12 acres in extent, with mortuary chapel, was formed here in 1886 at a cost of $\int_6,000\;; it is under the control of nine members; C. H. Mills, clerk to the board. In the Friends' Cemetery Mrs. Elizabeth Fry, the enment philanthropist, who died at Ramsgate, 12 October, 1845, is

Of the endowed charities, amounting to £300 yearly, the following may be enumerated :- 1. In the year 1818 James Hayes left £4,000 (3 per cent. Reduced Annuities). 2. Mrs. Ann Nepton left an estate to the Poulters' Company of London, subject to a yearly rent-charge of £40, to be distributed by the masters and wardens of that company in 5s. gifts to 160 poor persons yearly in May. 3. Sir Thomas Fainshawe gave for the benefit of the poor of the parish of Barking the Market House and tolls, with seven cottages, the latter now producing £20 yearly. 4. Sir Thomas Campbells' legacy of £100, expended in the purchase of land in Eastbury Marsh, realizes £24 yearly. 5. Cotlands' charity consists of about 5 acres of ancient copyhold poor's land, held of the manor of Barking, and producing £25 yearly. 6. Jonathan and Thomas Collett left certain lands, known as "Kings' Bridge Marsh," since sold for £1,500 and vested in the 2\frac{3}{2}.per Cents.: an annual dividend of £48 9s. arising herefrom is distributed by the churchwardens in bread every Sunday morning among the deserving poor. 7. Fowkes' charity by the masters and wardens of that company in 5s. gifts to morning among the deserving poor. 7. Fowkes' charity enables the authorities of Barking and Ilford to send two boys, sons of parishioners, to Christ's Hospital, London. 8. In 1614 John Wilde left to the poor of Barking a house in East street, containing four rooms, occupied rent free by poor people placed in them by the parish officers; but this property becoming very dilapidated was sold to Mr. William Lake for £225 and two new almshouses were built adjoining the seven almshouses in East street, making in the whole nine almhouses of four rooms each, rent free, containing about twenty-one inmates. 9. There are eight other charities, arising either from rents of land or investments, To the north-west are Great Porters and Parsloes.

LOCAL BOARD. Board room, East street.

Board day on second thursday in month at 8 p.m. R. Hewett, chairman, Roden lodge William Bewers, Highfield house E. A. Davies, Northbury house, Tanner street Henry Berry, Linton road Thomas Pelling, Arundel villa Charles Goodman, Faircross farm H. W. Knowles, Hawthorn house, North street Robert Willett, Broadway T. W. Glenny, The Paddock H. H. Mason, Abbey lodge

In the High street stands the old market house, now used as a Town Hall; it has an overhanging upper story, and a portion of the wooden areade below is still remaining.

The D company of the 1st Volunteer Battalion, Essex

Regiment, have their head quarters in the Broadway.
There is a Metropolitan police station in the town; which has also a provident dispensary, situated in Broadway; a public free lending and reference library in North street, containing about 1,200 volumes; a club for working men, and an institute for working lads.

The market has dwindled down to the exhibition of a few street stalls on Saturday nights. A fair was formerly held on October 23rd, but is now abolished. Smacks were at one time built here, but that business has now ceased, although the sail lofts and rope yards still remain. A large jute manufactory has been established here, and at the mouth of the Roding Creek, on the Thames, are gunpowder magazines and chemical manure works.

At Uphall, a farm situated north of the town, are the remains of a fortification of Roman origin, nearly 40 acres in extent.

The North London Main Drainage Sewer passes through the marsh lands on the banks of the river Roding, and the reservoir, or main outfall, is constructed on lands in Barking parish, on the west side of the mouth of Barking Creek, and covers an area of nearly 10 acres, to which an addition of from 6 to 7 acres of reservoir space was made in 1887-9, when engine houses and settling tanks &c. were constructed at a cost of about £500,000: the reservoir, formed of brick, with a stone flooring, and resting on foundations of concrete 20 feet deep, is divided into four compartments, and will hold 39,000,000 gallons of sewage, the whole of which is here precipitated by chemical means; the effluent is discharged into the river, and the residue or sludge, after further treatment, is pumped into steamers and carried away to sea.

Eastbury House, about I mile from Barking, is an ancient and very spacious gabled mansion of brick in the Domestic Tudor style; the buildings surround three sides of a quadrangle, and include an octagonal tower rising above the roofs, and a tall stack of curiously-decorated chimneys; the mullioned windows are retained, but the interior has been modernised; this house is connected by tradition with the Gunpowder Plot, some accounts designating it as a meeting place of the conspirators and others as the residence of Lord Monteagle; it is now used as a farm house; the estate on which it stands belongs to the Sterry family.

The manor of Barking, which is paramount all over the hundred, remained in the Crown till James I. sold it to Sir Thomas Fanshawe; since then it has been in the families of Humphrey and Gore; it was purchased of the latter by Smart Lethicullier esq. and is now the property of Sir Edward Hulse bart, a descendant of Mary, the last heiress of the Lethicullier family.

The principal landowners are the Marquess of Salisbury K.G., P.C. and Sir Edward Hulse bart. of Breamore House, Salisbury.

The parish contains 3,723 acres of land and 4A. 3R. 34P. of water; rateable value, 89,799. The population of the entire parish in 1881 was 16,848. The population of Barking ward and town in 1881 was 9,203.

Rippleside consists of a number of scattered farms, ex-

The Moze register of baptisms lates from 1548; burials, 1556, and marriages, 1559; the lea mount registers of baptisms and burials date from 1564, the marrages, 1567. The living is a rectory, tithes comnormal at 1755, with residence and 46 acres of glebs, in the art of the key. G. P. Matthews, and held since 1867 by the Rev. John Cooper M.A. late fellow and aub-warden of Wadham Cologe, Oxford. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Governors of Guy's Hospital, London, who are lords of the manor, and Mrs. Hamilton are the chief landowners. ancient manor of Moze dates from the time of Edward the Confessor, when it belonged to Levesin, a Saxon: it was eventually merged into the neighbouring possessions of the Earls of Oxford, and has remained with the successive owners of Beaumont up to the present time: salt works existed here at the time of the Norman survey. Traces of the "Old Hall" still exist in a field which retains that name about a quarter of a mile south of the present manor house, or "New Hali:" this latter is a fine specimen of Domestic architecture, and was probably erected between the years 1512 and 1551: it is now in the occupation of Arthur Henry Stanford esq. The soil is loamy and clay; and the subsoil principally clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, clover and beans. Much of what was once a large tract of marsh land is now under cultivation. The area of the united parishes is 3,058 acres of land and 221 of water; rateable value, £3,188; the population in 1881 was 430.

Moze (or Mose) is about a mile and a half north-east.

BELCHAMP (or BEAUCHAMP) ST. PAUL (so called because it was given by King Athelstan, in 930, to the Cathedral of St. Paul), is a village and parish, 7 miles north-west from Sudbury and 3 south-east from Clare station on the Sudbury and Haverhill branch of the Great Eastern railway, in the Northern division of the county, Hinckford hundred North Hinckford petty sessional division, Sudbury union and county court district and in the rural deanery of Yeldham, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans, church of St. Andrew is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: in the chancel is a very fine brass, which on close examination appears to consist of the remains of two brasses arranged on one stone, the inscription runs:—"Here lieth the Bodie of Elizabeth, one of ye daughters and co-hiress of Edward Belt late of Cornard esq. first maried (sic) to John Buchenham esq. by whom she had Edward yet living and Dorothy deceased, and after married to Wm. Golding, by whom she had Edward and Elizabeth deceased and Margery and Mary yet living, obiit. xx. Maii 1591;" although the inscription is to a lady, the effigy is that of a gentleman and the figures of the children on the slab do not agree with the number given in the inscription: at the back of the sedilia are two lozenge shaped stones which contain brass shields charged with the arms of Buckingham and Golding, from which it would seem that the monument of Mrs. Elizabeth Golding was a raised tomb, and that these lozenges are the remains of two side panels; the top stone had probably the inscription given above with the figure of a lady now lost, three shields and two groups of children, the issue of her two marriages; the other raised tomb was probably to William Golding esq. whose figure remains, with his one son and three daughters whose figures are given on this slab: the church was thoroughly restored and re-seated in the year The living The register dates from the year 1538.

BRAINTREE and BOCKING with HIGH GARRETT.

BRAINTREE and BOCKING, though distinct parishes, form one continuous town, extending for a mile on the road between Chelmsford and Halstead, on the rivers Blackwater and Podsbrook, with a united population in 1881 of 8,640; in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Hinckford, petty sessional division of Hinckford south (Braintree bench), union and county court district of Braintree, rural deanery of Braintree, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The town is governed by a Local Board of nine members, formed July 16, 1850, under the "Public Health Act, 1848" (11 & 12 Vict. c. 63).

Braintree is situated on rising ground on the riven Brain or Podsbrook, 14 miles north-west from Maldon, 8 east from Dunmow, 171 east from Bishop's Stortford, 7 south-by-west from Halstead, 8 north-north-west from Witham, 12 northby-east from Chelmsford, 15 west-by-south from Colchester and 44½ from London, or 40½ by road; the town is clean, well paved, lighted with gas by a company, and well supplied with water from an artesian well near the Notley road, whence it is conveyed through pipes to a high service tank in the centre of the town: the drainage and water supply, completed in 1856, cost about £9,000; and in 1888 a new artesian well was sunk and new machinery erected at a cost of £3,100: the works are now in duplicate: the sewage of the town is utilized by application to 40 acres of land at the south end of the town.

The Maldon, Witham and Braintree railway, a single line completed to Braintree in 1848, has a station here, and was extended in 1861 to Bishop's Stortford, affording communication at Witham with the main line of the Great Eastern railway from London to Colchester and Ipswich and at Bishop's Stortford with that to Cambridge.

The church of St. Michael, which stands near the centre of the town, is an edifice of flint and stone in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel with aisles and a vestry on the north side, nave of three bays, with clerestory, north and south porches and an Early English tower with lofty octagonal shingled spire containing a clock, 6 modern bells and a sanctus bell in a cot: the turret staircase leading to the rood-loft remains: the east window is a memorial, completed in 1869, to Richard Lacey esq.: two memorial windows were placed in the south chapel by Miss Wakeham, of Marshalls, Braintree, in 1886, and another in 1889, by Miss Kenworthy, to her mother: an inscription on the south side of the tomb states that the Rev. Samuel Collins, many years vicar of this church, died May 2, 1667, and was buried here: in the chancel is a mural monument inscribed to John Hawkins esq. alderman of London in 1626, who died in 1633: the church plate includes two chalices and a silver spoon, inscribed "Braintary," all dated 1616, a flagon, 1711, and a paten, 1724: in the exterior wall of the chancel is a brass with the following inscription :- "This grave was ordered to be set

From the number of British and Roman coins, pottery and ther reles constantly being found here, or in its immediate brinty, it is conjectured that Braintree was successively a Brush and a Roman station, and it is pretty certain that the Roman road from Canadodunum (Colchester) to Verulawas (S. Albans) passed through it: it was constituted a hartet town in the time of King John, and from its station on the route of pilgrims to the shrines of St. Elaurel, at Bury, in Suffolk, and Our Lady of Walsingham, in Norfolk, became at an early period a place of some consequence; subsequently the Flemings, fleeing from the persecution of the Duke of Alva (1567-73), established the wooden manufacture here; this has now however disappeared, and has been succeeded by the silk and crape manufacture, which employs a large number of its population; brushes and cocoa-nut fibre mat and matting are also made here: here are also the banking establishments of Messrs. Sparrow and Co. and of the London and County lank, several maltings and breweries and on the rivers raneus com mills; the town has two good hotels.

on the main line of the Great Eastern railway, 6 miles west from Billericay, 6 north-east from Romford, 11 south-west from Chelmsford and 18 from London; it is the head of a county court district and petty sessional division, in the Mid division of the county, civil parish of South Weald, Billericay union, rural deanery of Barstable, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans.

Brentwood, originally Burntwood, is described in Morant's History of Essex as being the chief hamlet in the parish of South Weald; the word "weald" signifying "wood." The early history of Brentwood is very obscure, but the first trustworthy account of its early history seems to be that which connects it with Waltham Abbey; which monastery being bestowed by Edward the Confessor on Earl Harold, that nobleman endowed it with seventeen lordships, one of which was South Weald and its hamlets: on the death of Harold, the Conqueror seized the private lands of Harold and apportioned them among his followers; by this distribution Brentwood passed to the line of De-Wochendon, a descendant Brentwood passed to the line of De-wochendon, clamberlain to Henry II. in the early part of this monarch's reign, bestowed his manor of Brentwood on the Abbey of St. Osyth at Chich, which had then been founded by Richard de Belmeis, Bishop of the state of London, some time previous to 1118, and the endowment or grant was confirmed by the King. In the year 1221 a chapel was built at Brentwood at the request of David, abbot of St. Osyth and with the consent of the Bishop of London, Richard Parsons, of Weald and the Abbey and Convent of Waltham: it was dedicated to St. Thomas the Martyr, in honour of Thomas-A-Becket: the Convent presented the chaplain, whose perquisites arose from gifts by travellers on the road and such as came out of devotion to St. Thomas, whence a gate on the highway from Ongar, through which the devotees passed, was called Pilgrim's Hatch, and the locality bears the name to his day; a portion of this chapel is now standing in the High street, about midway on the south side: in the time of Stephen the hamlet had grown so large and important that a grant was made to it of a market and two fairs, to be holden in July and October: upon the dissolution of the monastery in 1559, Henry VIII. granted the lands to Thomas Lord Cromwell, upon whose attainder the lands to Thomas Lord Cromwell, upon whose attainder it passed once more into the hands of the King, and was by him (in 1549) granted to the Lady Anne of Cleves, his divorced wife: it subsequently passed to Sir Anthony Browne and became thence an integral part of the manor of South Weald and so continues. The assizes were holden in Brentwood until the time of George I. when the more central position of Chelmsford occasioned their removal to that town.

The town was re-sewered, with an outfall at Harold Wood in 1884, it is lighted with gas from works the property of the Brentwood Gas Co. and supplied with water from the South Essex Water Works, at Grays, about 14 miles south, with a reservoir at Warley, 4 miles distant.

The church of St. Thomas the Martyr (situated at a short distance to the east of the ancient chapel of St. Osyth), which served as the parish church until 1835, has been entirely demolished, and the present building, consecrated in April, 1883, was erected, at a cost up to that date of over £14,000; it is a structure of flint with stone dressings, in the Early English style, from designs by Mr. Ernest Lee, architect, and consists of chancel, nave, with clerestory, aisles and a tower on the north side with spire, added in 1886, at a cost of over £4,000, and containing a clock with two dials, and a peal of 8 bells, given as a memorial to the late Rev. Charles Almeric Belli M.A. vicar of South Weald 1823-77: the lower stage of the tower forms a porch; there are 1,050 sittings. The register for marriages and baptisms dates from 1695; burials, 1741. The living is a vicarage, Brentwood is a town and parish, pleasantly situated on a tithe rent-charge £100, net yearly value £280, including 17 hill, surrounded by picturesque scenery, and on the high road from London to Chelmsford and Colchester, with a station H. Tower esq. of Weald Hall, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Charles Grinstead M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. A vicarage house, situated in the Ingrave road, was erected in the year 1878.

The Catholic Church, dedicated to the Sacred Heart and St. Helen, is an edifice in the Gothic style, erected in 1860 and 1861, at a cost of $\int 2.500$, raised by subscription; it has a lofty spire and several stained windows. There are also schools and a convent in connection with this church and a small orphanage for boys, endowed by Helen Ann, Countess Tasker, of Middleton Hall, Shenfield, who died in 1887

The Congregational chapel, in New road, was built in 1847 and enlarged and rebenched in 1872, at a cost of £1,000; a fine organ has been since added, at a cost of about £500, and in 1873 a school was built at a cost of about 5.500. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels in Warley road and King's road, and a meeting room for The Brethren on Primrose hill. The Dissenting Mission Hall, in Back street, will hold about 250 persons, and is also used for temperance meetings. meetings meetings.

Gittan's charity of £1, left in 1711, is derived from land situated at Pilgrim's Hatch, and supplies 1s. each to 20 poor people yearly. Massa's charity of £150, left in 1771, produces £4 16s. and is for coals. Martin's charity of £1.000 Consols produces £30 yearly, and is for coals or wood. Newman's charities of £50, £115 and £121, produce £8 12s. 2d. yearly, which is distributed in various ways to the poor. Mr. Robert Cross left in 1879 £500, now £2\frac{2}{2} per Cents. the interest of which is divided yearly amongst six poor people (families or widows) residing in Brentwood or the immediate vicinity. immediate vicinity.

The Town Hall, built in 1864, is situated in High street, and has an illuminated clock: it contains committee rooms and a large hall, 74 feet long by 37 feet wide, well adapted for public meetings, lectures, balls and concerts, which will

bas its head quarters at the Regiment, numbering 97 men, has its head quarters at the Drill Hall, Ongar road, a commodious and substantial edifice of brick, erected in 1886, at a cost of £2,000.

The County Lunatic Asylum stands on an eminence, about three-quarters of a mile from the Brentwood station, and is an Elizabethan building, richly decorated: it was opened in 1853, and in 1864 three additional blocks of buildings were erected for 75 more patients and in 1871 another block was added for 250 female patients, the whole available now for about 800 patients; the wards are spacious and airy, many commanding an extensive prospect, and the building is approached from the Warley road by a carriage drive: there are upwards of 130 acres of land connected with the asylum, including the Brentwood Hall estate, purchased in 1873, part of which is appropriated as a cemetery and the remainder used as a farm and kitchen-garden and pleasure grounds; the farm and garden being cultivated by the patients under the superintendence of attendants.

The Young Men's Christian Association has premises in the New road

Brickmaking and brewing are carried on here. Fairs are held here on October 16th and 17th.

There is a monument at the top of the High street, erected by public subscription in 1861 to William Hunter, a Protestant martyr and a native of Brentwood, who at the early age of 19 was burned near this spot by order of Bishop Bonner, in the reign of Queen Mary, March 26th, 1555.

The area is 459 acres; rateable value, £19,174; the population in 1881 was 4,653, including 716 in the Hackney Union Training School and 110 in the London School Board Industrial School.

The Endowed Free Grammar School was founded & endowed by Sir Anthony Browne kt. & Dame Joan his wife, in the reigns of King Philip & Queen Mary & of Queen Elizabeth; this Sir Anthony Browne, serjeant-at-law at the time of the foundation, July 5, 1557, became afterwards, in 1558, Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas; on the death of Queen Mary he was removed, but Queen Elizabeth is said to have entertained so high an opinion of his talents. that she permitted him to retain the office of judge so long as he lived; he died May 6, 1567 & was buried at South Weald church. A year subsequent to the founda-tion of the school, Sir Anthony & his wife built & endowed almshouses for five poor persons of the parish of South Weald & the hamlets of Brentwood & Brook Street, charging certain estates in Dagenham & elsewhere with their support & in part with the support of the school: the revenue arising from these estates in time amounted to nearly £1,500 a year, & a re-adjustment of the scheme on the termination of a Chancery suit in 1851 became necessary. The school is conducted under a scheme from the endowed school commissioners, & is controlled by a body of governors, of whom some act ex-officio, others body of governors, or whom some acc exonico, others being representative & the remainder co-optative. The parishes comprised within the limits prescribed by the founders are:—South Weald, Great & Little Warley, Cranham, Childerditch, Doddinghurst, East & WestHorndon, Ingrave, Hutton, Mountnessing, Shenfield, Kelvedon, Lander & Little Barntond Beautword Narastroph & Illementer Hatch, Romford, Brentwood, Navestock & Upminster. BRIGHTLINGSEA is a town and parish, and as the termination of the name denotes, was at one time an island, and it is still nearly surrounded by the river Coine and its crees, baring only one road to connect it with the mainland, in the North Eastern division of the county, Lexden and Winstree petty sessional division, Tendring hundred and amon, Colchester county court district, and in the runi denery of St. Osyth, archdeaconry of Colchester and drose of St. Albans. The town is situated near the water the mouth of the Colne and is about of miles from Losion, 6 south-east from Wivenhoe and to south-east from Cochester: it is connected with the Great Eastern mass by a branch line from Wivenhoe. Brightlingsea is a member of the Cinque Port of Sandwich and as such is entited to elect annually a deputy-mayor, but this ancient definition has been in abeyance since 1804: from the same connection the parish derives various peculiar rights and invieges, such as exemption from county rates, from serice on juries and from militia service. Brightlingsa has from time immemorial been noted for its oysters, an entenare cultivation of which is carried on, partly under the Corporation of Colchester and partly by private enter-prox: this industry employs a large fleet of smacks, which, in the water months are chiefly occupied in the sprat fabory: Brightlingsea is also becoming an important yacht-ing station, upwards of 100 yachts being laid up here for ther minur quarters, and there is a considerable amount of ship and beat building. The town is supplied with gas and water by two companies. A fair is held on St. Swithin's dry, or the Thursday before. The church of All Saints sands about a mile and a half north of the town and is, in the words of Morant, "a lofty and stately structure" of nice and flint, consisting of chancel, north and south chapels and v stry, south porch, nave of five bays, aisles an l a restern tower of fine proportions, with large buttresses. et angle-wise and decorated with 32 niches: it is finished with pinnacles, and has a height, including these, of over 100 fet, forming a conspicuous sea mark: the ringing funder presents some curious features; in the beliry are frames for z or 6 bells, but only one of the ancient peal, dataz from about A.D. 1450, now remains; there is also a mai, sactus bell unhung, and is said to be the only one remaking in the county: in 1889 a peal of 10 tubular bells was presented by M. Bayard Brown esq. an American gentleman The ling Brightlingsea in his steam yacht "Valfreyia:" the church is chiefly Perpendicular, but three of the five bays of the anales dividing the nave from the aisles are Decorated and there are also remains of the Early English style, and oe feature supposed to be either Early Norman or Saxon: the denstory has disappeared, having, together with the exami roof, fallen down in 1814: there are on the floor brases with efficies, of which only one retains its inscription, but, with two exceptions, they can be identified as being the mounts of John Heriffe, ob. 1496, and his three wives; Mary Benffe, ob. 1505; Margaret Beriffe, ob. 1514; John Benffe, ob. 1321; and Mary and Alice, his wives; William Briffe and Joan, his wife, ob. 1527; John Beriffe, ob. 1542, and William Beriffe, 1578; the two remaining brasses not tien field are those of two female figures, c. 1542, inserted in the room of two priests' brasses on a bracket of the 14th century: there is also in the Lady Chapel a curiously inused stone slah, which would appear to have been originally the overing of a tomb, but afterwards perhaps the mensa of an altar: in the chancel is an elaborate and costly monument to Nicholas Magens esq. who died in 1767: another peculiar leature of the church is the number of niches that remain in the walls and columns: one contains a small mutilated fairs, supposed to be that of St. Nicholas: a series of 87 snall memorial tablets have been recently erected to parishsees lost at sea within the last 14 years. This church was a seally rich in ecclesiastical ornaments, vestments &c. of when a catalogue is extant: the church plate comprises two sher chalices, both of 1560: the church was carefully restored in 1878, when an organ was erected at the expense of F. C. Capel esq. of Wilmington, Kent, in memory of his father, the late J. B. Capel esq. of North Cray, Bexley: the east window was filled with stained glass in 1881, in part as a memorial to the late Mrs. J. C. Barnard, of Great Dunmow, who died 6 June, 1881. The register dates from the year 1897. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge 140, net yearly value £250, including 31 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Arthur Pertwee M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. St. James's chapel-of-ease, situated in the middle of the town and erected in 1837, is a large and plain building of brick, with a western turret containing one small bell, removed from the church of All Saints, and a clock, placed in 1887 by public subscription: there are sittings for 700 people. Here are Wesleyan, Free Methodist, Congregational and Swe lenborgian places of worship. The charities comprise £2 12s, yearly for the poor, left in the year 1632 by John Sympson, rector of St. Olave, Hart street, London, and a native of this places and 6.6 a year for the repair of by John Sympson, rector of St. Olave, Hart street, London, and a native of this place, and £6 a year for the repair of the parish church, left by the late Miss Jolly, of Brightlingsea. Edward Westwood and George Bradley esqrs. are lords of the manor of Brightlingsea and John Bateman esq. J.P. of the manor of Moverons. The Earl of Onslow and John Bateman esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. soil is gravelly and sandy loam; subsoil, sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,873 acres of land and 682 tidal-water and foreshore; rateable value, £9,572; the population in 1881 was 3,252.

EAST END GREEN and HURST GREEN are parts of the parish.

CINDERY ISLANDS are two narrow islands in the river Colne, about 1 mile long.

H. Bygrave, G. Richardson, C. Fitch Kemp, J. Y. Johnson and the town and many men are employed in the trade, as well as in catching herrings and other fish; there is also good business carried on in boat, barge and shipbuilding, sail making an equable temperature so essential to the growth of the oyster. The Burnham Company consists of John James Hawkins, Mrs. Addison, John Rogers and Mrs. V The river is crossed by means of ferry boats. The town is lighted with gas by a company and supplied with water pumped from a well into a water tower, erected 1887, near the church, and the property of the Rural Sanitary Authority. The church of St. Mary, situated about 1 mile north of the town, is a building of stone and flint in the Late Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave of six bays with clerestory, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, dated 1673, the lower part of the tower being used as a vestry: the tower was once the loftiest in this part of the country, and formed a beacon for vessels at sea, but having been blown down many years ago it was rebuilt at a lower elevation: there is an ancient font in the Early Norman style, and a mural tablet of marble to the family of Middleton, 1680: the building was restored and reseated with open seats in 1874; and in the same year a stained east window was erected by the late W. Auger esq. in memory of his parents; there are also five other stained memorial windows, one being a memorial to Emily and Elizabeth, the daughters of J. Rogers esq. of Hill House: in 1877 the chancel and sacrarium were restored and a handsome stone pulpit, lectern and reading desk were added, the cost of which was defrayed by subscription as a tribute of respect to the memory of W. Auger esq.: the churchyard was enlarged in 1867, the new portion being surrounded by a wall. The In 1507, the new portion being surrounded by a wall. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value from tithe rent-charge £558, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1881 by the Rev. James Lewin Govett. There is a Congregational chapel, built in 1861, a Baptist chapel, enlarged in 1861, Catholic Apostolic and Primitive Methodist chapels and a working men's reading room. A tower, with an illuminated one war clock was ing room. A tower, with an illuminated quarter clock, was erected as an addition to the school in High street in 1877, erected as an addition to the school in High street in 1877, in memory of Laban Sweeting esq. at a cost of £330. The Public Hall, erected in 1887, is a spacious edifice of brick and stone and will seat 500 persons. The river Crouch and its tributary, the Roach, are famous for oyster beds, the produce of which is exported to Ostend, Belgium and Dunkirk, the oyster companies at Whitstable being supplied with the surplus oysters; these grounds are peculiarly suited for this purpose, which is attributed to the geological nature of the river beds and their sheltered position main-employed here; there is a custom-house, a coastguard sta-tion and a convenient quay. Sir Henry B. P. St. John Mild-may bart. of Dogmersheld Park, Winchfield, Hants, who is lord of the manor, the Rev. Charles Leigh, John Page, John lord of the manor, the Kev. Charles Leigh, John Page, John Rogers and James Gale esqrs. and Captain Tufnell are the principal landowners. The soil in the higher part of the parish is a light loam; subsoil, gravel; the marshes are of a clayey nature and are fine grazing land; the arable land is in a high state of production and is, generally speaking, most productive: the crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans, and the productive state and early controlled the production and is generally speaking. peas, turnips, mangold wurtzel and seeds and cucumbers are grown for the London market. The area of the parish is 5,523 acres, including the water bounds of 1,047 acres; rateable value, £8,572; the population in 1881 was 2,130.

borough of West Ham, hundred of Becontree, county court district of Bow, rural deanery of Barking, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans; it is also in the Eastern Metropolitan Postal district and within the jurisdiction of the Central criminal court and of the Metropolitan police. The Great Eastern railway has three stations within the district: the river Lee flows on the west to the Thames. Holy Trinity ecclesiastical parish was formed March 6, 1868, from the parishes of West Ham and Plaistow: the church of Holy Trinity, situated in the Barking road, is a structure of brick, chiefly in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower with pinnacles and spire, containing a clock and 6 bells: there are 1,100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1868. living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from Ecclesiastical Commissioners £200, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chance'lor, and held since 1873 by the Rev. John Russell B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. St. Luke's, Victoria docks, is an ecclesiastical parish formed Oct. 29, 1875, from that of West Ham: the church, erected in 1374, at a cost of £17,000, is a structure of brick in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles and a western porch; a wrought iron chancel-screen and font cover have lately (1890) been added: there are sittings for 1,000 persons. The register added: there are sittings for 1,000 persons. The register dates from the year 1874. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners £ 260, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1382 by the Rev. Jonathan Charles Buckley, of Durham University. St. Gabriel's is an ecclesiastical parish formed August 22, 1879, from the parishes of West Ham and St. Mary and St. Andrew, Plaistow: the church is a plain building of brick, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and north aisle, with porch: there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1879. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £200, including globe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Leighton Mayo Dalton M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. St. Barnabas' Mission church is in Eastwood road, and St. Matthew's Mission church in Ethel road. There is a Catholic chapel dedicated to St. Margaret and All Saints, with attached schools, Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Free Methodist and Presbyterian chapels, and a place of worship for the Peculiar People. The industries in the district are extensive; there are chemical manufactorie; on the banks of the Thames and large creosote works and iron shipbuilding yards. The London and India Docks Joint Committee have large docks here. The Victoria (London) docks in Plaistow Marsh, designed for ships of the largest burthen, were constructed in 1855 and cover an area of 200 acres, with an entrance lock 325 feet long by 80 feet wide, and CANNING Town is a populous district, and now a ward with- with nearly 28 feet depth at Trinity high water: a branch in the new municipal and county borough of West Ham, of Her Majesty's Customs is established here and the Dock and also within the Southern division of the Parliamentary company transact their business under the same roof: the company transact their business under the same roof: the Victoria Dock pier is at the entrance.

The Royal Albert Docks, opened in 1880 by the Duke of Connaught, on behalf of H.M. the Queen, consist of a prolongation in an easterly direction of the Victoria Docks, with which they are connected by a cut 80 feet wide: the whole form a magnificent dock 23 miles long and have a water area of 175 acres: these docks, in addition to graving docks, contain dry docks with a length of 510 feet and 430 feet respectively: the entrance is at Galleons Reach, below Woolwich, by the use of which vessels save about 4 miles of river navigation: this entrance is constructed at the widest part of the river and is protected by two guiding jettles leading into the entrance lock; the lock is about 800 feet long over all and 80 feet wide, and has three pairs of wrought iron gates: the distance between the extreme gates is 550 feet, with a depth of 30 feet of water over the cills of the gates at Trinity high water mark: the lock is thus capable of admitting not only the largest sea-going merchant vessels utloat, but any of the ironclads of the British navy: the locks are lighted through at by the electric light. In July, 1836, extension works at the eastern end of these docks were opened for traffic: these consist of an enlargement of the Galleons basin from 12 to 15\frac{1}{2} acres; a new entrance from the Thames (with a lock running parall-! with the existing lock, 550 feet long by 80 feet wide and with a depth of 36 feet on the cill at Trinity high water), and of a river wharf, stretching from the entrance 1,120 feet down the Thames, with a depth alongside of 27 feet at low water and a custom house and railway station abutting upon the wharf: the railway lines are continued along this wharf and the largest vessels will be able to lie there at any time of the tide to coal or to take in cargo, or embark or disembark passengers: coasters and continental steamers will also be able to avail themselves of it, in connection with the ocean of these works was passed on the right of May, 1884.

The branch hospital, in connection with the Scaman's Hospital at Greenwich, situated at the Albert and Victoria docks, the foundation stone of which was laid June 15, 1889, by Prince George of Wales, was opened 24th June, 1890, by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales: the building, erected at a cost of £5,000, is nearly 3 miles from any other hospital, and contains 14 beds and has a large out-patient department; it is intended to supply the needs of sailors chiefly in the vicinity of the docks and Canning Town.

The area of Holy Trinity parish is 433 acres; the population in 1881 was—Holy Trinity, 13.882; St. Gabriel's, 5,297; St. Luke's, 16,821.

CASTLE HEDINGHAM, anciently a market town, derived its name from the castle erected here in Norman times and for many years held by the de Veres, Earls of Oxford: it is a village and parish, situated on the east bank of the river Colne, at the junction of the roads from Sudbury, Haverhill and Braintree, with a station on the Colne Valley railway, 5 miles north-by-west from Halstead, 7 south-west from Sudbury, 49 from London by road and 583 by rail, in the Northern division of the county, Hinckford hundred, North Hinckford petty sessional division, Halstead union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Hedingham, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The village is lighted with gas. The church, assigned by repute to St. Nicholas, is an ancient battlemented edifice of brick and stone, partly in the Norman and partly in the Early English style, and is supposed, from the heraldic badges of the de Veres appearing on various CHADWELL ST. MARY, which takes its name from a well dedicated to St. Chad, who is said to have baptised his converts here and built a church at Tilbury, is a parish on the road from Grays to Tilbury, 2 miles north from Tilbury Fort and 22 from London, in the South Eastern division of the county, Barstable hundred, Orsett union and petty sessional division, Gravesend county court district, and in the rural deanery of Orsett, archideaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans: the village of Chadwell lies high on one of the finest gravel beds in the kingdom, above the chalk range: Tilbury Fort is partly and Tilbury station wholly in this parish. The church of St. Mary is a building of flint faced with a soft white stone, and consists of chancel, nave and an embattled western tower, of flint and rubble, containing 3 bells, dated respectively 1628, 1763 and 1634: though much altered during the 14th and 15th centuries, this church yet retains evidence in its doorways and one of the windows of its Norman origin; the existing style of the building is chiefly Decorated, and this has been followed in renewing the windows of the nave, which is separated from the chancel by a dwarf screen of oak: the late Decorated east window of three lights has flowing tracery, and has been filled with stained glass at the cost of Mr. Seabrook, late of Grays, and there are three other stained windows: the chancel generally dates from the 14th century, retaining a sedilia and a piscina with rose basin: there is a mural tablet to the Rev. William Herringham B.D. a former rector of this parish and Prebendary of St. Paul's, who died Feb. 22, 1819; and another to Thomas Noble Elwyn, of Albemarle street, London, surgeon, who died Dec. 4, 1848, and his relict, Elizabeth: there is also one small brass under the communion table: the font is modern: the church was communion table: the font is modern: the church was was 587.

The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £480, with residence and 40 acres of glebe, in the gift of Stephen Fortescue esq. of Gainsborough House, Shepherd's Bush, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Algernon Emerick Clementi-Smith M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. Near the Tilbury docks in this parish is a temporary church, erected in 1883; the district has been in charge since 1822 of the Rev. Francis Clement Naish, who resides at 9 The Terrace, Gravesend. The deep water docks of the East and West India Dock Company, described under West Tilbury, are situated in this parish. Here are some interesting and well-known excavations in the chalk traditionally known as "Cunobelin's Gold Mines," from a British prince of that name, who distinguished himself by his resistance to the invading Romans; and by others called "Daneholes," from places of refuge from the Danes; similar caverns exist at Little Thurrock, and there are existing evidences of intercommunication between the several retreats, local tradition orient asserting that a subterranean gallery extends to Orsett. George Henry Errington esq. of Merry Oak, Southampton, and his brother the Rev. John L. Errington M.A. rector of Midgham, near Reading, Berks, are the principal landowners and lords of the manor of Chadwell as well as of Biggin, another manor in this parish: the other principal landowner is Champion Branfill Russell esq. J.P. of Stubbers, near Romford. The soil is light; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 1,869 acres chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 1,869 acres of land and 150 of water, the marshes reaching to the Thames; rateable value, £11,229; the population in 1881

CHELMSFORD.

CHELMSFORD is a municipal borough, market and union town, the meeting place of the County Council of Essex, and head of a petty sessional division and county court district, with a station on the Great Eastern railway; it is situated at the confluence of the rivers Chelmer, Can and Wid, and on the great road from London through Colchester into Suffolk, with roads branching to Ongar, Dunmow, Braintree, Maldon and Rochford; 29 miles from London, 9 south-west from Witham, 22 south-west from Colchester, 11 south-west from Witham, 22 south-west from Coicnester, 11 south-west from Braintree, 11½ north-east from Brentwood, 10 west from Maldon, 38½ from Ipswich and 56½ from Bury St. Edmunds. In Domesday Book it is variously called "Celmeresfort" and "Celmersforde" and named in many ancient records, "Chelmereforde," "Chelmesford" and "Chelmsford;" the name is, however, evidently a contraction of Chelmer's-ford, from the ford over the river Chelmestory before bridges were built agrees it. Chelmsford is Chelmer before bridges were built across it. Chelmsford is the capital of the Mid division of the county, in the hundred and rural deanery of its own name, Essex archdeaconry and St. Albans diocese.

Under an order of the Local Government Board, dated 25th March, 1889, two outlying portions of the parish were added to the parishes of Broomfield and Writtle.

The town received a charter of incorporation 19th Sept. 1889, and is now governed by a mayor, 6 aldermen and 18 councillors, who also act as the urban sanitary authority. The borough is divided, for municipal purposes, into north and south wards.

The town, in conjunction with Springfield, is in three divisions, all connected by good bridges—Chelmsford bridge, between and at the confluence of the rivers Chelmer and Can: Moulsham bridge on the south side of the Can, Springfield bridge on the north side of the Chelmer; an iron bridge over the Chelmer, to replace one washed away by the flood of August, 1888, was erected in 1890, from designs by the county surveyor, at a cost of £2,104: the town is lighted with gas supplied by a company empowered by provisional order under the Gas and Waterworks Facilities Act of 1870, whose offices and works are at Springfield wharf; but a whose offices and works are at Springheid wharf, dut a contract for 5 years has been entered into by the Corporation with Messrs. Crompton and Co. Limited, for lighting the borough by electricity, all the wires for which are run over-head from standards 50 to 60 yards apart; there are 18 arc lamps in the three main streets and 200 incandescent lamps for other thoroughfares: the lights were switched on for the first time April 14, 1890.

The waterworks, in Mildmay road, belong to the Corporation, who supply the town and the parish of Widford with hard and soft water procured from two sources, viz. an hard and soft water procured from two sources, viz. an artesian well at the works, 600 feet deep, and a spring near the railway, named "Burgess Well;" the water is conveyed from this well by gravitation to a reservoir capable of containing 112,000 gallons, which also supplies two conduits in the town; a further supply has been obtained from the Admiral's Park Spring, and a water tower and reservoir for 250,000 gallons constructed. At Long Stomps there is a high level reservoir holding 120,000 gallons.

The town sewers are now, for the purpose of irrigation, under the control of the Corporation; a main sewer conveys the town sewage and that of Widford combined, by gravitation to Brook end. Springfield, receiving in its course the tion to Brook end, Springfield, receiving in its course the sewage of part of Springfield and Great Baddow. A farm of about 110 acres has been purchased at Brook end and the combined sewage of the four parishes is then disposed of by irrigation and filtration.

According to Camden, Chelmsford corresponds to the Roman station Cancenium, but it is now generally supposed to be identical with Casaromagus, a station in the direct road from London to Colchester. In the year 1847 a Roman villa of considerable extent was discovered on land immediately abutting upon the supposed ancient road and from time to time numerous Roman relics have been found. the reign of Henry I. Maurice, Bishop of London, in which see Chelmsford had remained since the reign of Edward the Confessor, built the first bridge over the Can. The town continued to form part of the possessions of the Bishops of London down to the time of Henry VIII. when, in 1545, the town and mansion were conveyed by Bishop Bonner and in 1563 granted by Queen Elizabeth to Thomas Mildmay esq. in whose family the manor and a portion of the lands still remain; no mention is made of its market until in the early part of the reign of King John, when a charter for a weekly market was procured as well as a royal licence for the annual fairs; the fairs are now abolished.

In some Parliamentary records this town is called a borough and by writ dated 18 Aug. 11 Edw. III. (1337), four persons were summoned from this town to attend the Parliament holden at Westminster in that year, but they are not returned as having done so; in a statute of Henry VI. relating to weights and measures, Chelmsford is also named as the shire town.

The church of St. Mary, a building of rubble, flint and some red brick, was erected (according to an old inscription upon the church, now destroyed) in the year 1424, no doubt upon the foundation of a former church, and is an edifice in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with aisles, the rerpendicular style, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, north transept, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 10 bells, dating variously from 1723 to 1822, the tenor weighing 22 cwt.: in the year 1800 the roof of the nave fell in, destroying the nave and the greater portion of the west and south aisles, which were then rebuilt in the bastard style of Gothic at that time prevailing and anounthered with earth south and that time prevailing and encumbered with north, south and west galleries: in the year 1857, however, the western gallery was cleared away, the fine old tower thrown open and the church reseated: in 1873 a second north aisle with transept was built and the two remaining galleries removed; and in 1872 a new pulpit, of grey marble and granite, with white marble figures, presented by Robert W. Hanbury esq. of Ilam Hall, Derbyshire and now M.P. for Preston, in memory of his wife; the south porch, a fine specimen of the Perpendicular period, was restored by F. Chancellor esq. in 1882: the chancel was improved in 1878 by the addition of a clerestory and a new stained east window erected to the memory of the Hon. Elizabeth (Shaw-Lefevre), wife of Capt. Hervey G. St. John-Mildmay R.N. she died 23 Dec. 1867; in 1884 it was re-arranged, oak stalls and wrought iron screens introduced and new flooring laid down: there are several stained windows: the archdeacon of Essex holds his court in the church and until recently the archidiaconal records were kept in the room in the porch, but they are now removed: there are 1,200 sittings. The parish registers date from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £476, net yearly value £550, including glebe with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1880 by the Venerable Henry Frank Johnson Elsex. memory of the Hon. Elizabeth (Shaw-Lefevre), wife of Capt.

The Free Grammar School, Duke street, now (1890) being rebuilt, was founded in 1551 by a charter of Edward VI. who incorporated four persons by the name of governors of the possessions of the Free Grammar School of King Edward VI. in the parish of Chelmsford, to be succeeded by their next male heirs. The school has a yearly income of about £537 & under the scheme of the Endowed School Commissioners, 1873, was constituted a second grade school for the education of boys up to the age of 17: there are four exhibitions exempting the holders, who are called "first-class foundation scholars," from the payment of fees; eight others, exempt from half the tuition fees, are called "second-class foundation scholars." The new buildings are intended to hold 175 boys; the present number is 140. Philemon Holland M.A., M.D. fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, an eminent translator of 16th century, born in Chelmsford in 1551 & Sir Walter Mild-may, also born here in or about 1522, knighted 22nd Feb. 1546-7, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the time of Queen Elizabeth, & founder of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, Elizabeth, & founder of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, were both educated at this school, as also was the late Chief Justice Tindal. Governors, The Ven. the Archdeacon of Essex (chairman), Mr. W. W. Duffield, Mr. A. Durrant, Mr. J. T. Foster, Mr. C. H. Gray, Mr. R. C. Hanam, Mr. D. Kevan, Mr. Thomas Thompson, Mr. F. T. Veley, Mr. H. C. Wells, Mr. C. Williams & Mr. R. Woodhouse; Mr. Andrew Meggy, solicitor, 71 Duke street, Chelmsford, clerk to the governors; Frank William Rogers M.A. head master; William Bates Pimlott M.A. second master; A. J. Skinner B.A. W. H. Hewitt B.A. J. B. Keall & H. N. Newman, assistant masters he Essex Industrial school for destitute boys, Primrose

The Essex Industrial school for destitute boys, Primrose hill, was established in 1872: the cases admitted are those of a voluntary character & of boys unconvicted of crime sent under a magistrate's order, in pursuance to the Industrial Schools Act of 1866: the boy's time is divided between instruction in school & industrial labour, such as house & garden work, shoemaking, tailoring & paper bag making; the religious teaching is Protestant, but undenominational. The school was originally carried on in Baddow road, but in 1878 the council erected the present commodious & suitable premises; the site & surrounding area consists of about 11 acres. Applica-tions for admission should be addressed to F. Brittain Pash, Member of the Council & Manager, Chelmsford

GREAT CHESTERFORD is an ancient village and parish, situated on the banks of the Cam or Granta, on the borders of Cambridgeshire, and on the road from London to Newmarket, with a station on the Great Eastern (Cambridge) railway, 45 miles from London by road and 47½ by railway, 10 south from Cambridge and 4 north-west from Saffron Walden, in the Northern division of the county, Uttlesford hundred, Saffron Walden petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Saffron Walden, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The abandoned Chesterford and Newmarket railway crosses the parish. The church of All Saints is a spacious and lofty building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays with clerestory, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing a clock and 6 bells: in the south aisle is a brass figure of a lady, probably of the Holden family, who founded a chantry here in 1523 and another of John, 7th son of Thomas, baron Howard of Walden E.G. ob. 24 May, 1600; there is also a small brass to Mary Bales, ob. 1642, and in the nave one to George Felsted, ob. 1638: the east window retains two coats of arms and in the south aisle is a window partly filled with stained glass, by his widow and children, to the memory of Lord Charles Amelius Hervey D.D. vicar here 1839-80, who died 10 April, 1880: the remaining portion of the window contains stained glass subscribed for by the inhabitants of Great and Little Chesterford in 1887. The register dates from the year 1586. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of Little Chester-ford annexed, tithe rent-charge £150, net yearly value £212, including 302 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Bristol, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Edward Seymour Leveson Randolph B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There is a small Union chapel. Hill's charity, bridge. There is a small Union chaper. Hill's charity, arising from a sum of £19 left in 1459 by the Rev. Richard Hill, rector of this parish, and producing £76, is distributed yearly at Christmas. Chesterford was a Roman station, and derived its name from being a castrum, or camp, on the ford over the Granta, and was one of a chain of Roman forts extending from the Weald or wood of Essex to the Devil's Ditch in the fens near Newmarket: it is also affirmed, with great probability, to have been the site of the Roman Cambor tum; many coins, chiefly those of Caligula, Trajan and Constantine have been found in the borough fields, and in 1769 a pot, containing a quantity of fine specimens, was discovered, and in 1843 a very beautiful coin of Licinius; other relics of bronze, gold and brass have also been met with, besides a carved stone trough and some skeletons. Chesterford had formerly a market and holds a charter from Charles I. recognising the privileges recorded as belonging to it in Domesday Book. A fair is held on the 1st Friday in July. The Marquess of Bristol, who is lord of the manor, A fair is held on the 1st Friday in Major Edward Henry Greene-De-Préville, of Hinston Hall, Cambridgeshire, Mrs. Owen Edwards and J. T. Pilgrim esq. are the principal landowners. The tenure of copyhold land is by Borough English; under which, when a man dies, his estate descends to his youngest son or daughter, or youngest uncle or kinsman. The soil is principally light on the low lands and heavy on the hills; subsoil, chalk, but deeper on the high land. The crops are on the four-course system. CHIGNAL is a parish formed in March, 1888, from the previously separate parishes of CHIGNAL ST. JAMES and GRONAL SURALET, together with part of the parish of Waitle, the two former, however, still remaining ecclesiastically distinct, and being in the Mid division of the county, (beinstord hundred, union, petty sessional division and county court district and in the rural deanery of Chelms-lerd, archdescoury of Essex and diocese of St. Albans.

CHIGNAL St. JAMES, which is mentioned in the Domesday Surrer, lies on a small brook, about 3 miles north-west from Cheinsdord station. The church of St. James is a building of dat, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nare and western turret containing one bell. The register dates from the year 1724. The living is a rectory, with those of St. Mary and Mashbury annexed, yearly value from titherent-tharge £436, with 54 acres of glebe, in the gift of the trustees of Mrs. B. S. Barnes, and held since 1889 by the Ber. Augustus Brooke Warden Denniss.

CRIGNAL SHEALY (or LITTLE CHICKNAL, formerly cidd "Checkenhall Semeley," and also known at various times as "Chignal Simeley, Smele and Smethelea," as well as "Chignal Trenchfield," and "Brick Chignal") is situated 5 miles north-west from Chelmsford station. church of St. Nicholas, originally built more than 700 years 150, is a small editice of brick in the Early English style, coasting of chancel and nave and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing one bell; the chancel is considered to be a part of the old structure: the font, a major example, is entirely of brick. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a discharged rectory, gress yearly value fixo, with residence, in the gift of Major Thomas Jamer Spitty D.L., J.P. of Billericay, and held since gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Thomas Marsden M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge Thomas Marsden M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge and Diocesan Inspector of schools. The Ecclesiastical Com missioners, who are the impropriators, formerly received large revenues, but these are now greatly reduced. The church mission room at Grange hill will seat 200 persons. There is a small wooden room used as a Congregational chapel. There are three almshouses called "Coulson's," eracted in 1557 and rebuilt by public subscription in 1858; each occupant receives 6s. 8d. quarterly. The charities, amounting to about £70, are distributed as follows: £27 in money (left by Mrs. Grainger) is divided amongst eight widows on St. Thomas' day; Hatch's charity of £30 to thirty deserving poor who have not received parochial relief, is distributed in January; Ramston and Fisher's gift of £5 14s. 2d. is given in bread to deserving poor; there are also other small gifts. The workmen's club room, built in 1876, is used for reading and recreation. A fair is held on the 30th of September. The mineral spring at Chigwell, discovered in the latter part of the 17th century, was once in much repute. A fragment of the forest remains at Crabtree Wood, on the east of Chigwell Row, about half a mile beyond the village: and from Grange Hill fine views of the country may be obtained towards the Thames, the Surrey downs and the hills of Kent. The King's Head inn, a downs and the hills of Kent. The King's Head inn, a gabled structure of the Stuart period, is immortalized by Dickens in "Barnaby Rudge" under the name of "The Maypole." Colonel Rouse is lord of the manor of Chigwell, Colonel Richard T. Lloyd, of Rolls Park, of the manor of Barrington and Robert Wicksted Ethelston esq. of Moor Hall, Harlow, of the manor of Woolston. The Misses Palmer are landowners in this parish. The soil is clay; subsoil, are anothers in this parish. The son is citaly, subson, sand. The chief crops are wheat, oats, peas and roots. CLACTON-ON-SEA is a modern seaside town, 1 mile south from Great Clacton, 8 from Walton-on-the-Naze, 16 from Colchester, Harwich and Manningtree, 38 from Chelmsford, 30 from Ipswich and 71 from London. The distances by water are: Walton-on-the-Naze, 8 miles, Brightlingsea 9, Southend 28, Gravesend and Tilbury 46, Woolwich 64 and Southend 28, Gravesend and Tilbury 46, Woolwich 64 and London bridge 73 miles. Clacton-on-Sea is in the North Eastern division of the county, Tendring hundred, petty sessional division and union, county court district of Colchester, rural deanery of St. Osyth, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. In 1832 a branch line from the town, joining the Tendring Hundred branch of the Great Eastern railway at Thorpe-le-Soken, was constructed. The place has a southern aspect, standing on cliffs 40 or 50 feet high: the beach of sand and shingle is admirable for sea bathing and extends for miles in each direction. erected in 1873 and enlarged in 1877, faces the Royal hotel, and is substantially built of wood extending a quarter of a mile into the sea, with a fine shelter head for steamers and other vessels at all tides; it is now (1890) being widened to 25 feet, and a large platform is in course of construction at the pier head on which a pavilion will be erected. During the summer season steamers call at the pier daily on their way to and from London. In addition to the sea wall, the remaining portion of the cliffs for the whole extent of the Clacton-on-Sea Special Drainage District was protected in 1889 with strong timber piling, in which upwards of 43,000 cubic feet of timber was used and nearly 16 tons of bolts and nuts; this work was carried out under the direction of Mr. Thomas Alfred Cressy, clerk to the commissioners, at a cost of about £6,000, and extends 1,100 feet on the west and or about 2,0,000, and extends 1,700 feet on the west and 2,707 feet on the east side of the sea wall; behind this piling a raised platform, 5 yards in width, has been formed, constituting a delightful promenade of nearly 1 miles in length, including the portion behind the old sea wall; the cliffs are now (1890) being sloped and otherwise improved and gorse, green broom and other hardy shrubs planted. Amongst the various attractions of the summer months may be mentioned an annual regatta and land and aquatic sports, and wildfowl shooting may be indulged in during the winter on the extensive marshes adjoining. Clacton is lighted with gas and has an abundant supply of pure spring water supplied from artesian wells 440 deep, the water being served from a tank in a tower 120 feet high, situated at the north-west end of the town. St. Paul's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed Dec. 31, 1878, from the civil parish of Great Clacton: the church is an edifice of concrete in the Early English style, consisting of chancel with vestry, nave, transepts and a small western bell-cote containing 1 bell; it was opened for divine service in June, 1875, and was enlarged in 1880: the church will now seat about 700. The register dates from the year 1875. The living is a vicarage, gross annual value £250, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, and held since 1887 by the Rev. John Frederick Haynes. A new vicarage is now (1890) being erected from designs by Mr. R. W. K. Goddard, architect, of London; it is a building in the English Renaissance style and will cost about £1,500. The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1887 at a cost of £3,000, has 450 sittings. Christ-church Congregational and Baptist Union church, erected in 1887, at a total cost of £3,000, from designs by Mr. Thomas Henry Baker, architect, is an edifice of brick, and has sittings for 450 persons: a new lecture and school room attached to the church is now (1890) being proceeded with, which will afford additional sittings as occasion requires. The Public Hall was erected in 1877, at a cost of £3,000, and will seat about 400 persons: there are also assembly rooms, library, reading and retiring rooms; a cless club meets in these rooms every Friday, and these meetings are open to visitors. Attached to the Osborne hotel is an Assembly Room, seating about 600 people, and used also as a drill hall for the volunteers. A plot of land has been purchased by the governors of Charing Cross Hospital, on which a Convalescent Home is to be erected. The lifeboat "Albert Edward," presented to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution and endowed in perpetuity by the United Grand Lodge of Freemasons of England, in commemoration of the safe return from India of H.R.H. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, is placed here and has saved many lives, this place being contiguous to the dangerous Gunfleet sands. The coast guard station is in charge of a chief officer and 9 men. The principal hotels are the Royal, a spacious building erected on the cliffs in 1872, the Osborne, the Marine, the Station and the Waverley temperance hetel. This place forms part of the manor of Great Clacton. The principal landowners are the Clactonon-Sea Land, Building and Investment Company Limited and the Marine and General Land, Building and Investment Company Limited. Acreage, 285; rateable value, £9,970. Parish Clerk, Byatt de-Maid.

COGCESHALL is a town consisting of two parishes, Skingley esq. and Mrs. Annie Skingley are the lay impro-fractors shall in Lexlen hundred and Little Coggeshall printers. The Congregational chapel, erected in 1715, has priators. The Congregational chapel, erected in 1715, has been several times enlarged, the last enlargement being in 1865: at the back of the chapel there are spacious school rooms for 600 children, and additional class rooms and a lecture hall are now (1890) in course of erection. An Independent chapel is said to have been founded here by Dr. pendent chapter is said to the Protector, Oliver Cromwell; there is a manse in East street, purchased by the congregation as a residence for the minister. There are also Baptist and Wesleyan chapels and a meeting house for the Society of Friends. A Cemetery of 3 acres, situated at the back of the church, was formed and laid out in 1855-6, at a cost of £1,500, and contains a chapel for Dissenters: it is under the control of a Burial Board of nine members. There are There are six almshouses, founded in 1795, and the charities for distribution among the general poor amount to £278 yearly. The market, which is scarcely more than nominal, was granted by Henry III. as also the right of holding a fair on Whit-Tuesday. There are two reading rooms with libraries, one of which is in connection with the Mechanics' institute, in Church street. The refining and manufacture of patent isinglass and gelatine is carried on: there is also a sewing the Essex Bank (Sparrow and Co.) and the London and County Banking Co. Limited. A handsome tower, containing a clock and surmounted by a cupola, was erected in 1887. Holfield Grange, a mile and a half north-west, on the Roman road from Colchester to Dunmow, the property of the trus-tees of the late Osgood Beauchamp Hanbury esq. is a modern Tudor mansion now in the occupation of Sir George C. Lampson bart. The trustees of the late Sir Charles Du C. Lampson bart. The trustees of the late Sir Charles Du Cane K.C.M.G. (d. 1889), who are lords of the manor, the trustees of the late Osgood Beauchamp Hanbury esq. Sir Thomas Charles Callis Western bart. Walter Skingley esq. and Mrs. Annie Skingley, of Felix Hall, Kelvedon, are the chief landowners. The land is undulating; soil, light loam; subsoil, gravelly, with several small streams running through it.

Little Coggeshall, on the southern bank of the river lackwater, is connected with Great Coggeshall by a ridge. King Stephen and Queen Maud, heiress of Eustace, Blackwater, is Earl of Boulogne, who held these manors of the Conqueror, founded here a Cistercian abbey in 1142, dedicated to the Virgin Mary and colonized from Savigny, which at the Dissolution was valued at $\angle 298$ 8s. a year: the remains of this abbey, situated near the river, afford the earliest instance of mediæval brickwork at present met with in this country; the most ancient portion being a massive fragment once forming part of an arcade : various carved stones, including a Transition Norman capital, lie scattered about and there are two Charmles Sir Thomas C. C. Western bart, and Walter thick walls, also apparently belonging to the abbey buildings: the existing inequalities of the ground, extending some distance to the left, seem to indicate that the foundations covered a considerable area. Near these ruins, on the right bank of the little river Blackwater, is a picturesque old gabled house, with groups of clustered chimneys, built in the reign of Henry VIII. partly on the site and with the materials of the abbey; the river flows in an artificial bed constructed by the monks in order to secure a head of water for their mill and is crossed by an old bridge, at the corner of which stands a dwelling known as the "Rood House," probably marking by this name the former site of a cross or rood at the entrance to the abbey demesnes. the lands which belonged to it at the time of its dissolution continue to be free from tithes, both great and small, whilst cultivated in the hands of the proprietors: the church of the monastery, which is entirely demolished, stood in the park in a field near the river. The ruined church of Little Coggeshall, dedicated to St. Nicholas and standing near the site of the abbey, is a simple rectangular building constructed of flint and rubble, with dressings of brick around the lancet-shaped windows: at the east end are sedilia and here and there are traces of decorative painting : it has been nere and there are traces of deconarive painting, to has seen used as a barn, but was some years ago given up by the owner, the late J. Bullock, to the vicar of the parish.

Great Coggeshall has an area of 2,770 acres of land and 13 of water; rateable value, £7,366; the population in 1881 was 2,998.

Little Coggeshall has 830 acres of fertile land in a high state of cultivation; the soil is light, producing excellent crops of wheat, barley, turnips and green crops generally; rateable value, £1,722; the population in 1881 was 363 (the total population of Great and Little Coggeshall in 1881 being

COLCHESTER.

COLCHESTER is a municipal and parliamentary borough, town clerk and registrar of the civil courts of record, a union town and head of a county court district, 514 miles treasurer, accountant, coroner, four conservators, surveyor, from London, 21 south-west from Harwich, 73 south-west from Manningtree, 13 north-east from Witham, 183 south from Hadleigh, 183 north-north-east from Maldon, 193 east from Braintree, 163 south-west from Ipswich, 431 from Bury, 391 from Romford, 332 from Brentwood, 163 from Sudbury and 22 from Chelmsford, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Lexden and Winstree, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. This town (which is supposed to have been the site of the ancient Camalodunum) occupies the summit and sides of a height gradually rising above the navigable river Colne, which, taking hence a southeasterly direction, falls into the North Sea at a distance of 15 miles and is navigable to the Hythe, a suburb forming part of the port of Colchester.

There are three bridges over the Colne: North bridge at the north entrance to the town, is of cast iron, with three arches and was constructed by the town council at an outlay of about £1,800; East bridge is built of stone and brick and has five arches with iron balustrades; Hythe bridge is constructed principally of iron and was built in 1878 at a cost of nearly £3,000; an older bridge of timber having been washed away by a high tide at Christmas, 1876.

The limits of the port of Colchester have been declared to commence at the Naze Point (being the southern limit of the Port of Harwich) and to extend from thence along the coast Port of Harwich) and to extend from thence along the coast of Essex to an imaginary straight line drawn from the pilot mark at the entrance to Havengore creek in the county of Essex, to the Land's End at Warden Point in the Isle of Sheppey, in the county of Kent (the said line being the eastern boundary of the Port of London), also to extend seawards from the coast within the aforesaid limits to a distance of three miles from low water mark, and to include all bays, channels, roads, bars, islands, harbours, havens, rivers, streams, creeks, and places within the said limits contained, except the islands in Havengore creek called "Potton" and "Rushly" islands; and so much of the said creek and the watercourse that extends from it to the town of Rochford as are in the Port of London.

On the 22nd of April, 1884, at about 9.15 a.m. the town and neighbouring villages were visited by two distinct shocks of earthquake, which lasted from five to ten seconds and caused great damage to property; the spire of the Congregational church in Lion Walk was shattered, the tower of St. Leonard's church damaged and other buildings injured: a relief fund was started at the Mansion House, London, by the Lord Mayor and £8,946 14s. was subscribed, which was distributed amongst a great number of sufferers in Colchester and 24 neighbouring villages: 1,213 buildings were repaired, 381 owners received contributions, and 20 churches and in chapels were aided.

Railway communication with the metropolis and also with Ipswich, Bury St. Edmunds, Sudbury, Harwich, Yarmouth, Lowestoft, Clacton-on-Sea, Walton-on-the-Naze and Norwich, is maintained by means of the Great Eastern railway, the main station, opened May, 1843, being about a mile from the centre of the town: St. Botolph's station, formerly the terminus of the Tendring Hundred railway is centrally situated on the south-east side of the town; there is a branch from Wivenhoe to Brightlingsea, the property of the Wivenhoe and Brightlingsea Railway Company.

The oyster fishery, including the Colne and Pyfleet creek, has always formed a valuable part of the trade of Colchester, Brightlingsea and Wivenhoe. In 1870, an Act of Parliament was passed to incorporate the Colne Fishery Company and to authorize the demise to them from the Corporation of the river Colne for a period of 99 years; a lease was accordingly granted at a fixed rent of £500 yearly and one-fourth of the gross proceeds of the fishery after these had reached £2,000. The fishery is managed by a board consisting of six members of the Corporation and six members of the Colne Fishery Company, who are appointed annually.

The municipal authorities consist of a mayor, six aldermen, eighteen councillors, a high steward and a recorder, with a medical officer of health, sanitary inspector, petroleum tester, town sergeant, town crier and head constable. The corpora-tion also act as the urban sanitary authority. The borough is divided into three wards, and has a commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions.

The regalia of the Corporation include a large and massive silver gilt mace, an ancient silver wassail bowl, or "loving cup," used on festive occasions, a gold chain of office worn by the mayor, and a silver oyster used by the water bailiff as a gauge to regulate the size of oysters permitted to be caught.

The municipal and parliamentary boroughs are co-extensive and are divided into three wards, comprising sixteen parishes, of which eight are within the walls [by parishes within the walls is to be understood those whose churches stand within the walls], four without and four in the suburbs. The borough returned two members to Parliament until the passing of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," by which the number was reduced to one.

The main street and two others, which cross it, resemble in plan the shaft and arms of a cross; there are in all twenty principal streets, besides several smaller ones and a great number of lanes and alleys—walks as they are called—and rows of houses. Many of the houses and buildings have an air of antiquity: but the approach to the town by the old London road is lined with elegant modern houses: this road, as far as Lexden, forms the principal promenade of the in-habitants. The town is supplied with water from works, now the property of the Corporation, placed at the base of the Balkerne Hill, where there are excellent springs: there is also a reservoir connected with the works at the summit of Balkerne Hill: and, in April, 1882, a water tower, 105 feet high, was erected on Balkerne Hill, at a cost of upwards of £10,000, for the purpose of giving a constant, instead of an intermittent supply, the plans being prepared by Mr. Clegg, late borough surveyor, under the supervision of Sir Henry Rawlinson c. g. The town is lighted with gas supplied by a company.

The churches within the walls are as follows:

All Saints' church, situated in High street, is an ancient edifice of stone and brick in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, north aisle and an embattled western tower of flint, with stone dressings, containing 5 bells: the church was restored in 1861: there are 300 sittings, all free. The register proper of this parish dates from the year 1510, but the books also include the registers of St. Botolph's perpetual curacy from 1560; and of military funerals, 1807-12. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £205, with glebe and residence, in the gift of Balliol College, Oxford, and held since 1890 by the Rev. the Castle, standing northward of High street, was built

toolsin, of Colchester, for 4 more: each inmate receives | by Eudo de Rie, mentioned above, in the form of a paralleloss work; and one on of only yearly. Kendall's Alms- | grain, the east and west sides measuring 140 ft. each and gram, the east and west sides measuring 140 ft. each and the north and south sides 102 ft.: at the north-east and north-west angles were projecting square towers, on the south side another and eastwards a semi-circular tower, the chief entrance being near the south-west tower: the ancient portal on the northern side, placed at a considerable height in the wall, still remains: the large windows now in the walls of the castle appear to have been made in places where there were originally loopholes, all the original windows being so narrow as to admit but a scanty portion of light: there is a library in the castle, founded by Dr. Samuel Harsnett, master of the Free School in Colchester in 1586, successively Bishop of Chichester (1602) and Norwich (1619) and in 1628 made Archbishop of York: in 1889 the library, which had been neglected for about 250 years, was rearranged, many volumes re-bound and a catalogue prepared and printed; it contains some rare books of the early period of our literature and many beautiful specimens of the typography of the 15th and 16th centuries; a valuable feature of the library is found in its collection of polemical treatises relating to controversies between the churches of England and Rome; it also includes numerous productions of the Roman Catholic presses in Paris, Rouen, Douay, Louvain, St. Omer and Antwerp; the apartment containing the library has an antique and elaborately carved mantel-piece: here is also a museum, chiefly noted for its valuable collection of Roman antiquities found in Colchester and the neighbourhood; and the private museum, in the house of George Joslin esq. comprises an unique collection of Roman antiquities.

The soil in the vicinity of Colchester is favourable to the growth of vegetables and fruit.

Berechurch (or West Donyland) is a parish, in the first ward of the borough, 2 miles south from Colchester. The church of St. Michael, very prettily situated in Bere-church Park and formerly a chapel-of-ease to Holy Trinity, Colchester, is an edifice of brick with stone dressings, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north chapel, south porch and a small tower at the west end containing one bell: in the year 1872 this church was very thoroughly and substantially restored at a cost of £1,200, the principal contributor being the late T. G. G. White esq.: a stained window being a ided by Myles L. Formby esq. whose wife is buried in the churchyard: the church also contains a memorial window to Sir G. H. Smyth bart. a former proprietor of the hall, and in the north chapel there is a fine monument, with recumbent efficy in complete armour, to Sir Henry Audley, knighted at Theobald's, Herts, May 9th, 1623, who erected it during his lifetime, in 1648: there are 144 sittings, of which 50 are free. The register dates from the year 1664. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £145, in the gift of T. White esq. and held since 1870 by the Rev. Thomas Oldmeadow Price B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, who is also vicar of and resides at Laver-de-la-Haye. Berechurch Hall, the property of the trustees of the late Octavius E. Coope esq. and at present occupied by Philip Samuel Phillips esq. J.P. is a large and handsome gabled mansion of red brick with stone dressings, in the Elizabethan style, and in 1882 was partially rebuilt on the same site and almost entirely on the same foundations: it presents on the north side a bold elevation, 148 feet in length, in the centre of which is the principal entrance, with a heavy projecting canopy, and a wide oriel above it; at either end is an octagonal turret, with spired roof, and a similar but loftier turret rises in the rear: the dining-room and salon are the only portions of the old hall remaining; the fine carved ceiling and marble mantelpieces of the Georgian period being retained: the house and stables stand in a well wooded park of 100 acres. The trustees of the late Octavius Edward Coope esq. M.P. (d. 1886) are lords of the manor and the principal landowners.

Parish Clerk, George Humm. Lexden (or Lessenden) is parish in the second ward of the borough, pleasantly situated about a mile and a half west of the town, the road from London passing through the principal street; it is on the river Coine and is crossed by the line of the Great Eastern railway. St. Leonard's church is a plain stuccoed edifice, rebuilt in 1820-1 a little to the south of the former church, and consists of chancel and nave and a small western tower with spire containing one bell and a clock: there are from 300 to 400 sittings, of which about half are free. The registers date from the year 1560. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value from tithe rentcharge £660, with 30 acres of globe and residence, in the gift of Philip Oxenden Papillon esq. and held since 1890 by the Rev. John Henry Lester M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, and prebendary of Lichfield. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1859, and a Village Hall, built in 1884, at the cost of the late Mrs. Hurnard. Lexden Park is situated on rising ground east of the town and south of the London road; the house, which adjoins the high road, was built by the late J. Fletcher Mills esq. and much im-

Errington esq. who was high steward of Colchester, and died in 1883. added to the park, which is occasionally thrown open to the people of Colchester on special festival days. Lexden Lodge, the ancient manor house, has been known only as a moated farm house, thou h a considerable park, stretching nearly down to the town at North Bridge, seems to have been formerly attached to it on the north side of the river. That which is now called "the Manor House," occupied by Major Ames, is the property of Philip Oxenden Papillon esq. D.L., J.P. of Crowhurst Park, Battle, Sussex, who is lord of the manor and a laudowner: the Rev. John Launcelot Erministration rington M.A. vicar of Midgham, Reading, and Mrs. Brock are also principal landowners. Along the former Lexden heath are some lines of intrenchment dating from the time of the Roman occupation.

Parish Clerk, Edgar Middleton.

Mile End (or Myland) is a suburb of Colchester, in the second ward of the borough, I mile north of the town. The Colchester station of the Great Eastern railway is in this parish. The church of St. Michael is an edifice of stone, in the Early English style, erected in 1854, and consists of the Early English style, erected in 1854, and consists of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and a tower at the north-west angle, with spire, and containing a clock, placed in 1887, and 2 bells: there are eight stained windows, and 380 sittings, all of which are free: the materials of the old church were used in the erection in 1871 of the school and teacher's house. The register dates from the vener 1674. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge commuted at £567, subject to a payment of £30 yearly to St. John's, net yearly value £300, with 31 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Right Hon. Earl Cowper K.G., P.C. and held since 1855 by the Rev. Edmund Hall M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Earl Cowper K.G., P.C. who is lord of the manor of Abbot's Hall in this parish and the Corporation of Colchester are considerable landowners. The parish comprises about 2,350 acres.
Parish Clerk, William Warner.

Greenstead is an ancient parish in the third ward of the borough, east of the town, from which it is separated by the Colne. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building of stone, in the Norman style, and was restored in 1857 at a cost of about £900: it consists of chancel, nave, south aisle and western tower containing one bell: the sittings are 250 in number, all being free. The register of baptisms dates from 1677; marriages and burials from 1676. The living 2 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Frank Varley M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford. The Baptist chapel, Parson's Heath, was erected in 1885.

COLD NORTON is a parish and picturesque village, bruch of the Great Eastern railway, 4 miles south from Ma. in. $\frac{1}{2}\) from Wickford and 11 south-east from Chelmsfort, in the South Eastern division of the county, Dengie harried and petty sessional division, Maldon union and court curt district, and in the rural deanery of Maldon, archivacoury of Essex and diocess of St. Albans. The durch rectal in 1855 at the sole cost of the Rev. William Holand M.A. late rector, is a building of stone in the be rated style, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing 2 bells: the pulpit and railing disk are of carred oak made chiefly from the beams of the oil church: an ancient mural monument to Maude, wife of Robert Cammocke, gent. of Layermarnie, ob. Sept.

23, 1599, has been removed from the old church and place I in the chancel: a brass shield bearing the arms of Carm-mocke is now on the chancel step, and a brass effigy of a female, now in the nave, is supposed to represent this Maude: in the churchyard is a tombstone inscribed to William Walker esq. J.P. who died Dec. 9th, 1708, his wife and 16 children. The ancient church of St. Stephen was a removed structure consisting of nave, built in the 17th the 17th of the 18th of 18th of the 18th of 18th very small structure, consisting or mave, out to century, and at the western end a wooden belfry, crowned the register dates from 1539. The living very small structure, consisting of nave, built in the 12th by a short spire. The register dates from 1539. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge commuted £395, with 40 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Governors of the Charterhouse, London, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Stephen Frederick Williams M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The Governors of the Charterhouse, who are the lords of the manor, the trustees of Butler's Charity and Miss F. Parker are the chief landowners. The soil is strong clay; subsoil, strong clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, oats, barley and mangold wurtzel, and a very large portion of the land is in pasture. The area is 1,691 acres;

EARLS COLNE (or Great Colne, otherwise called Colne Monachorum) is a town as ancient as the time of King Edward the Confessor: it derives its name from the river Colne and from its ancient occupation by the de Veres, Great Chamberlains of England, Earls of Oxford, and Dukes of Dublin, who with little interruption were lords of the manor from the Conquest till 1583, and had a seat here, called Hall Place, with a park of about 700 acres attached, which stood on one side of the church: the town is situated near the banks of the Colne, and on the road from Colchester to Halstead, 1 mile north-east from Colne station on the Colne Valley branch of the Great Eastern railway, 512 miles from London, 32 east-south-east from Halstead, 10 north-west from Colchester and 4 north from Coggeshall, in the Eastern division of the county, Lexden hundred, South Hinckford petty sessional division (Halstead bench), Halstead union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Halstead, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The village is lighted with gas. The church of St. Andrew is an edifice of flint in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave of six bays, aisles, south porch, and a large embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, dated 1169: it was restored in 1532 by John de Vere, 16th Earl of Oxford, whose arms with supporters and crest are carven on the east and west sides, and again restored in 1864: there is a stained window and two brasses, Pestored in 1004; there is a stained window and two changes placed by the parishioners and friends as a memorial to the Rev. Robert Watkinson, a late vicar: the organ was presented in memory of the late Mrs. Mary Gee; the reredus is of freestone with mosaics by Salviati; there is a marble of the Pickert Britand Braid nonument to Richard Harlakenden esq. and his four wives, 1602; another with arms to George Cressener esq. and others of that family, 1722; and an inscribed stone to the Rev. Thomas Bernard M.A. 40 years vicar here, ob. 1755; besides other memorials to John Wale d. 1761; Mehetabeil besides other memorials to John Wale d. 1701; Menetabell Elliston, d. 1657; Daniel Androwes, d. 1681; and his wife d. 1729; John Eldred and family, 1717; George Biddulph, d. 1726; and to the Rev. Thomas Carwardine, d. 1824. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is an endowed vicarage, tithes commuted at £616 with 4 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1889 by the Rev.

David Methven M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. Here is a Baptist chapel and a meeting house for the Society of Friends. There is a Literary Institute in connection with which lectures are occasionally given, and a nection with which lectures are occasionally given, and a reading room, built in 1890 for the use of the men employed at Messrs. R. Hunt and Co.'s works. There are six almshouses, erected in the year 1842 by the late Henry H. Carwardine esq.; and also charities of £34 yearly value arising from land left in 1733 by Mrs. Mary Poynter; this amount is distributed to the poor in small sums of money by the churchwardens. Here are the extensive agricultural implement and engineering works of Messrs. R. Hunt and Co. enlarged with new offices in 1883; these works give employment to nearly 200 men. Bricks and tiles are also made here, and there are maltings. A silk winding factory

Prior to the year 1100, Aubrey de Vere, first Earl of Guisnes, founded here a Benedictine priory in honour of St. Mary and St. John the Evangelist and St. Andrew, which was richly endowed and made subordinate to the famous Abbey founded in 675 by Cissa, at Abingdon, in Berkshire; he afterwards became a monk in his own establishment and was buried here, with Beatrice his wife, sister of William the Conqueror; some remains of the priory are still to be seen near the river: in the priory church were buriel 13 Earls of Oxford of the princely house of de Vere; several ancient monuments of that family are preserved in a cloister attached to the present priory, including three altar tombs with recumbent effigies of the de Veres, Earls of Oxford, two of which are assigned to Robert de Vere, oth Earl, who died of a wound received from a wild boar, while hunting in Nov. 1322, and to Richard de Vere R.G. 11th Earl, ob. 1417: at the Dissolution the revenues of this religious house were estimated at £175 14s. 8ad. yearly. The modern mansion called "The Priory," erected near the site of the ancient monastery, is now (1890) unoccupied; the trustes of the late John Carwardine esq. J.P. (d. 1889) are lords of the manors of Earls Colne and Colne Priory. Colne House, also unoccupied, is a modern mansion pleasantly situated at the entrance of the village from Halstead. DODDINGHURST is a parish, 4 miles south from | Ongar, 4 west from Ingatestone and 4 north from Brent-wood stations, in the Mid division of the county, Barstable hundred, Brentwood petty sessional division and county court district, Ongar union, and in the rural deanery of Ingatestone, archieaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans: Doddinghurst is otherwise written "Doddenheue," "Dudeho" and "Duddinghurst:" the first part of the word is derived, some say, from Dodona, a city of Epirus, near which stood a wood sacred to Jupiter, the last syllable, "hurst," being the Saxon word for "wood:" Dr. Stukeley derives Doddinghurst from the British word "doeth," which signifies a wise man, wizard or Druid, so making Dodding-hurst = Dodos-hyrst or Dudeshurst, i.e. Druids' wood: it hurst = Dodos-nyrst or Dudesnurst, i.e. Druids wood: it is possible to reconcile both these derivations by adopting Dr. Stukeley's and hazarding the conjecture that the Romans, who were established at Ongar, corrupted the ancient name of the parish into its present form. The church of All Saints is an ancient building of stone and rubble, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, have earth porch and a wooden tower at the west end nave, south porch and a wooden tower at the west end, with a shingled spire and containing 3 bells: the south porch, built of massive open timber, is considered the finest stained: the church was restored in 1886; the restoration of the chancel being effected at the expense of the rector; a vestry and organ chamber have been added. The register vestry and organ chamber have been added. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £624, with residence and 18 acres of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1879 by the Rev. Francis Stewart M.A. of Brazenose College, Oxford, rural dean of Ingatestone. Lagden's charity, derived from land, amounts to about £15 yearly and is distributed in loaves of bread and coals. The Rev. Francis Stewart M.A. is lord of the manor. Colonel Fane is the principal landed proprietor. The soil is mixed; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,913 acres; rateable value, £2,350; and had a scattered population in 1881 of 401.

Thomas Bowyer, weaver, of Great Dunmow, suffered martyrdom here. The manufacture of baize was introduced here by Flemish refugees in the 17th century, but is not here by Flemish refugees in the 17th century, but is not now carried on. Many Roman antiquities have been found on this spot. The rent of the Thaxted estate of 31 acres, purchased in 1622, with the interest of £330 bequeathed to the poor by the Glasscock and other families, is distributed yearly in clothing: new trustees were appointed for this charity in 1874 and a draft scheme has now (1890) been issued for its administration by the

The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1556 and of marriages from 1555. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £80, in the gift of Colonel John Leslie Toke, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Charles Hartley M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, who resides at Great Dunnow. Dunmow priory was founded in 1104, by Juga, sister of Ralph Baynard, for canons of the Augustinian order, and dedicated to St. Mary: here was a custom, instituted in the reign of Henry III. and generally ascribed to Robert Fitzwalter, by which he who repented not of his marriage, sleeping or waking, in a year and a day, might lawfully claim a flitch of bacon from the prior day, might lawfully claim a flitch of bacon from the prior and canons of Dunmow, who were obliged, as it is supposed, by some injunction of the founder or benefactor, to deliver it to those who should take the required oath on two sharp stones in the churchyard, which, however, do not now exist: the first account of any claimant for this gift is in 23 Hen. VI. when Richard Wright, of Bradbourn, Norfolk, was the fortunate competitor: the last regular claim under this tenure was in some target when the state of the state this tenure was in 1751, when at a special court baron, held 20th June, the steward, jury, suitors and others proceeded, with the usual solemnnities, to the two great stones near the church door and having administered the oath, delivered the bacon to Thomas Shakeshaft, weaver, of Wethersfield, an! Ann, his wife; the old chair in which the happy couple were carried is still remaining in the church: the claim was made, but unsuccessfully, in 1772 and again, with a like result in 1851; but the old custom was revived in 1855 by the late Mr. W. to James Barlow, of Chipping Ongar and Hannah, his wife; and to the Chevalier and Madame de Chatelain: other celebrations of a like unofficial character have taken place since This ancient ceremonial was imitated at Great Dunmow in 1837, the poetical oath being dispensed with and the usual condition of conjugal felicity being exchanged for the following:—"To the married couple, labourer in industry and his wife, who shall have brought up the greatest part of their children and placed them in respectable service without any or the least parochial relief." The origin of this modern award is as follows:—"In September, 1836, at the annual dinner of the Dunmow Agri-cultural Society (then a branch of the Saffron Walden society), John Player esq. placed at the disposal of the committee the value of a gammon of bacon, to be given to a married couple under the above-named conditions." At the following anniversary three married couples were candidates; and since the Dunmow Agricultural Society, in 1840, became an independent association by its separation from the parent society at Walden, the gammon has been given by the mayor of Dunmow, there being an understanding between the society and the corporate body that it shall continue so to be offered. The Rev. James Hughes Hallett M.A. vicar of Waltham, Kent, lord of the manor of Dunmow (late the Priory); Colonel John Leslie Toke, of Clarewood, Camberley, Surrey, lord of the manor of Brickhouse, and Mr. Charles Richardson, are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; Richardson, are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans and barley. The area is 1,728 acres; rateable value, £1,918; the population in 1881 was 338.

Observer"

EPPING STREET is a parish and union town with a station on to Potter street, Harlow, North Weald, Theydon Bois and the Ongar branch of the Great Eastern railway, 163 miles from Whitechapel, 15 from Shoreditch church, 18 west from Chelmsford, by Chipping Ongar and 7 east from Waltham Abbey, in the Western division of the county, half hundred of Waltham, Epping petty sessional division, county court district of Waltham Abbey, rural deanery of Chigwell, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The town consists of one long and wide street, seated on a ridge of hills; it declined considerably after the introduction of railways, but has revived, many new roads having been laid out and residences built. Since 1870 the streets have been lighted with gas by a company, and in 1886 the supply was extended to Theydon Bois. A large water tower has been erected here and is supplied, under the Herts and Essex Water Works Act, from an artesian well situated in Saw-bridgeworth, Herts, near the Harlow station of the Great Eastern Railway Company; the water mains are extended Abridge; drainage works on an extensive scale have been erected in the town.

EPPING UPLAND and RYEHILL are in the north part of the

The church of St. John the Baptist, erected in 1832 and now (1890), in course of rebuilding was, in 1889 constituted the parish church in place of the church of All Saints at the parish church in place of the church of All Sants at Epping Upland: the original chapel, built in the time of Edward VI. was then a free chapel of the foundation of Waltham Abbey, whose canons or chaplains supplied the cure: in 1540 it was styled "Capella libera non curata Sancti Johannis Baptistae de Epping," and the new church, which occupies the same site, is a building of stone in the Gothic style of the 14th century from designs by Messrs. Bodley and Garner, architects, of London, and will consist of chancel, nave, sisles, vestry and a tower: the estimated of chancel, nave, sisles, vestry and a tower: the estimated cost, including north aisle (£700) and tower (£3,000) (the eration of which is for the present postponed) is £13,700, towards which the trustees of E. J. Wythes eaq. have contributed £4,000 and Miss Whiteman, £3,000: there will be sittings for 600 persons. The register dates from the year 1839. The living is a vicarage, united in 1889 by Act of Parliament, 51 & 52 Vict. c. 152, to that of All Saint, tithe rent-charge 1820, gross yearly value 1930, with 11 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late George Wythes esq.; the vicarage of St. John has been held since 1878 and the united vicarage since 1839 by the Rev. Edward Buckmaster M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. In 1615 one George Campion left 4 acres of land, a mosety of which was to be applied for maintaining a preacher at Epping chapel; in 1791 John Walkley left £30 yearly for the ciergyman; in 1772 certain townspeople pledged themselves for three years to pay for seats in the church, and since that time pew rents had been the only means for providing for the church expenses until 1882 when the offertory system was introduced.

The church of All Saints, situated at Epping Upland, some distance from the town, and until 1889 serving as the parish church, is an ancient structure of brick and concrete in the Norman style, consisting of chancel and nave, south porch and an embattled western tower of brick, containing a clock and ; bells; it retains three aumbries and an ancient creleace table, discovered during recent alterations: the stand west window is a memorial to Dr. Porbes Winslow, who died 3 March, 1874, and is buried in the churchyard: the cast window is also stained: a dwarf stone screen, from which the pulpit is corbelled out, separates the nave from the chancel: the seats are all free and unappropriated: the church has been completely restored at a cost of £3,000. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a The register dates from the year 1539. Triange, united in 1888 to that of St. John's.

The Congregational church here is one of the oldest in the country and is supposed to have originated between the years 1028 and 1653, the present structure having been erested on the site of the original building in 1770: in consetion with the church is a large room seating over 200 per some in 1887 the building was thoroughly restored and beating apparatus fixed at the cost of £400 raised by the con-gregation: there are 400 sittings. The Wesleyan chapel, opered in 1887, has 300 sittings and there is a meetinghouse for the Society of Friends, seating 30 persons. The Town Hail, built in 1863, at a cost of about £1,700, is used be oncerts, public meetings and entertainments and will wat con persons.

There are almshouses endowed with £34, yearly and rar assums are distributed to the poor.

Epping has a weekly market on Fridays and three yearly lars on Whit Tuesday for cattle and horses, the 12th October statute and 13th and 14 November (Holland fair), also for cattle and horses.

Mosre W. Cottis & Sons have an iron foundry and agricutural implement works, which give employment to a consierable number of hands.

EPPING FOREST, an extensive tract of woodland, formerly trass Waitham Forest, and called at a remote period to ", reat forest of Essex," once included within its area etter shally or in part, not less than 21 parishes; "stretchin the forest of Middlesex at Waltham on the west, to be cester on the east." The northern portion, lying north Consister on the east." The northern portion, lying north of the real from Bishop's Stortford to Colchester, was dis-25 out in the 5 King John (1203-4) and in 29 Edward I. (201) is area was further reduced; but in Sept. 1640, a lecombulation was made and an inquisition held by a Royal Commission, under which its boundaries were determined, to stea being then estimated at 60,000 acres, the greater are sometimes estimated at 00,000 acres, the greater made the has been alrea by inclosed; in 1777 only 12,000 are sometimed uninclosed and by 1793 this area had do node to 0,000 acres; in 1851 when there were about fore area unaclosed, Hainault Forest, a tract lying to the ad of the existing forest, was disafforested and between 'n' year and 1863 the continued encroachments led to the Estration of a suit in Chancery by the Corporation of Lon-5. We had an ancient traditionary connection with the I ast and simultaneously an Act was passed appointing a ordinate inquire and report on the various contending Was a result of the suit, the Corporation was success-We every point and all inclosures made within 20 years Perious to August 14th, 1851, were declared illegal; the Ment of the Commissioners, issued February 23rd, 1877, "as not acceptable to the Corporation and the questions at we were referred in 1878 to the sole arbitration of Sir arear new Lord) Hobbouse P.C., R.C.S. I. and his decision, chainted in July, 1882, had the effect of rescuing some public, at a cost of more than £250,000. On Nov. 4, 1889, formal possession was taken, on behalf of the Corporation formal possession was cancil, on relative to the Comprising 12½ acres, situate between the Wake Arms and Theydon Bois.

The forest is reached from Epping by the new road to London, which traverses its entire length: to the right on entering the forest is a tract of woodland called the "Warren" and about a hundred yards distant, on the left, is an ancient earthwork called "Ambresbury Banks," traditionally believed to be the spot where the Britons under Boadicea made their last stand against the Roman invaders; a belief confirmed by the opinion of Lieut, Gen. Fox-Pitt-Rivers F.R.S., F.3.A. who carefully examined the camp in 1881: more to the east is the Green Ride, which, parting from the new road just south of Epping, runs almost parallel with it until it crosses the road in Fairmead Bottom, and, passing to the west and south of Connaught Water, joins the Ranger's road near the Royal Forest hotel: the Ride at its commencement traverses a beautifully wooded part of the forest called Epping Thicks: farther on, between it and the new called Epping Thicks: nature on, between to and the road, is a stretch of the wood covered with heather and known as "Long Running," a favourite resort of picnic parties; and lower down, at a point called "Jack's Hill," the road from Theydon Bois to Waltham Abbey crosses the forest, from Theydon Bois to Waltham Abbey crosses the forest, passing the Wake Arms, and, west of this hostelry, Wood-ridden Hill, where there is a spring, and the farm: another road, starting from the Wake Arms, and continning between this and the new road, proceeds through the forest to Clay-ut Hill and King's Oak, near which it divides, one part leading to High Beech and the other running south and joining the new road below Enigment Bottom; and an open height the new road below Fairmead Bottom: on an open height near King's Oak stands a tree planted by Her Majesty the Queen and on the east side of the Wake Arms a road, pro-ceeding south-east through Dulsmead Hollow and the deep ravine of Hangboy Slade, crosses the Green Ride and leads to Loughton and Buckhurst Hill: to the north of the forest, between Woodridden Hill and Claypit Hill, is Honeylane Plain, where are the rifle ranges, used by the H (Waltham Abbey) Company, 1st Volunteer battalion, Bedfordshire regiment; in the centre is Wake Valley, Great Monkwood, a fine spread of beeches, about half a mile in length and Little Monkwood, covering a low circular hill; at a point in this tract called "Mount Pleasant," a road starting eastward joins the Green Ride at Blackweir Hill and is continued to Ash Green, on the road to Loughton: south of Monkwood is an open rushy space called "Sandpit Plain" and little lower down, between the new road and the Green Ride, is Loughton Camp, an ancient earthwork, excavated by the Essex Field Camp, an ancient earthwork, excavated by the rissex ried Club and believed to date from the pre-Roman period, since fragments of early British pottery were found within the rampart; the ground inclosed by the earthwork is about twelve acres in extent and is thickly overgrown with pollard trees; to the west are eminences called "Broom Hill" and "Shelley Hill: to the east, beyond the Green Ride, is Staples Hill: southward, a broad and dry part of the holling and the staples Bills and the standard backs Bushes, where low, called Debden Slade, extends to Blacks Bushes, where the road from High Beech to Loughton, known as the Earl's Path, crosses the forest; immediately below the Earl's Path, is Strawberry Hill and more to the south Albion Hill and Warren Hill, near which is an obelisk: proceeding southwards through the forest from High Beech, past St. Paul's church, Whitehouse Plain is reached and next in succession the Round Thicket, Almshouse Plain (a broad expanse dotted with bushes), Blackbush Plain, Long Hills and a rushy space called "Ludgate Plain," through which the Cuckoo brook trickles towards Connaught Waters, a heart-shaped lake embosomed in wooded hills, with two small islets in its midst; north of it is a solitary full-grown oak, named "Bedford's Oak," after Councillor John T. Bedford, who was foremost among the members of the Corporation in endeavouring to secure the forest for the use and enjoyment of the public: on the south the Ranger's Road, branching off from the new on the south the ranger's road, oranging on from the new road, conducts through Whitehall Plain to Chingford, north of which is a tract of forest called "Bury Wood" and "Hawk Wood," on the highest point of which rises an obelisk, standing due north from Greenwich Observatory; behind these woods is the Lea Valley and Ponder's End railway station, woods is the Les valley and Tonder's Lind lainusy section, and south of Bucklurst Hill is an isolated portion of the forest called "Lord's Bushes." The forest, being now strictly guarded by the Corporation, shelters a large variety of birds, including the jay, the kestrel and the kingfisher: here also are to be found the only wild fallow-deer now in this country, besides red-deer of the old Epping breed and the old English roe-deer, re-introduced in 1884 by Mr. Buxton from the Vale of Blackmoor in Dorsetshire: it is, too, a favourite hunting ground for entomologists, many insects of extreme rarity being met with here and nearly every variety of English butterflies. The forest trees include comparatively few wre, in addition to 1,500 acres recovered by the Corvarieties; the oaks are of the kind botanically known as "Quercus sessilifora" and have for the most part been closely pollarded, but some fine specimens have been preposenel use open space for the use and enjoyment of the

and has a trunk 22 feet in circumference : near High Beech, in Monkwoods, and in the Green Ride of Epping Thicks are noble groves of beeches; the hornbeam abounds and the birch, alder and wild cherry are also common; of the flowering plants many are peculiarly fine and some exceptionally rare: a large variety of lichens and mosses are found, fungi of all sorts and numerous kinds of ferns, the male fern (Lastrea filix-mus) sometimes reaching a gigan-tic height and the Royal fern (Osmunda regalis) flourishing grandly in moist and peaty localities.

The Epping Hunt seems to have been a remnant of the time when the citizens had their common huntsman, and claimed the privilege granted by Edward IV, of hunting in Waltham Forest, Henry III. having previously confirmed to the citizens of London, in 1226, free warren, or liberty to hunt, within a circuit, in the Forests of Stannay (or Staines) and Hainault; this hunt was always held on Easter Monday, when the Lord Mayor and Aldermen attended and is frequently noticed by poets as far back as the middle of the 17th century; in 1853, the forest about Buckhurst Hill, 2,343.

FELSTEAD SCHOOL.

The Free Grammar School for boys, first founded in the year 1554, was engrafted in the year 1564 on the charities of Lord Rich; the present yearly income of these charities is about £1,300, about half of which belongs to the school: in the year 1835 the charity was placed in Chancery, & a scheme for its management being settled by the Court in 1851, it was then entrusted to the control of a board of trustees; but in 1877 its administration was committed to a body of governors under the provisions of a new scheme proposed by the Educational department of the Charity Commission: the nominated governors are appointed-one by the Bishor of the Diocese in which Felstead is situated; one by the Lord Lieutenant of the county of Essex; and two by the magistrates for the county in quarter sessions: the representative governors are elected by the members of Parliament representing the several county & borough constituencies of Essex; there are six co-optative governors. The school, situated 1 mile from Felstead station, was rebuilt in 1864, & is a gabled structure in a simple style of Gothic, with a lofty entrance tower, surmounted by a pyramidal spired roof: attached to the school is a chapel, erected in 1874 & holding 300, the chancel of which was decorated in 1885 at a cost of between 1,300 & 1,400, raised by subscriptions from old boys & masters. The school house, which is under the care of the head master, will hold 170 boys, & there is a boarding house near, holding 40 boys, & a detached sanatorium; adjacent are playing fields of 9 acres, containing a gymnasium & fives' courts: there are six senior exhibitions, three of the annual value of £60 each & three of £50 each, tenable at either of the universities of Oxford or Cambridge, at Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, Royal Military College, Sandhurst, at Cooper's Hill Engineering College, Surrey, or at King's College, London, for three years, or such portion of three years as corresponds with the usual course of the said college. one of £60 & one of £50 are open for competition every year. Candidates must be between 18 & 20 & must have been in the school not less than three years at the end of the term in which the recommendation by the examiners takes place. Liberty is reserved by the gover-nors to withhold the award of these exhibitions if there are no candidates of sufficient merit in the judgment of the examiners. Boys who have been educated for three years at this school are qualified to compete for the "Essex Scholarships" at Hertford College, Oxford, of the value of 100 a year for five years: for these there is no limit of age. Valuable entrance scholarships are awarded after competitive examination in the summer, open to all boys under 15, whether already in the school or not, & are tenable so long as the scholar is at the school, subject to the head master's terminal certificate of industry & good behaviour: there is a Cadet Corps in accordance with the War Office regulations, attached to the and Battalion Essex Rick Volunteers; an excellent supply of pure water is derived from an artesian well on the school premises: in this school the Lord Protector Richard Cromwell & thirer & Henry Cromwell, sons of the Lord Protector Oliver Cromwell, were educated, as also Dr. Isaac Barrow, the distinguished scholar, & Dr. John Wallis, the mathematician

FOULNESS ISLAND (or Foulness) was probably in early times a ness or promontory, joined to the mainland, an assumption which seems to be confirmed by the modern names given to the smaller islands, and was conceivably separated from it by an irruption of the Broomhill behind Wallasea. It lies at the mouth of the Broomhill and Crouch rivers, the south point of the river bank being formed by the Foulness, and is bounded on the south by the Maplin Sands and the sea: Foulness village is 10 miles from Shoeburyness terminal station on the Great Eastern railway, 12 north-east from Southend, 12 east-by-north from Rochford and 54 miles by water from London, with a road along the sands 5 miles in length to Great Wakering: the island was constituted a parish in 1550, and is in the South Eastern division of the county, Rochford hundred, petty sessional division and union, Southend county court district, and in the rural deanery of Canewdon, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. It is 5 miles in length from north-east to south-west and 2½ in breadth, and is inclosed by a sea dyke or wall: the water was formerly brackish, but several artesian wells have been bored and a plentiful supply of pure water is now obtained. The church of St. Mary, entirely rebuilt in 1850, is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a tower with spire on the south side, containing one bell, dated 1710: the church plate includes an ancient

FOXEARTH (or FOXHEARD) is a village and parish, 13 miles south from Glemsford and 4 miles north-west from Sudbury station on the Sudbury and Haverhill branch of the Great Eastern railway and 62 from London, in the Northern division of the county, Hinckford hundred, North Hinckford petty sessional division, Sudbury union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Hedingham, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The church, assigned at a recent date to SS. Peter and Paul, is an edifice of flint, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisle, south porch and a western tower, surmounted by a lofty spire and containing a clock and 8 bells: the building has been very richly restored, all the windows being stained and the walls beautifully adorned with paintings: a finely carved rood screen handsomely painted divides the nave from the chancel. The register dates from the year 1550 and is in fair condition. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge

Southampton, is owner of the impropriate of Merry Oak, Southampton, is owner of the impropriate tithes. In digging the foundations for the station master's house a Roman tesselated pavement was found, with a por-tion of Roman masonry: the former now forms the pavement of the church vestry; a number of other antiquities found at Grays are in the Museum of Geology, Jermyn street, London and were contributed in January, 1869, by R. Meeson esq. F.S.A., F.G.S. of Duvals, where, during the process of excavation in 1871 the lid of a stone coffin was found, supposed to be of the 14th century. Here is a Catholic church, dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, and there are also Primitive Methodist, the Congregational, Baptist, Wesleyan and the Free Methodist chapels. A cemetery of 4 acres, situated at Little Thurrock, was formed in 1880, at a cost of £500; it includes a mortuary chapel and lodge and is under the control of a Burial Board of nine members. The "Exmouth," an old man-of-war, now a training vessel for boys, Metropolitan Asylums Board, is moored off the coast here: about 600 boys are taught seamanship and drafted into the navy and merchant service; in connection with the ship and near the bank of the river is a hospital, and there are also swimming baths; the ship is lighted by electricity. The "Shaftesbury," an old P. & O. boat, now an industrial The "Shaftesbury," an old P. & O. boat, now an industrial training ship for boys (London school board), is also moored off here and has 500 boys, who are taught seamanship and various trades: there is a hospital in the Sherfield road in connection with it. Here is stationed No. 3 battery of the 1st Essex, Eastern Division, Royal Artillery Volunteers. The town has a considerable trade in bricks, lime and cement. The market granted by Henry III. and formerly held on Thursday, is now extinct. Belmont Castle is the residence of Edward Richard Parker esq. The principal landowners are James Theobald esq. M.P. of Bedford, Haveringatte-Bower, who is lord of the manor, G. H. Errington esq. atte-Bower, who is lord of the manor, G. H. GREENSTED-juxta-ONGAR is an ancient parish, | Edmund's oak, was 20 feet in circumference, with branches I nule west from Ongar and 21 from London, in the Western division of the county, Ongar hundred, union and petty sessional division, Brentwood county court district, rural leanery of Ongar, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St Albans. The small church of St. Andrew is one of the most singular and ancient in the kingdom and consists of chancel, nave and a western tower of wood with stimilal spire, containing 2 bells, one of which is dated 1618: the care is composed of the trunks of large oak or chestnut tree, plit or sawn asunder, roughly hewn on both sides and scupright close to each other, being let into a sill at the bottom and fastened with woo len pins to a plate at the top the church is agit, gin, long, 14th, wide and 5ft. 6in. high on the sides which support the roof, and is believed to be the original structure erected as a temporary shrine in which the body of St. Edmund, king of the East Angles, muriered by the Danes, November 20 A.D. 870, was depostel for the night on its translation from London to Bury St. Elmunds in A.D. 1013: there are some modern carvingof St. Edmund's head and various relies, including a fragment of stained glass about six inches in diameter, having in it a crowned head, supposed to represent St. Edmund and now fixed in the centre of a modern stained window at the end of the nave; a portion of the venerable oak tree at Home, against which the king was supposed to have been tied at his martyrdom, is preserved in the rectory, where alests an oil painting of him: the tree itself, known as St.

extending over a radius of 84 feet; it fell September 11, 1848 (at which time, by a singular coincidence, the timber walls of Greensted church were undergoing repair), and on examination an old arrow head was found deeply imbedied in the trunk: there are monuments to the Smyth, Cleeve and Ord families. The regis er of baptisms dates from 1562; burials, 1561; marriages, 1576. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £200, with 29 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1830 by the Rev. Frederic Rose B.A. London, and held since 1830 by the Kev. Frederic Rose B.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge, and formerly curate (1873-80) of St. Botolph, Aldgate, the curates of which have a first claim on this living, arising from the bequest of the Rev. Benjamin Pratt M.A. vicar of St. Botolph's (1699-1715), who purchased the living of Greensted. The land in the parish, with the exception of 40 acres, the property of Mrs. William Smith, belongs to the trustees of the late Captain Philip John Budworth. The soil is various; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 631 acres; rateable value, £1,004; the population in 1831 wa₃ 88. Parish Clerk, William Holt

HADLEIGH, described in early records as "Hadley ad | Carran," is an ancient town, giving its name to Hadleigh Ray, the strait which separates Canvey Island from the Essex count: it is situated on the roads from Southend to Tilbury sai Richford, 24 miles north-east from South Benfleet station on the London, Tilbury and Southend railway, 36 from London, about 6 south-west from Rochford and 5 westby worth from Southend, in the South Eastern division of the county, Rechford hundred, petty sessional division and unon, Southend county court district, and in the rural destery of Rochford, architeacoury of Essex and diocese of St Athans. The town is supplied with water from springs an will. The church of St. James the Less is a building d time, dating from the time of Stephen, and consisting of Norman apsolal chancel, nave, south porch and a wooden turns at the west end with short spire and containing one belie in the purch is an ancient stoup: the style is generally Norman, but windows of the Lancet, Decorated and Perfemicular periods, and a south doorway of the time of birard I have been inserted; the chancel arch, a fine specimen of Norman design, furnishes an example of the miren wall used at that early period to divide the chancel from the nave: the central arch has a height of 18 feet, its with being 10 feet 9 inches, or not half the width of the ure, and the side openings are only 8 feet 6 inches high and t lest a inches wide; these were closed up early in the 15th century with masonry, in which are well-detailed cinquelose barioscopes, not only pierced in a slanting direction, but placed on one side of the recess: on the western face of the sender piers is a minute niche, with cusped ogen arches and delicate tracing : on the side of an Early English window and in the nave are traces of mural paintings; there are two sundress and eleven stained windows, one of which, on the south ale, is a memorial to Jonathan and Ann Wood; another on the north, in the style of the 15th century, is a memoral of Mrs. H. W. King: the church was thoroughly restored in 1856. The register commences in 1568. The restored in 1856. The register commences in 1568. lines is a rectory, tithes commuted at £400, with 69 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Charles Metcalf esq. and held since 1876 by the Rev. Arthur James Skrimshire M.D. of Edinburgh. A market granted in 1452 was formerly held on Wednesday, but has now fallen nto disuse. Hadleigh House, the property of Sir Charles Nicholson bart. D.C.L., LL.D., J.P. of The Grange, Totteridge, Herts, and now occupied by Colonel Henry Dillon R.E. is pleasantly situated, commanding extensive views over the surrounding country and is nearly 300 feet above the level of the mouth of the Thames. The remains of Hadleigh Castle, first built by Hubert de Burgh, Earl of Kent, in the reign of Henry III. but extensively altered and repaired by Edward III. are situated on the brow of a steep hill, commanding a fine view over the estuary of the Thames into Kent: the castle was probably reduced to a ruin by Richard, 1st Baron Rich of Leeze, to whom it was granted by the Crown in 1551: these ruins, overrun by shrubs and brushwood, are picturesque and still exhibit traces of their ancient grandeur; the most prominent portions now left are two circular towers on the east and portion of the gateway tower at the north-west angle. Henry Harrison esq. of Galligreaves Hall, Blackburn, Lancashire, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Sir Charles Nicholson bart, the Rev. George Furness Smith M.A. of the Church Missionary House, Salissubsoil, mostly gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 1,809 acres of land and 164 water; rateable value, £1,947; the population in 1831 was

The rectory is a building of red brick, in the Gothic style, erected in 1873 by the present rector, at a cost of f., coo, and is surrounded by about 7 acres of glebe, within which are situated the church and schools: there are 298 acres of glebe, on which farm buildings, with two cottages, have been erected between the village and Bartlow station, at a cost of about £1,300. Here is a Congregational chapel, which is used by the Salvation Army and also let for public entertainments. In the centre of the village is a conical-shaped lock-up, now disused, with a wooden roof, the entrance of which faces the main road to Saffron Walden. Sidenham Malthus esq. was the last lord of the manor, at whose decease the manor and estates were sold and all copyholds were enfranchised, and the land is now owned by several persons. The soil is clayey; subsoil, chalk and clay. The crops are principally wheat, barley and beans. The area is 1,663 acres; rateable value, £1,926; the population in 1881 was 446.

HALSTEAD and GREENSTEAD GREEN.

a gentle acclivity on the river Colne and the roads from Colchester to Cambridge and Chelmsford to Sudbury, 14 mes north-west from Colchester, 6 north-east from Braintree. 3 south-west from Sudbury, 15 from Haverhill and 46 fr in London: in the Eastern division of the county, Hinck-fiel handred, South Hinckford petty sessional division, Halvert rural deanery, Colchester archdeaconry and St. Alans docese. In 1860 the first portion of the Colne Valey and Halstead railway was opened, starting from the Chantel dation on the branch line from Marks Tey to Sudbut and proceeding by way of Halstead to Haverhill and forming a junction with the Great Eastern extension line to Cambridge, thus affording a direct route between Cambridge and Cochester. The town is managed by a local board of bath of nine members, formed December 3, 1852, and doted by the ratepayers; it was thoroughly drained in 1864-5, when waterworks were established, a good supply of pure water being obtained from an artesian well 300 feet deep and stored in a reservoir of red brick, constructed the old works and capable of holding 84,000 gallons of vater: a new well is now (1890) being sunk at Parans Budge to a depth of 254 feet, at a cost of about 10,000: the town is lighted with gas by a company wood works, erected in 1835, are in Rosemary lane. The church of St. Andrew, situated on the top of the hill on and around which the town stands, is a large building of that with stone dressings, in the Decorated and Perpendicular subs, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of six bays, seles, with and south porches and a western tower with crocketed pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells dated 1573, 1583, 1633, 1700 and 1755: in the chancel, which has been reflected, are three stained windows, one of which is a memorial to Jacob Brewster esq. and another to John Carmetiselesq; here is also a brass to the Rev. Arthur Charles Par M.A.: the chief feature of interest in the church is the easurn portion of the south aisle, which is of the Geo-methical or Early Decorated period, and was formerly the Buncher chapel; here several members of that family are banel, including Sir Robert de Bourchier, Chief Justice of the king's Bench in Ireland in 1334 and Lord Chancellor of Eng and 1340-41, ob. 1349, and Bartholomew his grandson, 3rd Baron Bourchier, ob. 1409, with brasses to himself and Listwo wives Margaret (Sutton) and Idonea (Lovey); there are two altar tombs with recumbent offigies of armed knights all their wives, supposed to belong to this family, one of the tembs being canopied; monuments to Edmund King, d 1624 and the Rev. John Manistre M.A. d. 1826 and a base to Elizabeth, wife of John Watson, ob. 1604: in the north able are marble monuments to Sir Samuel Tryon kt. unt baronet, co. March 8, 1626; George Brooke and his Th. 2. 1770; James Scarlett, d. 1807; Elizabeth Holmes, Finder, d. 1783 and a brass to Samuel Fiske, d. 1718: the with asse retains a piscina: in 1845 the church was resale rigain, and in 1882 an organ chamber was built and are organ erected at a cost of £850: there are sittings In 800 persons. The register dates from the year 1564. The mig is a ricarage, yearly value of tithe rent-charge with 3 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Being of St. Albans, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Thenas George Gibbons M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. Heat Traity is an ecclesiastical parish at the west end of the town formed June 3, 1844; the church is a structure of that with stone facings, in the Early English style and coasets of chancel, clerestoried nave of six bays, aisles, woth porch and a western tower with spire containing one leil: the stained east window was presented by the Rer. Frederick John Greenham M.A. vicar (1877-88), in memory of his wife, and the large west window by the Rev. Duncan Fraser, a former vicar of the parish: in 1377 an organ chamber was built and the organ renovated at a cost of £400: there are 750 sittings. The register Gasling May M.A., LL.M. formerly scholar of Cains College, Cantingles. The Society of Friends have a meeting house the Colonseter road, erected in 1851, with 300 sittings. EAST HAM is a parish, 4 miles from Whitechapel | 1765; agreeably to his request the grave has no stone or church Loudon, with which it has a direct communication | memorial of any kind, but the spot was identified in 1889, by the lower read through Poplar, leading to Barking and I and the coffin found to be in good preservation. The register of marriages dates from 1696; baptisms and burials from 1700. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £780, with residence, in the gift of Brasenose College, Oxford, and held since 1871 by the Rev. Samuel Harvey Reynolds M.A. late fellow of that college. The chapel of ease of St. John the Baptist, built in 1866, is a cruciform structure, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts and a western tower containing a clock and one bell and will seat about 500 persons. There is a Wesleyan chapel in the Barking road with sittings for about 430 persons and a Primitive Methodist chapel in the High street, built in 1885. with 300 sittings: a Congregational chapel is now (1890) in course of creetion at Manor Park. A piece of ground was appropriated here as a cemetery by the United Synagogue in 1888, but has not yet been used. There are almshouses, founded in 1621 by Giles Bream esq. who died in 1621 and was buried in the church; these are at present (1890) occupied was buried in the church; these are at present (1000) occupied by 3 married couples and 6 widows, and endowed with 103 acres of land at Braintree, producing £26 15. yearly, half of which is sent to Bottisham, in Cambridgeshire, the place of the original endowment providing for 3 poor men of that parish and 3 of this; other charities amounting to £19 are yearly distributed at Christmas. Temple House is the residence of Robert Henry Winter esq. The parish has an area of 2,493 acres of land and 30 of water; rateable value, area of 2,493 acres of land and 30 of water; radiable value, £95.855; the population in 1871 was 4,334; in 1881, 9,713, which included 347 persons on board the "Shaftesbury" training ship, then lying in the Royal Albert docks, 313 in St. George's-in-the-East workhouse school, 193 in St. Edward's reformatory, 256 in St. Nicholas Industrial school and 23 in vessels.

Manor Park is a rising locality in this parish, with a station on the Great Eastern railway. The cemetery here for the parish of East Ham belongs to a limited company; it covers an area of 30 acres and has two chapsls. Wall End is a small hamlet on the east. Plashet and Green Street are in the district of Upton Park, which see.

WEST HAM.

WEST HAM is a parliamentary and municipal and a county borough and parish of considerable extent and population, pleasantly situated to the east of the river Lee which separates it from Middlesex, and is about a mile and a half separates it from Middesex, and is adout a fine and a hair east from Bow Bridge, 5 miles from London, and bounded on the south by the river Thames: it gives name to a union in the hundred of Becontree, and is in the county court district of Bow, rural deanery of Barking, archdectorry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans, in the Eastern Metropolitan postal district and within the jurisdiction of the Court Crimical Court and Metropolitan police. the Central Criminal Court and Metropolitan police.

The Great Eastern Railway has stations at Forest Gate,

Plaistow and Stratford, and with the various lines and branches now diverging from it, together with the Royal Victoria and Albert Docks, have been the main causes of the past and continued increase of the population of this district. The parish is supplied with water from the East London Water Works on the river Lee, and is lighted with gas by the West Ham Gas Companies from works situated on the Stratford road. The London Northern Outfall Sewer passes through the whole length of the parish and the Abbey Mills pumping station is situated here.

The parliamentary borough of West Ham, created under the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885, returns two members

The parish church of All Saints is a spacious building of brit and done in mixed styles, but chiefly Perpendicular, cessuag of chancel with north and south chapels, nave, aides, south porch and an embattled western tower, 74 feet high with pinnacles, containing to excellent bells: several proms of eminence have been buried in it, including Sir Lamas Foote kt. and bart. Lord Mayor of London in 1650; de 1965; and Sir James Smith kt. also Lord Mayor, ob. 170 bere also are buried some of the ancient family of ketchy, of whom was Henry Ketelby, a law-officer of Henry Vill. A 1508: there is an altar-tomb in the north chapel da el 1485 and a mural tablet above it to Robert Rook, dated 1020: with figures of himself and family: at the north-west any of the chancel is a stair turret which formerly gave resets the real-loft; on the restoration of the interior in Spender, 1855, a mural painting of the late 15th century, pre-cating "The Reward of the Righteous," and forming part of a "Doom," previously discovered, but rewashed in 1811, was successfully developed under the superintendence of the Rev. R. H. Clutterbuck, of Plaistow: in the churchtants buried Mr. George Edwards F.R.S. a distinguished attantist, born at Stratford, 3 April, 1693, d. at Plaistow, 23 July, 1773. The register dates from 1653 and contains many entries of persons who died from the plague in 1665-6. The tring is a ricarage, tithe rent-charge £794, net yearly wine £550, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and hel once 1368 by the Rev. Thomas Scott M.A. of Caius of Barring, and surrogate. Edward Humphreys esq. is the treet pratter of the rectorial tithes. St. Thomas', Rokeby stort, a mission church in the district of All Saints, is a gradure of brick in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, hare and north aisle and has a spire containing belfry with received there are sittings for 450 persons ; the Rev. James Factoral Prendergast, Theol. Assoc. of King's College, Luin, is curate in charge.

There are Catholic, Presbyterian, Baptist, Wesleyan, Con-

gregutional and Unitarian chapels.

We: Ham cemetery, formed in 1857, is situated at First Gate, near to Wanstead Plats, and consists of some 20 area with mortuary chapels; it is under the control of a Barial Bord of nine members.

The Conference Hall in West Ham lane, is a structure of in two divisions, via north and south; the north comprising brick, erected at an estimated cost of about £3,400, from Stratford and Forest Gate, and the south, Plaistow, Canning the designs of Mr. F. Boreham, architect; the principal hall will hold 1,600 persons, and there is also a smaller hall and several auxiliary rooms.

West Ham contains large chemical works, an extensive patent leather-cloth manufactory, flour mills and a large brewery, smelting works, copper works and other manufac-tories, distilleries &c. A market was anciently held in West Ham, for which a charter was procured in 1253, by Richard Montfichet, but it is now discontinued.

The 3rd Volunteer Battalion, Essex Regiment, have their head quarters at the Cedars, Portway, with over 4 acres of ground attached, in which a spacious corrugated iron drill hall has been built. The regiment has a rifle range at Woodford, extending 800 yards, and there are two bands connected with the corps. The Cedars, formerly known as "Upton Lane House," for many years the residence of the celebrated Mrs. Elizabeth Fry, sister of Samuel Gurney, abuts on West Ham park.

West Ham, Stratford and South Essex Hospital and Dispensary was first established in 1861, in a house in the Romford road, Stratford: the present dispensary in West Ham lane, was erected in 1879, at a cost of £4.000, the site being given by the late Mrs. Mary Curtis, of Stratford. being given by the late Mrs. Mary Curtis, of Stratford. In the year 1886, a committee was appointed to promote the erection of a hospital, the foundation stone of which was land 18 June, 1888, by H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge K.O. and the building was completed in March, 1890, and formally opened 23 April following, by the Duke of Westminster K.O. The hospital, a plain but handsome building, designed by Messrs. J. L. and A. C. Houston, architects of London is chiefly insulad for accidents and practice. tects, of London, is chiefly intended for accidents, and provides two wards for adults, fitted with 12 beds each, and two small wards for children with 6 beds each: there are also two isolated wards for infectious diseases. The hospital is provided with all the modern improvements; the wards are fire-proof, and there are separate exits for each ward in case of fire. The hospital is practically free, and being un-endowed is entirely dependent on voluntary support. Sufficient land remains either for enlarging the hospital or building a new wing when required.

There are almshouses for twenty poor women near the parish church of All Saints, each of whom receives about 3s. 6d. per week: Roger Harris' almshouses, in Gift lane, are for 6 poor women, and there are numerous charitable bequests, amounting in all to about £450 yearly, left from time to time by various benefactors for the benefit of the poor, and distributed by Central Charity Board.

West Ham Park, comprising about 80 acres, is well-timbered, and contains some fine spreading cedars and shrub-beries. It was formerly known by the name of "Upton beries. It was formerly known by the name of "Upton Park," and belonged to the late Dr. Fothergill, by whom the gardens were laid out, and many of the trees planted by him 150 years since, are still extant; subsequently it was the residence of the late Samuel Gurney: his grandson, Mr. John Garney, banker, of Norwich, offered this beautiful park as a public recreation ground for its estimated value of £25,000, contributing at the same time £10,000 towards that amount; the Corporation of the City of London also voted f10,000 and the remainder being made up by local subscriptions, the park was publicly opened on the 20th July, 1874, by the Lord Mayor, as a public recreation ground: it is by the Lord Mayor, as a public recreation ground: it is under the control of a committee of 15 persons, 8 nominated by the City Corporation, 4 by Mr. John Gurney and 3 elected by the local authorities; the cost of its maintenance is entirely defrayed by the Corporation of the City of London.

West Ham parish covers an area of 4,668 acres, of which 4,509 are land and 159 water; rateable value, £758,419; the was 62,919 and in 1881, 128,953, of which 15,542 are attached to the mother church.

HARWICH and DOVERCOURT.

WITH PARKESTON.

Harwich is a municipal borough, seaport town and watering veloping their Continental traffic. This quay, with station place at the mouth of the Stour and opposite the confluence of the Orwell, and is the head of a county court district, in the North Eastern division of the county, Tendring hundred, the old pier, there is a saving of time in starting from of the Orwell, and is the head of a county court district, in the North Eastern division of the county, Tendring hundred, union and petty sessional division, rural deanery of Ardleigh and Harwich, archdeacoury of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans, 21 miles north-east from Colchester, 12 east from Manningtree, 20 from Ipswich and 71½ from London, on a small peninsula, which admits only of a narrow approach. The town is governed by a corporation, consisting of a mayor, four aldermen, twelve town councillors and a high steward, with revenues amounting to about £40,000 yearly. The Corporation act also as the Urban Sanitary Authority.

The borough, created by Edward II. in 1318, includes, for municipal purposes, the parish of Dovercourt; it formerly returned two members to Parliament; but by the "Representation of the People Act, 1867," the representation was reduced to one member, and under the provisions of the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," the borough was deprived of its separate representation and merged in the county.

The town is well situated, with a fine bold shore and is pleasant and healthy: it is lighted with gas by a company, and supplied with water from the Tendring Hundred Water Works, at Mistley. During the summer steamers run to London and Walton-on-the-Naze, and the town is much frequented as a bathing-place.

Southward of the town is Beacon Hill, an eminence separating Orwell, or Harwich haven, from the arm of the sea which extends to Walton-on-the-Naze. Between this hill and the town an esplanade extends for nearly a mile, commanding a delightful view of the harbour and the German Ocean. In 1844, £50,000 was granted by Parliament for forming a breakwater from Beacon Cliff to divert the current towards Landguard Point and also for dre lying the shoals at the entrance of the harbour, in order to admit first-class vessels: additional sums have since been granted for the same purpose and for building a wall at the base of the cliff to prevent the further encroachment of the sea and for forming a gravel walk, extending upwards of a mile, from the esplanade to the end of the breakwater. little above the esplanade is the Redoubt, remodelled in 1861-3 and mounting 10 guns: the Angel Gate battery, mounting 4 guns, is on the east of the town. Landguard Fort is on a promontory of the Suffolk coast, on the other side of the river.

The harbour is the finest along this part of the coast, affording room for 400 or 500 sail.

There are two lighthouses at Dovercourt, outside the Harwich harbour, in Mill Bay, to guard vessels from the "Andrews"—a sandbank, forming a bar at the mouth of the river from Landguard Fort to the Rolling Ground, where there is good anchorage. A guard ship is stationed here: vessels of war sometimes put into this harbour, which has an Extensive improvements have been Ordnance depôt. Ordinance depot. Extensive improvements have been carried out by the Corporation, by the inclosure of land from the harbour and by forming quays along the whole north front of the town, with a pier adjoining the same, approachable by vessels at any time of tide: these improvements have been made under the powers of the "Harwich Improvement, Quays and Pier Act of 1851." An Act came into operation in 1863 for the improvement of the harbour, which is under the supervision of a Conservancy board.

The Great Eastern railway (Harwich branch) was opened August, 1854. The Great Eastern hotel, one of the most in August, 1854. important on the Essex coast, was opened in July, 1865; it fronts the pier, from which steamboats run every day from this port to Ipswich and Felixstowe.

PARKESTON QUAY, formed by the Great Eastern Railway Co. and opened for traffic in 1883, is situated upon the Stour, 23 miles up the river, and was constructed for de-Parkeston quay, on account of the clearer course, and con-sequently the boat train leaves London later than hitherto. About 600 acres of land have been acquired by the company, About ooo acres of land nave been acquired by the company, the greater portion reclaimed from the bed of the river, by a curved embankment 2½ miles long; in the centre of the curve is the quay, 1,800 feet long, affording berths for seven vessels, while seven more can be moored in the river. The quay wall is formed by screw piles, those in front being 2 feet in diameter, and those at the back being I foot 6 in.; between them are concrete cylinders of seven rings each, and 9 feet in outside diameter, sunk in pairs. On the quay are two goods warehouses, each 520 feet long by 100 feet wide. A passenger gangway 40 feet wide leads to the central building of 350 feet frontage, which serves for the station and hotel. All the buildings and platforms are erected upon piles, of which there are more than 1,000, sunk to the ancient bed of the river.

The church of St. Nicholas is a structure of white brick in the Pointed Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles and spire, containing a clock and 8 bells: it was rebuilt and enlarged in 1821 by subscription and a rate: there are three partiallystained windows in the chancel, and in the vestry is a tablet containing the names of the vicars of this church from 1336 to 1874: there are 1,500 sittings, of which 1,000 are free. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £60, net yearly value £120, in the gift of J. E. A. Gwynne esq. F.S.A. of Folkington Manor. Polegate, Sussex, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Gerald William Druce M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, surrogate and acting chaplain to the troops and H.M.S. "Hotspur."

St. Nicholas Mission room, Newtown, erected by the Rev. G. W. Druce M.A. in May, 1879, is a wooden building, and will seat 40 persons.

There is an iron Mission church at Parkeston, seating about 100 persons.

The Catholic church, dedicated to our Lady of Mount Carmel and situated on the main road to Dovercourt, is a small brick building in the floriated Gothic style and was built from designs of E. Welby Pugin, in 1869: it has 100 sittings: the Rev. Robert Kelly is resident priest.

Here is a Baptist chapel, erected in 1821, with 250 seets;

a Congregational chapel, erected in 1800, and seating 200 persons; a Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1880, with 200 sittings; a Wesleyan Methodist chapel, erected in 1829, and seating 500 adults and 60 children, and another Wesleyan chapel at Parkeston, erected in 1887, with 260 sittings.

The burial ground of St. Nicholas parish, and situated at Upper Dovercourt, covering an area of 5 acres, was formed in 1855, and contains a mortuary chapel; it is under the control of a Burial Board of six members.

The poor have about 6 yearly in fuel.

The markets are on Tuesdays and Fridays. Consular agents for several foreign powers are resident here.

There is a custom house, extensive bonding warehouses, belonging to the Great Eastern Railway Company and one bank (Messrs. Cox, Cobbold & Co.).

The Coastguard Station buildings, finished in June, 1858, consist of a fine range of houses, forming a quadrangle of fitteen tenements, besides a house for the principal officer. H.M.'s armour-plated ship "Hotspur" is stationed at Harwich as coast guard and drill ship of Naval Reserve.

The Public hall in Main road is a building of red brick, erected in 1886 from designs by Whitmore and Reves, architects of Chapterford to coat of Coast and will hold architects, of Chelmsford, at a cost of £1,792, and will hold 500 persons.

Shipbuilding is carried on by John Henry Vaux at the Royal Naval Yard, which employs a large number of men and boys and has produced some fine specimens of naval architecture.

The disteries employ numerous vessels and a considerable trade is carried on with Ipswich and Manningtree.

The Royal Harwich Yacht Club, founded in 1843, has now 1850 about 260 members with 130 yachts, and holds an annual regatta, when prizes are given by the club.

The population of the municipal borough in 1871 was

6.079; in 1881, 7,842; the population of St. Nicholas, Harwith in 1881 was 5,038, which includes 59 in the Circular Balanti, 36 in Government house, married soldiers' quarter and Ordnance stores, and 274 on board H.M.'s ships; area, 33 acres of land and 536 of water; rateable value, £13.115

Phipps Chas. Queen's Head hotel, Main rd HATFIELD (or HATFIELD PEVEREL) is a large and married inmate receives 18s, and each single inmate 12s. pleasant village and parish, situated on the river Ter, and on the high road from Chelmsford to Colchester, with a station adjoining the village on the Great Eastern railway, 36 miles from London, 2 south-west from Witham, 6 northwest from Maldon and 6 north-east from Chelmsford, in the Eastern division of the county, Witham hundred and petty sessional division, Braintree union, Maldon county court district, and in the rural deanery of Hatfield Peverel, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. This parish is an ancient place and is stated to have been given by King William the Norman to Ralph Peverel, a Norman soldier, who married Ingelrica, an English lady: it extends southward to the Chelmer and eastward to the Blackwater and contains many pleasantly situated residences. church of St. Andrew, formerly the priory church, is an edifice of flint and brick, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, vestries, south porch and a turret containing one bell: in 1873 it was completely restored and a large piece of ground taken in on the south side to form a new uisle with upper and lower vestry rooms, clerestory windows being inserted on the south side of the nave : an oaken screen was also placed between the chancel and the nave and a carved reredos of Bath stone erected: the church retains a monumental effigy of the foundress, besides memorials to the Bragg and Alleyn families, including the brass figures of John Alleyn, 1572, his three wives and children: there are also three other brass efficies, and a long inscription in English verse, supposed to belong to them: the windows and west doors have some heraldic shields. The register of The register of baptisms dates from 1702, of marriages from 1703, and bapusins dates from 1626. The living is a vicarage, yearly value L290, with 9 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Frederic Bransby Toulmin M.A. of New College, Oxford. The great tithes amount to £1,400 yearly, which are received by the trustees of John Wright esq. There is a Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1875. The charities amount to £95 yearly, left in 1820 by Martha Lovibond, of Hatfield Peverel, and there are four almshouses, built and endowed by the same benefactress in 1820, for two married couples and two single persons, for which purpose she left £5,270; each rica, before mentioned, founded here a college for secular canons, afterwards converted by W. Peverel, in the time of Henry I. into a Benedictine priory, and dedicated to St. Mary : the priory was a cell to the abbey of St. Albans, and the revenues at the Dissolution were valued at £83 198. 7d.

The learned Edmund Castell s.T.P. author of the "Lexicon Hepta-glotton," was vicar of this parish from 1666; he also held the rectory of Woodham Walter and that of Higham Gobion, Beds, where he died and was buried in 1685. Priory, now in the occupation of Christopher William Parker esq. is an ancient mansion of stone, situated in a delightful and secluded spot, surrounded by a park of about 100 acres. at the entrance to which stands the church. The trustees of the late John Wright esq. are lords of one manor; Lord Rayleigh, G. B. M. Lovibond esq. and the Rev. Charles George Gretton Townsend M.A., J.P. are the principal landowners and lords of the remaining manors, which are five in number. The land is chiefly arable; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area of the parish is 4.728 acres and 18 water; rateable value, £9,431; the

Sarah Chamberlayne, late of Charles street, Lownder square, by will, dated the 13th of January, 1858, directed the torestment of the residue of her estate, representing an wrietate value of £13,128 48, 1d. for the benefit of certain January in the counties of Middlesex, Essex and Warwick the ded on the 12th January, 1870, and after legal proceedings extending over several years, an order was ultimately issued by the Court of Chancery, dated 24th March, 18,6, formulating a scheme for the application of the funds of the charity as regards this parish, in the manner following: £5 for Bibles for the poor at Hatfield and the hamlet of Bush End; ros. to the Hatfield Lying-in Society; £5 for coals for widows residing at Bush End and for other poor persons sending their children to the Leicester school; \(\alpha \) to be given on Christmas Day to 40 widows of Hatfield; to six poor widows, or poor unmarried women, not under the age of 50 or poor aged men, or poor crippled, blind or deaf and the best of the section of dumb males or females in the hamlet of Bush End or parish of Hatfield, the monthly sum of 15s, each and a furthur monthly sum of 15s, to one of such poor women, to lodge, board and maintain, take care of and keep one poor child who has lost both its parents; it is further provided by the said will, that as soon as land shall at any time be given for the purpose, an alm-house or almshouses, consisting of six rooms with suitable appen lages, shall be built in the hamlet of Bush End for six poor persons, but these have not yet been erected. Down Hall, the seat of the Right Hon. Sir Henry John Selwin-Ibbetson bart. M.P., D.L., J.P. is finely situated with capital pleasure grounds and woods. was once a Benedictine priory here, founded by Alberie, or Aubrey De Vere, second of that name and father of the first Earl of Oxford, in 1135; this foundation was dedicated to God, St. Mary and St. Melanius Redonensis, a British or Armorican saint, who, as his surname implies, sprung from Rennes, in Brittany, where there was an abbey bearing his name; though the monks of Hatfield were only nine in number, the endowments of the priory were ample and were valued at the Dissolution, according to Dugdale, at £122

138. 2½d.; or according to Speed, at £157 38. 2½d. Hatfield
Forest of about 1,000 acres, lies to the north-west of the town and is the property of John Archer Houblon esq. town and is the property of John Archer Houbion esq. of Great Hallingbury, whose seat adjoins the forest, which was inclosed by Act of Parliament about 1855; in the forest are the remains of a very large and old oak (now carefully fenced round and preserved), called the "Doodle Oak" and conjectured to be that from which the place acquired the name of Broad Oak. The manor of Hatfield was a royal mane of Broad Oak. The manor of Hathald was a royal manor held under the Crown and was grantel first after the Conquest to the family of De Gernon, who took the name of Montfitchet; on their extinction, King Henry III. grante l it to Isabella De Bruce, who fixed her residence at Bromesho Bury, as did her son Robert, Earl of Carrick: but his son Robert, after he became a competitor for the Crown of Scotland, forfeited his English property. The manor of Hatfield, after being held by the families of De Bohun. Stafford and Rich, was purchased by Sir Francis Barrington, in whose family it remained for several generations and from them descended, through two co-heresses, to that of Lowndes. Bromesho Bury, where the De Bruces resided, is now a farm house, surrounded by a moat, and belongs to the Earl of Rolen. Old Barrington Hall, the original seat of the Barrington family, is also a farm house at the elge of the Forest. The later Barrington Hall, a large brick house erected about the year 1740, and completely altered and restored in 1863, is now the residence of G. Alan Lowndes esq. D.L., J.P. lord of the manor of Hatfield: the park in the timber, a fine one. Gladwyns, near Hattield Heath, was known by that name in the time of King Edward II. was known by that hance in the time of king radward 11.; there is a very good house on the estate, with grounds well laid out and now occupied by Horace Broke esq. J.P. The principal landowners are John Archer Houblon esq. of Hallingbury Place, George Alan Lowndes esq. D.L., J.P. and the Right Hon. Sir H. J. Selwin-Ibbetson bart. P.C., M.P. and the hight fold it is a source, mostly heavy; subsoil, clay and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. from Brentwood to Orsett, 20 miles from London, 4 southwest from Billericay, 3 south from Brentwood station on the main line of the Great Eastern railway, and with a station 21 miles distant on the London, Tilbury and Southend railway, in the Mid division of the county, Barstable hundred, Brentwood county court and petty sessional division, Billericay union, and in the rural deanery of Barstable, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The church of All Saints is an edifice of red brick, erected about the time of Henry VI. and consists of chancel, with a large aisle on the south called the Tyrrell chapel and a smaller chapel on the north, now used as a vestry, nave, transepts, south porch and a massive but stunted tower at the west end containing 4 bells: in the chancel floor is a remarkable incised slab with inscription to Thomas Tyrrell, son and heir of Sir John Tyrrell kt. and Anne his wife, dated 1422; there are also monuments in the north and south chap-is to John Tyrrell kt. ob. 1645, and dame Martha his wife, ob. 1670, with others, and some old pieces of armour: the chancel roof is enriched with handsomely carved bosses: against the south transept wall there is an altar-tomb, said to be a memorial of the burial here of the heart or head of Queen Anne Boleyn, beheaded May 19, 1536: over the south transept is a room which was probably the dwelling of a chantry priest attached to the church: the basin of the Norman font is formed of a large square block of stone, carved with intersecting arches and other ornaments. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1558; marriages, 1573. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £381, with 33 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1880 by the Rev. Craig James, farmer & dairyman, Barnard's farm HORNDON-ON-THE-HILL (formerly a market town) is a village and parish, so named from being on a height, having a good view over the neighbouring land and river to the west as far as London and to the east to the sea : it is situated on the road from Chelmsford to Tilbury and Grays, 12 miles north-west from the Stanford-le-Hope station on the Tibury and Southend railway, about 10 south-east from Brentwood and 24 from London, in the South Eastern division of the county, Barstable hundred, Orsett union and petty sessional division, Brentwood county court district, and in the rural deanery of Orsett, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Peter, an interesting example of the church architecture of the early 13th century, is situated in the middle of the village, and consists of chancel with chapel, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and a wooden tower at the west end, containing 4 bells, respectively dated 1640, 1622-30 and 1706: the nave of four bays is Early English; the chancel appears to have been rebuilt in the 15th century; its east window is Perpendicular and retains some fragments of stained glass; the substructure of the spire is a good specimen of the constructive carpentry of the 15th century, to which period also belongs the porch, the doorway being Early English; the font is in its details Perpendicular, but from its shape and size suggests a conversion from one of Norman date: in the chancel is a marble monument to David Caldwell esq. 1634, with shields of arms and here also is a slab of Purbeck marble, with the arms of Toldervey, some memorials of the Grant family, 1720-49; a memorial to the Rev. Samuel Jennifer, formerly vicar of this parish, ob. 1715: various inscriptions to the now extinct family of Kinsman, of Burnham, Essex, 1686-1719; and one to Susan, daughter of Thomas Sandford, of Coggeshall, ob. 1633. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1672; marriages, 1752. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £181, with 7 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and

EAST HORNDON is a village and parish, situated on the road, Gate. St. Andrew's Mission Chapel, erected in the village at a cost of about £300, raised by subscription, is a building of wood, consisting of chancel and nave and a small western turret, containing one bell: a vestry has since been added. In this parish are two manors, East Horndon and Foucher's Heron, the lordships of which are respectively held by Lord Petre D.L., J.P. and George Alan Lowndes esq. M.A., D.L., J.P. of Barrington Hall, Hatfield, near Harlow, who are also the chief landowners. The soil is chiefly clay and gravel; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,521 acres of land; rateable value, £1,768;

The population in 1881 was 504.

The hamlet of Heron Gate (which is the village of the parish) stands on the southern brow of the eminence, three quarters of a mile north of the church and near what was formerly a considerable area of common land; it takes its name from a gate formerly crossing the road near the old "Boar's Head," and dividing the Heron manor from the Abbott manor. The Heron manor and mansion, for many centuries belonging to the Tyrrell family, took its name from a family of Heron, who owned it at an earlier period: the mansion has been pulled down.

Southern division of the county, Becontree half hundred and Softern arrison of the county, necontree has numerical and petry essonal dirision, West Ham union, Bow county court district, ural dearery of Barking, archdeaconry of Essex and discrete of St. Albans and within the jurisdiction of the Central (riminal court and the Metropolitan police. The church of the Virgin Mary is a small and ancient building, originally in the Early Norman style, of which, however, but few traces, consisting chiefly of two very narrow lights deeply splayed, now remain : the church consists of chancel nate of two bays, north chapel, south porch and a tur-ret containing one bell: the north chapel is the burial place of the ancestors of Sir Edward Hulse bart, of Breamore House, Salisbury: there is a brass to Thomas, son and heir of Sir John Heron, private secretary to Henry VIII. who died at Aklerbroke, in 1517, with an offigy representing him as a schoolboy of 14, with a penner and ink horn at his girdle; a second brass commemorates Anne, only daughter of Barnard Hydersq. of London, ob. 1630, etc. 18, and her brother William, ob. 1614, with six English verses: on the north will of the chancel is a stone monument with many kneeling figures in high relief, of the time of James I.; there are also takets of numbers of the Fry family, formerly residents here, so well known for their philanthropy: the church will rest 170 persons. The register dates from the year 119 The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe matchage £311, with 40 acres of globe and residence, in the gift of Hertford College, Oxford, and held since 1879 by the Ber. Arthur Thomas Whitmore Shadwell M.A. of Balled College, Oxford. Thomas Newton, poet and physician, was rector here, 1583-1607. The Congregational chapel in Greenhill grove is now being replaced by a new chapel at Manor Park. There is a Methodist Free chapel in chapel at Manor Park. There is a Methodist Free chapel in Herbert road. The City of London Cemetery, situated in this parish, occupies 253 acres, and contains two chapels. The charities, amounting to about £30 a year and distributed in money, are derived from Consols left by Mr. Hayes in the last century. Charles Bartholomew esq. c.E. of Castle Hill House, Ealing, Middlesex, is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The area is 766 acres; rateable value, £17,164; the population in 1881 was 993, but is now estimated at about 3,000.

INGATESTONE is an ancient town, consisting chiefly its bold detail and fine proportions: the nave, dating from of one street, of which the larger portion is in the parish of early in the 14th century, is the oldest portion of the build-fryerning and is situated on the ancient road from London ing: the chancel is of later date and has two floor slabs of to Chelmsford, with a station on the main line of the Great Eastern railway to Colchester and Ipswich, 23 miles from London, 6 south-west from Chelmsford, 5 north-east from Brentwood and 28 south-west from Colchester, in the Mid division of the county, Chelmsford hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Ingatestone, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The town is lighted with gas from works near the railway station, belonging to a limited company. The church of SS. Mary and Edmund is a building chiefly of brick in various styles, and consists of a chancel of three bays, with north and south chapels, nave of three bays, south aisle, north porch and a lofty brick tower at the west end, with a machicolated parapet, indented battlements, and low pinnacles at the angles, and containing a clock and 5 bells, dated 1610, 1660, 1701 and two 1758: the tower, a noble piece of brickwork, was raised in the 15th century and is remarkable for Purbeck marble, one of which has an inscription, in Lombardic letters of the 16th century, to Gertrude Tyrrell, of Warley: here also is the fine monument of Sir William Petre kt. Ll.D. ob. 13 Jan. 1572, and Anne (Browne), his second wife, consisting of an altar tomb, wrought in alabaster and other marbles, with superbly executed recumbent figures and above, the Petre arms, enriched with foliage and suspended over the tomb in an ornamental frame of iron: in the south chapel is a costly monument to Robert Petre, youngest brother of Sir William, ob. 1593, with his mail-clad effigy, kneeling under an arch supported on Corintian columns; near this is another mural monument with portrait in relief, to Captain John Troughton, ob. 1621: in the north and monuments to various members of this house from the 16th century to 1713: the handsome lectern was presented to the church by Edwin Caldecott esq. in memory of Ellen Caldenit, who died March 29, 1883. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, with the perpetul cursey of Buttsbury annexed, joint yearly value from tabe rent-charge £415, with 2 acres of glebe and residence, in the gelt of Lord Petre, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Chirles Earle B.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. Here is a Congregational chapel. Almshouses for twelve poor Cathorics were founded in 1557 by Sir William Petre kt. and rebut by William Henry Francis, 11th Baron Petre, in 140: the income is £184. In 1776 the Rev. Thomas Ralph left by will 20c. to be given in bread at Easter; in 1804 Resamed Bonham left the dividend of £100 £3 per Cent. Coxel for Sunday schools; in 1806 Mrs. Hunnah Rayner lett 150 Nary Fire per Cents, for the benefit of ten alms-base for the poor for ever: this last charity is now, however, merged in that of Sir William Petre. Fairs for black cattle are held here on the 1st and 2nd of December in each year. Ingatestone Hall, once a seat of the Petre family, is an ancient and irregular pile and one of the few fine man-sons of the olden time left in Essex, as, erected in the 15th century, it was a grange or summer residence, belonging to the Abbey of Barking, and was originally built with two qualrangles and a stately tower gateway, of which only thre also of the inner court now remain, an octagonal starcae turnet in the south-east corner of the quadrangle, browns one of its principal features; in 1855 a priests "hila; place" was discovered beneath a small room on the middle floor, down to which, through a trap in the for, an ancient ladder conducted; the mansion contains some ancient tapestry, exhibiting scripture subjects; an antique chest for vestments and other relies; it is now recapied by four Catholic families and attached is a chapel, deteated to SS. Erconwald and Ædelberga, with a resident prest. Trueloves, a handsome modern brick mansion in 1637, and his wife Catherine (Somerset), who erected this memerial, and died 30 October, 1624: there are other tombs and monuments to various members of this house from the town, is the residence of John G. and monuments to various members of this house from the town, is the residence of John G. and monuments to various members of this house from the town, is the residence of John G. The Hyde, the mansion of Mrs. Disney, widow of Edgar Disney esq. the son of the late John Disney esq. the munificent founder of the Disneium Museum, is now occupied by Lord Petre; it stands in well-planted grounds and the noble hall was built by Sir William Chambers in 1760. Lord Petre, who is lord of the manor, and the Disney trustees are the chief landowners. The area is 2,726 in the glf of Lord Petre, and held since 1836 by the Rev. Chiefe Eale B. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge.

KEDINGTON is a parish in Risbridge union, partly in this county, but principally in Saffolk. Full particulars will be found in Kelly's Directory of Suffolk. KELVEDON (anciently called EASTERFORD) is a parish and village, standing partly on rising ground on the north-meetings are held at the Angel Hotel monthly, on Thursday and village, standing partly on rising ground on the north-western bank of the river Blackwater, over which is a bridge of one arch leading to Inworth and on the ancient and main road from London to Colchester, 4 miles north-east from Witham, 8 south-east from Braintree, 8 north-east from Maldon and 3 south from Coggeshall, with a station on the Great Eastern railway, 42 from London, in the Eastern divi-sion of the county, Witham hundred and petty sessional division, Braintree union, Colchester county court district, rural deanery of Witham, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The village is lighted with gas by a company and supplied with water from private wells and pumps. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, south porch, and a western tower with shingled spire containing a clock and 5 bells: during the years 1876 and 1877 the church was restored by subscription at a cost of £3,000, the bells being rehung, a new pulpit erected, carved oak choir stalls and desk placed in the chancel and a new east window inserted: the chancel was restored at the cost of the late Sir Thomas Sutton Western bart. as lay rector. The register dates from the year 1556. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £500, with residence, and including 54 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1859 by the Rev. George Peter Bennett M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, and surrogate. Sir Thomas Charles Callis Western bart. of 21 Castletown Road, West Kensington, London s.w., is the impropriator of the great tithes. There is a Catholic chapel dedicated to Our Lady and St. Michael, adjoining which is a convent and orphanage with a school for young ladies, opened 28th June, 1888. There is also a Congregational chapel and a meeting house for the Society of Friends. The Freemasons east window inserted: the chancel was restored at the cost nearest the full moon. Charities amounting to £16 yearly, arising from lands in East Thorpe, are distributed in bread. Felix Hall, the property of Sir Thomas Charles Callis Western rein Hail, the property of Sir Thomas Charles Callis Western bart. and now occupied by Capt. Richard Beale Colvin B.A., J.P. is distant about a mile; it is a modern building, with a portice supported by six Corinthian pillars, and stands in a fine park of about 140 acres, affording a good view over the valley of the river Blackwater. Kelvedon is divided into two manors, of which the Bishop of London and Sir T.C. C. Western bart, are respectively lords; the latter is the chief landowner. The land is arable and mixed; subsoil, gravel and loam. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips, beans and peas and seeds. The parish contains an area of 3,167 acres of land and 13 of water; rateable value, £7,620; the population in 1881 was 1,537.

KIRBY (or KIRBY-LE-SOKEN), divided into Upper and Lower, is a parish, on a creek of Hanford Water, with a station at Kirby Cross on the Tendring Hundred branch of the Great Eastern railway, 69 miles from London, 22 miles west from Walton steamboat pier, 12 south-west from Harwich, 12 south-east from Manningtree and 15 east from Colchester; it is one of the three liberties called the "Sokens," the chief of which is at Thorpe, and is in the North Eastern division of the county, Tendring hundred, petty sessional division and union, Harwich county court district, rural deanery of Harwich, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. Kirby has a wharf on the creek. The church of St. Michael is an ancient structure of flint with stone dressings, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, one dated 1641, three 1729 and one 1778: a clock with two dials, the gift of the late Mrs. Shum, of Hill House, was placed in the tower in 1884: the main portion of the building is in the Early Decorated style, but the tower was added in the Perpendicular period: there are five stained windows, of which that at the east end was erected by R. Blanshard esq. in memory of his wife, who died in 1866: the chancel was restored in 1870 and the nave and aisles in 1873, at a cost of £3,000, chiefly through the liberality of Richard Blanshard esq. The register dates from the year 1681 and includes registrations from Walton-le-Soken, from 1798 to 1812. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £230, with 6 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Samuel William Stagg. The Wesleyan chapel will seat 100 persons. The Primitive Wesleyan chapel will seat 100 persons. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel at Kirby Cross, erected in 1873, with 150 sittings, and an iron room at Lower Kirby with seats for 80 persons. The charities comprise £100 South Sea annuities: the deeds were lost for a considerable period, during which time the interest doubled the original amount, Railway Station, Keppel Reeve, station master

Here also is a Congregational chapel. There are charities amounting to about £30, arising from a house and land, for the poor and for repairing the church. Bishop's Hall, in this parish, now the seat of Lieut.-Colonel Amelius Richard Mark Lockwood D.L., J.P. was once the residence of Henry le Despenser, the warlike bishop of Norwich : this prelate, bred to arms in Italy, in the service of Pope Adrian, also an Englishman, obtained the bishopric of Norwich as a reward for his services and held the see from 1370 to 1408; and in the reign of Richard the Second he suppressed the insurgent rising in the counties of Norfolk, Cambridge and Huntingdon against the capitation tax levied by parliament: he died in 1409. That portion of the parish called "Lambourne End" contains all that remains of Hainault Forest, a charming woodland of 314 acres awarded as a parish common by the Inclosure Commissioners in 1862. Lieut.-Colonel Lockwood D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is mixed; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 2,440 acres; rateable value, £4,493; the population in 1881 was 856. ABRIDGE is a hamlet on the London road, 12 miles north-west.

"Stay, passer-by.-Near this place lies John Locke. To our question,-What sort of man was he?-He answers that he was of middle rank and fortune, and was contented therewith; of learned tastes and habits; he only reached the pour of concerning his learning to the cause of truth above althings. You will discover this from his writings; and these will more faithfully exhibit to you the rest of his character than the suspected testimonial of an epitaph. Whaterer ritues he had, they were not enough to put forward as a matter of glory to him, nor as an example to thee. Let his faults be buried with him. If you seek an example of good life, you have one in the Gospel; would that there were nowhere any of bad life; of the shortness of life, you have an example (may it profit thee) both here and everywhere.

Leighs Priory, 2 miles south of Felsted, was founded by Sir Ralph Gernon in 1229, in the reign of Henry III. for canons and friers of the order of St. Augustine, and was dedicated to SS. Mary and John the Evangelist: it stood a little more than a mile north of the church, in the extreme part of the parish adjoining Felsted and had large and stately buildings and an extensive park and gardens; at the Dissolution in 1536, it was valued at £141 143. 8d. and was granted to Sir Richard Rich kt. Solicitor-General, and created in 1547 Baron Rich of Leeze or Leighs, who built an elegant banqueting house, laid out the gardens afresh, and added to the park; he afterwards formed a third, called "Little Leigh Park," and his posterity flourished here for upwards of a century in great splendour: after being the seat of the Duke of Buckingham it passed into the possession of Guy's Hospital, to which it still belongs: the governors of that charity on coming into possession, destroyed all the buildings save the gate house and a few other portions, now used as farm buildings: the 16th century porter's lodge and adjacent buildings are still used as a farm house, and inside the lodge, on the right of a square court, stands the fine gateway of the priory, a massive quadrangular edifice of red brick, in the Tudor style, consisting of three stories, with panelled and embattled turrets at the angles and in nearly as perfect a condition as when granted by Henry VIII. to Sir Richard Rich. John Badeley esq. of St. Helen's, Parkstone, Dorset, who is lord of the manor, Guy's Hospital and J. Corsbie Brown Corsbie esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 1,078 acres; rateable value, £999; and the population in 1881 was 125.

Letters from Chelmsford arrive at Great or Much Leighs 8.25 a.m. from whence they are immediately dispatched by foot messenger. Felsted is the nearest money order & telegraph office about £300, chiefly derived from the Ecclesiastical Commisand Queen Anne's Bounty, in the gift of the vicar of St. Mary's, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Charles Edmunds M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. Baptist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels, and a preaching room belonging to the Plymouth Brethren. branch of the Essex County Lunatic Asylum is situated in the parish. There is a metropolitan police station in the Lea Bridge road, and a volunteer fire brigade with a station in Church road. The almshouses belonging to the London Master Bakers' Pension Society are in the Lea Bridge road, and in the Church read are eight almshouses, of flint and Beer stone, bearing the following inscription: "These almshouses, at the request of the Rev. James Lunt M.A. vicar, were rebuilt on an improved plan in the year 1885, at the cost of the surviving members of the family of the late Mr. John Hibbert, being old inhabitants." There are charities producing £77 yearly, distributed in bread. Leyton was a Roman settlement and is supposed to be the site of the ancient Durolitum mentioned by Antoninus; many Roman antiquities, including the foundations of buildings, mortised timber, a subterranean arched gateway, wells and coins, both brass and silver, of the Consular and Imperial times, together with some silver Saxon pieces, were discovered in 1718, in the vicinity of the Manor house. Sir Thomas Roe, 1718, in the vicinity of the Manor house. of Magdalen College, Oxford, an oriental traveller and dip-lomatist and M.P. for Oxford University in 1640, was born here in 1580, and knighted at Whitehall, July 23rd, 1603; here in 1580, and knighted at Whitehau, July 2514, 1005, in 1614 he was sent as ambassador to the Great Mogul, and in 1621 to the Sultan of Turkey; he died 6 Nov. 1644. parish contains several fine old houses: Eltoe House, long the residence of the late Cardinal Wiseman (d. 15 Feb. 1865), is in Church road; Ruckholt House was formerly the seat of the Hicks family. The Rev. John Pardoe B.A. rector of Gravelly, Herts, is lord of the manor; the principal land-owners are J. B. Barclay esq. Earl Cowley and Samuel Courthope Bosanquet esq. of Dingestow Court, Monmouth. The area is 2,331 acres of land and 39 water; rateable value, £167,280; the population in 1861 was 4,794, in 1871, 10,394, and in 1881, 23,016, including Leytonstone. The population of Leyton local board district in 1881 was 27,c68.

KNOTTS GREEN and LEA BRIDGE are the names of localities hamlets: at the latter is a station on the Great Eastern railway, and at the former is Mr. J. G. Barclay's observatory.

At RUCKHOLTS, obscured by trees, are the remains of ancient entrenchments, with a square double embankment, 100 feet in diameter, secured by a moat.

LEYTONSTONE is an eastern suburb of London, LETTUNSTUNE is an eastern suburo of London, onemally a hamlet of Leyton, running parallel to it, with a statum on the Great Eastern railway and formed into a sparite ecclesistical parish Feb. 11, 1845, situated 2 miles each from West Ham and 54 from Whitechapel, on the mal from Stratford, through Epping Forest, to Epping and Onart, in the South Western division of the county. Bow county court, West Ham union, and in the rural deanery of Barking, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. It is in the Eastern Metropolitan postal district and within the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal court and Metropolican police. The church of St. John the Baptist, erected in 1833, is a building of white brick with stone dressings, in the Gothic style, consisting of small chancel and nave, north acl south perches, and a light and graceful western tower with four crocketed pinnacles and containing a clock and 6 bells: the east window is stained and there are memorial windows, one in each aisle, to the Rev. Henry Herbert Erans M.A. 19 years vicar, and to the late Mr. Wim. Davies: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1833. The hring is a vicarage, gross yearly value £304, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and hed suce 1874 by the Rev. William James Bettison M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, surrogate and chaplain of industrial schools.

HARROW GREEN is an ecclesiastical parish formed Feb. 11, 1879, from the parishes of Leytonstone, Leyton, Wanstead, West Ham and St. Paul, Stratford New Town. The church of the Holy Trinity, erected in 1878, at a cost of £6,600, is an elince of brick in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles and south porch: there are so settings, all free. The Sunday schools adjoining were excited in 184, at a cost of £2,300. The register dates from the year 1876. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly take £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Henry Ferdinand

Batti-combe T.A. E.C. L.

St. Andrew's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1887 from the parish of St. John the Baptist. The church, begun in 1336, is still (1890) in course of construction on a site given by the Cotton family, from funds partly subscribed, grants made by the members of the Cotton family and other grants from the Bishop of St. Albans' fund and the Incor-prated Church Building Society, at an estimated cost of 13,000: it is a builling of Kentish rag with Bath stone dressings, in the Gothic style, Sir Arthur W. Blomfield M.A., A.R.A., F.S.A. being the architect. The living is a vicarage, at present without endowment or residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1887 by the Rev. William Manning M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge.

The Congregational church, a handsome building of stone in the Lombardo-Gothic style, was erected in 1877-78, from deigne by Mr. J. Lewis Banks A.B. I. B. A. of Finsbury circus, at a cod, including site, of between £8,000 and £9,000: there are sittings for 1,000 persons. The London City Misse Hall, erected near the High street in 1885, at a cost of £3.000, has sittings for 400 persons. There is also a Wesof Methods thape in High road and a Baptist chape in Full proof and include road, built in 1877, attached to which is a school base and secture hall. In Wallwood road is a Presbyterian from about 1878. firen, church. St. Patrick's Catholic cemetery, of xx acres in extent, situated in Union road and formed in 1861, has
