MIDDLESEX.

MIDDLESEX is the metropolitan county of the British empire, mostly in the diocese of London and the province of Canterbury: it was anciently occupied by the Iberians and Britons and afterwards by the Belgic tribe of the Trinobantes, who were subdued by the Romans, who placed here one of their chief settlements in Britain. The county was one of the earliest conquests of the English, and obtained its present name of Middlesex, or the County of the Middle Saxons, from being between the kingdoms of the East and South Saxons and possibly of the North Saxons, and it was settled by the same clans as Surrey and the neighbouring counties: it seems to have been a distinct commonwealth, occasionally in subjection to the kings of the East Saxons, South Saxons and Mid-English.

Middlesex is an inland shore, but having many of the advantages of a sea province and of a port by its communication with the North Sea, through the broad channel of the Thames, the tides of which flow up it: it is the smallest county in England, excepting Rutland, and omitting Lancashire has the largest population; it is 28 miles in its greatest cross length from Waltham Abbey to Shepperton and 17 miles broad from South Mimms to the Isle of Dogs. Its superficial content is only 282 square miles, or 181,317 acres; but its population in 1851 was 1,886,576; in 1861 was 2,206,485; in 1871, 2,539,765; and in 1881, 2,920,485, viz.—1,367,692 males and 1,552,793 females; the population in the metropolitan area in 1881 was 2,555,556.

molitan area in 1881 was 2,550,556.

Middlesex is separated from Surrey and Kent on the south by the Thames, between Staines and Blackwall; from Essex on the east by the navigable Lee, from Waltham Abbey to Blackwall; from Buckinghamshire on the west, from Rickmansworth to Staines, by the navigable Colne; and by an irregular arbitrary boundary from Hertfordshire on the north.

This district forms part of the valley of the Thames and of the London Tertiary geological basin. The soil consists chiefly of London clay, with occasional patches of plastic clay and gravel, and is generally level, but with occasional hills of Bagshot sand, about 400 feet high, containing fossils, at Hampstead, Highgate, Hornsey and Harrow; a range of hills also extend along the Hertfordshire border; much of the soil is poor, but adjoining the rivers are rich tracts of alluvium of the most productive character; the cultivation chiefly consists of fruit and vegetables, for which the county has a high reputation. The fattening of cattle and the feeding of stock for the London market are carried on to a considerable extent. The mineral productions are limited, but the manufacture of bricks and tiles is enormous, particularly in the western districts.

The Thames, navigable in its entire length adjoining this county—in its upper part for small steamers, and for seagoing vessels of burthen in its lower part—runs for many miles, winding along the southern border and receiving the rivers of the county. The time of high water on the full and change of the moon at London docks is rh. 53min. and at London Bridge rh. 53min. the vertical rise of the tide at both points above the mean low water level of spring tides being at springs 20 ft. and at neaps 17 ft. This noble stream, which derives its name from the Iberians, is crossed by many bridges, some of the finest in the world. Those adjoining this county, from the mouth upwards, are London, Southwark (railway), Southwark, Blackfriars (railway), Blackfriars, Waterloo, Charing Cross (railway and foot), Westminster, Lambeth (suspension), Albert (suspension), Battersea, Battersea (railway), Wandsworth, Putney, Hammersmith (suspension), Barnes (railway), Kew (railway), Kew Richmond (railway), Kingston, Hampton (foot bridge), Kingston (railway), Kingston, Hampton Court, Walton, Chertsey, Staines (railway) and Staines; there is also a tunnel under the Thames at Rotherhithe (now utilised by the East London railway). The river contains many kinds of fish, as do its tributaries; great attention has lately been paid to the stocking and preserving of the river. The river in passing through London has been partly embanked, the Victoria embankment forming a noble promenade from Blackfriars to Westminster.

At the East end of the county are the London docks and the East and West India docks, with entrances from the Thames, and further down the river, but in Essex, are the Tilbury docks.

The Lee enters the county at Waltham Abbey and joins the Thames at Blackwall, being navigable in its whole course and turning many mills: the Lee Cut is an artificial course of the Lee, made parallel to the old stream and communicating with the docks and with the Thames at Limehouse and Blackwall.

The Colne is a navigable river, with many mills: a branch of the Colne, made in the reign of William III. runs to the south-west from Colnbrook to the Thames at Hampton.

The Brent takes its rise between the Hampstead and Stanmore hills and falls into the river Thumes at Brentford, after a course of about 18 miles, and is made navigable in its lower part. The Yedding brook rises between Harrow and Pinner, and after turning the powder mills at Cranford, pursues a circuitous course of 18 miles in all to the Thames at Isleworth.

The Fleet River (formerly navigable to Holborn Bridge), Walbrook, Langbourn, the Tye Bourne and many other streams are now covered up and are used for sewers.

The New River, an artificial cut made in the reign of James I. for supplying water to the northern portion of the metropolis, runs parallel to the Lee in the eastern parts from Theobald's Park, Herts, to Islington, a distance of 40 miles.

The Grand Junction Canal takes the course of the Colne from Rickmansworth by Uxbridge to West Drayton and thence by Hanwell to the Thames at Brentford. The Paddington and Regent's Canals form a communication with many branches through the centre of the county, from the Grand Junction Canal at Cranford to the Thames at Limebouse.

The radways include the metropolitan termini of the Eastern, Midtand, Northern and Western main lines.

In the east is the Blackwall line, having its terminus at Fenchurch street.

The Great Eastern has its terminus in Liverpool street, and by connection with the Midland at South Tottenham uses the Midland terminus at St. Pancrus: the Cambridge branch runs in a north-easterly direction and has stations at Lee Bridge, Tottenham and Ponder's End; a short branch from Edmonton runs to Entield, and a line through Hackney, Clapton, Tottenham, with extension to Wood Green (Palace Gates) and Edmonton, thence to Entield.

The Great Northern, having its terminus at King's Cross, has stations on the main line at Holloway, Finsbury Park, Harringay, Hornsey, Wood Green, New Southgate and New Barnet: from Finsbury Park is a line through Stroud Green, Crouch End, Highgate (with a branch to Muswell Hill), Finchley (with a branch to High Barnet) to Edgware, and from Wood Green a branch to Enfield.

The Midland Railway Company have a station (St. Pancras) almost adjoining the Great Northern in the Euston road, and their line occupies the country between the Great Northern and North Western lines, having stations at Camden road, Kentish Town, Haverstock Hill, Finchley road, Childs Hill, Hendon and Mill Hill; this company also work over a line from Kentish Town through Upper Holloway to South Tottenham, where a junction is formed with the Great Eastern (Cambridge) line.

The London and North Western has its magnificent terminus near Euston square and has stations at Camden (Chalk Farm), Kilburn, Willesden, Sudbury, Harrow and Pinner; and via Willesden has access to the City (Broad street) and also, by the line from Willesden to Kensington, with the whole of the South of England.

The Great Western, having its terminus at Paldington, has stations on its main line at Acton, Ealing, Hanwell, Southall, Hayes and West Drayton, with a branch to Uxbridge. This line has also a branch from Southall to the Thames, at Brentford, and runs trains over the West London railway to the Victoria station at Pimlico.

The West London and West London Extension railways connect at Willesden Junction the North Western, North London and Great Western railways with the South Western and other railways south of the Thames by Kensington and Clapham Junction.

The North London works in conjunction with the North and South Western junction from Kew Bridge and has stations at Acton, Hammersmith (branch), Willesden Junction, Kensal Green, Brondesbury, Finchley road, Hampstead Heath, Kentish Town, Gospel Oak, Camden Town, Chalk Farm, Barnsbury, Highbury, Canonbury, Mildmay Park, Dalston, Haggerston, Shoreditch and Broad street, City (terminus), also at Kingsland, Hackney, Homerton, Victoria Park, Old Ford, Bow, Poplar and Blackwall: it has connection at Willesden Junction and Chalk Parm with the North Western line; at Willesden Junction also with the West London and Southern railways; at Bow with the Tilbury and Southend line and at Stratford Bridge with the Great Eastern railway.

A portion of the county in the vicinity of the valley of the Thames is served by branches of the South Western, the terminus being at Waterloo road (in Surrey); the Windsor branch line crosses the Thames at Richmond, enters the county at Twickenham, and has stations at Twickenham, Feltham, Ashford and Staines; a branch from Twickenham has stations at Teddington (for Bushey Park) and Hampton Wick, and then crosses the Thames to Kingston in Surrey; the Thames Valley line also branches from Twickenham and has stations at Fulwell, Hampton, Sunbury and Shepperton. The Hampton Court station of the South Western, which is properly at Molesey, in Surrey, is the terminus of a small branch thrown off from the main line near Surbiton. The loop line, leaving the Windsor branch at Barnes Common, enters the county at Chiswick, and has stations there and at Kew Bridge, Brentford, Isleworth and Hounslow, rejoining the Windsor branch near There is also a line from Hammersmith on the Feltham. West London railway to Turnham Green, Brentford Road. crossing the Thames below Kew Bridge to Kew Gardens and Richmond: on this line trains run from Waterloo to Richmond.

Most of the southern lines also have stations within the county: the Brighton line at Victoria for the West end of London; the South Eastern at Charing Cross for the west and Cannon street for the City; and the London, Chatham and Dover (St. Paul's) at Ludgate Hill and Holborn Viaduc.

The East London railway extends from Wapping through the Thames Tunnel to New Cross, where it has connection with the London and Brighton and South Eastern railways.

The Metropolitan line is mostly an underground line, with stations at Deptford road, Rotherhithe, Wapping, Shadwell, St. Mary's, Whitechapel, Aldgate, Bishopsgate street, Moor gate street, Aldersgate street, Farring lon street, King's Gross, Gower street, Portland road, Baker street (whence starts the St. John's Wood branch), Edgware road and Paddington, where it joins the Great Western, some of the trains of which run along this line to the City, and the line has been extended to Harrow and Pinner, thence to Rickmansworth (Herts) and Chesham (Bucks); and from King's Cross both the Milland and Great Northern Companies communicate with the City by this line, as also the London, Chatham and Dover railway at Aldersgate street. Hammersmith and City Junction, an extension of this line. runs by Notting Hill, Latimer road and Shapherd's Bush to Hammersmith; a branch connects this line with Kensington, and by the West London with the railways north and south of the Thames: from Edgware road is the line to Bayswater and South Kensington. The Metropolitan district runs from Whitechapel along the Thames embankment, having stations at the Mansion House, Blackfriars, Temple, Westminster, Victoria (with a subway to the lines to the south), St. James' park, Sloane square, Gloucester road, South Kensington, Earl's Court, West Kensington, Hammersmith and Shaftesbury road, whence there is a branch to Richmond and another to Ealing and Hounslow: a short branch runs from Earl's Court to Putney Bridge.

Including, as Middlesex does, the Metropolis, it is the seat of manufactures of many kinds, but which, being chiefly seated in the Metropolis, can scarcely be described, except in connection with it. Other occupations are brick and tile making: there are gunpowder mills, known as the Hounslow mills, at Twickenham and at Bedfont; malting, distil-

ing and soap making.

The market towns, exclusive of the Metropolis, are Uxbridge, for corn; Brentford, for corn; Southall, for cattle and sheep; Staines, for corn; and South Mimms, Barnet, part of which is in this county, may be considered a Middlesex town, and is celebrated for its horse and cattle fair

Many of the parishes approach the size of towns.

The Metropolis, which was a Roman station, is the capital of the county, where the civil and criminal courts are held; but the election of coroners for the county is held at Brentford, which for such purposes is the county town.

The county has one court of general and quarter sessions and is divided into 17 petty sessional divisions, exclusive of the City of London, and 18 lieutenancy sub-divisions, of which the City is one, the 17 others being identical with the Petty sessional divisions.

The Militia of the City and of the Tower Hamlets is distinct from the county militia, and is raised and regulated under special statutes.

The county is within the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal Court and, with the exception of the City, of the Metropolitan Police.

The City of London forms a county of itself, with independent jurisdiction; the City of Westminster has independent jurisdiction; the Duchy of Lancaster has within it several domains; and the lieutenant of the Tower of London has a separate jurisdiction.

With the exception of part of Stanwell parish, which is in the diocese of Oxford, the county is in the diocese of London, divided into the archdeaconry of London, sub-divided into the rural deaneries of East City, West City, Hackney, St. Sepulchre, Shoreditch, Spitalfields and Stepney; and Middlesex archdeaconry, sub-divided into the rural deaneries of Chelsea, Ealing, Entitled, Fulham, Hampton, Harrow, Higggate, Kensington, Marylebone, Paddington, St. George (Hanover square), St. James (Westminster), St. John's (Westminster), St. Margaret's (Westminster), St. Martin's in the Fields, St. Pancas, Staines and Uxbridge, and contains 222 civil parishes.

The Metropolis contains the chief seats of the Crown, legislature, government and ecclesiastical authorities and a University. At Hampton Court is a royal palace, but not used as such; at Harrow one of the great public schools; at Twickenham a training college; and at Mill Hill a Dissenting grammar school and a Catholic Foreign Missionary college. Hounslow is a considerable military and ordnance station and at Enfield there is a government manufactory for small arms, for which there is a station on the Great Eastern railway.

The public parks in the county, irrespective of those immediately within the Metropolis, are Victoria Park at Hackney, Finsbury Park at Holloway, and Bushey Park, Hampton Court; in addition there is the extensive heath at Hampton

GEOLOGY OF MIDDLESEX.

THE geological structure of the county of Middlesex is perhaps better known than that of any other English county. This arises in part from its being the metropolitan county, and consequently the residence of numerous workers in science.

The whole surface has been mapped by the Geological Survey, and described in a full and admirable "Memoir on the Geology of the London Basin," by Mr. W. Whitaker and his colleagues. Messrs. Prestwich, Searles Wood, Edwards, Col. Lane Fox, J. Evans and others have also done good work among its rocks. Many useful papers have been published by the Geologists' Association, whose head-quarters are at Univerity College, Gower street, and whose members make weekly excursions to places of geological interest in the neighbourhood of the metropolis, varied by occasional longer visits to more distant places. In the Geological Museum in Jermyn street, the student will not only find more extensive collections of rocks and fossils, but also an admirable model of London and the neighbourhood, constructed by Mr. T. B. Jordan, showing the combined geological and topographical features of about 165 square miles.

It may be useful to give first a table of the various beds of rock which occur at the surface in Middlesex, together with their maximum thickness in this area:

	Feet.
Alluvium (Recent rivor deposits)	15
Post-glacial Beds (Brick-earth, gravel &c.)	50
Glacial drift (Boulder-clay, gravel &c.)	80
Lower Bagshot Sands	100
London Clay	420
Woolwich and Reading Beds	90
Chalk with flints	800

briefly describe them in turn, in ascending order.

THE CHALK—So little of the surface of Middlesex is occupied by this rock that at first sight it seems scarcely worth mentioning. We find this rock just entering the county on the eastern side of the Colne Valley, near Harefield, and again for a very small distance on the north-west side of South Mimms. If, however, we examine the dip or inclination of the chalk beds which extend north-wards from the above-named places until they form the Chiltern Hills, we shall find it is towards the south and east. Then going southwards into Kent and Surrey we see the chalk of the North Downs dipping to the north and west. This leads us to think that the beds which form these two lines of hills are continuous beneath the surface, and, indeed, as a matter of fact, we know that they are, for deep wells and borings show that anywhere in Middlesex the chalk may be reached at depths never exceeding 400 or 500 feet, and usually much less.

THE WOOLWICH AND READING BEDS. — These are plastic clays and mottled sands, which rest upon the chalk: we can trace them from a point about two miles north of Uxbridge, by Harefield, and again in the lane-cutting near South Mimms. An inlying mass is exposed at Pinner, Ruislip, and Ruislip Wood; at the latter point the junction with the chalk beneath may be seen in several pits.

The London Clay.—This well-known bed forms much the greater part of the surface of the county; it is a stiff brown or bluish clay, in which occur at intervals layers of septaria, which are rounded nodules of impure carbonate of The colour of the clay at the surface is always brown, for the carbonate of iron, which tinges the lower beds blue. changes to brown peroxide of iron when exposed to the action of the atmosphere. Where the London Clay rests upon the Reading Beds the junction is marked by green and yellow sands, containing rounded flint pebbles. This is the "basement bed," and is only a few feet thick; it contains numerous fossils, as fish-teeth, shells &c. The upper part of the London clay is somewhat sandy, and good bricks are made from it: in thickness it increases as we follow it eastwards, so that under London it is from 400 to 440 feet thick. It is exposed in numerous brick yards, but fossils are not to be easily found: they seem to occur in bands, certain levels being very productive, whilst above and below they are scarce or wanting. In the various railway and road cuttings on the north of London, especially in the neighbourhood of Highgate, many beautiful fossils have been found, and in the brickyards here and at Hampstead good specimens still occasionally occur.

The fossils of the London clay indicate a rather warm climate; thus numbers of fossil turtles occur, with the fruits of palms &c. true crocodiles also, and such shells as Nautilus, Conus, Voluta &c. which now inhabit warm or even tropical waters. Mr. W. H. Shrubsole F.O.S. has lately detected a thin but very constant layer in which diatoms mineralized by iron pyrites occur.

THE BAGSHOT BEDS.—Of the sandy strata which bear this name just a corner of the main mass enters the southwest of Middlesex in the neighbourhood of Littleton. Formerly, however, it stretched continuously over the London clay, and in proof of this we still find outlying masses forming the upper part of Harrow, Hampstead, and Highgate Hills, each of which is a marked feature of the landscape. There are several pits on the well-known gorse-covered heath at Hampstead in which we may see fine brown sands, with occasional thin layers of clay. The junction of these sandy beds with the London clay beneath is well marked by the boggy ground and by the springs which issue forth, as in the field just west of Rosslyn House. The rain falling on the surface percolates through the sands until it reaches the underlying clay, which is impervious; it then flows along the line of junction until it comes out on the hill side. ~

The Bagshot Sands are almost, if not quite, unfossiliferous, GLACIAL DRIFT.—The beds we have now to describe are far more complicated and difficult to map and measure th any of the older formations. After the deposit of the B shot Sands, the surface of Middlesex either continued dry land for many long ages, or if it was submerged trocks which were deposited upon it were afterwards remov by denudation. Probably the former of these hypotheses the more correct, for the surfaces of the older rocks she evidences of having been long exposed to the action of t

The deposits which we term glacial drift rest irregular upon all or any of the older rocks; they contain (in Midd sex at least) no fossils except such as have been washed o of earlier deposits, and many of the included rock-fra ments are polished and scratched in a manner which can most reasonably accounted for by the action of ice. Stammore Heath, south-east of Shenley, and west and nor of Barnet; they resemble the far older pebble-beds of the Bagshot Sands, but are distinguished by the presence of pebbles of quartz and quartzite mingled with others of fining The Middle Glacial Beds are formed of sand and grave sometimes with masses of clay interspersed; they strete southwards as far as Finchley, and may also be seen as Hendon, Southgate, Colney Hatch, Whetstone, Muswel Hill, and near Harefield. Above them comes the Great Chalky Boulder Clay, which is probably the deposit left by a great glacier stretching southwards as far as the norther edge of the Thames Valley: it is a dark bluish grey cla crammed with fragments of all kinds of rocks, especial lumps of hard chalk, and contains quite a collection of fossils rubbed out of older rocks. It may be studied in th brickyards at Finchley, and at Southgate, Enfield, an Potters Bar.

POST-GLACIAL DEPOSITS.—When the cold period during which the glacial beds were deposited had begun to amelio rate, and when the glaciers retreated far to the northward the Thames Valley would probably present the appearance of a sloping plain, the hollows having been filled up by th deposits just described. Soon, however, the river began it work of re-excavation, and, by the immense quantity of matter which it has since removed and carried downward into the North Sea, has proved its power as an agent cerosion, although it is true that the time we must allow i for the execution of this task must be reckoned in thousand of centuries. The post-glacial deposits may also be termed "River Drifts," for they were all formed by the rivers when the latter ran at much higher elevations than they do a present. At this period, owing to an elevation of the land England was certainly a part of the continent of Europe and the Thames ran across the plain which now forms th bed of the North Sea to join the Rhine. In the beds of gravel, sand, and brick-earth then deposited by the Thames along its sides, we find the remains of huge animalsmammoth, rhinoceros, hippopotamus, with the hyena, wolf lion, bear, &c., which must have crossed over when as ye the Straits of Dover had no existence. With them, too, we find the first traces of man in the form of the flint imple ments rudely fashioned by him. The brick-carths of this period may be seen in the pits at West Drayton and Southal (where they are underlain by gravel), Hanwell (west of Asylum), Acton, Halliford, Highbury, Stoke Newington, Tottenham, Ponder's End &c.

ALLUVIUM.—Under this term we include the deposits o mud and loam with occasional seams of gravel, which border the present streams, and which have evidently been formed by their overflowing in times comparatively recent in fact, the formation of such deposits is still going on. Such is the character of the Thames bank between Westminster and Vauxhall bridges, and similar deposits occur along the course of the Colne and Lee.

SCENERY .- In the north and north-west of Middlesex the Woolwich and Reading beds form a flat narrow surface, rising but little above the chalk. In turn the former are surmounted by the London clay, which forms a chain of low hills along the northern limit of the county, rising to a height of 505 feet on Stammore Common, 440 feet at Brockley Hill, and 341 feet at Muswell Hill, and from these points slopes gently southwards. On this slope we find the outliers of Bagshot sand already named at Harrow (405 feet), Highgate (426 feet), and Hampstead (443 feet), constituting the only well-marked features of the surface of the county.

WATER SUPPLY.-Until a late period the beds of gravel and sand forming the glacial and post-glacial beds yielded a considerable amount of water, by means of shallow wells, to the towns and villages situated upon them, and many houses still derive a supply from these contaminated source Within the last half century, however, numerous deep wells have been sunk to the chalk, which yields an excellent supply of pure though hard water. The sections show the absence in the one case and com- in 1868. In the gravels at Ealing Dean and Acton, Col. paratire thinness in the other of the Lower Greensand, a formation which it was hoped would furnish a supply of water ample enough, perhaps, for the wants of the metro-polis. The presence of rocks of Devonian age is, however, of the deepest interest, and confirms the views held by Messrs. Prestwich and Godwin-Austen, that a ridge of old rocks ranges below the surface in the neighbourhood of London, connecting the rocks of Belgium with those of Somerset, and affording hopes of concealed coal-fields under the south-east of England. The Devonian beds pierced in the Tottenham Court Road boring were red and green shales, dipping at an angle of 30 degrees, and containing fossils (spirifera &c.), which show them to belong to the Upper Devonian period, resembling the Eifelian type. After penetrating about 70 feet of these shales, the boring was given up, as, after their age was once determined, it would have been useless to continue it.

PREHISTORIC MAN .- The earliest traces of man are the roughly-fashioned flint implements found in the gravel beds along the sides of the river valleys at heights of from 50 to 80 feet above the existing streams. Since the formation of these deposits the rivers have had time to excavate the valleys so much deeper, a fact which is alone sufficient to

The gravels of Hackney Down have yielded an oval flint implement, and Mr. Evans found one somewhat similar in the brick-pit at Highbury New Park, near Stoke Newington,

Lane Fox found numerous specimens at depths of from 7 to 13 feet. These earliest of all tools are only roughly-fushioned nodules of flint, and are considered to belong to the Paleolithic (old stone) age. There is a fine specimen in the British Museum, which was found in Gray's Inn Lane, with the bones of an elephant, as long ago as the end of the seventeenth century: it is of a pointed form, 6 inches long by 4 inches wide at the butt. From the gravels, which in the north of London form a terrace about 70 feet above sealevel, Mr. W. G. Smith has with great industry collected 113 perfect palaeolithic implements, besides some 1,400

To the Newer Stone age (Neolithic period) belongs the polished celt (axehead) of grey flint found during the main drainage works for London, and now in the British Museum. It is 7 inches long, and tapers from 2 inches at edge to 1 inch at butt. Flint flakes, evidently fabricated by man, and used as knives, have been found at Teddington, and a large and well trimmed tlake, which seems to have been designed for a spearhead, was found by the Rev. J. C. Clutterbuck on Hounslow Heath. These things, in fact, are commoner than is usually supposed, and if educated people generally were to make themselves acquainted with the forms of these prehistoric implements, so as to recognize them at sight, it cannot be doubted that many fresh discoveries would be made.

ACTON is a metropolitan suburban parish, situated on a slight eminence, with stations on the Great Western, North London and District railways, 5 miles west from the Marble Arch, on the Oxford road, and is in the Ealing division of the county, Kensington division of Ossulstone hundred, Brentford union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Ealing, archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London: the parish is in the West London police court district and Western Metropolitan postal district, and is governed by a local board of 12 members, formed in 1886, by whom a system of drainage has been carried out at a cost of orer [85,000; it is lighted with gas from works situated at Brentford, the property of the Brentford Gas Company. The church of St. Mary, rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1865, is a building of red brick with stone dressings, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, north porch and an embattled tower at the south-west angle, re-erected in 1877 by Mr. F. Ouvry and members of his family, in memory of their sister, Miss Francisca Ingram Ouvry, and containing a clock and 8 bells, recast at the same date: the carved heads in the arch of the west doorway of the tower are copies from old pictures of Richard Baxter and Sir Matthew Hale kt. chief justice of the King's Bench, both for some time inhabitants of Acton: there are many handsome stained windows, the gifts of parishioners: the ancient font remains, and all the monuments from the former church have been replaced; these include a memorial to Anne, wife first of Sir Thomas Southwell kt. and afterwards of Henry Sibthorpe esq. who died in 1636, and others to Catherine (Hambler) relict of Richard Fust, and second wife of Edward, first Viscount Conway, principal Secretary of State to James I. and Charles I.; she died in 1639; Mrs. Elizabeth Barry, the actress, d. 7 Nov. 1713; Robert Adair esq. inspector general of hospitals, d. 1790, and Lady Caroline (Keppel), his wife: the communion plate, given by Alice Lady Dudley in 1640, includes a finely wrought flagon: several brasses formerly in the church are now lost: there are 950 sittings: in the churchyard is buried William Aldridge, who died in 1693, aged 114. The register of baptisms dates from 1539; marriages and burials, 1566: they contain references to Philip Skippon, the Parliamentary general, and the Rous family, as well as to soldiers killed in action near here. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £1,037 os. 1od. with residence, built about 1725, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1869 by the Rev. Charles Musgrave Harrey M.A. of Christ Church, of this parish was Daniel Featley, 1627, who was turned out of his rectory house by the Parliamentary soldiers, and in 1642 deprived of this living and that of Lambeth; he was succeeded by Philip Nye, the Puritan, mentioned in Butler's "Hudibras," a member of the assembly of divines, and in 1653 one of the triers of public preachers; he was ejected at the Restoration, when Charles II. appointed Dr. Bruno Ryves, his chaplain, dean of Chichester and author of "Mercurius Rusticus," a narrative of Royalists' sufferings; he was afterwards dean of Windsor and of Wolverhampton, and dying at Windsor, 13 July, 1677, was buried in St. George's Chapel; Dr. Edward Parry, late archdeacon of Canterbury and Bishop of Dover, rector here 1859-69. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, now (1890) being enlarged. The Baptist chapel, in Church road, is a large structure of brick erected in 1865 at a cost of about £2,000, and will seat 750 persons. The Congregational church, Churchfield road west, is a fine stone building in the Pointed style with about 600 sittings, and has a large hall adjoining. The Goldsmiths' Almshouses, situated in Churchfield road east, are well endowed, and contain ten married couples and ten widows. Steyne Almshouses, six in number, erected in 1793 by Joseph Grantham, were entirely rebuilt in 1887 by public subscription at a cost of £1,150. Dickenson's charity was left by Edward Dickenson and consists of one-third of the interest of £5,000, to be distributed annually among three poor and industrious couples married in the year preceding. The general charities, including the above, for clothing, fuel, bread, distribution and other purposes, amount to yearly. The Central hall, Priory Board schools, is a large room, about 80 feet square, used for public assemblies, and will hold 600 persons. will hold 600 persons. Among the distinguished persons formerly resident here may be mentioned Richard Baxter, the Nonconformist divine, who lived here in 1664 in a house near the church, now pulled down, in which he wrote his "Saints' Rest;" it was afterwards purchased by Chief Justice Sir Matthew Hale, who lived till his death, 25 Dec. 1676, in a house on the site of the present Acton House; Major General Philip Skippon and Anna Maria (Webb), wife of James, third Earl of Derwentwater, executed 24 Feb. 1715, also resided here; at Fordhook lived Henry Fielding the novelist, whose house was afterward tenanted by Lady Byron: the poet's only daughter, Ada, was married in the drawing-room, 8 July, 1835, to Lord King, now Earl of Lovelace; and at Fairlawn lived John Bowyer Nichols F.S.A. the antiquary, d. at Ealing, 19 Oct. 1863. John Lindley F.R.S., Ph.D. the distinguished botanist, died at East Acton, 1 Nov. 1865, and Sir John Vaughan, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, at Acton, 10 Dec. 1674; other residents were Sir Charles Scarborough kt. M.D. physician to Charles II. d. 1696; Philip Thicknesse, the eccentric author, d. at Boulogne, 19 Nov. 1792; and Col. James Cunningham, who served in all Queen Anne's wars, and died in 1774 at the age A procession of 300 coaches from the city of London met Cromwell at Acton on his return from the battle of Worcester, September 3, 1651, and presented him with a congratulatory address; at Acton Green, on the southern side of the parish, an encounter took place, 15 Nov. 1642, between the Parliamentary forces under the Earl of Essex and the army of King Charles I. in which the latter took 500 prisoners. At the east end of High street, Acton, is Berrymede Priory, once the site of a religious house containing upwards of forty nuns, and some time the residence of William Savile, second Marquess of Halifax, who died here 31st August, 1700: it was afterwards held by Evelyn, first Duke of Kingston, and during his tenancy was frequently visited by George II. and at a later period by Sir G. E. L. Bulwer Lytton bart, the distinguished novelist and statesman, and subsequently created (1866) Baron Lytton of Knebworth: the mansion is a picturesque building in a modern style of Gothic, and since about 1886 has served as a Conservative club for the Ealing division of Middlesex attached are grounds of about 3 acres. The Ecclesiastical attached are grounds of about 3 acres. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor. The waste lands of the parish, now under the control of the local board, are fenced in and planted with trees for the recreation of the inhabitants. In 1887, the local board purchased from the Goldsmiths' Company, at a cost of £17,000, 21 acres of land, which have been laid out at a cost of £2,000. The parish contains 2,297 acres; rateable value, £131,666; the population in 1871 was 8,306, and in 1881, 17,110, rapidly increasing, owing to extensive building operations.

Parish Clerk, Henry Mitchell.

SOUTH ACTON, which has a station on the North London railway, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish June 27th, 1873. The church of All Saints, situated in Bollo Bridge road, and consecrated 26th September, 1872, is an edifice of red brick in the Florid Gothic style, and consists of chancel, nave of tive bays, with clerestory, aisles, south porch and a tower at the south-west angle with lofty spire containing a clock and 8 bells: the whole of the windows are stained, and there are sittings for 750 persons. The register dates from the year 1872. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Andrew Hunter Dunn M.A. formerly scholar of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. Here is a temporary Catholic chapel, dedicated to the Church of Our Lady. South Acton parish hall, Bollo Bridge road, erected in 1886, has an area of 32 by 75 feet, and is used for Sunday school purposes and public assemblies: it will hold 350 persons. The population of the parish in 1881 was 7,195.

East Acton, I mile north-east, is a hamlet of Acton and was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1879. Acton Wells House is 2 miles north-east, near the North London railway and Wormwood Scrubbs: here are three unineral springs, which were in great repute about the middle of the last century. The church of St. Dunstan, built in the year 1879 by the Goldsmiths' Company, is a modern edifice of red brick with stone dressings in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and one bell: there are 750 sittings, half of which are free. The register dates from the year 1879. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £500, with residence, in the gift of the Goldsmiths' Company, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Thomas Miller Hayter M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge.

ACTON GREEN, which has a station on the District railway, was formed into an ecclesiastical district June 17th, 1888, out of Acton parish. The church of St. Albun the Martyr, situated on the Green, is an edifice of red brick in the Early English style, consisting of temporary chancel, permanent nave, clerestory, aisles, baptistery and north and south porches: the east window, presented by the parents of the present vicar, and another are stained: there are 730 sittings. The register dates from 1888. The living is a vicarage, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1888 by the Rev. George Henley Manbey M.A. of Keble College, Oxon. The vicarage is now (1890) in course of erection.

and 8 children, dated 1525, and one in the vestry to George Henry, 7th Earl of Kinnoull, d. 28 July, 1758: there are 530 sittings. The original church of St. Michael was an Early Norman structure, situated somewhat further eastward, but was removed in 1796 and replaced by a plain edifice of brick, with a tall spire: in the churchyard is a fine yew tree and a tomb inscribed to the Rev. John Jebb D.D. Dean of Cashel. The register dates from the year 1699. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £90; net yearly value £125, including 13½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Frederick Clements Williamson B.A. of Pembroke College, and chaplain to the Marquess of Breadalbane. The land is the property of many small owners. The soil is gravelly; subsoil gravel. The chief crops are oats, wheat, barley turnips and peas. The parish comprises 1,392 acres of land; rateable value, £10,655; the population in 1881, including 797 persons in the West London district schools and 144 in the Welsh school, was 2,281.

florist, Feltham Hill road

East Bedfort is a village and parish situated on the Great peacocks, and celebrated by Hood in his poem called the Western road, I mile north-west from Feltham station on "Peacocks of Bedfort:" one bears the date 1704 and the Western road, I mile north-west from Feltham station on the Windsor branch of the London and South Western railway, 15 miles from London, 3 north-east from Staines and 21 south-west from Hounslow, in the Uxbridge division of the county, Spelthorne hundred and petty sessional division, Staines union, Chertsey county court district, and in the rural deanery of Hampton, archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London. The church of St. Mary is an edifice of of chancel, nave of two bays, aisles, modern north transept, south porch and a wooden tower on the south side, with a dwarf spire and containing 6 fine-toned bells: in the chancel are two mural paintings, representing "The Crucifixion" and "The Last Judgment," which are considered to be of the late 13th or early 14th century; here also is a small brass, with the effigy of a man in the costume of the Jacobean period: the south doorway, the chancel arch and one window in the chancel are Norman: in the nave is a double recess: there is a memorial window in the south wall to the Rev. H. Engleheart, who died in 1885: in the churchyard, on the south side of the church, are two fine yew trees, trained and clipped to resemble two other the initials of the then vicar and churchwardens, I. H., I. G., R. T.; and their united branches form an arch in front of the porch: the church was thoroughly restored in 1866, and has now 326 sittings. The register dates from the year 1650. The living is a vicarage, yearly tithe rentcharge £327, with 16 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1871 by the Rev. Nicholas Gee Pilkington M.A. of University College, Durham: the Ecclesiastical Commissioners are the appropriators of the great tithes, amounting to 1619. A hall for public meetings, seating about 400 persons, was erected in 1884 by the Redfort Public Hall Company Limited. On the Sion House stream, at the eastern extremity of the parish, are powder mills. Here is Spelthorne Sanatorium, opened January, 1878, for the reformation of women who have fallen into habits of intemperance: the institution will hold 20 patients, who are employed in laundry and needlework: adjoining is the London and County Industrial School for girls, opened November 15th, 1881, an institution maintained on the cottage system and available for 15 inmates: in the rear of the Sanatorium is a small iron chapel for the use of both establishments, which are controlled by a committee of Sub-Office at Hatton.—Mrs. Graham, receiver. management, which includes the vicar. This place is supposed to have been a Roman station; coins, urns and human remains have been found near it in considerable quantities. The Duke of Northumberland x.o. is lord of the manor, and Lady Pollock, Christ's Hospital, London, and the Misses Sherborn are chief landowners. The soil is gravel; subsoil, gravel. The crops are chiefly garden produce. The area is 1,000 acres of land; rateable value, £9,657; the population in 1881 (including Hatton) was 1,452.

HATTON is a hamlet, a mile and a half north-east, where there is a mission room, licensed by the Bishop of London for public worship. Here is Temple-Hatton, the seat of Lady Pollock, widow of the Rt. Hon. Sir F. Pollock bart. and lord chief baron of the Exchequer (d. 1870).

BEDFORD PARK is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in the Queen Anne style, introduced by Richard Norman 31 Oct. 1879 from the parishes of Chiswick, All Saints South Shaw esq. R.A. A parish room, with class and work rooms Acton and St. George, Old Brentford, in the Ealing division and a soup kitchen, has been erected in the same style as of the county, Brentford petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Ealing, archdeacoury of Middlesex and diocese of London. The parish is included in the local board districts of Acton and Chiswick. There is a station here on the London and South Western railway. The church of St. Michael and All Angels, built in 1880, at a cost of £7,000, is a structure of brick in the Queen Anne style, and consists of chancel and nave, under a single roof with dormer lights, south aside, a large transeptal north porch and a square open turret near the west end, containing one bell: a north aisle has also been erected, but is not yet furnished: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from furnished: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1880. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value 6200, chiefly contributed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Alfred Wilson M.A. of St.
Peter's College, Cambridge.
The district lies between Kew Bridge and Uxbridge roads. The houses are mostly built

BOWES PARK, partly in the parish of Edmonton, but mostly within the local board district of Wood Green, has a station on the Enfield branch of the Great Northern railway, and was formed Nov. 21, 1873, as a consolidated chapelry out of Southgate and Tottenham; it is in the Tottenham division of the county, petty sessional division and county court district of Edmonton, rural deanery of Enfield, arch-deaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London, and is in the Northern Metropolitan postal district, 6 miles from London. The church of St. Michael, Palmerston road, is of stone in the Early English style, from designs by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. consecrated 21st April, 1874; it consists of chancel, nave of four bays, with clerestory, aisles, transepts, sour porch and a turnet on the south side, containing one bell: the chancel contains sedilia and a marble reredos representing "The Last Supper:" the stained east window is a memorial to Mrs. Page, who died in 1871, and two others recently (1890) erected to commemorate the late Alderman Thomas Sidney J.P. Lord Mayor of London 1853-4: there are sittings for about 600

BRENTFORD. NEW and OLD

Hanwell and Ealing; New (West) Brentford being in the former, and Old (East) Brentford in the latter parish, and derives its name from its situation on the navigable river Brent, which here runs into the Thames, uniting it with the Grand Junction canal, and is crossed by a bridge of one arch: the town commences 6 miles west from Hyde Park corner, and the South Western railway has a station here 103 miles from Waterloo; the Great Western Railway station is close to Brent bridge, on the west; the North London railway has also access to the Town at Kew bridge, and there is a third station at Boston road on the Metropolitan district railway to Hounslow: Brentford has been the county town for elections since 1701, and is in the Brentford division of the county, the head of a petty sessional division and county court district, in the rural deanery of Ealing, archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London.

The town consists principally of one street, a mile and a quarter long, running parallel with the river Thames, bounded on the west by the Brent bridge, and on the east by Strand-on-the-Green and Turnham Green. The river scenery at this point is agreeably diversified by the wooded island called "Brentford Eyot," a long and narrow piece of waste land now thickly overgrown. A local board of health, consisting of 12 members, was formed in 1874, and the metropolitan police have jurisdiction here. It is lighted with gas by the Brentford Company, formed in 1821, and supplied with water by the Grand Junction Water Works Company.

Brentford is divided into three ecclesiastical districts: St. George's and St. Paul's, Old Brentford, are in Ealing parish, and St. Lawrence, New Brentford, in Hanwell parish.

The church of St. George, Old Brentford, pulled down in 1886, was a plain rectangular structure of brick, erected about 1769 by the Trimmer family, and consecrated in 1828 as the church of a new ecclesiastical district formed November 18th, 1828, out of the parish of Ealing. The new church of the same name, erected at a cost of  $\xi_7,\infty$  and consecrated in March, 1887, is a building of Kentish rag stone and brick, with Bath stone dressings, in the Decorated

BRENTFORD is a market and union town in the parishes of | F.S.A. architect, and consists of chancel, with chapel, nave, aisles, south porch and an octagonal bell turret, and affords 700 sittings. The register dates from the year 1828. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Ealing, and held since 1877 by the Rev. William Templeton King M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin

St. Paul's, Old Brentford, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed July 12th, 1864, out of St. George's and St. Mary's, Ealing. The church, erected in 1867-8, at a cost of £7,000, is a structure in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a tower at the south west angle with a lofty spire and containing a clock and 2 bells, and will seat 700 persons: the font, of alabaster and marble, on a Caen stone base and with a canopy of carved marble, on a Caen stone base and with a canopy of carreed oak, was presented in 1800, in memory of Maria, wife of Stephen Walker, of Park Lodge, Brentford: the stained east and west windows are memorials, and there is a fine organ, procured at a cost of  $\mathcal{L}_{1,000}$ . The register dates from the year 1868. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value  $\mathcal{L}_{300}$ , with residence, in the gift of the Crown and the libbon of London siterrietly and held singer 1868. Bishop of London alternately, and held since 1864 by the Rev. Peter Brownell Drabble M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford.

St. Laurence, New Brentford, situated near the bridge at the west end of the town, was rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, which is very ancient, in 1764: it consists of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, one of which is ancient and supposed to be among the earliest of those cast in England: in the church is a monument by Flaxman to Dr. Ewin, d. 1804, and another to William Noy, Attorney-General in the reign of Charles I. and originator of the famous tax called "Ship Money," ob. August 6, 1634: there are other memorials to Maurice de Berkeley, a great benefactor to the church; Luke Sparks, comedian, d. 1768; Henry Giffard, theatrical manager, d. 1772, and Anna Mascella, his wife, d. 1777, and to the Clitherow and Spencer families: the interior of the church was restored in 1889 and a new vestry and parish room erected: on the south side is a memorial window to style, from designs by Sir A. W. Blomfield M.A., A.B.A., the Rev. Francis Brooking Briggs M.A. vicar 1856-88: there are 600 sittings. The register of burials dates from 1570; are 600 sittings. The register of burials gaves from 1570, marriages, 1618; baptisms, 1619. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £85, net yearly value £264, with residence, in the gift of the rector of Hanwell, and held since 1838 by the Rev. Alfred William Rowe M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, F.G.s. The vicarage house was rebuilt in 1800.

There is a Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. John the Evangelist, and seating 300 persons; Baptist chapel, and a Congregational chapel with 300 sittings; the Wesleyan chapel, Windmill road, erected in 1889, at a cost of about £6,000, is a building of Kentish rag, in the Gothic style and will scat 1,000 persons; there is also a Primitive Methodist chapel and a place of worship for the Brethren.

a place of worship for the Brettren.

The Town Hall, the Market House, the London and County Bank, the Savings Bank and the Post Office, all stand in New Brentford. The Town Hall and Market House form a handsome building of brick and stone, the county court and petty sessions being held therein.

The new Post Office, erected in 1886, is a building of stone and brick, situated in the Market place, the estimated cost being about £2,500.

The Police Station is situated in the High street.

The Public Library, of about 3,000 volumes, was opened January 16th, 1890, and is supported by a penny rate; the number of borrowers up to April, 1890, was 509; the daily average issue of books ranges from 100 to 150; most of the popular periodicals, magazines and newspapers are supplied.

Opposite Kew bridge is a handsome drinking fountain, opened by the Duchess of Teck in 1879.

The market day is on Tuesday, and fairs are held on the 17th, 18th and 19th of May and 12th, 13th and 14th of September.

In Brentford are gas works, two breweries, Messrs. Rowe's soap manufactory, a large pottery, the Great Western Railway docks, the spacious timber yards and saw mills of Messrs. Montgomrey, Sons and Co. and the extensive maltings of Messrs. Jupp and Sons.

At the entrance of the town from Turnham Green is the chimney erected for the Grand Junction Water Works, which is nearly 150 feet in height, and it has upwards of 120 iron circular steps, introduced in the brickwork; there are six engines, by which, when working together, 12,000,000 gallons of water are propelled daily to the main at Paddington: the town and neighbourhood are supplied from the pumping station at Hampton.

The Brentford Drainage and Sewage works were completed in 1884, at a cost of about £30,000, from plans by Messrs. Gotto and Beasley, of Westminster. The sewage is pumped from a collecting well in the Town Meadow to the sewage tanks in Ealing road, a distance of more than one mile, where it is deodorized and precipitated, the efficient water being discharged into the river Thames by a culter carried along Clay Ponds lane. The process of drying the cost, including buildings, of about £3,000.

Brentford has conferred the title of Earl on the Ruthen family, Patrick Ruthven, Earl of Forth, being created Earl of Brentford, 27th May, 1644, for his services in the engagement mentioned below: William III. also bestowed this title on Marshal Frederic Schomberg, afterwards Duke of Schomberg, but it became extinct in 1719. Brentford is celebrated in English literature, and as the chief town in Middleser it is frequently mentioned in Latin records as the capital of England; Thackeray and Cowper both use the name in this way and Shakespeare makes Falstaff disguise himself as a fat woman of Brentford. Samuel Pepys appears to have been a visitor here in 1665-9. Thomson calls it "a town of med." woman of Brentota.

Thomson calls it "a town of med," and Gay notices its "dirty streets," to which Johnson and Goldsmith also allude. In 1642 the Parliamentary forces under Col. Hollis were defeated by Prince Rupert in the streets of Brentford, when John Lilburne, the Puritan, was taken prisoner: in 1445 a Chapter of the Order of the Garter was held at the Lion inn, Brentford, when Henry VI. created two knights. Edmund Ironside defeated the Danes here in 1016, when many of the Saxons perished in the Thames, and was himself treacherously slain a few days later, according to local tradition, on the site of the Red Lion inn. The remains of elephants, hippopotami and of several species of deer were found here in considerable quantities at the beginning of the present century; and specimens of early stone implements and bronze and iron weapons have also been met with.

Boston House is the seat of Colonel Edward John Stracey-Clitherow J.P.

The area of New Brentford township is 230 acres; rate-able value, £12,674.

The population of the town of Brentford was as follows:— In 1871. In 1881. Isleworth (part of) 818 969 2,043 New Brentford 2,134 Old Brentford 8,230 9,672 Total . 11.001 12,775

CHISWICK and TURNHAM GREEN.

CHISWICK is a parish forming a sort of peninsula, being nearly surrounded by the river Thames, near the Great Western road, with a station on a loop line of the South Western railway, 6 miles west from Hyde Park corner, in the Ealing division of the county, Kensington division of the Ossulstone hundred, Brentford union and county court district, within the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan police, and in the rural deanery of Ealing, archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London. The management of the parish, formerly vested in the Chiswick Improvement Commissioners, has been entrusted, since 1884, to a Local Board of 19 members. An extensive system of drainage was carried out by the Commissioners at a cost of upwards of £80,000, and the parish is lighted with gas from works situated at Brentford, the property of the Brentford Gas Company; water is supplied by the West Middlesex and Grand Junction Water Companies, but chiefly by the former. The old church of St. Nicholas was an ancient building, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower, dating from 1425, containing 6 bells: both porches are stone vaulted: the church was rebuilt and enlarged in 1884 at the expense of the late H. Smith eq. of the Griffin brewery, the chancel being partially restored at the same time by the Duke of Devonshire R.G. the lay impropriator: there are memorial windows to the late Mr. Sharpe, banker, of Fleet street; the Rev. C. and Mrs. Neale; Mr. Wilson, late of Bradmore House; Capt. and Mrs. Lewis; Admiral Sir R. Smart R.C.B.; Lieut. Sharpe; and one placed in 1889 to the late H. Smith esq. whose parents are also commemorated by an earlier window: two western windows were presented by Mr. Thornycroft and Mr. Donaldson, of the well-known ship-building firm: in the church is a monument to Sir Thomas Chaloner kt. M.A. tutor to Henry IV. Prince of Wales, ob. 17 Nov. 1615: two daughters of Oliver Cromwell, Mary, wife of Thomas (Belasyse), and

Viscount Fauconberg and Frances, wife of Robert Rich esq. were buried in the church, but without memorial; as also Barbara Villiers, Duchess of Cleveland in her own right and ancestress of the present Duke of Grafton, ob. 9 Oct. 1709: there are about 700 sittings. In the churchyard, enlarged by the gift of an acre of land by the Duke of Devonshire K.O. and controlled by a burial board, are interred Sir John Chardin F.R.s. the traveller, d. 25 Dec. 1713; George, 1st and only Farl Macartney, d. 31 Mar. 1806; the Duchess of Somerset; James Ralph, the critic, d. 24 Jan. 1762; Hogarth, the painter, d. 25 Oct. 1764, with an epitaph by David Garrick; Thomas Morrell D.D. sometime curate of Twickenham, a classical editor and writer, d. 19 Feb. 1784 and Dr. William Rose, critic and editor, of Sallust; there is also a cenotaph, designed by the late Baron Marochetti, to Ugo Foscolo, and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and Callust and C Italian poet, d. 14 Sept. 1827, and whose remains were removed in 1871 by the Italian Government to the cathedral of Santa Croce in Florence: other tombs are those of Philip James Loutherbourg R.A. d. 11 Mar. 1812; William Sharp, the engraver, d. 25 July, 1824; and James Fittler A.R.A. d. 2 Dec. 1835. The register dates from the year 1678. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge 4365 net value £780, including glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and held since 1857 by the Rev. Lawford William Torriano Dale M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. St. Mary Magdalene's chapel of ease, situated in Chiswick New Town and creeted in 1848, at the sole expense of John Charles Sharpe esq. is an elegant edifice of stone, consisting of small chancel, with side chapels, nave and western turret containing 3 bells : there are 150 sittings and the school room, which forms a transept, will hold 180 more: the chapel is shortly to be enlarged, by the addition of a nave and south aisle, to seat 500, and will then be endowed and made the church of a new eccle-iastical district, with a population of about 5,000; Rev. Henry Falcon Gipps

M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, has been curate in belonging to Messrs. Sich and Messrs. Fuller, Smith and charge since 1882.

Grove Park is an ecclesiastical parish formed August 13th, 1872, out of Chiswick. The church of St. Paul, Grove Park west, erected at a cost of about £6,000, chiefly defrayed by the Duke of Devonshire, and consecrated in June, 1872, is a building of stone, in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south transept, western porch, erected as a thanksgiving for the recovery of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and one bell, placed in a cage outside the east end of the chancel: there are 700 sittings. The register dates from the year 1872. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £800, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Chiswick, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Nevison Loraine F.R.H.S.

TURNHAM GREEN with GUNNERSBURY, a hamlet in the parish of Chiswick, was constituted an ecclesiastical parish, April 20th, 1845. The London and South Western railway April 29th, 1845. have two stations here, one above the Green for Bedford Park; the other for Gunnersbury. The North London line forms a junction here with the South Western. There is also a station on the Ealing District line, called the "Chiswick Park" and "Acton Green" station. Christ Church, built by subscription in the year 1843-4, at a cost of apwards of £6,000, in part from designs by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. is a building of cut flint, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, north porch and a western tower with spire containing one bell: it has been restored and a chancel added at a cost of above £2,500. The register dates from the year 1843. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £350, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1870 by the Rev. Samuel Arnott M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The area of the original ecclesiastical parish was about 373 acres; and the population in 1871 was 3,434 and in 1881, 4,796.

St. James is an ecclesiastical parish, formed August 14th, 1888, out of the parish of Christ Church, and comprises the whole area lying between Kew Bridge and Gunnersbury stations, and bounded on the one side by the North London and on the other by the South Western railway. The church, erected in 1886, at a cost of £6,000, and consecrated by the Bishop of London, November 8th, 1887, is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, lofty nave with clerestory and aisles: there are 530 sittings. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £450, without residence, in the gift of the vicar of St. George, Old Brentford, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Charles Nevison Whitfield M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford, who has been in charge since 1883, services having been previously held in an iron building in Blenheim road.

Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal clurch, founded about 1883, is a building of iron, consisting of chancel, nave and a tower at the south-west angle, with spire and containing one bell: the stained east and west windows are memorials: there are about 550 sittings. The erection of a permanent building on or adjacent to the present site, the freehold of which has been purchased for that purpose, is in contemplation templation,

The Catholic church of Our Lady of Grace, erected in 1886, at a cost of £5,000, on the site of the former church, is a building of red brick in the Italian style and will seat 500 persons.

Turnham Green Congregational church, High road, erected at a cost of £3,136, is a building of stock brick with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English style, from the designs of Mr. T. L. Banks A.R.I.B.A. of London, and has 458 sittings.

Trinity Baptist church, situated in Wellesley road, erected in 1836, by the London Baptist Association, but admitting Chustians of other denominations, is a structure of brick, in the Early English style, with a small tower and spire, and will seat 650 persons. There is a manse attached to it, and a Lecture Hall in Sutton lane, which seats 250.

The Baptist chapel, in Annandale road, is an iron building and has about 200 sittings; the Wesleyan chapel, in Sutton Court road, is an edifice of brick, erected in 1880.

At St. Mary Magdalene's there is an infant's nursery, built by the vicar, and also a public kitchen which provides nourishment for the sick and convalescent poor. Lady Dorothy Capel, A.D. 1719, gave by will the twelfth part of the clear rental of an estate called Perry Court farm, in the county of Kent, now amounting to about £30 yearly, to the support of the Charity schools of Chiswick, to be received by the vicar on the 23rd of May annually.

Under the Metropolitan Commons Act the Local Board

Under the Metropolitan Commons Act the Local Board has acquired the whole of the waste lands in the district for the use and recreation of the inhabitants and has fenced them in and planted them with trees.

Chiswick is first mentioned in a record of the time of Henry III.: a Roman urn and silver coins were found at Turnham Green in 1731. There are here two large breweries

Turner; the marine engineering and steam launch building works of Messrs. Thornycroft & Co.; steam bakery belonging to Messrs. Chibnall, Jasper & Co.; and various market gardens, maltings and wharves on the river. On the opposite side of the river, near Barnes, the West Middlesex Water Works Company have two reservoirs, the pipes from which have been carried under the bed of the river. Opposite Chiswick is an island, the first met with in proceeding up the river. The Vestry Hall, situated on Turnham Green, is an elegant stone building, erected in 1876 from designs by W. J. Treherne esq. at a cost of £5,400; it consists of a large hall, which is used for meetings, concerts and other entertainments, and suitable offices for the local board, clerk, surveyor and other officers; the hall will hold about 700 persons. Chiswick Park Club, situated near Chiswick station. on the South Western railway, was established in 1884 as a lawn tennis club and as a cricket club in 1885: the grounds comprise 14 acres, 10 of which form the cricket ground, the remaining 4 acres being used for lawn tennis. Here are the experimental and trial grounds of the Royal Horticultural Society, first opened in 1818-19: the gardens form a very admirable and comprehensive school of horticulture and the collection of fruit trees is very fine. Adjoining the Horticultural Gardens is Chiswick House, a seat of the Duke of Devoushire R.G. and for some time the residence of the family of the Prince of Wales, but at present in the occupation of the Marquess of Bute K.T.: it was built by Richard (Boyle) 3rd Earl of Burlington K.o. so distinguished for his splendid and refined architectural taste, the design being adopted from that of a villa by Palladio at Vicenza: here died Charles James Fox, 13 Sept. 1806 and George Canning, 9 Aug. 1827: in the grounds are an obelisk and a temple, adorned with fine statuary and on the estate is a cut or canal communicating with the Thames, so that at high water the tide supplies the ornamental water in the park : the rustic gate was designed by Inigo Jones in 1625, for Beaufort House, Chelsea, and given to the Earl of Burlington by Sir Hans Sloane bart. M.D. in 1737: in 1814 the Emperor Alexander I, of Russia and other sovereigns visited the late Duke of Devonshire here: in 1842 Her Majesty and the late Prince Consort and in 1844 the Emperor Nicholas of Russia and John I. King of Saxony. Grove House is a mansion situated on the Thames: adjoining it is an elegant villa, also looking on the Thames, erected by the late J. Pullman esq. and called Grove End. In Hogarth lane is the house, called Hogarth House, in which the great artist lived. Among past residents in Chiswick were Sir Stephen Fox kt. paymaster restdents in Cuiswick were Sir Stephen Fox Mr. paymaster of the forces to Charles II. and the projector of Chelsea Hospital, to which he contributed £13,000; he died 28 Oct. 1716; Alexander Pope, the poet; George Augustus Eliott, Lord Heathfield, the defender of Gibraltar, d. 1790; and John Zoffany R.A. d. 1810. Sutton Court, at the corner of Sutton Court road, is one of the ancient mansions of the ducal family of Cavendish and was the residence of one of the married daughters of Oliver Cromwell, who also visited A very large portion of the parish is the property of the Duke of Devonshire R.G; the land formerly occupied as market gardens is now being rapidly covered with elegant houses. Ravenscourt park, a fine open space of 32 acres, The entire parish of Chiswick contains 1,311 acres, adjoins. which 104 are water and foreshore; rateable value, £113,580; and the population in 1861 was 6,505, and in 1881, Chiswick, 7,619; Turnham Green, 4,796; Grove Park, 1,560; St. Michael, Bedford Park, 1,997=15,972.

Strand-on-the-Green is a small place close to Kew bridge, on the bank of the Thames. At this point the South Western railway have carried their extension line from Kensington to Richmond across the Thames by a handsome latticed iron bridge, opened 1st January, 1869. Divine service is held at the Church Institute on Sundays at 7 p.m.; there is also a Wesleyam Mission Room, where services are conducted on Sundays at 6.30 p.m.

COWLEY, in Domesday "Covelei," is a parish and village, situated on the road from Uxbridge to West Drayton, about a mile south from the former town, on the Grand Junction canal and the river Frays, near where the Black-water or Cowley brook joins the latter stream, in the Uxbridge division of the county, Elthorne hundred, Uxbridge petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Uxbridge, archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London. The village is supplied with water by the Rickmansworth and Uxbridge Valley Water Works Co. Under the "Divided Parishes Act, 1882," detached portions of this parish, amounting to about 40 acres.

CLAPTON, UPPER & LOWER, are portions of Government Act, 1888, is now included within the "County the parish of Hackney, and form part of the Metropolitan of London," created under that Act; they are not now given Borough of Hackney under the "Redistribution of Seats and the Directory of the County of Middlesex, but are in-Act, 1885," which, under the provision of the Local cluded in a separate book.

were added to Hillingdon. The church of St. Laurence is a plain edifice of flint, principally in the Early English style with some details of Decorated work, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower with a wooden turret and dwarf spire, containing one bell : the east window, of three lancets, is a memorial to the Rev. John Hilliard, fortyfive years rector of the parish, and the west window a memorial to the Rev. C. P. Price, late vicar of St. Margaret's. Uxbridge; there are others to Mrs. Price, wile of the above, d. 13 Dec. 1882; to Rev. John Crosier Hilliard M.A. 30 years rector here, d. 30 May, 1882; to Mary St. Alben his wife, d. 14 May, 1882, and to Lawrence J. Hilliard, d. 11 is a monument to Walter Pope, yeoman, 1502: there are 200 sittings: in the churchyard is the grave of Dr. William Dodd, the author of "Lectures on Death," and the celebrated "Prison Thoughts," who was executed for forgery, 27 June, 1777: here also was buried the Rev. John Light foot M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford, F.R.s. a learned botanist and sometime curate of Colnbrook and Uxbridge, where he died 18th February, 1788; and Barton Booth, a celebrated actor, who held a small estate in this parish, and died 10th May, 1733. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1562; marriages, 1563. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £46, gross yearly value £150, including 40 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Major-Gen. George Towers Hilliard, of Ealing, and held since 1882 by the Rev. John Edward Hilliard M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. Almshouses for three poor persons, rebuilt by an ancestor of Thomas Dagnall esq. of Cowley, in 1776, stand near the churchyard: the interest of the endowment of this charity, amounting to £15, is applied in keeping the houses in repair. Charities: Anthony Brown, of London, left by will, dated 1800, £5 yearly, now applied to the school; and the Rev. Richard Dodd M. a. left in 1811, £100 in 3 per Cents, the interest to be given to the poor in bread and coals on Christmas Eve. Cowley Grove, now occupied by Lady Fanny Howard, was formerly the residence of Barton Booth

CROUCH END is a northern suburb of London and an ecclesiastical parish, formed Nov. 4, 1862, from the parish of Hornsey, adjoining the northern boundary of Islington parish, 5 miles north from London, with a station on the Edgware branch of the Great Northern railway, in the Hornsey division of the county, Ossulstone hundred, Finsbury petty sessional division, Edmonton union, Clerkenwell county court district, within the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal Court and Metropolitan police, and in the rural deanery of Highgate, archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London: it is in the Northern Metropolitan postal district and in the Hornsey Local Board district, and contains many good residences: water is supplied by the New River Company, whose pumping station and reservoir is situated in Hornsey lane. Christ Church, situated on an eminence, was built in 1862 and chlarged in 1867 and in an ediffice of status in the New Everlish stellar. 1867, and is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles and a tower at the north-east angle, with lofty octagonal spire and containing one bell: the nave was extended and a baptistery formed at the west end in 1881: there are 650 sittings, 150 of which are free. The register dates from the year 1863. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £280, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Charles Welland Edmonstone M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The site of the proposed church of St. Andrew, a chapel of ease to Christ Church, is on Shepherd's hill, on the borders of Highgate. Here are Baptist and Congregational chapels. The Hornsey Government School of Art, on Crouch End Hill, was established in 1882, and is a building erected for the exclusive study of art, and provides education for artists, teachers and amateurs; classes daily in all branches; 900 government awards have been gained; annual government examinations are held and local scholarships and prizes awarded annually.

The population in 1881 was 2,285, but since that date this still rural district has been greatly built upon and the number of inhabitants considerably increased.

CROUCH HILL is a district adjoining, chiefly in the civil parish of Islington, the remainder being in Hornsey, and has a station on the Tottenham and Hampstead junction (Midland) railway, and consists mainly of a steep hill con-necting Finsbury Park district with Crouch End. Here are Presbyterian and Wesleyan places of worship.

1888, is now within the "County of London," created under Hackney, and forms part of the Metropolitan borough of that Act; it is not, therefore, given in the Directory of the Hackney under the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885, County of Middlesex, but is included in a separate book.

DRAYTON, see WEST DRAYTON.

EALING is a metropolitan suburban parish on the road | to Uxbridge, 9 miles south-east from that town, 11 north from Brentford, 61 from London by road, and 51 by rail on the main line of the Great Western railway, which has two stations here, viz. Faling Broadway and Castle Hill: the Metropolitan District Railway Co, has also stations at Ealing Common and at the Broadway adjoining the Great Western station, and another at South Ealing on their extension line to Hounslow. Ealing gives its name to the Ealing division of the county, and is in the Kensington division of the hundred of Ossulstone, Brentford petty sessional division, union and county court district, Western Metropolitan postal district, within the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal Court and Metropolitan police, rural deanery of Ealing, archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London. The Local Government Act, 1858, was adopted 17 March, 1863, the board consisting of twelve members. The town is lighted with gas, and water is supplied by the Grand Junction Water Works Co. The parish of Ealing extends from the river Brent, in the valley north of Castlebar Hill, to the Thames, forming a rough parallelogram of about 3½ miles long by 2 or 2½ broad, and consists of the upper side, or Ealing proper, sometimes called Great Faling, traversed by the Uxbridge road or great road from London to Oxford: and the lower side, or Old Brentford, traversed by the other great road from London to Staines and the West of England. Ecclesiastically, Ealing proper, is divided into five parishes, that of Christ Church including the conventional district of St. Andrew: the churches of St. George and St. Paul, Old Brentford, to which parts of Ealing have been assigned, are described under that town. The parish church of St. Mary, built about 1770, and re-

which, under the provisions of the Local Government Act, constructed and enlarged in 1866, at a total cost of upwards of £9,000, is a structure of brick in the Romanesque or Early French Gothic style, from designs by the late S. S. Teulon esq. and may be said to incorporate the old church. built in 1739; it consists of apsidal chancel, nave, baptistery, western narthex, north porch and a lofty western tower with circular stair turret and a machicolated parapet relieved by pinnacles at the angles, from which rises an octagonal gabled lantern with lofty spire: on either side of the tower are quasi-transepts, forming additional porches, with low octagonal lanterns, having conical roofs with ornamental finials: the narthex porch has an open areading divided by bold buttresses into three bays, the angles being capped with open octagonal pinnacles; the remaining buttresses, rising above a quatrefoiled parapet, bear the symbols of the evangelists: the tower, added in 1873, has 8 bells and a clock with one dial, striking the hours and Westininster quarters: the monuments from the old church have been chiefly replaced at the west end, and include the following : John Bowman B.D. a former vicar, ob. 1629; Richard Tayerner, ob. 1638: Richard Agmondesham, temp. Henry VII. ; here also lie buried Sir John Maynard kt. serjeant-atlaw, ob. 9 Oct. 1690; John Oldmixon, a violent party writer and author of a "History of England," d. 9 July, 1742 and John Horne Tooke, politician and philologist, d. at Wimbledon, 19 March, 1812: there are sittings for about 1,300, all of which are free. The church was wholly and the churchyard almost entirely closed to interments by Order in Council, 11 April, 1854. Here were buried Robert Orme. some time Commissary and Accountant General and author of "British Military History in India," d. 13 Jan. 1801; Sir Frederick Morton Eden bart. author of "A History of the Labouring Classes," d. 14 Nov. 1809; and William King D.C.L. principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford, and Public Orator,

d. 30 Dec. 1763, to whom there is a monument in the chapel of St. Mary Hall, with a singular inscription, written by himself, and surmounted by a marble urn, containing his heart. Sir William Lawrence bart. F.R.s. the eminent surgeon, who died in 1867, also Dr. Nicholas, who died about 1865 and his father, who had in their day the largest private school in England, numbering 300 boys, are also bund in the churchyard. The register dates from the year 1582 The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £500, besides less with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1886 by the Rev. William Elliott Oliver LL.D. of Trinity College, Dublin.

Christ Church is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 19 Oct. 1852: the church, which adjoins the Broadway in the Uxbridge road, was erected for Miss Lewis in 1852.at a cost of / 10,000, from designs by the late Sir G. G. Scott R.A. and is a building of Kentish rag and Bath stone in the Geometrical Decorated style, and consists of chancel, with south aisle, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower with crocketed pinnacles, and a lofty octagonal spire, containing a peal of bells and a clock with three illuminated dials, striking the hours and Cambridge quarters: the stained east window is a memorial to G. Wood esq. who died in 1865 and there are several other stained windows: there are 900 sittings, all appropriated. The register dates from the year 1852. living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £350, with residence and held since 1882 by the Rev. Joseph Stephen Hillard M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, presented by Miss Levis, but the patronage is now in the Bishop of London. Connected with this church is the Mission Church of St. Saviour, built in the year 1881, at a cost of £2,000, and opened 2nd February, 1881, and has [] sittings.

St. Andrew's temporary church, Mount Park road, with a conventional district formed from the parish of Christ Church, is an iron structure, erected in 1882 and opened Oct. 29 in that year: it has sittings for 420 persons, of which 100 are free. The register dates from the year The living is an incumbency, yearly value, derived from pew-rents, about £230, in the gift of the Rer. J. 8. Hilliard M.A. vicar of Christ Church, and held since 1832 by the Rev. William Petty M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge.

St. John's parish, Ealing Dean, was first formed Oct. 27. 1876; by a subsequent order, Jan. 27, 1885, the boundary of the parish was extended by including parts of the mother parish of St. Mary, and the ecclesiastical parish of Christ Church: the church, built in 1876, at a cost of about £8,000. from designs by Mr. Edward Horne, is a cruciform structure of brick with stone and terra-cotta dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, easiern and central transepts and a tower over the chancel with angle turrets and pinnacles and a high pyramidal-crested roof, and contains one bell: there are several stained windows, including a memorial window to Admiral Sir Richard Collinson K.C.B., F.R.G.S. the well-known navigator of the Polar Seas, who died in 1882: there are sittings for 1.115 persons, 550 being free. The register dates from the year 1876. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £568, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and beid since 1867 by the Rev. Julius Summerhayes M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge.

St. Stephen's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 27th October, 1876: the church, in St. Stephen's road, Castle hill, is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south transept and south porch:
there are 750 sittings, 300 being free. The registers date from the year 1876. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £470, with residence, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Benjamin Seymour Tupholme D.D. of Hertford College, Oxford; the next presentation is with the Rev. J. S. Hilliard M.A. vicar of Christ Church, provided that the voidance occurs while he holds Christ Church, subsequently the patronage vests in the Bishop of London.

St. Matthew's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1884 from the parish of St. Mary and ecclesiastical parish of Christ Church: the church, situated in North Common road and erected in 1884, is a building of red brick with red sandstone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a morning chapel: there are sittings for 935 persons, 575 being free. The register dates from the year 1884. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £450, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Henry Charles Douglass M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, situated in Mount Park road, and erected in 1886, at a cost of £4,500, is an edifice of red brick with Bath stone dressings in an Early Gothic style, from designs by Mr. Wallace, architect, of London, and consists of nave with a transept on the west side and a gallery over the vestibule: behind the church side and a gailery over the restorate. Some stress is a vestry and lecture hall, seating 150 persons: the memorial stone was laid by the Marquess of Lorne K.T. May 22nd, 1886. The Congregational chapel, situated on May 22nd, 1886. The Congregational chapel, situated on the Green and erected in 1860, is a building in the Gothic style, from designs by Mr. C. Jones, architect, of Ealing, and will seat 700 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, situated in Windsor road, near the Broadway, was completed in 1869, at a cost of £7,000, and is in the Geometrical Gothic style, from designs by Mr. C. Jones: it comprises chancel, nave, aisles, organ-chamber and vestries and a tower with a lofty spire and has large schools attached: there are sittings The Baptist chapel, situated in Haven for 1,000 persons. green, was erected in 1880 and opened May 25th, 1881, at a total cost of £9,000, and is a structure of red brick, with dressings of Bath stone, moulded brick and terra-cotta, in the Early French Gothic style, and there are sittings for 940 persons. There is also a Baptist chapel in Chapel road, Ealing Dean, erected in 1868, and seating about 400

The parish burial ground, situated between Ealing and Brentford, covers about 8 acres and was laid out in 1860: the mortuary chapel contains a clock, the bell of which tolls for funerals automatically. The Cemetery is under the control of a Burial Board of nine members.

The Public Offices, Uxbridge road, erected in 1887, at a cost of $5,000, opened by T.R.H. the Prince and Princess of Wales, December 15th, 1888, form a handsome pile of buildings, in the Early Decorated style, from designs by Mr. C. Jones C.E. surveyor to the Local Board: it is constructed of Kentish ragstone, with Bath stone dressings and the principal front is relieved by projecting gabled bays and by a lofty clock tower, four stories in height, with octagonal pinnacles, from within which rises a square clock chamber, surmounted by a spire with vane, and include a Free Library and Science and Art Schools: adjacent to and at the rear is the Victoria Jubilee Hall, to be used for public meetings and entertainments.

The Fire Brigade Station, facing Longfield avenue, is a structure of red brick, designed by Mr. C. Jones c.E. with a water tower and housing for a steam engine, manual and other appliances and rooms for resident firemen.

At Mount Park are the works of the Grand Junction Water Works Co. including a reservoir of large storage capacity, enabling the company to supply at 190 feet above the level, and a water tower, by means of which they can deliver at an additional 50 or 60 feet and charge the mains in case of fire.

The Public Baths, situated in the Uxbridge road, and erected from the designs of Mr. C. Jones C.E. at a cost of £10,000, comprise two baths, for men and women respectively.

The common, lying to the south of the Uxbridge road, and a small one, Haven green, to the north of the Great Western railway, are both under the charge of the Local Board for Ealing as public recreation grounds. Drayton green, also called "the Lammas lands," comprising about 30 acres, was purchased in 1881 by the Local Board and now forms an additional public recreation ground.

The Training College for teachers of the deaf, situated at Elmhurst, Castlebar hill, was opened June 1st, 1878: this institution owes its origin to a society formed with the especial object of providing well qualified teachers for the deaf, of which the Archbishop of Canterbury is president, and affords gratuitous instruction to such students as are unable to pay the ordinary college fees, besides promoting schools for the poor: the method of teaching pursued is that known as "the German system," which dispenses entirely with the manual alphabet and relies mainly on a spoken language: there are now in the college 5 students and in the school 15 pupils and the establishment is maintained by periodical subscriptions, donations and fees and is controlled by a committee of subscribers: since its first establishment the college has certificated upwards of fifty teachers, many of whom are employed in the London and Provincial School Boards: lady superintendent and secretary, Mrs. Arthur Kinsey.

The Isolation Hospital, erected in 1886 from the designs of Mr.-C. Jones c.E. stands in grounds of 11 acres and is available for 14 patients.

Ealing Dean Cottage Hospital and Provident Dispensary is in North Field lane.

The Asylum for insane officers and soldiers of H.M. Indian service, originally founded by the Hon, East India Company at Pembroke House, Hackney, was transferred to the present premises in Warwick road, August 1st, 1870; the institution contains about 110 patients and is under the control of the Secretary of State for India in Council: this house, formerly called Elm Grove, was the residence of Sir W. Trumbull kt. D.C.L. statesman and diplomatist, d. 14th December, 1716; Dr. John Egerton, Bishop of Durham, 1771-87; and the Right Hon. Spencer Perceval, some time Chancellor of the Exchequer, who was assassinated in the lobby of the House of Commons, 11th May, 1812.

The Ealing Club occupies premises at Helena chambers,

Broadway; 1. C. Powlesland, secretary. Ealing Liberal Club is on the Green; J. H. Leonard and

F. Botley, hon. secs. The Midsummer fair formerly held here was abolished

5th March, 1880.

The parish of Ealing contains many beautiful seats. Fordhook was once the residence of Henry Pielding, the novelist, who here wrote "Tom Jones," and subsequently of Lady Byron; and the Manor House, situated in the town, is the residence of the Misses Perceval: Gunnersbury Park, the seat of Lord Rothschild, was purchased by the Rothschild family about the middle of the present century; the mansion is a large rectangular structure in the Italian style, with a lofty pedimented colonnade on the principal front, raised on a projecting lower story and inclosed with balustrading; the gardens and grounds of about 100 acres are laid out with much taste and contain fine specimens of cedars and other trees; some of the garden houses are said to have been designed by Inigo Jones. Among former residents here may be mentioned Sir James Montagu kt. Chief Baron of the Exchequer, 1722-3; John Owen D.D. the famous Puritan divine, who died at Ealing, Owen B.D. the famous rurtian divine, who died at Ealing, 24th August, 1683; William Melmoth, translator and author, died 6th April, 1743; the great Duke of Marlborough; William Henry de Nassau, Earl of Rochford; and John, Duke of Argyll; Ford Hall was the residence, in the last century, of Sir Alexander Denton kt. Justice of the Common Pleas, 1722-40; John Bowyer Nichols F.S.A. antiquary and printer, died at Hanger Vale, 19th October, 1863.

The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor; the principal landowners are Edward Wood esq. J.P. Lord Rothschild and the Right Hon. Spencer Horace Walpole P.C., D.C.L., LL.D., F.R.S., F.R.G.S., F.S.A.

Ealing parish contains 3,776 acres of land and 68 of water; rateable value, £220,050; and the population in 1881 was 25,436, of which 9,672 are in Old Brentford and including 141 in the Royal India Lunatic Asylum; the population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1881 was :- Christ Church, 6.112; St. John, 3.926 and St. Stephen, 1,113; the population of the local board district in 1881 was 19,104.

LITTLE EALING is a hamlet of a few houses, three-quarters of a mile south-west from Ealing and I mile north from Brentford, in St. Mary's parish. At Place House, in this hamlet, lived Sir Francis Dashwood bart, and other persons of distinction; Gen. Charles François Dumouriez, the victor of Jemappes (Nov. 6th. 1792), died here 14th March, 1823. Zachary Pearce D.D. Bishop of Bangor (1748) and of Rochester (1756) died here 29 June, 1774.

of St. Margaret, eriginally forming, it is believed, part of a | and Galatea," the "Chandos Anthems," the oratorio of monastery dedicated to St. John of Jerusalem, is an editice | "Esther" and two "Te Deums" were produced during this of brick, flint and stone, in a debased Perpendicular style, and was rebuilt by subscription, with the exception of the tower, in 1845, at a cost of  $\mathcal{L}_{1,500}$ , and consists of chancel, nave, transepts and an embattled western tower of flint and stone, containing a clock and 6 bells: the east window and those in the transepts are stained: there is a monument with inscription in Latin, to Ralph Nicoll, ob. 1658; and a brass, with the effigy of an infant, to Anthoni Childe, ob. 1599: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the 1599: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1717. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £450, with 9 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1847 by the Rev. Thomas Wall M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. The Rev. Francis Wall M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. The Rev. Francis Coventry M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge, author of a satirical romance called "Pompey the Little," was curate here shortly before his death, in 1759; Thomas Martyn F.R.s. professor of botany at Cambridge, who died 3 June, 1825, at Perton Hall, Beds, was rector here. Here is a Congregational chapel. In 1680 Samuel Atkinson, a native of this place, built and endowed almshouses for four poor women, each of whom receives 3s. per week, 1s. under the will of the founder and 2s. from the interest of £1,000, bequeathed by Mrs. Harriet Hurst, who died in 1875. Almshouses for eight decayed tradespeople were endowed in the year 1828 by the late Charles Day esq. with the sum of froo yearly, derived from money invested in Consols; each inmate receives 4s. 6d. per week and in addition 2s. per week, interest on £1,250 bequeathed by Miss Harriet Hurst. Edgware is mentioned as having a market on Thursday in the time of Henry II. the site of which was conveyed by Sir Lancelot Lake kt. of Canons, in 1668, to certain trustees upon trust for a public school. Near the church was a place of refreshment for monks on their journeys from Westminster to St. Albans: and amongst the Augmentation records is preserved a certificate of the goods and plate of the church and monastery of Edgware at the time of the dissolution of religious houses. In earlier times Edgware is said to have been a place dependent on the ancient Roman Verulamium, mentioned by Tacitus, and identical with the Saxon Watlingceaster. from which the road which passes through it is said to have derived its name of Watling street : in the street of Edgware formerly stood the blacksmith's shop where Handel one afternoon in 1791 took refuge from the rain and is traditionally said to have conceived the composition of his "Harmonious Blacksmith." William Powell, the blacksmith thus immortalized, was also parish clerk of Whitchurch and died February 27th, 1780: his anvil and hammer were sold by auction, by Messrs. Puttick and Simpson, in June, 1879. Baces were held here in 1869 and 1873, but have not been continued. The warden and fellows of All Souls' College, Oxford, are lords of the manor. The parish of Edgware contains 2,089 acres; rateable value, £11,205; the population in 1881 was 816.

EDGWARE BURY is 12 miles north: DEACON'S HILL is 22 miles north

At BROCKLEY HILL, near the borders of Herts, was the Roman station Sulloniace, at or near the 10th mile stone. Parish Clerk, James Nutkins.

Little Stanmore parish, in recent documents, is always alluded to as Little Stanmore alias Whitchurch and the church rectory and adjacent houses are popularly known as Whitchurch. The church of St. Lawrence, erected, with the exception of the tower, about 1715, is an edifice of brick in the Italian style and consists of chancel, with a mortuary chapel on the north side (built by James, Duke of Chandos and now belonging to Earl Temple as heir of the last Duke of Buckingham and Chandos), nave, south porch and a western tower, erected about 1550, containing one fine-toned bell: the 15th century nave and chancel were pulled down by the Duke of Chandos in the reigns of Queen Anne and George I. and were rebuilt about 1715, in the same style as the Palace at Canons on the erection of which the Duke was then engaged: the decorators and artists employed on the work were the celebrated wood-carver, Grinling Gibbons; his fatherin-law, the ironworker, the celebrated Antonio Verrio, and Bellucchi and Laguerre: the ceiling of the church is divided into compartments, each containing an illustration of one of Our Lord's chief miracles: the walls are covered with figures of the Evangelists, St. Peter and St. Paul and the three Christian graces, and on either side of the altar are representations of "the Nativity" and "the Dead Christ," by Antonio Bellucci: the chancel is separated from the nave by an iron gate of good workmanship: the organ, built by Father Schmidt in Queen Anne's reign, was rebuilt and en-larged in 1878; the case is adorned with two groups of cherub heads said to be by Gibbons' own hand; behind are paintings of "Moses receiving the Law" and of "Our Lord delivering the Sermon on the Mount:" Handel was for three years chapel master at the Palace of Canons, and his "Acis period: the mortuary chapel, constructed over the family vault, is also beautifully decorated with wall paintings by Verrio and contains the remains of more than 60 members of the Brydges and Grenville families, including a fine monument to the Duke of Chandos, who died at Canons, 9th Aug. 1744, with his statue in Roman costume, between kneeling effigies of Mary (Lake), his first wife; and Cassandra (Willoughby), his first duchess and second wife; here also was buried his second duchess Lydia Catherine (Vanhattem), who died in 1750; the monument room was restored by the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos in 1865; no burial, however, has taken place in this chapel for many years: at the west end of the church is a gallery, the ceiling of which is adorned with a copy of Raphael's "Ascension," by Bellucci: there are some fine stained windows illustrative of the works of Handel: William Powell, the "Harmonious Blacksmith, of Edgware, who died 27th February, 1780, was parish clerk during the time Handel was organist of this church; his gravestone in the churchyard is carved with representations of an anvil and hammer and the musical notes which form the running bass of "the melody called the Harmonious Blacksmith:" the church was carefully and thoroughly restored in 1865, by subscription. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £415, with one acre of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1868 by the Rev. John Burton Norman M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford, and surrogate, The rectory house, partially rebuilt by the present rector, adjoins the church and is very pleasantly situated. the church are the Lake almshouses, forming three sides of a quadrangle, founded previous to 1693, by Mary, widow of Sir Thomas Lake kt. of Canons, for seven poor persons, but the endowment now only supports four; this charity had an income of £33 yearly, augmented in the year 1875 by a legacy of £1,000 bequeathed by Miss Harriet Hurst; each inmate receives 7s. p.r week. At Little Stammore formerly stood "Canons," the residence of the celebrated Duke of Chandos, built by him at a cost of £250,000; it was begun Changes, but by him as a cost of 1250,000, it was organ in 1715, the architects successively employed being James Gibbs, James and Sheppard, and was a magnificent pile of stone three stories in height, in the Italian style and quadrangular in plan, with a central court; the south front divided into eleven bays, and rusticated in the two lower stages, was adorned in the centre with six fluted Ionic pilasters, and the parapet with as many symbolical statues; the principal avenue leading to the mansion from Edgware was a mile long; in 1747 this palace was pulled down and the materials disposed of by auction for £11,000: the house now called "Canons," the residence of Morris Jenks esq. was built by Mr. Hallett, a cabinet maker, of Long Acre, London, with some of the materials of the original house. Thomas M. Clutterbuck esq. of Great Stanmore, is lord of the manor. The area of the parish is 1,572 acres of land; rateable value. £5.755; the population in 1881 was 818.

ELSTREE is partly in the parish of Little Stanmore, but the church is in Herts; for particulars of the place, see Kelly's Directory of Herts.

UPPER and LOWER EDMONTON.

EDMONTON, in "Domesday Book" called Adelmeton, "the town of Aldhelm or Adhelm," is an ancient town and parish, with three stations on the Enfield branch of the Great Eastern railway and is divided into four wards, namely, Church Street, Bury Street, Fore Street and South Street. The Great Eastern Railway Company are (1890) constructing a new line from Edmonton, to join the Entield branch to Cheshunt, where it will form a junction with the main line to It is situated 7 miles from Shoreditch church, Cambridge. in the Enfield division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Edmonton, rural devision, union and county court district of Edinbuton, rural deanery of Enfield, archdeacourty of Middlesex and diocese of London. The parish was added to the Metropolitan police district, 13th Oct. 1840, and is governed by a local board of 9 members, formed 21 June, 1850, under the Public Health Act of 1848. The local government districts of Edmonton and Southgate are well sewered, the sewage being treated at Deephains farm, of 200 acres, on the principle of irrigation. The district is supplied with water by the New River Company.

The church of All Saints, an edifice of brick and stone in the Perpendicular style, consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 8 bells, besides the curfew or saints' bell: the old tenor bell was replaced in 1866 by a new one, weighing 11 cwt. the nave and chancel (now nearly hidden by ivy) were cased outside with brick in 1772, since which the church has been restored and an organ chamber added: in 1871 a new font, stone reredos, brass standards and choir stalls were added, chiefly at the expense of the Rev. R. E. Copleston, late vicar : a new south aisle was built in 1889, when several ancient stones of Norman workmanship were found embedded in the south wall: these are now built into the new aisle: there are brasses to John Asplyn and Godfrey Askew and to Elizabeth, successively wife of both, circa. 1506: to Nicholas and Elizabeth Boone, 1520: one to Edward Nowell, ob. 1616, and Mary (Isham) his wife, ob. 1600, with 4 children; and a Mary (Isham) his wife, ob. 1600, with 4 children; and a tomb with inscription to John Kirton: the stained east window is a memorial to E. T. Busk esq. and there are two windows on the south side in memory of the Rev. Reginald E. Copleston, late vicar of Edmonton, who died in 1878: there are 1,100 sittings. The register of burials dates from the year 1557; marriages, 1558; and of baptisms from 1559. The living is a vicarage, dating from the year 1335, tithe rentcharge £824, net yearly value £450, including 20 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Robert Stewart Gregory M.A. of Trinity College. Oxford. Gregory M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford.

The ecclesiastical district of St. James', Upper Edmonton, was formed out of All Saints' parish August 29, 1851; the church, erected in 1849, is a cruciform building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, transcpts, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: there are three memorial windows in the chancel to the Rev. George Phillips M.A. the first vicar, and five other memorial windows in the transepts: the church was consecrated April 8th, 1850, and was renovated and furnished with choir stalls and other fittings in 1882 at a cost of £1,000, the organ being at the same time rebuilt: there are 600 sittings, of which about half are free. The register dates from the year 1851. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £275, with residence, in the gift of the viear of Edmonton, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Lucius George Fry.M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The population in 1881 was 7,234, including 641 officers and inmates in the Edmonton and 1,016 in the Strand Union workhouses, St. Mary's is an ecclesiastical district, formed 31 Aug. 1883. The church, situated in Upper Fore Street, and consecrated in 1884, is an edifice of brick with stone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of nave, assles and north porch: the sittings are all free. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £200, in the gift of the vicar of Edmonton, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Edward Moore Burney M.A. of Merton College, Oxford. The Congregational church, Snells Park, is a structure in the Florid Gothic style, faced with stone and terra-cotta ornaments and was built at a cost of f.5,000: there are 830 sittings. Lower Edmonton Congregational church, Lower Fore Street, was erected in 1883, in the Early Gothic style, at a cost of between £9,000 and £10,000: it contains sittings for 850. Here is also a Baptist chapel, erected in 1860, and having 600 sittings; a Calvinistic chapel, erected in 1818, with 160 seats; also a Wesleyan chapel, Fore Street, Lower Edmonton, erected in 1854, and will seat 750 persons. A Cemetery, situated at Hyde Side, and comprising an area of 30 acres, was purchased and laid out at a cost of £20,500, and consecrated in 1884; it contains a mortuary and 2 chapels, and is under the control of the Local Board. The charities, the oldest of which was founded in 1578, are 32 in number, with an annual income of about £930, but they are mostly amalgamated and are administered by Latymer's trustees and the churchwardens of the parish; the principal are the following:—The Children's Home, The Green, founded in 1864 by Miss Willis-Fleming, for orphan and destitute children; the in-Willis-Fleming, for orphan and destitute cutturen; the income of this institution in 1884 was £252 and the services rendered to it are gratuitous; Miss E. A. Jones is sister in charge. Styles' almshouses, in Church Street, founded in 1679 by Thomas Styles, of Edmonton, and rebuilt in 1754, have an annual income of £125, each inmate receiving about four shillings weekly; Wild's almshouses, in Church street, were founded in 1662 by John Wild, of Edmonton, for three women, each woman receiving about three and sixpence per week; these are endowed by several bequeats. The mns of Edmonton are mentioned by Izaak Walton and other writers the present "Bell" tavern is built on the site of the original "Bell," connected with Cowper's humorous story of "John Gilpin," and was rebuilt in 1878. The poets Cowper, Keats and Lamb resided in Edmonton. Near the church of All Saints is Bay Cottage, the house once occupied by Charles Lamb (Elia) and in which he died, 27 Dec. 1834; his sister Mary Anne died in 1847, and both are buried on the right of the path south-west of the church. Hyde House stood about 300 yards north-west from Edmonton church on the road to Enfield, but has been demolished to make room for villa Court, Ludlow, is lord of the manor. The principal land-owners are William Booker esq. Augustus Booker esq. William Cobbett esq. Thomas Teshmaker Busk esq. J.P. of Hermongers, Rudgwick, Sussex; Rev. Alexander Nash M.A. rector of Quedsley, Gloucester; Henry Nash esq. J.P. of 15 Sussex Gardens, London wand the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, the Edmonton Local Board, and the Bush Hill Park Company: The area of the parish is 7,397 acres of land, nearly 21 miles in circumference; rateable value, £89,444, Edmonton district and £154,382, including Southgate; the population in 1871 was 13,860 and in 1881, 23,463.

ENFIELD.

Enfield is a large scattered parish and ancient town, to miles north-east from London and 2½ north-west from Edmonton, with terminal stations on branch lines of the Great Eastern and Great Northern railways, and is in the Enfield division of the county, Edmonton hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, within the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal Court and of the Metropolitan police, and in the rural deanery of Enfield, archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London,

A Local Board of Health of 12 members, under the provisions of the "Public Health Act, 1848," was established here June 21, 1850. The district is lighted with gas by a company from works in the Sydney road and at Ponder's End, and supplied with water by the Local Board from their works at Ponder's End.

The parish, which is about 6½ miles in length from east to west, is comprised in four divisions, viz.:—The Town division, Green Street division, Bull's Cross division and Chase division, the first three of which have separate churchwardens and overseers, and each division forming a separate locality.

The Town division in the centre consists of Enfield proper, including the Market Place, Silver Street, Baker Street, Bush Hill Park, Church Street, London Road, Clay Hill, Brigadier Hill and part of Chase Side, and has two terminal stations, mentioned above, with another on the Great Eastern railway at Bush Hill Park. Green Street division, south-east, consists of Ponder's End—a large district with a railway station, which will be found under a separate headrailway station, which will be found under a separate heading—Green Street and Enfield Highway, with Brimsdown station on the Great Eastern railway. Bull's Cross division, on the north-east, consists of Forty Hill, Bull's Cross, Bull's Moor Lane, Freezy Water, White Webbs, Cattlegate, Enfield Lock, Enfield Wash and Turkey Street, with a station at Enfield Lock on the Great Eastern railway. Chase division comprises the west of the parish, and consists of Cock Forsters, Bycullah Park, Botany Bay, the Chase and the remainder of Chase Side; the Enfield (Great Northern) station serves the eastern and northern portions of this district; Potter's Bar station on the Great Northern main line, is used for the north-west portion; Hadley Wood, on the same line, for the western extremity; and Southgate and New Barnet stations for the south-western limits.

Enfield is called in Domesday Book "Enefelde" and "Endfield," taking its name, as some say, from being the last parcel of land on the north side of Middlesex, but the names are probably with more accuracy derived from the Saxon, referring to the cleared district of forest land, the manor at the time of the Survey being the property of Geoffrey de Mandeville; it was afterwards vested in the Crown on the marriage of Henry IV, with the heir of the de Bohuns. Richard II. granted the inhabitants an exemption from tolls and various privileges in all fairs and markets within England and Wales, out of the liberties of the Duchy of Lancaster; and these grants were confirmed and extended by charters of Henry IV. and VI. Edward IV. Queen Elizabeth, James I. George II. and III. the originals of which are preserved at the Public Record Office. The New River enters the parish at Bull's Cross on the north, and after a tortuous course leaves it at Bush Hill on the south.

Enfield has conferred the title of baron on the Nassaus, Earls of Rochfield, and now confers that of viscount on the Byng family, Earls of Strafford.

The parish church of St. Andrew, in the Town division, is an embattled building of stone in the Perpendicular style, with the exception of the tower and chancel, which are Early English, and consists of chancel, with north aisle and vestry nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 8 bells: the vestry is supposed to have been originally a chantry, erected in 1471, during the reign of Edward IV. by Robert Blossom and Agnes his wife: the church contains some fine old monuments, the oldest of which is an altar-tomb to Joyce (de Cherleton), wife of Sir John de Tiptoft or Tibetôt kt. who died in 1446: the upper slab, of grey Purbeck marble, is adorned with a brass, representing her in an heraldic mantle, with shields of arms: the margin is surrounded with an inscribed fillet of brass, and above the tomb rises a canopy of later date, believed to have been erected by Thomas first Earl of Rutland (1513-43), in memory of his maternal ancestor, Edmund Lord Roos or de Ros, who died 13 Oct. 1508: this tomb has been restored by the Duke of Rutland K.G.: there is also a brass to William Smith, ob. 24 Sept. 1592, Joan his wife and six children: in the north chancel aisle is a monument to Sir Nicholas Raynton, kt. ob. 1646, his wife, ob. 1640, and children, with effigies, that of Sir Nicholas being in robes as Lord Mayor: on the wall of the south aisle is a memorial to Dorothy Middlemore, ob. 29 May, 1610: there is also a tablet to John Abernethy M.D. the famous but eccentric physician and surgeon, who died at Enfield, 20 April, 1831: at the east end of the south aisle is a marble bust in memory of Col. Stringer, d. 1706: in the chancel is a monument, by Nicholas Stone, to Martha Palmer, ob. 1617: the chancel retains an ancient hagioscope: the sedilia and piscina were discovered and restored in 1852 and the church was restored and new roofed in 1866: there are 1,000 sittings, of which 350 are free. The register dates from the year 1550. The living is a vicarage, tithe rentcharge £45, gross yearly value about £1,029, including 620 acres of globe, with residence, in the gift of Trinity College. Cambridge, and held since 1870 by the Rev. George Hewitt Hodson M.A. formerly fellow of that college, Prebendary of St. Paul's and Rural Dean of Enfield. Dr. Maclagan, the present Bishop of Lichfield, was curate in charge here 1865-9.

St. Michael's church, Chase Side, built in 1874 as a chapel of ease to the parish church on a site given by George Batters esq. of Brigadier Hill, is an edifice of Kentish rag with Bath stone dressings, in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays and aisles: there are 400

sittings

St. Mark's chapel of ease, Bush Hill park, is an iron structure, but a permanent church is about to be erected (1890).

St. John the Baptist's is an ecclesiastical parish formed March 22, 1867, out of St. Andrew's and Jesus parishes; the church, situated at Clay hill and erected in 1857, is an edifice of brick, with stone dressings, in the Early English style, from designs by Mr. J. P. St. Aubyn, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western turret containing 2 bells; all the windows are stained and there are 280 sittings, besides a gallery for 50 children. The register dates from the year 1865. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £154, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Enfield, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Stephen Campbell M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin.

Jesus ecclesiastical district was formed Dec. 26, 1845; the church, situated at Forty Hill in Bull's Cross division, and erected in 1835 at the sole expense of Christian Paul Meyer esq. of Forty Hall, and endowed by him with 4,000 is a building of white brick in the Early English style, and consists of nave, aisles, south and west porches and four turrets, with a clock and r bell; the stained east window is a memorial to the founder; the west window was erected to the memory of the late vicar, Dr. Weir, who died in June, 1874, and there are several others: there are 400 sittings, of which 75 are free.

The register dates from the year 1836. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £201, including 13 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Enfield and held since 1874 by the Rev. Edward Wood Kempe M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, and priest in ordinary to the Queen.

St. James', Enfield Highway, in Green Street division, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish July 22, 1834: the church, built in 1831, on a site given by Woodham Conno esq. is an edifice of brick and stone in the Early English style, and consists of chancel with asiles, nave, western porch, vestry and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and one bell: the chancel was added in 1864 by the Rev. John Harman, late vicar, at his sole expense, and the porch and vestry in 1885; all the windows are stained, chiefly as memorials to the Harman family, by whom a brass lectern has been presented: there is a handsome chancel screen and reredos: there are 700 stitings, of which 350 are free. The register dates from the year 1834. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, with residence and 4 acres of glebe, in the gift of the vicar of St. Andrew's, and held since 1880 by the Rev. John Silvester Davies M.A. of Pambroke College Oxford. F.S.A. Silvester Davies M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford, F.S.A. and chaplain to the Royal Small Arms Pactory, Enfield lock.

The church, situated at Ridgeway in the Chase (western) division, and built in 1883, was erected at the sole expense of Mrs. Twells, widow of Philip Twells esq. M.P. for expense of Ars. I wens, who wo of rimp I wens esq. M.P. for the city of London, at a cost of £30,000, including parson-age and endowment; and is an edifice of stone, in the Early Decorated style, from designs by Mr. W. Butterfield, architect, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and a western tower, with spire, containing 8 bells: there are 470 sittings, half of which are free. The register dates from the year 1883. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Twells, and held since 1885 by the Rev. George Passand Turner B.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge.

Here are Catholic, Congregational, Wesleyan, Primitive

Methodist and Baptist chapels.

The cemetery at Brigadier Hill 12 miles from Enfield Town, opened July 27, 1872, at a cost of about £9,000, and covering an area of about 9 acres, is pleasantly situated on a gentle slope of the hill side, looking towards Clay hill; it has two mortuary chapels and is under the control of a burial board of 9 members.

CHARITIES.—A Cottage Hospital, supported by voluntary contributions, was established here in 1875, and has nine beds: there is also a Philanthropic Institution and a Lying-in Charity; Wright's almshouses, in Enfield Highway, are for six poor women, each of whom receives £ 10 a year and coals; Mrs. Ann Crow's almshouses, in Turkey street, are for four poor women, each of whom receives two tons of coal yearly; the Enfield Consolidated Parochial charities, comprising Prounce's, left in 1516, and consisting of £10 a year each for six aged women; Wilson's, left in 1590, and consisting of £34 a year each for six poor men; David's, left in 1620, and consisting of £10 4s. a year each for four poor women; Billing and Osbourne's, left in 1659, and consisting of £10 a year each for three aged women; and King James the First's. left in 1622-3, of £10 a year each for five aged women, with others, are governed by a scheme of the Charity Commissioners dated 2 March, 1838; the governing body consists of the vicar, churchwardens, six co-optative and six representative trustees; the income, amounting to over £600 yearly, is devoted to various charitable objects, principally annuities to poor persons; Eaton and Myers' charity left in 1806, is for six persons.

The cross in the Market place, built by subscription in 1826 and restored in 1866, is a structure of brick, covered with coment, in a poor style of Gothic about 30 feet in height, and stands on an octagonal stepped base; at the sides are inscriptions recording the dates of various charters by which the market was granted. A fair is held on the 30th

November, chiefly for cattle.

A granite drinking fountain was erected in the town by subscription in 1884.

The Small Arms factory, situated at the eastern extremity of the parish, was erected in 1855-6, at a cost of £150,000, and has a station (Enfield Lock) on the Great Eastern line, about ‡ of a mile west. The factory is open to visitors every Monday and Thursday from 9 to 12 and from 2 to 4; the principal buildings, forming three sides of a quadrangle, are built of brick, but the buildings generally cover an area of about 40 acres, including the testing ranges: the new magazine rifle is now made instead of the Martini-Henry, and machine guns, including the Nordenfeldt and Gardner patterns, are also manufactured here: here; about 2,000 rifles are turned out weekly

Close to Enfield Lock station is Enfield Wash, a busy district: here was the house of Mother Wells, the notorious gipsy, where, in 1753, Elizabeth Canning, a servant girl of 18, was, according to her own account, shut up for a month; her remarkable story was the great subject of controversy for months, dividing society into two parties, called "Egyptians" and "Canningites," and giving rise to a large amount of pamphleteering; Canning was, however, eventually convicted of perjury and consequently emigrated to America, where the married a wallthy planter, and died to America, where she married a wealthy planter, and died

Charles Lamb long resided at Chase Side: Isaac D'Israeli D.C.L. father of the Earl of Beaconsfield, was born at En-Beld, May 1766, and lived there till his marriage; Charles Babbage F.R.S. the mathematician, Capt. Frederick Marryat R.M. the novelist, were educated at Ponder's End: at South Lodge lived William Pitt, first Earl of Chatham, and at East Lodge Alaxandae (W. Marryat) Says Farel of Rosslyn and Lodge Alexander (Wedderburn), first Earl of Rosslyn and Lord Chancellor; John Keats, the poet, was at a private school here till the age of 15, leaving it in 1810 to be apprenticed to Mr. Hammond, a surgeon of Edmonton.

Considerable remains avice of Ential House a mansion

Considerable remains exist of Enfield House, a mansion of red brick with stone dressings, situated immediately opposite the parish church, but shut in by shops; it originally surrounded three sides of a square, but the greater part was demolished towards the end of the last century, portions having previously been removed to Theobalds: here the children of Henry VIII. were brought up: Elizabeth was residing here at the time of Henry VIII.'s death and visited Entield several times after her accession; one of the rooms is wainscoted with fine English oak panelling, and has a ceiling enriched with royal and national emblems; the stone mantelpiece is supported by columns of the Doric and Ionic orders, and is adorned with foliage and birds, and above are the arms of England and France, with supporters, excellently carved and still in good preservation; the monogram of Edward VI. also appears : several of the ceilings in the upper rooms are also decorated: in the grounds is a magnificent cedar tree, said to have been planted by Dr. Robert Uvedale, master of the Grammar School here, in 1670; the house was leased by Queen Elizabeth to a private gentleman in 1582, and from 1600 to 1623 seems to have been held by Lord William Howard: Charles I. alienated it to new holders, and in 1660 it was let to Dr. Uvedale; it has now been for many years used as a school, and here were educated Sir William de Grey kt. afterwards baron Walsingham, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas 1771-80; d. 9th May, 1781; Lord Bramwell, Lord Justice of Appeal and his brother, Sir Frederick Joseph Bramwell kt. F.R.s. civit eugineer

Enfield Court, in Baker Street, the residence of Col. Alfred Plantagenet Frederick Charles Somerset D.L., J.P. is a mansion dating from the latter part of the 17th century, but has been altered at various periods, the south wing being rebuilt in 1864; it still, however, contains some quaint speci-mens of brickwork, and has a fine terraced garden with clipped yews and a walk 400 feet in length; at the bottom of the garden is a picturesque summer-house of two storeys, and there is also a fish pond, crossed by a bridge.

White Webbs Park, on the bor lers of Herts, the property of Mrs. Wilkinson, but at present (1890) unoccupied, is associated with the Gunpowder Plot of 1605, the ancient mansion having been hired by the conspirators, as appears from deeds and state papers, as a rendezvous: the mansion is situated in a beautiful and well-wooded park of 300 acres, which still retains traces of the ancient chase, Forty Hall, at Forty Hill, the residence of James Meyer esq. J.P. is a rectangular mansion of brick, erected in the 17th century by Sir Nicholas Raynton kt. from the designs of Inigo Jones; it has some finely clustered chimney stacks and spacious apartments enriched with panelling, and containing a collection of pictures by the old masters and a portrait of Sir N. Raynton in civic robes: the house stands in a park of about 300 acres, still retaining many forest trees of ancient date, and has good grounds; leading to the stables is a pedimented gateway, flanked by columnar buttresses and smaller embattled arches

Myddelton House is near Forty Hall and is occupied by Henry Carington Bowles Bowles esq. J.P.

Gough Park, also at Forty Hill, formerly the residence of Richard Gough, the antiquary, is now (1890) unoccupied:

the New River flows through the grounds.

Chase Park, the residence of John Walker Ford esq. J.P. forms a portion of the Old Park estate, Winchinore Hill: the present mansion was built about 1822 and a sheet of water formed in front by agreement with the New River Company.

A large portion of the ancient Chase and the manor of Enfield belongs to the Duchy of Lancaster and an Act of Parliament was passed in 1766 for its enclosure.

James Meyer esq. J.P. is lord of the manors of Worcester and Capels. The manors of Durants and Gartons are and Capels. The manors of Durants and Gartons are divided. Part of the land belongs to the Duchy of Lancaster divided. Fart of the land belongs to the Duchy of Lancaster—other owners are, the trustees of the late Robert Cooper Lee Bevan esq. J.P. (d. 1890). Mrs. Twells, Henry Carrington Bowles Bowles esq. James Meyer, Edward Ford, J. W. Ford, the representatives of the late H. C. Wilkinson, Charles Jack esqs. Col. Alfred Plantagenet Frederick Charles quet J.P. The parish contains 12,500 acres, inclusive of the Chase and 123 water-350 acres of which were enclosed by Act of Parliament in 1801; the population in 1871 was 16,054 and in 1881, 19,104, including 289 in Edmonton Workhouse schools; the population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1881 was: Jesus, 1,412; St. James, 8,898; St. John the Baptist,

1,025; rateable value, £136,979.

Parish Clerk & Sexton, St. Andrews (Enfield Town), Charles Boswell.

Parish Clerk (Enfield Highway), Thomas Redburn. Parish Clerk (Clay hill), Frederick Eastough. Verger (Ridgeway), Richard Cornish.

Cock Forsters (or TRENT) (supposed to be derived from the name "Becocq Forestier") is on the western border of the parish, in the Chase division, 4 miles west from Enfield Town and 2 miles east from New Barnet station on the main line of the Great Northern railway, and was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1839, from the civil parishes of Enfield and Monken Hadley in Middlesex and Barnet in Herts. Christ Church, erected in 1839 by the late R. C. L. Bevan esq..18 a plain building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower with spire, containing a clock and one bell: there are sittings for 300 persons, of which 75 are free. The register dates from the year 1839. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1879 by the Rev. William Warren B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The Chase, of which 315 acres were inclosed by Act of Parliament in 1801, lies between Forty Hill and Cock Forsters and extends northwards to Herts: it was disafforested in 1779, but two or three fine seats, surrounded with ample parks containing handsome old trees, attest its former beauty. Beech Hill Park, comprising about 700 acres, is now (1890) being built over; a fine stream flows through the grounds. Trent Park was given by George III. to his favourite physician, Sir Richard Jebb bart, and afterwards sold to the Earl of Cholmondeley and later to Sir Henry Lushington bart. and is now the seat of Mrs. Bevan; it has an area of upwards of 1,000 acres; it is undulating, well wooded and stocked with game and contains a lake of 5 acres; the mansion is a spacious edifice of brick, centrally situated, and is approached by a handsome double avenue of limes from the Southgate road; the park contains some magnificent beeches; fine views may be had from the Ridge road, which runs nearly north from near the Enfield railway station to North Lodge and, after about 4 miles, to Potters

FELTHAM (anciently Feldham) is a parish, with a station three-quarters of a mile north-east from the old village on the Windsor branch of the South Western railway, 13½ miles from London, 3½ south-west from Hounslow and 4 east (by rail) from Staines, in the Uxbridge division of the county, Spelthorne hundred and petty sessional division, Staines union, Chertsey county court district, and in the rural deanery of Hampton, archdeacoury of Middlesex and diocese of London. The church of St. Dunstan, a plain edifice of brick, on the road to Sunbury, was erected in 1802, and consists of nave, aisles added in 1856, and an embattled western tower with spire containing a clock and 3 bells: in western tower with spire containing a clock and 3 bells: in the interior are several tablets: there are 370 sittings. In the churchyard is a memorial to William Wynne Ryland, the churchyard is a memorial to William Wynne Ryland, engraver, executed for forgery in August, 1783. The register dates from the year 1635. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £500, with residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Charles E. Jemmett esq. formerly of Kingston, and held by the Rev. John Francis Jemmett B.C.L., M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The church of St. Catherine, erected in 1880 at the upper end of the village, close to the railway station, as a chapel of ease to the parish church, is an edifice of Kentish ragstone and brick, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early Decorated style, from designs by Messrs. Carpenter and Ingelow, and consists of nave, north aisle and north porch, added in 1890: there are sittings for 360 persons. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1870 and seating 150; and a Congregational chapel, founded 1806 and rebuilt 1865, and now seating 250 persons. A cemetery of 11 acres was formed in 1885, at a cost of about £1.400, but has no mortu-ary chapels; it is under the control of a Burial Board of seven members. The Young Men's Friendly Society occupies premises in the High street, formerly the infants' schools, but converted in 1885. Here is a training and convalescent home (in connection with Mrs. Hilton's creche, Stepney, London), opened in May, 1886, for 12 children. Miss Frances Maria Kelly, actress, died here in December, 1882, aged 90. Thomas and Edward Barnett and Peregrine Birch esgrs. and others are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are Robert and Harry Smith, George John Stone esq. of Feltham Lodge, Surbiton Hill, Surrey, and — Paine esq. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, gravel. A considerable portion of the parish is cultivated by nurserymen and market gardeners. The area is 1,777 acres of land; rateable value, £12,301; the population in 1881 was 2,709, inclusive of 903 immates of industrial school.

Musical Society hold their rehearsals and concerts here: adjoining the hall are asphalte and grass tennis courts, also provided by H. Holden esq. but superintended by a separate committee. Here is a Convalescent Home, a branch of the Hospital for the Paralyzed and Epileptic, in Queen's square, London. Of Finchley Common very little is now left, but a great oak at Brown's Wells, a little way north of the St. Pancras cemetery, is said to be the tree behind which Dick Turpin used to take his stand : Jack Sheppard was captured here in 1724: and here, at Church End, General Monk drew up his army in February, 1660, when on his famous march from the north: and a camp was also formed on the Common in 1745, on the invasion of England by Charles Edward, the Young Pretender, and the disorderly march of the guards thither furnished Hogarth with the subject of a well-known picture. The manor has belonged from time immemorial to the see of London; the manor house, a tall rectangular structure of brick, still has a most and retains internally some of its ancient features, and it is now occupied by William Pearce Jones esq. The principal landowners are the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, Messrs. W. P. Jones and H. C. Stephens, the trustees of the late Rev. E. J. Cooper, the trustees of the late Mrs. Heal, the trustees of the late Joseph Baxendale esq. the Rev. Edwin Castle, of Isleworth, and Michael Castle esq. The area is 3.384 acres; rateable value, £91,261; the population in 1871 was 7,146; and in 1881, Ebenezer and Joanna Elizabeth Homan, who died at Bloemfontein, South Africa, 8 Dec. 1878; on the east wall of the chancel aisle is a mural monument to members of the Cleve family, dated 1725, and on the exterior wall is a tablet inscribed to Sarah Rose, with the date 7 Feb. 1638: there are 300 sittings: in the churchyard lie Sir William Oedes kt. Usher of the Black Rod to Queen Anne and George I. and Thomas Cavendish, of Cavendish Overhall, Suff. (d. 1523), Clerk of the Pipe in the Exchequer and father of George Cavendish (d. 1562), who wrote a life of Cardinal Wolsey, to whom he was gentleman usher: there are also memorials to several former rectors, including Edmund Duncan, who died in 1673; the churchyard has been closed by order of the Home Secretary, and an additional piece of land has been given by the Miles family in lieu thereof. The registers date from the year 1674. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £240, with 8 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Frederick Hall M.A. of Jesus College. Cambridge. A church is now (1890) in course of erection on a site given by the late G. Knights Smith esq. and is in the Decorated style, from the designs of J. L. Pearson esq. R.A., F.S.A. There is an iron church in Cromwell road, an outlying and secluded part of the parish, with sittings for 250 persons, but a site for a permanent church in this locality has been conditionally offered by E. Monteuuis esq. There is a Congregational church in Holly Park, built in 1883 and seating 350 persons. Almshouses for 12 aged parishioners were founded in 1612 by Laurence Campe, and repaired and altered in 1843: the buildings are of stone, in the late Perpendicular or Tudor style, and bear in front the arms of the founder, the City of London and the Drapers' Company. John Walker, author of a "Critical Pronouncing Dictionary, was born here 18 Mar. 1732, and dying 1 Aug. 1807, was buried in the churchyard of Old St. Pancras, London. Friern Barnet anciently belonged to the Knights of St. John of The manor house in the time of Elizabeth was Jerusalem. occupied by Lord Chief Justice Sir John Popham, who was frequently visited there by the Queen; its site is now occupied by the Friary. The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are Earl Temple, Mrs. Miles, Mrs. Henry Smith and Messrs. Frederick Crisp and E. Homan. The area of the parish is 1,303 acres; rateable value, £32,610, greatly increased by the rating of Colney Hatch Lunatic Asylum. The population in 1881 was 6,424, which includes the inmates of the asylum, who numbered 2,251.

OAKLEIGH PARK is an ecclesiastical parish, formed Dec. 22, 1882, from the parish of Friern Barnet, and has a station on the main line of the Great Northern railway. The church of All Saints, built in 1882 at a cost of £10,000, wholly de-frayed by the late John Miles esq. of the Manor House, is a builting of flint with stone dressings, in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of apsidal chancel, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and a tower on the north side with spire, containing one bell: the stained cast window is a memorial to John Miles esq. of West End, Hampstead: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1882. The living is a vicarage, net yearly from the year 1882. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Miles family, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Henry Stewart Miles M.A.

The backs College, Oxford. Here is a Congregational of Pembroke College, Oxford. Here is a Congregational lecture hall, built in 1888, at a cost of about £4,000, and holding 300 persons.

Parish Clerk, William Doe. Sexton, James Blackorrow.

Verger, All Saints, Oakleigh Park, John Darlow.

COLNEY HATCH is to the east, and here is the New Southgate and Friern Barnet station on the Great Northern railway, and close to it is the London County Lunstic Asylum, a fine structure of brick, with stone decorations, in the Italian style, from designs by Mr. S. W. Daukes, architect, the first stone of which was laid by the late Prince Consort, 8 May, 1849, and the first patients received 17 July, 1851: the building, erected at a cost of about £400,000, covers upwards of 4 acres and will hold above 2,000 patients: the principal front, facing northwards, is nearly 2,000 feet in length, and is flanked at either end by a ventilating tower: in the centre is the chapel, a spacious oblong chamber seating 600 persons: there are also residences for the officers, farm buildings, airing courts, laundry, gas and water works, workshop, yards and lodges, the whole covering nearly 20 acres, and with kitchen garden, burial ground and other land belonging to the establishment, an area altogether of about 119 acres, and has also a farm of 160 acres; the cemetery was consecrated by Bishop Blomfield in 1851. This asylum is for the reception of pauper lunatics only, chargeable to parishes in the County of London as created under the "Local Government Act, 1888," as required by the Act 16th and 17th Vict. c. 97, and is under the management of a committee of visitors. The Queen Adelaide fund, for the benefit of poor patients leaving the asylum, consists of about £,20,000 invested in Consols, and the interest is expended in gratuities varying from 10s. to £5. The cost of maintaining the asylum is about £60,000 yearly.

FULHAM is a parish, and bring, under the "Relistribution of Seats Act, 1885," formed into a Metropolitan parliamentary borough, and also within the County of London as Middlesex, but is issued in a separate book.

GREENFORD is an agricultural parish, intersected by the Paddington canal and bounded on the south by the river the Paddington canal and bounded on the south by the river Brent, 5 miles north from Hounslow, 3 south from Harrow town, 2 north from Hanwell station on the Great Western railway and 8 from London. It is in the Ealing division of the county, Ethorne hundred, Brentford petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deenery of Ealing, archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London. The church of the Holy Cross is a small building of flint and brick in the Perpendicular style, consisting of arrow chancel, nave, south porch and a timbered western narrow chancel, nave, south porch and a timbered western narrow enances, nave, south porch and a timbered western turret with low wooden spire containing 3 bells: in the nave is a curious mural monument with effigies to Bridget, wife of Simon Coston, dated 1637; on the north wall of the chancel is a monument with effigies to the Rev. Michael Gardiner, rector, dated 1630, and Margaret, his wife; Rev. — Castell, rector, ob. 1686; Rupert Browne, ob. 1710: there are four stained windows, the earliest portions being some of the 18th canture; there are also a number of canopies of the 14th century: there are also a number of fragments representing angels, saints, canopies, flowers and figures of a crowned hart, as well as shields of arms, Tudor badges and floriated grotesques of about the middle of the 16th century: the chancel arch was reconstructed in 1871, and in 1882 the church was thoroughly restored, the walls of the chancel being refaced, a new roof placed on the nave, fresh windows opened and the interior reseated: the font bears the name of Fras. Coston and the date 1638, and there are brasses with effigies to Richard Thornton, ob. 1544, and Alys, his wife; Thomas Symons, priest, ob. 1508; one of a priest with half effigy, c. 1450; and another to a lady, c. 1480. The register dates from the year 1539. The living

HADLEY (or MONKEN HADLEY), from the Saxon word "Headleagh" (high place) and the fact that the manor once belonged to the monks of Walden Abbey, is a parish situated on high land, adjoining Enfield Chase, 12 miles from the General Post Office, in the Enfield division of the county, hundred of Edmonton, South Mimms petty sessional divi-sion, county court district and union of Barnet, embracing part of High street, Barnet, and is on the lines of road to the Midland counties. There is a station here called "Hadley Wood," on the Great Northern railway. The parish is lighted with gas and supplied with water from works situated at New Barnet, the property of the Barnet Gas and Water Company. The church of St. Mary, situated near the common, is a cruciform structure of cut flint and Bath stone arranged in chequers, in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, transepts, south purch and a western tower of flint with stone quoins, nearly covered with ivy and bearing the date of 1494: it contains a clock and 6 bells; and on the top is an iron beacon, the only one remaining, it is believed, in the county, supposed to have been used in former times as a guide to those traversing the neighbouring forest, but fired in 1745, during the Stuart rising, and again 10th March, 1863, on the occasion of the marriage of the Prince of Wales, and on 21 June, 1887, on the occasion of the jubilee of H.M. Queen Victoria: in the chancel is a monument with marble busts by Nicholas Stone to Sir Roger Wilbraham kt. ob. 1616, and his wife; and
