Maldon is 14 miles from London, 51 southtast from Witham, 181 south-west from Colonester, 141 from Chelmsford by railway via Witham and 101 by road, 12 with-east from Braintree, 164 south from Coggeshall, 26) south from Sudbury, 881 from Yarmouth, 81 from Norwich, 352 from Ipswich, 842 from Lowestoft, 37 from Harwich, 55 from Cambridge and 451 from Woodbridge; in the Eastern division of the county, Dengie hundred, Madon rural deanery, Essex archdeaconry and St. Albans diese. The town is situated on a hill rising abruptly from the south bank of the river Blackwater and near the junction of the Chelmer navigation, the higher parts commanding extensive views of the surrounding country : it has consists of a mayor, four aldermen and twelve councillors, recorder, treasurer, town clerk, borough magistrates, coroner, clerk of the peace and other officers, and has jurisdiction over the borough and seawards to a distance of 25 miles eastward of Knowle Sands: the borough has a commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions: it formerly returned two members to parliament, but under the "Representation of the People Act, 1867," the number was reduced to one and by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," the representation of the borough was merged in that of the county.

There are three parishes: -All Saints', St. Peter's and St. Mary's: of these, the first two, on account of the smallness of the emoluments, have been united for ecclesiastical purposes. The church of All Saints, standing in the highest part of the town, is a building of stone and serial streets, containing good shops and dwellings: the inhabitants are well supplied with water from works stated in the Spital road, the property of a company, and the town is jared and lighted with gas from works chapel dedicated to the Holy Trinity and containing three chantries, founded by Robert D'Arcy esq. of Danbury, who t with Alice (Fitzhangley), his wife, widow of John Ingoe, merchant, of this town, was here buried, she died in 26 Hen. VI. (1447-8); this chapel has since been extended to the whole length of the church, its double piscina and an oil painting of the "Last Supper," being replaced in the new east wall: at the west end rises a singular and almost unique triangular tower with pinnacles at the angles and terminating in an hexagonal spire: it contains a peal of 6 bells, three of which are respectively dated 1707, 1770 and 1799: there are some monuments of the 17th century to the D'Arcy, Wentworth, Jeffrey, Vernon, Steevens and Cammock families, and marble floor stones of the 16th century to various members of the Vernon family: the east window is stained and on the south side of the chancel is a memorial window of four lights, erected in 1848 to the memory of Henry Coape esq. by his widow and children: the pulpit and font are both elaborately carved in the Decorated style: in 1867 the church was thoroughly restored and reseated at a cost of about £1,200 and in 1877 further improvements and restorations were made at a cost of £3,000. The register dates from the year 1556. The living is a vicarage, with St. Peter's annexed, yearly value The A 300, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1850 by the Rev. Edward Russell Horwood M.A. of Brasenose College Oxford and rural dean of Maldon. The vicarage house is a large and ancient building adjoining the churchyard. church of St. Mary, situated in the lower part of the town on the bank of the river, is a spacious building of thint in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, vestry, large north porch and a massive western tower of stone and brick, supported by immense buttresses and terminating in a spire: it contains 6 bells, respectively dated 1799, 1740, 1707, 1636, 1714 and 1740; this church is said to have been originally founded by Ingolric, a Saxon nobleman, before the year 1056: and part of it, including the tower, was restored in 1628, a brief being granted for the purpose by Charles I.: it was restored in 1886 with the addition of a court halfs the navaged being states. tion of a south aisle, the nave and chancel being at the same time new roofed and re-seated with open benches; and a new east window erected: the staircase, formerly leading to the rood loft, and a portion of the ancient Norman chancel arch were discovered during the restoration: there are 450 arch were discovered during the restoration: there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £270, with residence, built in 1886, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Westminster and held since 1883 by the Rev. Alfred Leedes Hunt M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There are Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels and a meeting room for the Society of Friends. The Cemetery, situated on the London road and formed in 1855 at a cost about Lagon originally comprised. of about £1,300, originally comprised 4 acres, but was enlarged in 1883; it contains two mortuury chapels and is under the control of a Burial Board of 18 members. The church of St. Peter, situated in the centre of the town, had fallen into ruins (the tower excepted) about 1665 and on the site of it Dr. Plume, then Archdeacon of Rochester and a native of Maldon, erected about 1704 a brick building adjoining the tower to contain his library, which he presented to the town, bequeathing also a fund for its support and for the supply of new books; the library, now under the care of the Rev. Edward Russell Horwood M.A. vicar, consists of about 6,000 volumes, principally theological, many of them being very rare and valuable works: the tower is a massive pile of rough stone embattled, with a spiral staircase in an octangular turret at the north-west angle, and contains a clock.

Freemasons have a Lodge within this building.

Dr. Plume also provided by his will for the education and clothing of ten poor boys of Maldon and Mundon and for the apprenticing of two such boys: and further left a sum of £27 for the delivery of weekly lectures at All Saints' church. The boys are now educated by the master of the National schools.

The Town or Moot Hall, also called "The D'Arcy Tower," is a lofty and ancient brick building named from the Robert D'Arcy previously mentioned, who in the reign of Henry V. was the king's escheator for this county; his descendants became, from 1551, barons D'Arcy of Chiche, but the title ceased with the death of Thomas, 3rd baron, Viscount Col-chester and Earl Rivers, in 1639. On the ground floor is the police station, on the first floor the court room, where the quarter and petty sessions are held and on the second floor a council chamber containing some oil paintings of Queens Elizabeth and Anne, Charles II. George III. and Dr. Plume. In October 1881, an illuminated clock with chimes was presented by George Courtaid esq. then M.P. for the borough, at a cost of about £400.

The Public Hall, in High street, erected in 1859, is let for concerts and lectures.

The London and County Bank and Messrs. Sparrow and Co. have branch banks here, and there is a savings bank; there are also police and fire engine stations.

Yearly fairs are held on the first Thursday in May and September 13th and 14th for cattle. A large shipping trade is carried on in corn, coals, lime, chalk, hay and straw and in oilcake, manures and timber. There are maltings, flour mills, rope walks, boat-building yards, lime-kilus, salt-works, a brawery, steam saw mills, timber yards, sail lofts. an iron foundry, an agricultural implement and machine manufactory and on the river Blackwater an extensive fishery.

Until 1865 the port was free, but the Maldon Harbour Act, passed in that year, gave power to widen and deepen the river and to levy tolls on shipping coming within the jurisdiction of the commissioners; in 1882 the port of Maldon was reduced to a creek of the port of Colchester; vessels loading or unloading in Heybridge Basin, however, are still free.

The railway terminus, situated at the east end of the town, is a building of stone and red and white brick, in the Elizabethan style: the west end station is a modern building of brick with stone dressings. The Custom House is situated on Market hill.

The principal hotels are the "King's Head" and the "Blue Boar.

The G Company of the 2nd Volunteer Battalion Essex

Regiment have their head quarters in the town.

The remains of Beeleigh Abbey, a house of the Premonstratensian order, removed hither from Paradon, are situated about I mile west of the town: the abbey was founded by Robert de Mantell, A.D. 1180, and dedicated to St. Nicholas: at the Dissolution eleven canons were maintained on this foundation, the revenues of which Dugdale est mates at £156 16s. 114d.; the most perfect relic of the edifice is the Early English chapter house, 36 feet by 18 feet, with a groined roof, supported by three slender Purbeck columns: the undercroft of the refectory, and a portion of the common house, are also extant. Henry Bourchier, 1st Earl of Essex of that family, who died April 4th, 1483, was here buried, together with Isabel his countess and the Lady Mary Neville: the remains of the abbey have been converted into a dwelling house, the property of John Baker esq. of Hawkwell, who is lord of the manor.

John Rogers Herbert R.A. painter of the fresco of "Justice," in the House of Lords, was born here Jan. 23rd, 1810 and died at Kilburn, Middlesex, March, 1890.

The principal landowners are the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, Samuel Baker esq. John Baker esq. of Hawkwell, Miss Staines, C. B. Gibson esq. the Rev. Charles Georg's Gretton Townsend M.A. of Hatfield Pevere', and the Rev. John Bailey

MANNINGTREE is a small town and parish, situated on the couthern bank of the navigable river Stour, 593 miles from London, 10 south from Ipswich, 103 from Hadleigh, 11 west from Hawich, 83 north-east from Colchester, 303 from Cheinsford and 364 from Bury, in the North Eastern driving of the county, Tendring hundred, petty sessional drawn and union. Cokchester county court district, rural deapers of Ardleigh, archdeacoury of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The Great Eastern railway has stations, each about half-a-mile from the town, at Manningtree (which is in lawford parish) on the main line and at Mistley, the aver on the Harwich branch. The town includes the parish of Manningtree and parts of the parishes of Mistley and lawford. (The names of persons residing in such portions of these parishes as form part of the town will be found under Managerre and the remaining names under their respective parabe.) The town is lighted with gas; the water is supplied from springs coming out of the hills a little above the Lown. In addition to this the Tendring Hundred Water Co. have recently (1890) laid down pipes from an artesian well at Misley, one mile distant, but, the supply being at present optional, very lew of the inhabitants use it. The church or chapel, a tributed to St. Michael, erected in 1616, is a building of brick chiefly of late Perpendicular character, consisting of nave and a small wooden belicot containing one bell: the structure has been twice enlarged, the last addition being made at the east end in 1839, when 175 additional free seats were added and the interior was restored in 1874: a monument was placed in the chapel by the inhabitants in 1748 in memory of the pious Thomas Osmond, who suffered martyrdom in the town in 1515, and there is also a memorial to Thomas Tusser, 1580 : the organ was erected in 1857 and to Inomas Jusser, 1500: the organ was receded in 1557 and the altar-piece, a large oil painting, representing Our Saviour, was the gift of Edward Daniel Alston esq. in 1823; the communion plate includes a chalice given in 1663 by William Laud, then Bishop of London and afterwards Archbishop of Laud, their bishop of London and anterwards archivenop of Canterbury. The register of burials dates from 1695; baptisms and marriages, 1696. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £162, in the gift of the rector of Mistley, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Francis Wingfield Dickenson.

The vicarage house was restored in 1877 at a cost of 4870.

There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. In the was purchased by subscription among the inhabitants and vested in trustees, the dividends arising from which were to be paid to the clergyman of Manningtree on Easter Monday be pad to the clergy man of manningtree on faster Monday in every year for a sermon to be by him preached after evening service on the Good Friday preceding the same; this amount now stands in the new 2g per Cents. in the names of four trustees. The Public Hall, a building of stone, built for the purposes of a corn exchange in 1865 at a cost of

£1,600, and purchased in 1880 by a private company, is now used for public meetings and entertainments, and will hold 450 persons. The reading room was built in 1849: there are also two banks, the London and County Bank and Messrs. Gurneys, Alexanders and Co. both in High street. An important trade is carried on in corn, malt and timber and there are very extensive malting establishments in the town and adjoining parish of Mistley. The Mistley lodge of Freemasons, "No. 2339," hold monthly meetings at the White Hart hotel on the first Tuesday after the full moon, Jos. Ashdown, sec. The trustees of the late Thomas Glover Ashdown, sec. Kensit esq. are lords of the manor of Mistley-cum-Manningtree. The area is 22 acres of land and 9 of water; rateable value. £2,664; the population in 1881 was 932. Parish Clerk, J. W. Downing.

Bishop's Stortford and the Lee navigation, in the Northern division of the county, Clavering hundred, Bishop's Stortford union and county court district, Walden petty sessional division, rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Colchester and divises of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary, given by Richard de Corneville and Alice his wife to the monks of St. Melan, in Bretagne, and formerly a cruciform building, underwent a thorough restoration in 1864 at a cost of £1,900, and is now an edifice of flint with stone dressings in the Early Gothic style, consisting of spacious chancel, nare, north fransep, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with spire containing 5 bells: the chard, separated from the nave by a richly-carved screen, contains a painted reredos presented by the present vicar: in the north transept, called "Battle's End," and apparatus once belonging to the manor of Battle's Wood, is a maral tablet to Sir William Wade kt. a celebrated man in the regus of Queen Elizabeth and King James I. being one of the clerks of the Privy Council and also employed on missions to the Emperor Rudolph II. Philip king of Spain, Henry III. of France, Henry IV. of France and Navarre, and to Mary Queen of Scots; he was also Lieutenant of the Tower of London, and held other important offices; on retiring from public affairs he spent the remainder of his life quetly at Battle's Wood, dying there in his 77th year, 23 Oct. 1623: on the chancel floor is an epitaph to Gertrude, vile of Richard James, ob. 1634. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge \mathcal{L}^{200} , net yearly value \mathcal{L}^{120} , with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of Mrs. M. A. Thomas, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Joseph Bernard Forster M.A. of Trinity College,

The village lies high, the raist sloping towards the river Colne. The church of St. files is a building of stone and brick, in part of Early Norman date, the body of the church belonging to the late Decrated period, and consisting of apsidal chancel, nave with south chapel, north sisle, south porch, and a massive embattled western tower of flint with cut stone quoins, containing 3 bells and a clock presented in 1883 by Mrs. Maria spering, in memory of Henry John Sperling esq. D.L., J.P.; the tower was for years covered with plaster, on the removal of which, in 1861, it was found that the western part of the tower was in brick: the date 1612 was visible on it, and the legend is that at this date this half of the tower, together with the west end of the south aisle were destroyed by aghtning, and restored as now seen, the ancient quoins being retained: in the north aisle is a memorial window to Mrs. Marsten: in the south chapel are monuments to Sir John Dean, of Dynes Hall, who was knighted at the Tower in 1913, and died 17th February, 1625, and another to his lady, Anne, danghter of Sir Drue Drury kt. of Riddlesworth, Nor-

GREAT MAPLESTEAD is an ancient village and | knight, reclining on his arm, and above are kneeling figures of eight children; the monument of Lady Dean is more elaborately designed, and has a standing ettigy beneath an arch, and below this a figure in armour of her son, Sir Drue Deane kt. who erected the monument April 14, 1634: the edifice was enlarged by the addition of a north aisle and reedifice was enlarged by the addition of a north asse and reseated in the year 1861, and the chancel was restored in 1866 by Miss Barter in memory of Mrs. Gee. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from 1697; burials, 1678. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £130, with residence, in the gitt of the Rev. Canon Fraser M.A. vicar of South Weald, Brentwood, and held since 1837 by the Dev. Asthur Extragrable France V. A. of Kebbe College. the Rev. Arthur FitzGerald Evans M.A. of Keble College, Here is a chapel for the Brethren. In this parish is the Diocesan House of Mercy for Fallen Women, erected in 1867, at a cost of about £10,000, by the late Miss E. Barter, who afterwards became a Sister of the Community of All Hallows, Ditchingham: she also endowed the institution with £200 a year, as a salary for the warden, who must be a clergyman of the Church of England; the buildings are constructed for 32 penitents, workers and sisters, who may be received from any part of the United Kingdom, with a preference for the counties of Essex and Herts; the management of the institution is entrusted to a council of 50 of the leading clergy and laity of the two counties; for its maintenance it is dependent on voluntary subscriptions and on washing and needlework done by the penitents; the the diocese is visitor, and the present wardon is the Rev. Henry de Romestin M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, appointed in 1885. Dynes Hall, the seat of Charles

LITTLE MAPLESTEAD is an ancient parish, ab ut 6 miles south-west from Sudbury and the Stour navigation and 21 north from Halstead station on the Colne Valley railway, in the Northern division of the county, Hinckford hundred, North Hinckford petty sessional division, Halstead union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Hedingham, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. A preceptory of the Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem was founded here by Juliana de Burgo in 1185, the round church of which, now the parish church of St. John of Jerusalem, is an example of the pure Decorated style and one of the few churches in England of the class to which the Temple church in London and those of St. Sepulchre at Cambridge and Northampton belong, and is specially interesting as being the latest and smallest of these, the diameter of the circular part being only about 26 feet and the whole length, including the apsidal chancel, ittle more than 60 feet: the circular portion, or nave, consists of a peristyle of six piers, each formed by three shafts set round a triangle and supporting pointed arches of simple but good design, those extending to the outside wall resting on corbels; the windows are mostly of two lights; the western entrance is through an arch adorned with a double row of quatrefoil ornaments, the head terminating in a finial: this church is said formerly to have had the privilege of sanctuary and was rebuilt in 1854, the MERSEA (the Marsh Isle) lies between the mouths of the Colne and Blackwater and is separated from the mainland by Pyefleet creek, famous for its oysters; a cause-way on the north side, called the "Strole" or "Stroude," which is dry at low water, affording the necessary means of communication; the length of Mersea from north-east to south-west is about 5 miles, its greatest breadth about 2; it possesses many natural beauties, is well wooded and diversified with hill and dale. On the sea coast the shore is bold and commanding, but northwards flat and shelving and skirted by salt marshes, being defended by a dyke or sea wall. The island farms are divided by thick hedge-rows and the inclosed fields are generally small; the springs are excellent. It is divided into two parishes—East and West Mersea—and is in the North Eastern division of the county, Winstree hundred, Lexden and Winstree petty sessional division and union, Colchester county court district, and in the rural deanery of Mersea, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The area is 5,322 acres; the population of the island in 1881 was 1,362.

East Mersea, next the Colne, is 10 miles south from Colchester, about 6 south from Wivenhoe station on the Tendring Hundred branch of the Great Eastern railway, about r west from Brightlingsea station by ferry and fr from London. The church of St. Edmund, a building of the 14th century, standing on a declivity at the east end of the island, exhibits a mixture of the Perpendicular and Decorated styles, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, north aisle, north chapel, south porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: the tower was formerly sur-mounted by a beacon and still serves as a landmark: during the Dutch and French wars it was garrisoned by soldiers, and the entrance staircase from the interior is guarded by a very ancient iron door as a protection against fire: the church and hall were once surrounded by a most, of which part still remains. The register dates from the year 1720. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £450, with 25 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Frederick Joseph Ball M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford, and rural dean of Mersea; the rectory house was built in the year 1860. Edward Smith esq. is lord of the manor and the Rev. Frederick J. Ball M.A. of the rectorial manor. The principal landowners are Mrs. Round and Mrs. Sandford. The soil is 'mixed; subsoil, loam and gravel. The chief crops wheat, barley, oats, beans, peas and mangold-wartzel. The area is 1,973 acres of land and 2,482 of water; rateable value, £1,969; the population in 1881 was 280.

West Mersea parish is 10 miles south from Colchesr. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is an edifice of stone and flint, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, south aisle and north and south porches, and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: the archway western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: the archway from the nave into the tower is Norman, and Roman brickwork enters largely into the structure of the building; there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1634. The living is a discharged vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £231, with residence and 8 acres of glebe, in the gift of James Eglington A. Gwynne esq. of Folkington Manor, Polegate, Sussex, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Francis Ouston M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. During the progress of alterations at West Mersea Hall, about 1730, a very fine tesselated pavement was discovered, 21½ feet in length and 18½ in breadth: the hall stands immediately contiguous to the church and from excavations made in the churchyard, it would appear that excavations made in the churchyard, it would appear that the whole extent of it is underlaid with this pavement, upon which, indeed, very many lie buried Dr. Cromwell Mortimer, secretary of the Royal Society, visiting the spot in 1740, conceived it to have once been the villa of a Roman prætor, but it has otherwise been regarded by Dr. Stukely as the remains of a temple dedicated to the goddess Vesta, which once stood on or near the site of the church. The Counts of the Saxon shore are said by Morant to have had their residence adjacent to this temple on the site now occupied by West Mersea Hall. There is a Congregational chapel, by west mersea mail. There is a Congregational chapel, with burial ground and school room attached and a Wesleyan chapel. Here is a coast guard station, with a chief officer and a staff of ten men. Alexander Bean and Charles Cock esqrs. are the principal landowners. The soil is rich loam and stiff clay; subsoil, part gravel and part clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans; there are also a great number of flower seeds grown. The area 18 3,183 acres of land and 1,587 of water; rateable value, £3,753; the population in 1881 was 1,082. Close to West Mersea, in Salcott creek, are two small islands, one of which is called "Cobmarsh island." Parish Clerk, Edgar Pullen.

The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a small building of flint and brick, partly in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave, south porch, and an embattled western tower of brick with a shingled spire containing 5 bells, dated respectively 1627, 1633, 1712, 1751 and 1789: the interior of the chancel was restored in 1868 and the nave in 1869, by subscription; the exterior of the chancel wall and the north wall being rebuilt and new windows inserted, mainly at the expense of the present rector: there is an ancient font, apparently of Purbeck marble, finely carved with fleurs-de-lis; a mural monument of marble is inscribed to George Goodwin, rector here for 63 years, who died in 1623. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £300, with residence and about 90 acres of glebe, in the gift of St. John's College, Cambridge and held since 1877 by the Rev. Arthur Calvert M.A. late fellow of that college. There is a Congregational chapel at the south end of the village. several charities, amounting to £20 yearly, distributed in clothes to the poor every Christmas: Ann Brecknock left by will, in 1804, £200, the interest to be applied in repairing

Bowles John, Jolly Cricketers P.H NEWPORT.—This ancient village, formerly a market town, stands on the river Granta or Cam and the Roman and modern road to Cambridgeshire and was originally called "Newport Pond," from a large pool at the south end of the street: it is situated 3 miles south from Saffron Walden, 9 north from Bishop's Stortford, 7 north-west from Thaxted and 40 from London, with a station on the main line of the Great Eastern railway to Cambridge: the parish is in the Northern division of the county, Uttlesford hundred, Saffron Walden petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Colchester, and diocese of St. Albans: the village is lighted with gas from works erected in 1867. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, situated in the highest part of the village, is a building of rubble, in the Perpendicular and Decorated styles, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, with clerestory, aisles, transepts, south porch with parvise, and a lofty western embattled tower, with four embattled turrets and containing 6 bells; the tower was rebuilt and the rest of the church, with the exception of the chancel, restored in 1858-9: there are four stained windows, one of which is a memorial to Robert M. Tamplin, son of the present vicar, who perished in the disastrous fire at the Theatre Royal, Exeter, Sept. 5, 1887, when upwards of 200 persons lost their lives; another was placed by Mr. Thomas Shirley in remembrance of his golden wedding (December 1889). pulpit is of Caen stone, carved with subjects from the Old and New Testament: there are Early Decorated piscinæ in the north transept and chancel, and a piscina in the south transept: the font is Early English, with a fine carved oak cover of the 13th century; and there is a carved oak lectern of the 14th century, supporting a chained Bible: the chancel is separated from the nave by a fine 15th century oak screen: there is a brass with effigies to Thomas Brand, ob. 1515, and Margery his wife, with four children, inscription, and the emblems of the Evangelists: there is also a brass in the floor under the tower to Geoffrey Nightingale esq. and Katherine his wife, 1608, with seven children: the muniment chest has paintings inside the lid of "The Crucifixion," "The B. V. Mary," "St. John," "St. Peter" and "St. Paul:" the five locks are curious, and the exterior of the chest is richly ornamented with perforated gilt lead, exquisitely worked. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £115, net yearly value £280, including 24 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1876 by the Rev. George Frederick Tamplin M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, Lieut.-Col. A. M. Cranmer-Byng D.L., J. P. is impropriator of the great tithes. The Congregational chapel is a large building, originally erected in 1777 and rebuilt in 1879: it will now seat 400 persons; there is a good schoolroom, used on Sundays and for meetings. The parish room, formerly the old Grammar school, is used for parochial purmerly the old Grammar school, is used for parochial purmers. There are charities amounting in all to £60 yearly and arising chiefly from land left by John Covill and Agnes his wife, Dame Lettice Martin, of Crishall, and other donors ; the most important is a farm of about 40 acres, with a farmannually on Hock Monday (the second Monday after Easter), amongst needy people of this parish.

There was formerly a amongst needy people of this parish. There was formerly a Railway Station, James Drage, station master hospital for lepers here, founded in the reign of King John, by CARRIER.—Walter Salmon, to Saffron Walden, on wed. & sat

Richard de Newport and dedicated to SS. Mary and Leonard; part of the building, still standing, is now a farmhouse: the stone columns of the original chapel have been built into the garden wall. The "Crown" House, once occupied by Nell Gwynne, and the "Coach and Horses" Hotel, from which Gwynne, and the "Coach and Horses" Hotel, from which it is said George (Villiers), and Duke of Buckingham and John (Wilmot) the witty, but dissolute Earl of Rochester used to post, are both in good preservation. A plece of inclosed ground, of about 4 acres, is used as a recreation ground. In the centre of the village is a old house called "Monk Barns," the exterior wall of which bears an old carving of the Coronation of the Blessed Virgin; this house belonged to the monks of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, and was used by them as a sanitorium; in connection with this a bell until 1875 was rung during the winter months at 4 o'clock in the morning. Bricks are made in the parish. Shortgrove, the seat of Joseph C. T. Smith esq. M.A. is one mile north: the mansion, an edifice of red brick in the Queen Annestyle, stands on an eminence, 300 feet above sea level, with an attached deer park of about 400 acres, through which the river Cam flows; the estate embraces, together with outlying lands in the parishes of Henham, Broxted and others, an area of 3,123 acres, including the manors of Shortgrove Hall, Wicken Hall and others. Joseph Charles Thomas Smith esq. M.A. who is lord of the manor, and Lieut.-Col. Alfred Molyneux Cranmer-Byng D.L., J.P. of Quendon Hall, are the chief landowners. The soil is mixed chalk and gravel; subsoil, clay, gravel, brick earth and chalk. The crops are wheat, oats, barley, beans and roots. At an early period Black and White Notley

BLACK NOTLEY, mentioned in Domesday Book, is formed but one village, but on its coming into the possession an undulating parish and pleasant village, situated near the of Geoffrey de Mandeville, Earl of Essex and Roger Bigod, mer fram or Pods brook, and on the road from Braintree Earl of Norfolk, these two powerful nobles are said to have founded churches, each upon his own land (as was then customary), for the use of his tenants. The manor house of Black Notley, or Gobians, stands near the church. Many antiquities were found in this parish in 1852, and it was the birthplace in 1579 of the learned William Bedell, bishop of Kilmore, 1629-42; John Ray F.R.s. the distinguished naturalist, was the son of a blacksmith in the village and was born here Nov. 29, 1628; he died Jan. 17. 1705, and is buried in the churchyard, where a monument was erected over his grave, which Dr. Compton, bishop of London, caused to be removed into the church, but it has since been replaced on its original site: the tomb has a long Latin inscription, eulogising his studious and unambitious life. Capt. Richard Symonds, a Royalist officer tious life. Capt. Michard Symonus, a novams omcer during the Civil War, and well known to antiquaries by his "Diary of the Royal Army during the great Civil War," printed by the Camden society in 1839, was also a native of this place, and was living in 1660. GREAT OAKLEY is a village and parish, situated on Ramsey Creeek, a feeder of the Stour, and on the road from Colchester to Harwich, 6 miles south-west from Harwich, 5 north from Thorpe-le-Soken station on the Colchester and Walton-on-the-Naze line, and 4 south from Wrabness station on the Harwich and Manningtree branch of the Great Eastern railway, 7 south-east from Manningtree, 14 from Colchester and 65 from London, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division and union of Tendring and Harwich county court district and in the rural deanery of Ardleigh and Harwich, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The church of All Saints is an ancient building of stone and brick, partly Norman and consisting of chancel and nave and a beliry containment of the containment of ing one bell: in the nave is a tablet to the Rev. Richard Drake M.A. rector of the parish in 1718, who erected an almshouse for four aged women of the parish: there is a fine Norman font of polished marble, supported on five stone shafts: the church was restored in 1880, when the galleries were removed and the pews replaced by open benches at a cost of £400, defrayed by general contributions; during the progress of the work a large flag stone was discovered, inlaid with a marble slab bearing an inscription to Sarah Savell, daughter of Thomas Savell, of Great Oakley, ob. 16th March, 1619: there are sittings for 250 persons. The register dates from the year 1673. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £900 a year, with residence and 57 acres of glebe, in the gift of St. John's College, Cambridge, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Delaval Shafto Ingram M.A. of that college, and formerly head master of Felstead school. The district church at Stones Green, was erected in 1886 as a memorial to the wife of the Rev. John Howard Marsden B.D. late vicar, and canon of Manchester: there are 150 sittings. There is a Wesleyan chapel in the village and Primitive Methodist chapels at Stones Green and in the village. The manorial rights are held by Miss Bull, of Great Oakley Hall. The land belongs principally to Guy's Hospital, London, John Salmon esq. the Rev. Charles F. Norman M.A., J.P. rector of Mistley and Miss Brocket. The soil is excellent, being a mixture of loam, clay and gravel; the subsoil is loamy. The chief crops loam, clay and gravel; the subsoil is loamy. are wheat, barley, beans and peas. ORSETT (the Horse's heath) is a village and parish, 4 miles north-east from Grays station on the London, Tilbury and Southend railway, 10 south from Brentwood, 6 north from Tilbury Fort, 13 south-east from Romford and 24 from London via Rainham; it is the head of a union and petty sessional division (held at Grays), in the South Eastern division of the county, Barstable hundred, Brentwood county court district and in the rural deanery of Orsett, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Giles and All Saints is a building of flint with stone facings, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, north aisle with transept and chapel, south porch and a western tower of brick with a dwarf spire, containing 6 bells, the sixth being added, and commemoration services held, on the 24th April, 1886: this church was of Norman foundation and rebuilt in the 13th century, but underwent extensive alterations both in the Decorated and Perpendicular periods; and is entered on the south side by a fine Norman doorway: the east window is stained: and the chancel retains three sedilia with Purbeck shafts, and a trefoil-headed piscina: under the west window are five carvings in relief representing the five principal events of Our Lord's life; these were the gift in 1887 of the late Capt. Dig by Wingfield: the north chapel, which belongs to Capt. T.C. D. Whitmore, has been adorned by the owner with a new communion table, reredos and hangings: an elegant screen of the 14th century separates the north aisle from its chapel and has some traces of colouring: the tower was rebuilt early in the 17th century and has in its north wall a brass plate recording the benefaction of Thomas Hotofte, ob. 1495: the font is Perpendicular: there are brasses to Thomas Lathin, ob. 1485, and Jane his wife, with effigies; to Robert Kinge, parson, ob. 1584, et. 47, with verses in Latin and English and a small mural brass of a civilian, c. 1535: a large marble tomb with a recumbent figure, robed, commemorates John Hatt, attorney of the City of London and once owner of this lordship: in the chancel are mural monuments to the family of Baker and a brass to Dorothy Williamson, who reached the great age of 104: within the communion rails william Gilbert D.D. ob. 1640; Rev. Matthew Styles D.D. sub-rector of Exeter College, Oxford and proctor, ob. 16 Aug. 1652; and the Rev. M. Usko, ob. Dec. 31st, 1841: Aug. 1652; and the Rev. M. Usko, ob. Dec. 31st, 1841: a vestry was built by the rector in 1865 and the chancel aisle reopened in 1870; and in 1881 a new organ was placed in the church at a cost of $\(\frac{1}{2}\) oo: the church plate includes a flagon and peten, given by Mrs. Margaret Silverlock in 1575 and two silver alms-dishes, given by D. Harper and the Rev. Thomas Harper in 1677 and 1705: there are about 650 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1669; marriages, 1670. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge $\int_{1,227}$, net yearly value $\int_{4}86$, with 10 acres of glebe and residence, built in 1843 by the Rev. J. Blomfield, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Richard Thomas Whittington M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, rural dean of Orsett, honorary canon of St. Albans Oxford, rural dean of Orsett, honorary canon of St. Albans and chaplain to Orsett union and to the training ship Ex- Registrar of Marriages, Ray Tyrrell, Horndon-on-the-Hill 11 of St. Albans. The church of St. George is an edifice of flint, in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of apsidal chancel with north chapel, nave, south porch and an embattled round tower at the west end containing 5 bells: the original Norman church was probably destroyed in the 14th century, after which the present structure was erected on the old foundations, the tower being reared against the Norman west doorway; the roofs of rough oak are conjectured to be of the same date: in the chapel is a very fine monument, with recumbent figures, to George Kempe, ob. 1606, John Kempe esq. his son and Ellinor his wife, together with the kneeling figures of their children, 10 daughters and sons: the chancel contains a fine altar tomb with arms to the Felton family, bearing the date 1542, but without inscription, as well as memorial tablets to the families of Mathew and Bull: the font is a very fine example of Early Nor-man date, and has a beautiful, though much mutilated, 15th century canopy, which opens with doors: in 1887 the chief part of the church was thoroughly restored at a cost exceeding fr,000, under the direction of Mr. W. M. Fawcett, architect, of Cambridge: a handsome pulpit and lectern have since been presented, and all the woodwork is of the best English oak: the only fittings retained were the Jacobean communion table and the rails around it: the tower remains to be restored and the bells re-hung, the estimated cost of which is about £250. The register dates from the year 1539, and contains a list of rectors from 1323; and there is another list in the vestry since 1315. The living is a rectory, yearly tithe rent-charge £518, with residence and 27 acres of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1877 by the Rev. Felix Edward Pepys Bull M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. In 1859 an octagonal tower in the Tudor style was erected in the rectory grounds by the Rev. Edward Bull M.A. formerly rector here, to the memory of his father; it is considered a fine work and has a spiral staircase to the top, from which

PLASHET, see UPTON.

PLESHEY is an ancient town, consisting chiefly of a long street of small houses, once a place of great importance and the seat of the High Constables of England from the earliest institution of that office till nearly four centuries after the Conquest: it is situated on a small feeder of the Chelmer, 8 Digitized by GOOSIG petty sessional division, Chelmsford union and county court district, rural deanery of Roding, archdeaconry of Essex and discess of St. Albans. The first parish church of Pleshey unoses of S. Alrens. Ane first parish church of Pieshey was consertated and endowed between 1214 and 1259, in the time of Humphrey de Bohun, the good Farl of Hereford and Lori High Constable; besides the old church there were two chips one within the castle and the other attached to the courth and deficated to St. Nicholas: the tower and transepts of the existing church of Holy Trinity are the mutilated remains of a fine cruciform doubled-aisled church of Late Decorated character, which belonged jointly to the parsh and to a college of nine priests, founded here in 1393 by Thomas de Woodstock, 6th son of Edward III. and Duke of Glucester, and endowed by him with the tithes: the college fell with the lesser monasteries in 1536, when the revenues were £143 128. 3d.; and of several marble tombs of the femiles family which formerly stood in the chancel, only two slabs stripped of their brasses now remain: Henry Compton, bishop of London (1675-85), erected a small nave on the ruins of the ancient structure in 1708, and a chancel was added about forty years after by Samuel Tufnell esq. which is now adorned with mural monuments of his family the church was completely restored in 1868, by J. J. Tufnell eq and the late vicur, at a cost of £3,000, and consists of chancel, nave, transepts, north porch and an embattled control tower, with a stair turret and containing a clock and 5 bells, recast and hung at the expense of J. J. Tufnell esq. : there are three stained windows, the large west window being a memorial placed at the expense of the parishioners to the late ricar: there is an old churchyard, now desecrated, in which the parish church stood before the college was built: there are 230 sittings. The register dates from the year 1656. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £200, including 20 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of J. J. Tulnell eg. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Charles William Howis. The Dan and Chapter of Westminster are the improprietors of a portion of the tithes. The town was anciently called "Tumbelstoun," or "the town of the Tumuli" and here it is supposed was formerly a Roman camp; the remains of a strong fortress erected by the Normans still etist and are attributed, with some probability, to Geoffrey de Magnaville or Mandeville, Earl of Essex, who, as possessor of this place, held by repute the office of Great Constable of emin ace; the somery around it is hold and romantic, the and unfulating and from every point there are extensive views; it is 2 miles north-west from Cold Norton station on the Maldon branch of the Great Eastern railway, 4 miles south from Maldon, 44 from London and 10 south-east from Chelm-ford, in the South Eastern division of the county, Dengie hundred and petty sessional division, Maldon unon and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Madon, architeacoury of Essex and diocese of St. Albans.

The church of All Saints, situated on a hill, is an edifice of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave of three lays, assless, south porch and an ancient embattled asslern tower of flint and stone containing a clock and 5 belis: the pulpit and reredos are elaborately designed and there is one stained window at the west end of the south aisle, but the church has no striking features, nor are there any monuments of importance: there are sittings for about 350 persons. The register of marriages dates from 1592, baptums and burials from 1662; these records are in good continue. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £550, net parly value £550, with 80 acres of glebe and rectore, in the gift of Oriel College, Oxford, and held since 1350 by the Rev. Reginald Taverner Love M.A. of that olings. The rectory, formerly annexed to the Provost-

(7 Geo. III. c. 27), was dissociated therefrom on the death of Protest Hawkins in 1882, under the provisions of the Universities and Colleges Estates Amendment Act of 1880, and is now in no way connected with it. About half the lithes of the purish have been assigned to the Provost under this act, but these are quite distinct from the tithes paid to the rector, and the rectory is at present simply in the festion of an ordinary college living. The earliest mention of Parlagh occurs at the beginning of the reign of Henry II when the details and the rectory is a present simply in the postume of an ordinary college living.

England; he was slain in 1144, at the siege of Burwell Castle, but his third son William, eventually inheriting the estate, obtained a licence from Henry II. to fortify his castle at Pleshey, which continued to be the seat of the High Con-stables of England till some time after 1,00: he died in 1189: the keep of this castle is elliptical in form and has a circumference of 850 feet; the vallum, with a noble foss, is in part very perfect, and the four roads leading into the camp can be easily traced. Here dwelt Thomas de Woodcamp can be easily traced. Here dwelt finding de wood-stock, Duke of Gloucester, youngest son of Elward III. who came into possession of this estate by his marriage with Eleanor, daughter of Joan, widow of Humphrey, Earl of Hereford, Essex and Northampton; he was here basely arrested, hurried to the Thames, put on shipboard and conveyed to Calais, where, after a short imprisonment, he was murdered, through the treachery of his nephew, Richard II. Here also, in 1400, John Holland, Duke of Exeter, was beheaded by the populace, in revenge for his share in Prince Thomas's murder. The materials of the castle, which after his death fell to decay, were used about 1600 to build the lodge, but this in its turn was taken down in 1767: the vast lodge, but this in its turn was taken down in 1767; the vast earthworks, the mount, with its singular bridge and the two moats, still attent the ancient grandeur and strength of the eastle. The manor became part of the Puchy of Lancaster in 15a1; three farms, constituting two-thirds of the parish, belong to John Jolliffe Tufnell esq. D.L., J.P. of Langleys, Great Walthum. The soil is chalky clay, with finits and chalk fossils; subsoil, loam. The chief crops are wheat, barley and outs. The area is 730 acres, 627 being arable; rateable value, £1,014; the population in 1881 was 302.

PUBLEIGH is a village and parish, situated upon an mation it still belonged to that religious house. Restoration it is found in the possession of the Horsmonden family, from whom it was purchased by Oriel College. The benefactions amount to £4 9s. yearly, distributed to the poor in bread and the yearly rent of three acres of land is paid to the chur hwardens for ecclesiastical purposes. A fair is held on the 15th of June. In the parish, near Latchingdon, is a police station. Mrs. Irvine, who is lady of the manor, and W. Tufnell esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is a heavy loam; subsoil, heavy loam. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats, with some pasture land. The area is 5,639 acres of land and 74 water; rateable value, £4,920; the population in 1881 was 822.

RADWINTER is a parish and village, beautifully situated in a picturesque and well-wooded country on the upper part of the river Blackwater, here called the Pant or Freshwell: it is 5 miles east from Saffron Walden station, 5 north from Thaxted, 8 south-west from Haverhill and 48 from London, in the Northern division of the county, Freshwell hundred, Saffron Walden petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Stamford, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a building of local stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays with clerestory, aisles, vestries, south porch and a massive embattled western tower with spire, containing a clock with four dials, and chimes playing at the hours and quarters, and 8 fine-toned bells, five of which are dated 1616, a new one was added in 1877 and two more in 1888: the font is of stone with a modern carved canopy: hung round the interior of the church are pictures representing the stations of the Cross, and there are several beautiful oil paintings in the baptistery and in the chancel, which also retains a piscina: the stained east window was the gift of members of the Bullock family, and there are nine other stained windows: the reredos of carved oak, a curious example of Belgian work, dating from about 1520, exhibits scenes from the life of the Blessed Virgin: the gilded screen separating the chancel and nave is also a magnificent piece of workmanship: the church was enlarged and the chancel rebuilt in 1869, and the tower and spire restored and a turret built in 1877: the tower was rebuilt in 1888 at a cost of over £2,000. The register dates from the year 1638. of over £2,000. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge

RAINHAM (from ryne, a watercourse and ham, a rillage) is a rillage and parish, with a station on the London, Tilbury and Southend railway, 3 miles north-west from Purfect, 12 by rail from London, 71 north-west from Grays and 5 est from Barking, in the South Eastern division of the county, Orsett petty sessional division, Chafford hundred, Romford union and county court district, and in the rural dancy of Chafford, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans; the village forms a considerable street on the London road and the Ingerbourne brook. Over the latter is a bridge, and there is a quay on the creek, at its junction with the Thames. The church of SS, Helen and Giles (the only one in England dedicated to these saints jointly in this order) is an ancient structure of flint and stone of the 12th century, and consists of chancel, mare, aisles, south porch and a low but master embattled western tower containing 3 bells, one date! 1618 and the others 1670: the nave is divided from the able by three heavy semicircular arches on either side, resting on square columns, with circular shafts at the angles: a grand Norman arch, highly enriched with chevron moulding, opens into the chancel, the windows of which have been greatly distigated : the tower is constructed of coursed rubble, with sablar coigns, and is entered from the nave by a plain semicircular Norman arch, one tall lancet and three Norman windows lighting its basement: on the south side of the chancel is a narrow priest's doorway of Norman date ; the font is ancient and there are brass effigies on the floor to a civilian and his wife, c. 1500. The registers date regularly from the year 1665, but recently (1890) earlier registers dating from 1570, but very incomplete, have been discovered and restored. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge (430, with 4 acres of glebe and residence, the gift of the vicar of betarish, and rebuilt by one William Finch esq. in 1710, in the gift of the trustees of the late John Godsalve Crosse eq and held since 1847 by the Rev. The town, which consists of one wide street of considerable extent, is well situated in a communding position and is lighted with gas and supplied with water from springs and wells. The ancient church of the Holy Trinity, standing on rising ground at the upper end of the town, is an edifice of flint and stone, principally in the Perpendicular style, although some parts are of an earlier date; it consists of chancel with aisles, separated from it by anades of two bays, nave of four bays, south porch and a massive western tower with embattled turret, containing a check and 6 bells, rehung in 1888. The register dates from the pear 1548. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge, £952, with 45 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Rev. Joseph Duncan Macvicar M.A. of 9 Susser place, Regent's Park, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Holh Charles Meadows Rouse M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge and D.L., J.P. for Suffolk. Here are Baptist and Wedgan chapels. A fair for horses and cattle is still held on Traity Monday in each year. In April, 1849, several curious and ancient Roman coins were ploughed up in this panels. At the upper end of the town are earthworks, the remains of a castle first built by Sweyne, who owned the place at the time of the Domesday Survey and was the femier of the De Essex family: these consist of a mound with an oval-shaped base, surrounded by ramparts and dicles: from this spot is obtained a fine view over the

The remains of a Roman villa were found near the church in the year 1846, and at that date a tesselated pavement could be traced for four hundred yards. 'The kennels of the East Essex fox hounds are situated in this parish, of which Capt. Richard Beale Colvin, of Felix Hall, Kelvedon, is (1890) master; the pack hunt the district three days a week; Braintree and Witham are convenient places for hunting visitors. Rivenhall Place is a rectangular mansion standing on rising ground in a park of 100 acres, containing ornamental water about 500 yards in length: over this is a stone bridge of three arches by which the mansion is approached from the south; it is the property of the Western family and is now in the occupation of Mrs. Steele. The parish comprises five manors; Sir Thomas C. C. Western bart, of 21 Castletown road, West Kensington s w, is the principal landowner and lord of the manors. The land is principally arable; subsoil, loam. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and beans. The area is 3,589 acres of land and 12 water; rateable value, £5,c64; the population in 1881 was 690

ROCHFORD.—This ancient town is situated on the small river Roche, a confluent of the Crouch, which is navigable for vessels of considerable burthen to Broomhills, within a mile of the town and over which are two bridges: it is a union town and has a station on the Great Eastern railway extension from Shenfield to Southend, 40 miles from London, 12 south from Maldon, 104 south-east from Chelmsford, 6 east from Rayleigh and 4 north from South-end, in the South Eastern division of the county, petty sessional division and hundred of its name, Southend county court district, and in the rural deanery of Rochford, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The town consists of four paved streets of irregular houses, and is approached from the west through an avenue upwards of a mile in length, lined with elm and oak trees of singular beauty, planted by Sir James Tilney: it is lighted with gas and supplied with water from the river and springs, and there are two artesian wells of considerable depth. The there are two artesian wells of considerable depth. church of St. Andrew, situated about a quarter of a mile from the town, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, vestry, south porch and a lofty embattled western tower of brick, containing 3 bells: this tower was built, it is said, by Robert Lord Rich but bears the Boteler arms, which favours the belief that it was erected by the Butler family, Marquesses of Ormonde: there is a brass to Maria Dilcok, ob. 1514: the church was restored and reseated in 1862, and three stained windows inserted in the chancel, and in 1887 the east window stained in 5 lights; the parishioners presented the oak lec-tern. The register dates from the year 1678. The living is tern. The register dates from the year 1070. The inving is a rectory, tithes commuted at £595, with a house and glebe of 65 acres, in the gift of the Earl Cowley, and held since 1862 by the Rev. Benjamin Cotton M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The almahouses were founded by Robert Rich, first Earl of Warwick of that name, who died in 1618, for six poor people: there are other charities, producing (50 yearly. A market is held on Thursdays for the sale of sheep, cattle and pigs. A market is held on Thursdays for the sale of sneep, cause and pigs. There is a police station and two banks. A corn exchange was built in 1866, at a cost of £7,000, by a limited company. A county court used to be held here, but it is now transferred to Southend: the court house is a handsome building rerred to Southend: the court house is a handsome building erected in 1859, at a cost of nearly £3,000. In this district is held the "Lawless or Whispering Court," a tribunal established in pursuance of a singular manorial tenure: the court is held in the open air on King's Hill, adjoining the town, on the midnight of the first Wednesday after Old Michaelmas day or between that time and cock-crowing; the steward opens the court in as low a voice as possible, nevertheless all absentees are to be heavily fined and submit to other forfeits: the whole business is transacted in whispers, minutes being made with a coal in place of pen and ink. Rochford Hall is part only of the old mansion, formerly the abode of Queen Anne Boleyn and of Robert, 3rd baron Rich, created (6 Aug. 1618) Earl of Warwick; it is the property of James Tabor esq. and is occupied by a farm bailiff. each other at right angles; the principal street, in which | the cattle market is held, is a wide thoroughfare, of considerable length, running from west to east; in recent years several new streets have been added on the south and north-west sides of the town. The Great Eastern railway passes on a lofty embankment at the bottom of South street. The town is governed by a local board of health of 12 members and the parish is divided into four wards, viz.: Romford Town, Collier Row, Harold's Wood and Noak Hill. The town is lighted with gas from works established in 1825, but since bought by a company, and now (1889) about to be enlarged. Water is supplied by the South Essex Water Company, who derive their supply from Grays. Romford is the capital of the liberty of Havering-atte-Bower and lies within it; this liberty, comprising the three parishes of Hornchurch, Romford to the capital of the capital of the capital of the capital of the liberty, comprising the three parishes of Hornchurch, Romford to the capital of ford and Havering, has an ancient, peculiar and separate jurisdiction, granted by various charters from the time of Edward the Confessor, whose original grant has since received many additions and confirmations: it is independent of the county, appoints its own magistrates, has a clerk of the peace, coroner, quarter and petty sessions, courts of record and ancient demesne and a county court, and is governed by a high steward and two justices: all business relative to the liberty is transacted in the town of Romford. The Liberty quarter sessions are held on the Thursday succeeding the county quarter sessions and petty sessions every Thursday for the purposes of the Summary Jurisdiction
Act. The Church of St. Edward the Confessor, erected in 1850 on the site of the old parish church, is a building of Kentish rag with Bath stone dressings in the Later Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave with clerestory, aisles with chapels and an embattled tower on the south side, with a spire 162 feet in height and containing a clock and 8 bells, dated respectively 1850, 1756, 1704, 1651 and three others 1636, one being undated: the east window was given by Col. Graves in memory of his wife: there is also a stained window in the south aisle to the memory of Edward Ind esq. J.P. d. 1848; in the north aisle of the church is a stately monument, with alabaster effigies of himself and his lady in kneeling attitudes, to Sir Anthony Cooke, preceptor to King Edward VI. who died June 11, 1576: the Latin inscription on this monument, enumerating the various members of his family, is supposed to have been furnished by his daughters, who were among the learned females of that age: against the south wall of the chancel formerly stood the fine monument, now in the porch, of Sir Nicholas Hervey of Marks; he had previously been sheriff of Essex, 38 Eliz. (1595-6), and was at the time of his death, roth August, 1605, lieutenant of the Tower of London, where he died, but was buried here on the south side of the chancel, with heraldic ho. urs: there is a long inscription in gilt letters on a slab of black marble, to himself, his wife and various members of his family: previously placed on the south wall of the chancel, immediately west of the Hervey monument, but now in the porch, is the stately tomb, with her recumbent effigy, of Anne Carew, raised by her famous son, George, first and only Baron Carew and eventually Earl of Totnes; she was the daughter of Sir Nicholas Hervey knt. and sister of Sir George Hervey knt. and married George, third son of Sir Edmond Carew knt. dean of Windsor; he died 15th of June, 1583, and his wife, 27th August, 1605, at. 76: the church will seat 830 persons. The register dates from the year 1561 and is in very good condition. The living is nominally a vicarage, but is rather in the nature of a chaplaincy exempt from ecclesiastical jurisdiction, net yearly value New College, Oxford, who grant the vicar what is termed a lease," and held since 1888 by the Rev. Francis Edwin Allen M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. St. Andrew's is an ecclesiastical parish formed June 12, 1863, from the mother ecclesiastical parish formed June 12, 1863, from the mother parish; the church, erected in 1863, is a plain building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and a western belfry, with spire, containing one bell: there is one stained window in the chancel. The register dates from the year 1863. The living was declared a rectory May 4, 1866, net yearly value £275, in the gift of New College, Oxford, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Fairfax Alfred Alban Wyld. There is a mission room (formerly a Congregational chapel) in connection with St. Edward's church. The Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Edward the Confessor catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Edward the Confessor, was erected in 1853, by the late Lord Petre, and has a stained east window, inserted in October, 1885, as a memorial to the late Mr. C. I. Macarthy: the church will seat 300 persons. The Congregational church in South street, opened persons. The congregational church in South street, opened on July 19th, 1877, is a structure of Kentish rag stone, in the Gothic style, with a tower and spire 66 feet in height and was built at a cost, including site, of about £5,000: there are 470 sittings: the building was considerably damaged by fire on Easter Sunday, 1883, and re-opened in November of the same year; new Sunday schools to hold 350 children have been built, at a cost of £1,400, at the rear of the church. The Baptist chapel, erected in 1847, has 400 sittings; the new Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1888, will seat 600 persons; the Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1875, has 300 sitthe Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1875, has 300 sittings; the Salvation Army holds its meetings in the old Wesleyan chapel. The old Cemetery is on the High road, to the east of the town. Charities: Roger Reede, of Havering, by will dated 14th February, 1482, left his "new built place in Jay's Mead, otherwise called Hoo Croft," for five poor men: these were rebuilt in 1784 and there are now six almshouses for men and two for widows: one almsman, who keeps the accounts and preserves order, is called "the ruler," and receives £35 yearly, the other men £26, the widows £20; all being supplied with clothes, coals and medical aid: clothes are distributed from the surplus to the poor of Romford, Hornchurch and Dagenham. Robert Ballard, in 1660, devised two houses in Romford to the churchwardens, for the repair of the highways. William Armstead, of Hornchurch, gave to the poor of Romford £2, Armstead, of Hornchurch, gave to the poor of Romford £2, arising from a farm at Hay Green, and distributed in bread arising from a farm at Hay Green, and distributed in bread and money; and Andrew Reynolds, by will dated October 7th, 1626, £3, also as a rent-charge. Lewis Betts, by will dated 18th December, 1669, left 20s. to repair a causeway leading to the church, £4 for apprenticing and £2 to eight of the necessitous poor on New Year's Day. Hannah Richardson left in 1811, £100 Navy Five per Cent. Annuities, upon trust to distribute the interest to the necessitous poor at Christmas; this sum produces about £3 3s. yearly. One Webster by his will gave his housing and appurtenances called "the Tile Kilns," in Harold's Wood ward, upon trust to pay one moiety of the rents to the churchwardens of Romford and Hornchurch respectively. Lady Burleigh's charity, originally £120, is now only £100 and is lent to various poor tradesmen, free of interest, in sums of £30 and the Palmarks of Pal each; Palmer's charity amounts to £7 annually, derived from land in the London road, and is distributed in cash to the poor of the parish at Christmas; the proceeds of £100, bequeathed by the will of Thomas Bourne, and now invested in Government stocks, is also distributed to the poor at Christmas in cash. The Corn Exchange, situated in the High street, is private property, but is let for public meetings and concerts; the large hall will hold 400 persons. The Lecture hall of the Congregational schools is let for similar purposes. The Public hall in South street, also private property, was erected in 1886 and will seat 350 persons. Here is the extensive brewing establishment of Messrs. Ind, Coope and Co. Limited; also two branch banks and a Church Institute and a Young Men's Institute. A market for cattle and corn, one of the largest around London, is held every Wednesday. Here are the head quarters of the No. 8 battery of the 1st Essex Artillery Volunteers, Eastern Division, Royal Artillery, and of the A and B companies of the 1st Volunteer Battalion of the Essex Regiment. A Drill hall of corrugated iron was erected in 1885 in Laurie square, by Major Henry Holmes, at a cost of £300, and presented by him to the battery; it is also used as a gymnasium and school of arms. The Victoria Cottage Hospital, erected in 1888, contains 9 beds and 2 cots. A drinking fountain was erected in the Market place in June, 1885, as a testimony of esteem to the late C. I. Macarthy from his fellow townsmen. Francis Quarles, the celebrated author of the "Book of Emblems," was born in May, 1592, in the old manor-house, called "Stewards," that manor having been the property of the Quarles family since 1588; he was educated at Christ's College, Cambridge, and became cupbearer to the Queen of Bohemia and about 1621 was appointed secretary to Archbishop Usher, whom he accompanied to Ireland: his resolute adherence to the royal cause during the civil war occasioned him much loss, both of property, books and MSS. and is thought to have hastened his death, which took place 8th September, 1644. Gides Hall, half a mile east of Romford, is the joint residence of Romford, is the joint residence of the contract of t J. Ramsey esq. and Henry Hollebone esq.: Marshalls, on the north of the town, is the property of Mrs. MacIntosh and is occupied by Ralph G. Price esq. J.P. Priests, the property of William Mashiter esq. situated on the Havering road, one mile north, is in the occupation of Miss Mashiter. Market gardening, grazing and agriculture form the chief occupa-tions of the people. The area is 7,191 acres of land and 33 of water; rateable value, £49,421; the population of the parish in 1871 was 8,239 and in 1881, 9,050, including 310 officers and inmates in the workhouse; and of the Local Board district in 1881, 7,176.

COLLIER Row (Hainault Forest), is a village 2 miles northwest. The chapel of the Ascension is an edifice of red brick, erected at a cost of £2,000, defrayed by subscriptions, and consists of a chancel, nave, south porch and a central belicot containing one bell: there are sittings for 350 persons. Here is also a news and reading room, originally built at the sole cost of E. Conder esq. but now supported by, and under the management of, the members.

HARR STREET is a village I mile north-east on the highway to Brentwood.

Nose Hill, 4 miles north-east, is a village and is situated it mile north by field path from Harold Wood station. The church of St. Thomas, a chapel of ease, is an edifice of brick with stone dressings, in the Early English style, erected in 181-2 at the desire of Frances Caroline, wife of Sir Thomas and the state of the style o Thomas Neare bart of Dagnam park, who died 14 April, 1835 and consists of chancel, nave and a tower on south side custaining one bell; it was consecrated Oct. 29th, 1842, by Charles James, Lord Bishop of London and contains some fine stained glass of ancient date. Dagnam park, an extensive domain, is the seat of the Hon. Lady Neave.

LONFORD COMMON is a hamlet of scattered houses commencing about 2 miles north-east.

Ross Green is a hamlet I mile south-west. A Cometerr, situated about 1 mile from the town, was opened in October, 1871: it comprises 51 acres with an additional 31 acres reserved, but at present used for agricultural purposes: there are two mortuary chapels and a porter's lodge; it is under the control of a Burial Board of nine members, who also keep the old cemetery in repair.

SQUIRRELS HEATH is a village r mile east. The chapel of All Saints is a wooden building on a brick foundation, erected on land given by Mr. Alfred Savile at a cost of £504, defrayed by subscriptions: it consists of chancel, nave and a bell cot containing one bell, and was consecrated Aug. 3rd, 1884, by the Lord Bishop of Colchester; it will seat 240 persons. The South Essex Waterworks Co. have a reservoir here and there is a factory belonging to the Great Eastern Railway Co. in which about too people are employed in the making of sheets, horse cloths, sacks &c. and in the preparation of forage and horse provender.

Parish Clerk (for Romford), Joseph Brett Mumford, Eastern road.

THE ROOTHINGS.

tural purishes, catablished before the time of the Confessor and situited between Ongar and Dunmow, on the upper part of the river Roding, in the Western division of the county, unions and hundreds of Dunmow and Ongar, Dunmost petty sessional division and county court district and in the rural deaneries of Roding and Ongar, archdeaconry of Example and diocese of St. Albans. The district is considered ver fruital. The churches possess but little architectural ment. Runan remains are occasionally found scattered over this district. The soil is heavy; subsoil, clay. The chel crops are wheat, barley and beans.

The area and the population for these several places, according to the return of 1881, is as follows :-

	Acres.	Popula- tion.	Rateable value.

SAFFRON WALDEN is a municipal borough, mar-Let and union town and head of a county court district and petty sessional division, with a station on the Great Eastern railway branch from Audley End (in the parish of Wendens Amio), 434 miles by rail and 40 by road from London, 144 from Cambridge, 12 from Royston and 7 north-west from Thattel, near the burders of Cambridgeshire: it is the chief place in Utilesford hundred, in the Northern division of the county and is in the rural deanery of Saffron Walden, archdescours of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The town is guaranted by a corporation, consisting of a mayor, four adernes and twelve town councillors, who also constitute the urban sanitary authority. The town has a commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions. pole: arrangements are under the control of the county onetabulary. The town consists of several streets, paved and gated with gas, and contains many good buildings. Here are water works, constructed in 1862 by a company, and supplied by an artesian well, 1,004 feet deep; the gas and water works are the property of the Corporation. The and water works are the property of the Corporation. church of St. Mary the Virgin, a spacious and magnificent editive of stone, is a fine specimen of the Late Perpendicular style, and was chiefly built in the reign of Henry VI. about 1425, the chancel, with some portion of the eastern part of the sare, being the work of Lord Chancellor Audley and most of the remaining portion that of John Leche, vicar bere from 1489 to 1521; successive repairs in the years 1721. 1792 and 1793 cost nearly £8,000, to which Field-Marshal Lord Howard de Walden, who died here in 1797, munificently contributed: the church now consists of chancel, with sistes of nearly equal width, nave of seven bays, with aises and clerestory, large north and south porches and a western tower, supported by bold buttresses terminating in machai turrets, with plain clongated spirelets; the tower he also a slender spire, added in the year 1831 to the old toner, after a design and under the direction of Thomas Rickman, the well-known architect, and contains a clock and 3 tells; further alterations were made in 1859-60, under the direction of R. C. Hussey esq. of London, and in 1876 the church was again restored, under the superintendence of W. Butterfield esq. as architect, when the whole of the windows on the north and south sides were renewed, as also the large window at the west end of each aisle: the fine Puch on the south side and the similar one on the north leing at the same time repaired; the patron, Lord Braybrance, subscribing very liberally to the work: in the south chance aisle is the marble tomb of Thomas, Lord Audley Lo. Chancellor to Henry VII. ob. 19th April, 1544, et. 56; and a memorial to two sons of Lord Braybrooke, Captain and a memoria to two sons or LOTU Drayottokog, Capata-the Hon. Henry Aldworth Neville, Grennedier Guards, killed at lokerman 5 Nov. 1854; and the Hon. Grey Neville, 5th Dragons, who died it November, 1854, of wounds received at the battle of Balaklava, Oct. 25th : beneath the communion table is the Howard rault, where lie the six Earls of Suffolk who last held Audley End and one Lord Howard of Walden, with his two wives ; in the north chancel is an altar tomb to John Leche, above mentioned: the north porch is at present wel as a vestry; in the south chancel aisle is a brass effigy. 1430, believed to be that of Thomas Byrd, once rector of Mach Munden: some of the windows are stained : the entire lingth of the church is 200 feet and its breadth 82, the height of the tower being 85 feet and of the spire, in additim, 108 feet: there are 1,200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The hving is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £282, with glebe and residence, in the git of Lord Braybrooke, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Raymend Percy Pelly M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge.
The friends Meeting House, in High street, is a spacious edition of brick, with school and class-rooms adjoining: the register dates from 1639, although the original building was not erected till 1676: in the rear of the building is a tural ground. The Congregational chapel in Abbry law and a tural ground. has an founded in 1665 and rebuilt in 1811; in the burish ground adjoining a schoolroom has been erected sta cat of over $1,500: in 1885 a minister's house was built in West road by the late Mr. Joshua Clarke J.P. at a cast of £2.050, and vested in trustees. The Baptist charel in the High street dates from 1662; the members ormals washead but he will be a constrained to the state of the state originally worshipped in the Abbey Lane chapel, but in 1773 a dapute area, the chapel was closed and a new building was erected in 1774 in Bailey's lane (now Audley road), which in 1879 gave place to the present chapel, a building in the Italian style, with Bath stone dressings, erected at a cost of £2,500 and seating 600: the old chapel is now used as a Sunday school. There are also places of worship for General Baptists, Particular Baptists, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists and Plymouth Brethren. The public cemetery, on the Seward's End road, about half a mile from the town, has two mortuary chapels and comprises about 5\frac{1}{2} acres; it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members. The Town Hall, erected in 1879 at the sole expense of G. S. Gibson esq. at a total cost of from £6,000 to £7,000, is an edifice in the Early English style, containing an assembly room, 65 feet by 32 feet, with a gallery, and seating 500 persons, and is accessible from the market place by two stone staircases; there is also a council chamber, court room (where the quarter and petty sessions are held), two apartments for magistrates, juries and committees, and a muniment room on the ground floor, also police cells. The Corn Exchange, built in 1847-8, and since Dec. 1882, the property of the Corporation, is a modern structure in the Itulian style, with a domical tower containing an illuminated clock, and has been enlarged and improved. The Police Station, situated in East street, is an edifice of brick and stone, erected in 1884, at a cost of £3,500, paid by the county, and comprises a residence for the superintendent; one constable for the county and one inspector for the borough; there are three cells and the usual offices: there is also a library here for the use of the Essex constabulary, consisting of 15,000 volumes. There is a Volunteer Fire Brigade, formed in 1865, the head-quarters being in Hill street; the force consists of a superintendent, foreman engineer and thirteen firemen, with one manual engine, a portable engine and appli-The new Post Office, in King street, is a structure of red brick, with Bath stone dressings, in the Renaissance style, from designs by Mr. F. J. Whittin, of Saffron Walden, and Messrs. Bernson and Bargemen, London, as architects: on the ground floor there is an entrance hall, public office, sorting and stamping offices, postmaster's room, with retiring rooms, lavatories and other offices: the first floor contains the postmaster's private apartments; the second floor bedrooms and bath room : the building also includes three good shops, the back offices being entered from Church street. The Museum originated in a small local institution, founded Ine Museum originates in a small local institution, formed in 1832, but now extinct, called the "Mental Improvement Society," in connection with which the museum was formed in a small house near the present cattle market, belonging to Jaboz Gibson esq.: in 1834 it was removed to its present site, The Bury, or Castle hill, and was formally opened 12 May, 1835: in 1880 the entire building, previously shared by other public bodies, was appropriated to the museum, through the munificence of the late George Stacey Gibson esq. who also appointed and provided for a paid curator; and in 1887 the museum was recognized by the Museums Committee of the British Association as a provincial museum of the first class: it contains a fine collection of zoological and geological specimens, Roman and other antiquities and ancient coins, and is supported partially by an endowment made to it by its late benefactor, G. S. Gibson esq. and by donations and subscriptions: it is open to subscribers on all days except Sundays, Good Friday and Christmas-day; admission can also be obtained of any of the trustees, or by application on the premises between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. to Mr. G. N. Maynard, the curator. The Literary Institution, in King street, was established in 1832: the Institution, in Aing street, was established in 1832: the ground floor comprises two spacious and well-arranged reading rooms, supplied with the daily and other papers and current periodicals, and on the upper floor are the various rooms appropriated to the library, which originally consisted of 6,000 volumes, but under the will of the late George Stacey Gibson esq. the number has been increased to about 12,000 volumes: the late Mrs. Gibson, widow of the above-arranged during the vesses 1888-0 reconstructed the library etc. named, during the years 1888-9 reconstructed the library at her own expense, and has also remodelled the whole building, which is open daily from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.: in the winter months entertainments and lectures are given. An Art Class, commenced in 1883, is conducted at Stanmore House School, High street, and is under the management of a committee of 9 members; W. M. Tuke esq. president; R. Crafton Green esq. secretary; teacher, Luther B. Mitchell.

who resides at Newport. There is a parish room for parochial purposes, in which entertainments are also given. Hospital, situated in the London road, is a structure in the Gothic style, erected in 1866, at a cost of about $5,000, left for the purpose by the late Wyatt G. Gibson esq. since which his widow has given £4,000 towards the maintenance of the hospital, which is now available for 40 patients: a west wing was afterwards built, containing a convalescent ward on the ground floor, another above, and two fever wards, with a large room and kitchen for nurses : a washhouse and laundry have also been added at a cost of about £1,500, of which f, 1,200 was contributed by Mrs. W. G. Gibson. Infirmary, situated on the outskirts of the town off the Debden road, was established for the reception of persons suffering from infectious diseases, and contains two wards, one for males and the other for females, with six beds each : it is under the care of the master of the Union. are almshouses founded by Roger Walden, bishop of London (1404-6), and re-established by King Edward VI. in 1550; they have since been added to by various donors, four houses having been erected during 1881; the present annual income is about £1,000; each inmate having two rooms and receiving 6s. 6d. weekly, besides other allowances. Numerous small charities have been amalgamated and are now administered by local trustees under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, dated 28th April, 1871: the total income from these sources amounts to about £470, which is principally distributed in clothing, food and coals. In Museum street is the armoury of the I Company, 3rd Volunteer Battalion, Suffolk Regiment, the head quarters being at the Corn Exchange, Cambridge: this corps was formed in 1860 as the 17th Essex, but is now known as above: there are now (1890) 60 enrolled members, with officers and drill instructor. The spacious Market place contains a fountain, shown in the Great Exhibition of 1862, and erected here by the late Mr. G. S. Gibson and Mrs. W. There are two banks : that of Messrs. Gibson, G. Gibson. Tuke and Gibson is a building of red brick with stone dressings and facings, and occupies a commanding position in the Market place, where also is the London and County Bank. There are also two iron foundries, three breweries and a steam flour nill and a saw mill. Malting is extensively carried on here. The Cattle market, opened in 1834, is compact and well arranged: Mr. H. J. Cheffins' yard, situated between the Market place and Cattle market, for the sale of fat cattle, sheep and pigs, was established in 1860, and commanding a good supply of stock from the surrounding parishes, is well and regularly attended by purchasers. The Corn market, held on Saturday, is well attended, and there are fairs on the Saturday before Mid-Lent Sunday (which is one of the largest horse fairs in England) and the first Saturday in November (chiefly for cattle), held on the Common, a public ground of 15 acres. The principal hotel is the "Rose and Crown," in Market square, the original portion of the house being about 300 years old. The Cross Keys hotel, situated in King street, is also an ancient house of some note. The Saffron Walden Horticultural Society, founded in 1819, is the oldest in England. The Essex Agricultural Society, established about 1830, was one of the earliest institutions of the kind in this country: the first meetings were held here in the building now occupied by the museum, but then known as the "Agricultural Hall," and the shows were held on the Bury, or Castle hill. On the common near the town is a singular antiquity, called "the Maze," supposed by Dr. Stukeley to have been a British cursus or exercising ground for soldiery and formed by a number of concentric circles with four outworks, all cut in the chalk; it incloses an area of over 100 feet from east to west and 138 feet from north to south, the centre of which was formerly indicated by a large ash tree, unfortunately destroyed by fire on the 5th November. The Maze was re-cut by the Corporation in 1699, and since by private individuals, and was also re-cut in 1887 by public subscription. On the opposite side of the town are the remains of an ancient encampment once called the "Paille," or "Repell," and now known as "Battle ditches," the south bank of which is 730 feet long, 20 feet high, 50 feet broad at the base and 6 or 8 feet broad at the top, and the west bank 588 feet long: this camp was in the form of a parallelogram, containing about 30 acres, and here, in 1830, at a depth of 20 inches below the surface, in the solid chalk, 50 or 60 skeletons were found, lying in a double row with their feet to the east: in 1876 Mr. George Stacey Gibson made further excavations near the spot, and discovered 150 others of men, women and children, some of which are now in the museum; upon a few of the bodies were found fragments of Saxon ornaments: beneath the graves a number of circular pits were met with of a date prior to that of the interments. On Castle hill or a unterprior we man to the interments. On Castle hill was a castle, supposed to have been built by Geoffrey de Manderille, in the reign of King Stephen, on a previous foundation of Anglo-Saxon origin: this fortress, which stood in the highest part of the town, appears to have been of great strength, being designed after the style of the castle of the De Veres at Hedingham, but built of small flints strongly cemented and faced with stone, and all that now remains is the donjon or keep, about 25 feet in height: the hollow space on the western side was the cell of the prisoners who were confined underground, and in the year 1780 a large portion of this was below the surface, but the earth which formed the rising ground has been since cleared away: within recesses in ruins are placed several stone coffins of the 12th and 13th centuries, brought from Ickleton Abbey, Cambridgeshire, founded by Aubrey de Vere, 1st Earl of Oxford, in 1190. In 1146 Geoffrey de Mandeville, or Magnaville, the 1st Earl of Essex of that house, founded a priory here about a mile westward of the town, for monks of the Benedictine order, dedicating it to St. Mary and James: it was subsequently converted into an abbey in 1191 and its revenues at the Dissolution were reckoned at £406 15s. 11d. yearly: it was then granted to Sir Thomas Audley, lord chancellor, who soon after obtained licence to enlarge his park by inclosing 200 additional acres, this grant including the manor of Walden.

The present mansion, called Audley End, was built by Thomas Howard, 1st Earl of Suffolk K.O. about 1603-16, whose father married Margaret, only surviving daughter and heiress of the chancellor and widow of the Lord Henry Dudley, slain at St. Quintin in 1557, and is said to have cost £190,000, the model being obtained from Italy at a cost of £500: the mansion originally consisted of a great quadrangle, or inner court, 205 feet square inside, with open arcades on two sides, a central court of smaller dimensions, the eastern side of which formed a gallery 226 feet long, 32 wide and 24 high, with wings projecting eastwards at either end, the southernmost of which formed the chapel; three sides of the principal court were pulled down under the direction of Sir John Vanbrugh, and the gallery was Sir John Vanbrugh, and the gallery was removed about 1708: the existing mansion stands on the site of the former central court, and is a structure in the Tudor-Gothic and Classic styles, consisting of a principal block about 220 feet in length standing north and south, with wide eastern wings and including a chapel: to the north-west of the house stand the stables, a picturesque range of brick buildings of earlier date than the house, and bearing on them the Tudor rose and the portcullis, cognizances which abound at Westminster, particularly in Henry VII.'s chapel: the grounds are well laid out and there is a large park, in which the river Cam, being widened, forms a fine sheet of water: through the park, which is pleasantly diversified by hill and dale, are two public walks, one northward, towards Littlebury, and the other leading to the village of Audley End: Lord Braybrooke, the owner of this estate, is in right thereof the visitor of Magdalen; ollege, Cambridge, and has the nomination of the master. The principal landowners are Lord Braybrooke, the trustees of the late G. S. Gibson, E. B. Gibson and the trustees of the late Joshua Clarke esqrs. The borough is co-extensive with the parish, which contains 7.489 acres of land and 13 of water; rateable value, £23,789; the population in 1881 was 6,061, including 171 officers and inmates in the workhouse and 18 in the hospital.

AUDLEY END is a hamlet r mile south-west, with a station on the Great Eastern railway and a junction of the line through Saffron Walden to Bartlow. The hamlet lies just outside the park wall, and consists of two short rows of old-fashioned adjoining cottages forming a little street. One end of the street runs into the high road that skirts the park; the other changes into a little lane that crosses the fields into the high road again, passing by a charming old red brick pile of gabled buildings known as Audley End Abbey farm: these are built round two courtyards, one block being now used as almshouses, the other as a farm house. There is a Working Men's Institute, maintained by subscription.

LITTLE WALDEN is a hamlet 2 miles north-north-east, with a small Congregational chapel.

Springwell is 2½ miles on the Cambridge road, near the river Cam; the parishes of Saffron Walden and Little Chest-rford meet here, and the boundary runs through a farm house.

SEWARD'S END is a hamlet 2 miles east, with a chapel, erected in 1847 on ground given by Thomas W. Gayton esquander the Church Building Act, and enlarged in 1870: divine service is held here by the vicar of Saffron Walden and his curates. There is a small school-chapel here belonging to the Baptists. The Tower, the residence of Thomas Westrope Gayton esq. situated on high table land, is a large brick building flanked by four towers, and is surrounded by grounds of 36 acres.

Schools.

The Grammar School, now situated in the Ashdon road, is a very old foundation, originally established in 1423 by license from the Abbey of Walden & re-founded & endowed by Dame Johane Bradbury, the widow of a wealthy citizen of London, & her brother, John Leche, vicar of Walden 1489-1521, by whom it was placed under the management of the guild of the Holy Trinity, a religious corporation founded not long before; this guild was among the religious foundations dissolved & their possessions vested in the Crown, by the I. Edward VI. c. 14; but Dr. Thomas Smith, a native of Saffron Walden, afterwards knighted & made secretary of state to Edward VI. who had received his early education at the school, was then in the service & high in the favour of the Protector Somerset, by whose influence a new charter was obtained from the king, under which the school was raised to the dignity of a royal foundation & its endowment restored: in 1879 it was re-modelled & the endowment further augmented under a scheme drawn up by the Charity Commissioners & in 1881 the school was removed to its Commissioners & in 1881 the school was removed to its present site of 2½ acres given by Lord Braybrooke, an additional acre having been hired by the governors to increase the size of the playground: the new buildings are intended to receive 100 day boys & 25 boarders & were designed by Mr. E. Burgess, the total cost being about £4,500, funds for defraying which have been obtained partly from the original endowment & partly from the proceeds of other local charities assigned by the Charity Commissioners to the use of the Grammar School, additional aid being obtained from public subscriptions: in 1883 the school received a further endowment of £2,000 under the will of the late George S. Gibson esq. who also contributed upwards of £1,000 to the building fund: a scholarship of £30 a year, tenable for two years, has also been founded by the governors: twelve exhibitions, in the form of remission of school fees, Newport, Widdington & Little Chesterford, as well as from Saffron Walden: the Rev. Reginald Mortimer Luckock M.A. late scholar of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, is head mester: Ald I. Skinger sesistent mester.

The Training College, in connection with the British & Foreign School Society, was publicly opened May 17th, 1884, having been partially occupied in February of that year: the building, occupying a commanding position overlooking the town & standing in some 2½ acres, is a structure of red brick, with stone dressings, in the Queen Anne style & consists of a central block of two stories. with wings, each three stories in height: on the ground floor are class rooms, a dining hall, lecture hall & kitchens: the central block includes apartments for the staff & in the wings are the students' dormitories: the entire cest, estimated at £10,500, was provided by the late G.S. Gibson esq. who, in addition, gave the site, & left £1,000 as an endowment: attached to the main building is a Kindergarten & school, with three class rooms for day scholars: the special object of the college is "to train teachers with exceptional qualifications for work in infants' schools" (though the certificates will be available for other schools as well): the college is at present available for 50 students: the principal (non-resid.), Rev. A. Bourne B.A. who is also the society's secretary); viceprincipal, Miss Frances A. Steele; lady superintendent, Miss Jane Stoker; mistress of method, Miss Reid; gorernesses: Miss Morley, Miss Newett, Miss E. Taylor & Miss D. Campbell; music master, Mr. J. Thomson

The Friends' School for 90 boys & 60 girls, situated in the Debden road, occupies a commanding position fronting southwards towards the road & northwards to the town & was commenced in June, 1876, the school being removed into these buildings in July, 1879: they form a substantial structure of red brick, designed by Mr. E. Burgess, of London & Leicester & cost nearly £30,000, & include a large assembly room, with four boys' & as many girls' class rooms, besides a fine dining & lecture hall: the grounds cover 16 acres & are well laid out in play-grounds, tennis courts, cricket field & garden: the children are mostly members of the Society of Friends, belonging both to London & to all parts of the south of England: the school was first established in Clerkenwell in 1707; removed to Park lane, Croydon, in the autumn of 1825 & to Saffron Walden in 1879 & is the oldest fourdation school in the Society of Friends; John Edward Walker, head master; F. Rivers Arundel, head teacher;

Miss A. G. Brown, girls' head teacher

The Charity School was founded in 1717 by Thomas Penning & endowed by him with a sum of £500, since which it has been aided by many other benefactors: this charity educates 15 boys & 15 girls, who were for some time taught at the National School; but in 1886 the schools were placed by the Charity Commissioners under the provisions of a new scheme, by which the governors have power to make a yearly payment of not more than £40 to the National Schools & to apply the surplus income in maintaining small exhibitions tenable at these schools, & one of not more than £20 yearly tenable at these schools, walden Grammar School, or any other place of higher education approved of by the governors National, Castle street, erected in 1845, for 140 boys & 120 girls; average attendance, 130 boys & 90 girls; Wyndham Butt, master; Miss Beatrice M. Burton, mistress Infants' National, Museum street, erected in 1817, for 150 children; average attendance. 122: Mrs. G. H. Archer, children; average attendance, 123; Mrs. G. H. Archer, mistress

ST. LAWRENCE NEWLAND is a small parish of scattered houses, near the south bank of the Blackwater estuary, 5 miles north from Southminster station on the Great Eastern railway, 11 miles east-south-east from Maldon by road, 8 north-by-east from Burnham and 19 east from Chelmsford, in the South Eastern division of the county, Dengie hundred and petty sessional division, Maldon union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Dengie, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Lawrence, rebuilt in 1879 of Kentish rag, is a structure in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch, vestry and a western turret containing one bell: the cost of rebuilding was £1,700, and there are sittings for 150 persons. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1704; marriages, 1705. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £430, with residence and 5 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chan-Trafford Rev. William M.A. Rectory

OSYTH parish is on a creek of the Colne, opposite; large benefactions to this house, to which valuable charters Brightlingsea, 4 miles south from Great Bentley and 3 from Thorrington stations on the Tendring Hundred branch of the Great Eastern railway, 4 west from Clacton-on-Sea, 12 south-east from Colchester and 12 south-west from Walton steamboat pier, in the North Eastern division of the county, Tendring hundred, petty sessional division and union, Colchester county court district, and in the rural deanery of St. Osyth, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans; some parts of this parish, which is very extensive, are high, including Beacon Hill, but a great portion is marsh land. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a large and ancient structure, in the Early Perpendicular style, originally built of rubble and flints, in the same manuer as the priory buildings adjoining; it consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles with eastern chapels, south porch and a massive embattled tower at the west end, containing 6 bells: on each side of the chancel are the monumental recumbent effigies side of the chancel are the monumental recument engies in alabaster of a knight and his lady, with armorial bearings; all four belong to the Darcy family, but the inscriptions are undated: in the chapel of the south aisle is a mural tablet to Briant Darcie, high sheriff of the county, ob. 25th Dec. 1587, and Bridget his wife, with other members of his family: in the same chapel is the recumbent effigy of John Darcy, serjeant-at-law, in his robes, ob. 15th March, 1638: on the south side of the chancel are mural tablets to the Right Honourable William Henry (Nassau), 4th Earl of Rochford K.G. ambassador and secretary to George III. who Rochford K.G. ambassador and secretary to George III. who died 20th Sept. 1781, and to Lucy (Young), his wife, d. 9 Jan. 1773: there is a modern tablet in the north aisle to Benjamin Golding M.D. founder of Charing Cross hospital, who died in 1863: there are 1,000 sittings. The register dates from the year 1666. The living, of which the tithes formerly amounted to £2,000 a year, is now a vicarage, net yearly value £195, with residence, in the gift of the Ven. Charles Burney M.A. vicar of St. Mark's, Surbiton, and archdeacon of Kingston-upon-Thames, and held since 1885 by the Rey James Edward Potts M.A. of Emmanuel Colby the Rev. James Edward Potts M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. There is a Wesleyan chapel with 274 sitlege, Cambridge. There is a Wesleyan chapel with 274 sittings, and a Primitive Methodist chapel. A cemetery of 2 acres was formed in 1855 at a cost of £1,000, and has two mortuary chapels; it is under the control of a burial board of 7 members. The poor have £12 yearly in fuel and clothing. Here are oyster beds. This is one of the oldest places in the county and was originally part of the Royal demesne of King Canute, who granted it to Earl Godwin, and by him it was given to Christ Church, Canterbury, and at the Conquest was transferred to the Bishops of London; it was formerly called "Chich," but takes its present name from St. Osyth, daughter of Frithwald, a Mercian prince, who built a nunnery here, of which she was first abbess and where in 653 she was martyred by the Danes. On the site of the nunnery, probably destroyed by these invaders, Richard de Belmeis of London, in the reign of Henry I. founded a priory for canons of St. Augustine, within the precincts of which he was himself buried in 1127: he bequeathed the church and tithes to the canons, who elected

SHELLEY is an ancient village and parish, near a feeder of the Roding, one mile north from Chipping Ongar and 24 from London, in the Western division of the county, Ongar hundred, petty sessional division and union, Brentwood county court district, rural deanery of Ongar, archdeacoury of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Peter, entirely rebuilt in 1888 on the same site, is an edifice of flint, with bath stone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, vestry, and organ chamber, and a tower at the north-west angle with shingled spire, containing 2 bells dated 1810; the base of the tower forms a porch: the stained east window was presented by John Allen esq. of Shelley Hall: in digging for the foundations of the new church, two tomb stones, dated respectively 1652 and 1765, were discovered, and are now built into the west wall of the porch : there is a brass with efficies, to John Green, ob. 1626, et. 89, his wife, et. 71 and 16 children: tradition has it that 7 of these were sons, to each of whom he left a manor and that he and his wife lived to see 111 descendants. The register of baptisms dates from 1689; burials, 1687; and marriages from 1709; owing to the ruinous condition of this church at the beginning of the present century, entries were sometimes made in the registers of High Ongar. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £180, with 32 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of J. H. Tomlinson esq. and held since 1884 by the Rev. Joseph Richards M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There is a charity, amounting to £100, given by Harvey Kimpton in 1817, and distributed in February by the overseers; and another, given by William Bullock, in 1822, of £333 6s. 8d. 3 per Cent. Annuities: the interest of both is applied for the benefit of the poor of the parish, the latter being distributed by the rector in bet, bread and coals about Christmas time. Shelley Hall, the seat of James Hodson Tomlinson esq. but occupied by John seat of James Hodson Tomlinson esq. but occupied by John Allen esq. is an ancient and picturesque pile, thoroughly restored in the original style in 1869; over the doorway, still in good preservation, is the date 1587 in projecting figures: in the entrance hall is an oak carving, of Elizabethan date, about 20 feet square: attached to the Hall is a room in which a Sunday school is held, conducted by John Allen esq. and the daughters of the rector. Near the Hall is the rectory, where Thomas Newton, subsequently Bishop of Bristol (1761-82), wrote his "Dissertations on the Prophecies," completed in 1758: he died 14 Feb. 1782. J. H. Tomlinson esq. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is marl; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans, clover and roots. The area is 604 acres; rateable value, £1,024; the population in 1881 was 200. Edingforn Bridge is to the south-west.

> nave of four bays, with clerestory, aisles, south porch and a battlemented western tower containing 5 bells: the chancel has four stained windows: in this church was once a cenotaph to the famous Sir John Hawkwood, of which little now remains but a fragment of the canopy: there are, however, figures of hawks sculptured on different parts of the church commemorating the benefactions of his son and family. Hawkwood was born here about 1324, in the reign of Edward II, being the son of Gilbert Hawkwood, a tanner, and was bound apprentice to a tailor in London, but disliking his occupation he entered the army of Edward III. as a common soldier, and in this service bore himself so gallantly that he was advanced to the rank of captain and of a county court district, very pleasantly situated near the mouth of the Thames and nearly opposite to Sheerness, 16 miles south from Maidon, 22 south-east from Chelmsford, 85 south-west from Colchester and 43 from London by road, in the South Eastern division of the county, Rochford hundred, petty sessional division and union, and in the rural deanery pay sessional drision and union, and in the tural dealers of Casevan, archiectory of Essex and diocese of St. Alban. Southend is governed by a local board of health established in 1866 and consisting of 12 members: it first sprug into notice as a watering place from a visit of the late Queen Caroline and Princess Charlotte in 1804. The bathing bere is good, but the tide recedes to the extent of about a mile. The streets are clean and are lighted with gas by a company, and the town is supplied with soft water from artenan wells, the property of a company. The London, Tibury and Southend railway connects this place with Lundon and had its terminus here until the extension of the ine to Shoeburyness in 1884. The direct line of this company from Barking to Pitsea, a portion of which was opened for traffic in May, 1885, and the remainder in June, 1888, shortens the distance to London by about 13 miles. The Great Eastern railway opened a branch to this town in Sept. 1889, from their main line at Shenfield, via Wickford Junction, thus placing it in communication with Maldon and northeast Essex and Suffolk. Steamers run to and from London extend times a day during the summer months, as well as to Sheerness, Rochester and Gravesend. The pier is a mile and a quarter in length and has a tramway for the conveyance of passengers to and from the steamers, and a toll-house of red brick with Bath stone dressings, 98 feet in length, erected at a cost of £2,000. The total cost of the pier was £42,000, but it was sold to the Great Eastern railway company for £17,000, from whom it was again purchased in 1875 by the local board: the pier is now (1890) in course of reconstruction at an estimated cost of £70,000. A sea wall and promenade, considerably over a mile in length, have been nude by the railway company, and the cliff has been planted and and out for building and is now called "Cliff Town. The lown has otherwise been greatly improved during the year 1883-9, the local board having expended £6,000 on ruds and footways, including a path a mile and a half long and 9 leet wide on the eastern and western parade, and about 136,000 in the construction of a new and direct road from Southend to Prittlewell: trees have also been planted in many of the principal streets. Southend, originally a hamlet of Prittlewell, was formed into a separate ecclesiastical parish in 1842. The church of St. John the Baptist is a building of stone in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aries, transcrits and an organ chamber: the nave, which it is intended to lengthen, was built in 1840 and aisles added later: the chancel was erected in 1872-3; the transepts are isomplete; in the north transcpt is a stained window, formerly in the chancel: there are sittings for about 600 per-Mas. The register dates from the year 1842. The living is a verify net verify raise from the year 1042. After thing to and fees, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1862 by the Rev. Thomas William Herbert M.A. surrorate. The Catholic church of Our Lady Help of Christians and St. Helen Empress, situated close to the town, was rected in 1868 at a cost of more than £2,000 and consists of claner, nare, asies, three side chapels and a bell turret cottaining 2 bells: adjoining the church is an orphanage: there are also a convent and a home for the aged destitute poor and for infirm children at Nazareth House, London nad, and a school, conducted by the Bavarian Sisters of Note Dame containing upwards of 60 poor destitute children, some supported by the poor rates, others by voluntary Softmen is a modern town and watering place, and head | subscriptions : the institution is certified for the reception of children from the Poor Law union: these institutions at present contain 30 adults and 70 children. Trinity Church, the memorial stone of which was laid on the 3rd December, 1877, was the first reformed Episcopal church built in the United Kingdom. There are Baptist, Congregational and 1877, was the first reformed Episcopal church built in the United Kingdom. There are Baptist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels, and one for the Peculiar People, here. The Congregational church, Cliff Town, is a structure in the Gothic style, erected in 1866 at a cost of £3,000, with a tower containing an illuminated clock. The Wesleyan chapel, Park road, erected in 1870, is a building in the Early Park is a type and will seat 400 monle. The Public Hall. English style and will seat 400 people. The Public Hall, erected in 1872 at a cost of about (3,000, by a limited liability company, contains a large hall fitted with a stage and other accessories for concerts and entertainments, and has sittings for about 500 persons; Mr. C. H. Bowmaker is lessee: here also are the offices of the local board and a club The Police Station and Court House, in Alexandra street, was erected in 1874 at a cost of £4,250. Petty sessions for the Rochford division are held here and at Rochford on alternate Wednesdays. The Priory Lodge of Freemasons (No. 1,000) holds its meetings at the Middleton hotel. The No. 13 Battery of the 1st Essex Artillery Volunteers, Eastern Division, Royal Artillery, is stationed in the town. The Southend Institute was founded in 1881, and has a library and reading room and over 200 members. There is also a coffee tavern. The population of the town in 1871 was 2,808 and in 1881, 8,064. The area of the parish of St. John is 403 acres; the population in 1871 was 2,836 and in 1881, 4,400.

> Prittlewell is an ancient village and the mother parish of Southend, situated on the road from Southend to Rochford, half a mile north from the former, 3 miles south from the latter and 42 from London, with a station on the Great Reastern railway, in the South Eastern division of the county, Rochford hundred and union, and in the rural deanery of Canewdon, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The church of S. Mary the Virgin is one of the largest and. in an architectural point of view, one of the most interesting in the county, and is a building of Kentish Rag stone consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, with eastern chapel, south porch and a stately Perpendicular embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and a peal of 6 bells, the tenor weighing 16 cwt. : taken as a whole the building may be said to date from the 15th century, but remains. exist of much earlier work; the three westernmost arches, dividing the nave from the aisle, are of the 13th century and the restoration, carried out from designs by Ewan Christian esq. in 1872, has disclosed the fact that they were cut through a wall of much greater age, containing remains of early Norman windows; the north wall of the chancel also shows traces of an arch blocked up and is composed of Roman bricks: the walls are surmounted by a rich and singularly perfect embattled parapet of flint and stone chequer work; the restoration has cost up to the present time over £5,000, raised by voluntary subscriptions, a new oak roof having been put in throughout and the building seated with open benches in teak, the chancel stalls being richly carved : the pulpit is of Caen stone, enriched with marble shafts, the central panel containing a bas-relief: six stained windows have been presented and a north window in the nave was filled about 1882: over the chancel arch a large mural painting on carvas was placed in 1880 by the parishioners in memory of the Rev. Spencer Robert Wigram M.A. vicar, 1864-80, and now curate of St. Paul's, Oxford: in 1884 gas was introduced into the church at an expense of £ 100 and there are 800 sittings. The churchyard has been inclosed with a wall and iron railing, and was closed for burials by I various orders from Mar. 1869, to Nov. 1881. The register of baptisms dates from 1649; of marriages and burials from The living is a vicarage, tithe commutation £297 a year, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans and held since 1880 by the Rev. Thomas Osmotherley Reay M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, rural dean of Canewdon, surrogate and chaplain of the 1st Essex Artillery Volunteers. The representatives of the late Sir Arundell Neave bart, are the lay impropriators. All Saints' parish was formed 26 October, 1877; the church, at present incomplete, consists of a chancel, together with two bays of the nave and a side chapel, all constructed of red brick at an expense of over $\ell_{2,000}$: there are 600 sittings, provided in part by an adjoining iron structure. The baptismal register dates from the year 1877. The living is a vicarage, gross value ℓ_{150} wearly, with residence, in the gift of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Montagu Burnett M. of Queens' College, Cambridge. The cemetery, situated in Southend road and four acres in extent, was opened in 1881 and has a mortuary chapel: it is under the control of a harm's beautiful for the control of a and has a mortuary chapel: it is under the control of a burial board of 7 members. Here is a charity of 120 annual value, arising from lands in Great Stambridge and commonly called "Brown's charity:" it is usually distributed in money after Christmas. The Sick Nurse Fund is an excellent institution for nursing the poor in their own homes.

Here was once a priory of Cluniac monks, founded by Robert de Essex or Fitz-Swain in the reign of Henry II. and dedicated to St. Mary: it was subordinate to the great monastery of that order at Lewes in Sussex, and the revenues at the Dissolution, when there were seven monks, amounted to £194 14s. 3d.: the portion of the priory now remaining is the property of and occupied by William Howel Scratton esq. Daniel Robert Scratton esq. D.L., J.P. of Ogwell, Newton Abbott, is lord of the manor. The trustees of Sir Arundell Neave bart, are the chief landowners. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, potatoes, beans and barley. Excellent bricks are made here. The whole parish of Prittlewell contains 3,438 acres of land and 1,545 of water; rateable value, £57,819; the population in 1871 was 4,589 and in 1881, 7,979. Parish Clerk, Arthur Burles.

STANFORD-LE-HOPE is a village and parish, on Mucking Creek, near Hope Reach, on the Tharnes, 6 miles north-east from Tilbury Fort, 6 north-east from Grays, 16 wath-east from Romford and 29 from London, with a station on the London, Tilbury and Southend railway, which has a branch here to Thames Haven for cattle. The parish in the South Eastern division of the county, Barstable handred, Orsett union and petty sessional division, Brentwest county court district and in the rural deanery of Orsett, archdesconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Margaret, standing on a rising ground, is a building of stone in the Norman, Early English and becaused styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south jorth, each with an eastern chapel or chantry, and an embatted lower, with pinnacles, on the north side, containing a modern clock and 6 bells, hung in 1884, in place of 5 others, dating from 1694 to 1703: the chancel is a fine specimen of the Decorated period of Edward III. and retains three seldia and a piscina: a very fine arch, partly filled in a niche in the north wall of the chancel, beneath a crocketed ogee arch, is an altar-tomb of Perpendicular date, which has formerly borne a brass ettigy and inscription, now lost: the nave is separated from the aisles by arcades of Early English and Decorated work and the south aisle has a panelled roof of massive oak and a door of like character: the south chapel, inclosed by a strong and high latticed gate, is appendant to the manor of Hassingbrook; at its eastern end is a corbel of the ancient altar stone and a plain piscina: the basement of the tower was formerly a chantry, and the brackets supporting its altar remain: the font, restored in 1878, is an exceelingly beautiful design of Early English date, much mutilated, as is also its ancient oaken canopy: the south chapel is crowded with the monuments of the Fetherstons, from 1690 to 1774 and of their successors, the Scrattons, to 1841: on the east wall of the chancel is a memorial to Richard Champion esq. ob. 1599 and an inscribed slab to Thomas Alieyn s.T.P. a former rector, ob. 1677: in the north aisle was buried, Dec. 11, 1721, Jacob Rousignac with excellent oak acreen work, opens into the north chapel: M.A. and in 1718, his wife Magdalen: outside the west wall of the church is an elaborately-decorated tomb, with a! canopied slab affixed to the wall, inscribed to James Adams esq. of New Jenkins, who died 9 Oct. 1765: the church was thoroughly restored in 1877-8, at a cost of more than £3,000, of which about £1,000 was contributed by the rector: this work included the renewal of the nave and chancel roofs, re-flooring the nave and aisles, the raising of the tower 20 feet and the erection of five new stained windows: during the restoration a curious fresco was un-covered, conjectured to represent "Jacob's dream:" the church was re-opened April, 29, 1878, by the Bishop of St. Albans: the pinnacles on the tower were renewed in 1384; and the whole cost has amounted to £3,000. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1630; marriages, 1688. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge 1824, with 28 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1874 by the Rev. John Edmund Sedgwick D.D. of Trinity College, Dublin, and ad eaudem M.A. of Oxford. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, partly erected in 1869. denoury of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The village, one side of which is in the hamlet of Benfield, consists of two streets; it contains some good houses and is partially lighted with gas. The parish of Stansted is one of the largest is here and is computed to be nearly 40 miles in circumference. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a large structure of Ant with stone dressings, in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, built in 1120, nave, north chapel, south porch and a west-ern tower of brick erected in 1692, and containing 5 bells: the fabric retains two very fine Norman arches, one in the chancei and another over the north doorway : on the floor of the chancel, on a small brass plate in the cover of a coped stone, is in inscription to Robert de Bokkyngg, first vicar of this church, b. Sept. 22, 1361; and against the south wall of the chancel a fine marble monument, under a highly decorated arch, to Sir Thomas Middleton kt. with his recumbent effigy cial in that armour fastened with gilt studs and covered with and robe trimmed with fur, but the inscription is nearly the ribe: there is also a monument to his wife, Lady Middleton, who was killed by a stag in Stansted Park, with a sim lar recumbent effigy: under a large pointed arch in the north aisle of the chancel, is the figure in stone of a mailed knight cross-legged, with his feet upon a couchant lion and two angels supporting his helmeted head: the church was restored and enlarged in 1888 by subscription at a cost of £5.000, and has 600 sittings. The register dates from the part 153. The living is a discharged vicarage, yearly value from the rest-charge, £300, with 2 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of W. Followship and eq. M.P. and hell are 1350 by the Rev. Alexander M'Kinney B.A. of St. Jaha College, Cambridge. The church of St. John, erected in 1534 in a stegiven by Francis Basil Pulteney esq. as a chapel of ease to the parish church, at a total cost of £6,307, raised by subscription, is a building of brick with stone dressings. which has been erected from designs by Mr. Carrol, architect, of London, and consists of chancel, nave, south transept. south aisle of six bays, north porch, and has a gallery at the west end: the organ was built at a cost of £1,000, and there is a beautiful marble reredos: the floor of the chancel is laid with various coloured marbles: the church wii sat about 600 persons. The Society of Friends and Primitive Methodists have places of worship here, and there is a Congregational chapel, erected at a cost of about £1,700, raised by subscription and opened in July. 1865: it will seat 500 persons. The Liberal Club, erected in 1888, is a structure of brick and oak timber, erected from the designs of and by Mr. Arthur Sanders, of this parish, at a cost of upwank of $\(\alpha_2,000 \), chiefly defrayed by H. P. Gilbey esq.: it contains a reading and coffee room, billiard and committee rooms, and a large lecture hall, together with a residence for the caretaker. Almshouses for 28 old women were erected and endowed in Hoxton by William Fuller esq. of that Piace, in 1795, and the buildings being eventually sold, new ones were erected in the parish in 1883, on ground given by the late William Fuller-Maitland esq. The Central Hall comprises the Post Office, Literary Institute, Reading Rooms ani lecture Hall. A recreation ground, of 3 acres, was given by William Fuller-Maitland esq. in 1867. Charities Producing about $\int_50$ are distributed in bread and clothes yearly. Here are a steam corn mill and maltings and a malt cake manufactory; bricks and drain pipes are made in the neighbourhood. Here are the remains of a castle, supposed to have been built by William Gernon, surnamed Montfilchet, and situated about half a mile north-west-by-west from the church. The priory of Thremhale or Trenwest from the church. The priory of Thremhale or Trenchale, dedicated to St. James, stood 2 miles south, by the side of Hatrield Forest, and was founded by Gilbert Montfitchet in the reign of William I. for canons of the Augustinian order; some members of the families of De Vere, Barrington and Montfitchet were buried in the priory, the revenues of which at the Dissolution were estimated at £70 19s. 3d. yearly; slight remains of the buildings still exist. Stansted Hall, the seat of William Fuller-Maitland esq. M.P., J.P. is an Elizabethan building of red brick with stone dressings and facings, situated about I mile east of the village and near the site of a hall pulled down about the year 1813; it stands in a well-wooded park of about 400 acres, bounded on the north by the Great Eastern railway. Hargrave Park, the seat of the Misses Pulteney, is situated about I mile north-north-west from the railway station. W. Fuller-Maitland esq. M.P., J.P. who is lord of the manor and R. Gosling esq. D.L., J.P. of Hassobury, are the principal land-owners. The soil is mixed, some heavy, with some good loamy soil; subsoil, clay, gravel and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans and roots; there is some good grazing land. The parish contains an area of 4,193 acres; rateable value, £10,980; the population in 1831 was 1,923, inclusive of Benfield.

BENTURLE END (or Benfield) is a hamlet, the population of which is included in Stansted. R. Gosling esq. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. ALLSA STREET is a mile and a half north and BURTON END half a mile southeast from the church.

4 miles west from Colchester, 47 from London, 6 east from Coggeshall and 11 miles east from the Marks Tey junction on the Great Eastern railway, in the North Eastern division of the county, Lexden hundred, Lexden and Winstree petty sessional division and union, Colchester county court district and in the rural deanery of Coggeshall, arch-deaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The old church of All Saints, the remains of which stand near the Hall, about 2 miles south-east from the rectory, has been in disuse from the time of Cromwell and was unroofed and the timber and lead sold during the civil wars; it originally consisted of chancel, with aisle, nave, north porch, and a western tower, of which the last four, now more or less dismantled, remain; it was built in the time of Edward I. or II probably by one of the Belhouse family. The chapel of St. Allbright (or St. Ethelbert), which has been used for about two centuries as the parish church, is a small edifice of stone of the Early Norman church, is a small edilice of stone of the Early Norman period, consisting of a chancel elongated from the ancient chancel in 1826, nave, south aisle, north porch and a wooden turret at the west end, and originally containing 3 bells; this edifice was one of the wayside chapels erected by our forefathers for the use of pilgrims and others travelling along the adjoining Ikenield Street, the religious offices of the chapel being performed by the rector of the parish; it would have served probably for one stream of devotees proceeding to our Lady of Walsingham, and for another on its way to Becket's shrine at Canterbury, to this fact the ancient apportionment of a manor to the rector seems to point, as does the name of "Playing Stalls," applied to a field near the church as the scene of Miracle Plays, and a tradition which marks the adjacent White Hart farm as originally the Pilgrim's Hospice; the building was restored in 1880 from plans by the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A. which included the erection of the south aisle. The registers date from the year 1704 and are in excellent preservation. The living is the year 1704 and are meetered preservation. The riving is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £795, net value £540. including 79 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the president and fellows of Magdalen College, Oxford, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Richard Humphry Hill D.C.L. formerly Informator in Grammar at that college and Precentor and Canon of Bangor. Here is the workhouse of the Lexden and of isanger. Here is the workhouse of the Lexden and Winstree union, holding 250 inmates. A fair is held here on April 23rd. The population in 1881 was 760.

Stanway All Saints is an ecclesiastical parish, formed, 15th May, 1845, from the civil parishes of Lexden and Stanway. All Saints' church, situated on the Maldon road, about 2½ miles south-east from St. Allbright's, was STANWAY parish and village takes its name from its situation on the Roman stoneway which forms the present high road from Colchester to Bishop's Stortford and to London, the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, organ the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, organ chamber, south porch and a low western tower with spire containing 3 bells and a clock, erected by subscripton in 1887. The register dates from the year 1845. The living is a vicarage, endowed with £180 yearly, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1888 by the Rev. James Matcham Gatrill, of Worcester College, Oxford. The population in 1881 was 532.

The manor of Stanway formerly belonged to King Harold and afterwards to William the Conqueror, but in the Norman period became divided into seven distinct manors, which in the main exist to the present date. The principal land-owners in the undivided parish are Thomas Moy esq. Thomas Haynes Harrison esq. of Copford, Mrs. Harrison, James Round esq. M.P., M.A., D.L., J.P. of Colchester, H. G. Egerton Green esq. J.P. Sir Thomas Charles Callis Western bart. D.L., J.P. of 21 Castletown road, London, Rev. J. W. Tomlinson, Miss Woodward, Mrs. Birch and Mr. Thomas-Wagstaff. The soil is gravel and sand; subsoil, very light. The chief crops are wheat, peas and barley. The area of the civil parish is 3,433 acres; rateable value, £8,618; the population in 1881 was 1,004, including 182 inmates in Lexden and Winstree workhouse.

is a building of stone and a fine specimen of the Decorated style of the early part of the fourteenth century: it consists of chancel with a sacristy, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with spire containing 5 bells, one dated 1772, one 1799 and three 1839: on the south side of the chancel are sedilia with lofty arches, cusped and springing from triple columns: the piscina is a good example of the period: the westernmost window, prolonged downwards, forms a low side window: a screen magnificent both in design and workmanship.

separates the chancel and nave; it consists of three openings, with slender clustered columns; in the centre opening, springing from the capitals of the columns, was a canopy and at the springing grotesque figures; this fine work was and at the springing grotesque ngures; this line work was partially mutilated in the 15th century, for the erection of a Perpendicular rood screen, which has in its turn disappeared; the principal part of the design, however, remains: the roof is open timbered: at the east end of the south aisle, formerly a chapel, are the remains of a fine piscina: the sacristy, also a part of the ancient work, has a third hispine: the south work robby propositional, has a third piscina: the south porch, nobly proportioned, has a superbly moulded doorway and the remains of a holy-water stoup: the tower, four stories in height and carefully built of rubble concrete, is of the same age as the church and opens into the nave by a grand arch; the upper stories are gained by short ladders of considerable age. The register of burials dates from 1712; baptisms and burials from 1713. The living is a vicarage, vicarial tithes commuted at 350 yearly, with residence, in the gift of W. Fuller-Mailand esq. M.P. who is impropriator of the great tithes, and held since 1866 by the Rev. Augustus Robert Bingham Wright M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. Here are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels; the Society of Friends has a meeting house. A Sunday school, in connection with the Congregational church, was erected in 1877, at a cost of about £700 and consists of one large room and five class rooms; about 100 children are in regular attendance: the large room is used during the week for lectures and concerts. The rent of certain cottages is applied in part to the pay-ment of the expenses of the National and Sunday schools and that of others is applied to the purchase of clothes, which are given away at Christmas and Easter; there is also a charity called Smith's charity, left in 1865 by Charles Smith and distributed in clothes. STRATFORD.

STRATFORD (or STRATFORD LANGTHORNE), the ford of the [street or Roman way from London to Colchester, within the Northern division of the Parliamentary borough of West Ham, and also included in the municipal and county borough of West Ham, is a suburb of London and lies on the east side of the navigable river Lee and on the Great Eastern railway, whence the Colchester, the Cambridge, the Black-wall and North Woolwich, the Woodford and the Tilbury and Southend lines of railway diverge: there are three stations, viz Scratford central station, Stratford Market and Maryland Point: it is 3 miles from Shoreditch, in the Bow county court district, West Ham union, and in the rural deanery of Barking, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. It is in the eastern metropolitan postal district, and within the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal court and Metropolitan police, and is united to Stratford-le-Bow, in Middlesex, by a bridge over the river Lea: tramways are laid down from the Broadway to Aldgate and from the Broadway to Leytonstone and along the Romford road, Stratford, formerly included in the local board district of West Ham, is now a ward of the municipal borough of West Ham. created June, 1886.

St. John's is an ecclesiastical parish formed Aug. 20, 1844 from the mother parish of West Ham: the church, situated in the centre of the town, where the main road from the east of London diverges towards Romford and Leytonstone, was built in 1834 as a chapel of ease to the parish of West Ham, and became a parish church about 1859; it is a building of stone and brick in the Early English style, and was erected at a cost of £23,000, of which £18,000 was raised by subscription and the remainder advanced on security of the rates; the church consists of chancel, nave, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower with pinsouth porches and an embattled western when remained a clock and one bell: the site was given by the 4th Earl of Mornington, then Tylney Long Wellesley Pole (d. 1857) of Wanstead and T. Humphreys esq. lords of the by the 4th Latter. The living is a vicarage, so constituted in 1868, net yearly value £310, with residence, in West Ham lane, in the gift of the vicar of West Ham, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Thomas Stevens M.A. of Maghalas College. Cambridge, F.S.A. and surrogate. The area dalene College, Cambridge, F.S.A. and surrogate. is 301 acres; the population in 1881 was 13,502.

Christ Church is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1852 from the mother parish of West Ham: the church, situated in High street and erected in 1851, is a building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles and spire, containing one bell. The register dates from the year 1852. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Charles William Servanté. The area is 405 acres; the population in 1881 was 9,710.

STRATFORD NEW TOWN, formerly called Hudson's Town, is a part of Stratford, adjoining the Angel Lane railway station. In this district are the works of the Great Eastern railway, employing upwards of 3,000 men.

St. Paul's, Stratford New Town, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish from the mother parish of West Ham, Sep. 12, 1865: the church, situated in the Maryland road, is an edifice of brick in the Decorated style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, aisles and a turret containing one bell: there are sittings for 1,250 persons, half of which are free. The register dates from December 10th, 1864. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, in the gift of five trustees, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Richard Arnold Pelly M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who resides at 6 Forest lane. The area is 236 acres; the population in 1881

There is a Presbyterian church in the Leytonstone road.

The Catholic church of St. Francis of Assisi, erected at a cost of £6,000, and opened May 12th, 1868, is a rectangular structure of brick in the Italian style, with a small tower over the porch containing one bell, and will seat 400.

There are also Congregational, Baptist, Primitive Methodist, Free Methodist and Wesleyan chapels.

The Town Hall, situated in the Broadway, Stratford, is a building of stone and brick in the Italian style, from designs by Messrs. L. Angell and J. Giles, and was opened July 7th 1869, by Sir Thomas S. Western bart. lord lieutenant of the In 1886 the building was greatly enlarged and entirely redecorated : the large hall on the first floor will hold 1,000 people and has retiring rooms attached; there is also a minor hall or board room on the ground floor. The façade towards the Broadway, 102 feet in length, has two principal storeys, from which in front of the entrance is projected a colonnade of rusticated work, rising into a spacious balcon supported on columns and terminating in a balustrated parapet, with groups of statuary; above this is a supplementary storey similarly treated: to the right of the main building is a well-proportioned tower 100 feet in height, crowned by a coved domical roof, supporting a small turst and vane: the principal front is of stone, the portion and other portions being adorned with polished columns of red granite: this building is occupied by the officers of the corporation, engineer and surveyor, vestry clerk and of various local collectors: on the west side is a fire brigade station, and a building has been erected at the back for the use of the inspector of nuisances and his staff, and includes a residence for the superintendent of the fire brigade.

In 1881 a stipendiary magistrate was appointed for the parish of West Ham. The Court House, situated in West Ham lane, in the rear of the Town Hall, and erected by the then local board and opened November 9th, 1886, is a building of picked stock brick work, relieved with brick quoins and stone cornices and dressings, from designs by Mr. Lewis Angell, architect, and comprises a court room, magistrate' and clerks' offices and retiring rooms, solicitors' and public waiting rooms, lavatories and caretaker's apartments, together with offices for the police and cells for prisoners.

The Martyrs' Memorial, erected in St. John's churchyard in 1879 by public subscription "to perpetuate the principles of the Reformation and to commemorate the deaths of 18 Protestant martyrs, burned in this neighbourhood for the pure faith of Jesus Christ," is a hexagonal structure of stone and terra cotta, in the Early English style, raised on a similarly shaped platform of four steps; each of the six sides is surmounted by a boldly projecting canopy, supported on clustered shafts, and above all rises a ribbed spire, terminating in a finial, encircled by a crown, the whole being 65 feet high: one of the sides is adorned with a sculptured panel reproducing a plate in Foxe's Martyrology, representing the burning of 13 of these martyrs at Stratford, on the site of the present churchyard, on Saturday, June 27th, 1556: the remaining sides bear inscriptions including the names, ages, social position and date of execution of all the martyrs commemorated: Mr. J. T. Newman was the architect.

The Fire Brigade Station is in the Broadway, and the force consists of 1 chief superintendent and 20 men, 3 fire station and 4 escape stations, distributed as follows:—No. 1 station (Stratford) with a steamer, manual hose cart and escape 1 officer and 7 men; No. 2 station (Barking road) with a steamer, hose cart and 2 escapes, 1 officer and 8 men; No. 3 station (Forest Gate) with a hose cart and escape, 1 officer and 3 men. A fire escape is also stationed at Plaistow Broadway.

On the river Lee are flour mills, chemical and artificial manure factories, soap and candle works, vesta and match manufactories and distilleries. A market for vegetables Fruit, roots and straw has been established by the Grat Eastern Railway Company, adjoining the Stratiord Market station, and warehouses and sidings have been constructed for the development of the trade in vegetables from the Eastern countries. Eastern counties.

The Cistercian abbey of Stratford Langthorne was founded here by W. Montfichet in 1134 and dedicated to St. Mary and All Saints: the abbot was a lord of Parliament and the income at the Dissolution was £573 158. 6d.: there are not not remains of the building and the Abbot wills. no remains of the building, except perhaps at the Abbey mills. George Edwards, the naturalist, was born here 3rd April, 1602, and was also burnialist, was born here 3rd April, 1693, and was also buried here on 23rd July, 1773-

The population of the Stratford ward of West Ham in 1881 was 38,636, and is now (1890) estimated to be 48,400; rate able value about £182,000.

Sexton (St. John), John Saunders.

THAXTED is an ancient town and parish, situated near the source of the Chelmer, on the road from Chelmsford to Saffron Walden, 7 miles north from Dunmow, 7 north-east from Elsenham and 7 south-east from Saffron Walden stations on the Great Eastern railway and 42 from London: the parish is in the Northern division of the county, Dunmore hundred, petty sessional division, union and county coart district and in the rural deanery of Dunmow, archdescenty of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The town was formerly a borough, incorporated by charter from Philip and Mary; the charter was confirmed by Queen Elizabeth and again with additions by James I, but the corporation was ettinguished in the quo warranto persecution of James II. is 1647. The town is lighted with gas. The parish church of St. Mary the Virgin, St. John the Baptist and St. Lawrence, is a large and fine structure of flint with stone dresings, in the Late Perpendicular style, the whole fabric being mitted and supported by strong buttresses, termining in canopied niches: the building consists of chancel and have, each with aisles, south transept, north and south porches, much enriched, and a western tower with crocketed spire, strengthened by flying buttresses, the total height of tower and spire being 181 feet; the tower contains 8 bells and a clock : in 1814 the spire was struck by lightning and the rebuilding in 1821 cost upwards of £1,000: although the style of this church, generally speaking, is Perpendicu-lar, the pillars and arches seem to belong to an earlier date, lar, the pillars and arches seem to belong to an earlier date, apparently the latter part of Henry III. or the beginning of Edward I.'s reign: the south aisle and transept were probably completed in the time of Edward III; subsequently the south porch was added and about 1337, or rather later, the north transept and north aisle were begun by Edmund Mortimer, 5th and last Earl of March and Earl of Ulster, great uncle of Edward IV. who succeeded to the manor of Thaxted, and also erected the tower and spire, but the paintings in that aisle are of the reign of Edward IV. and the chancel with its aisles was built by that monarch him. the chancel with its aisles was built by that monarch himself, in or about 1465: the font has an enriched spire-like cover, and portions of the beautifully carved choir stalls may be seen in the screen now inclosing the tower arch, also relies

of the fine stained glass with which the windows were once filled: on the north door is a brass plate inscribed "Orate p. āiāb Henrici Boyton et Johis," and in the north transept the figure and arms of the Earl of March: there is also the figure in brass of a priest in vestments, c. 1450, and inscribed memorials to the Rev. Robert Barnard M.A. vicar here for nearly 50 years, d. 26 June, 1726, his wife Anne, d. July 9, 1681, and others: on the church are several crosses and on the east wall and on the north porch are carvings of the "Crucifixion:" one of the buttresses on the south side, towards the east, exhibits traces of an entrance through it, leading down to a crypt under the chancel; this was opened about 1865, but nothing was discovered: the church is about 183 feet long by 87 wide, and has 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £460, net yearly value £400, with residence, in the gift of Lady Brooke, and held since 1859 by the Rev. George Edward Symonds M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford, and surrogate. There are Congregational and Baptist chapels and a meeting house for the Society of Friends. The Baptist chapel, in Park street, is a structure of brick and will seat about 500 persons. Samuel Purchas B.D. of St. John's College, Cambridge, the author of the two curious and interesting books called "Purchas: his Pilgrimage; or, Relations of the World and the Religious Observances of all Ages" and "Purchas: his Pilgrimmee," was born here in 1577: entering the Church he became chaplain to Archbishop Abbott and published the first of these works in 1613 and the second in 1625: he was highly esteemed for his learning, piety and faithful discharge of his duties, but eventually died in poverty and distress caused by the expenses of publishing his books, and was buried 30th September, 1626, at St. Martin's, Ludgate, in the city of London, of which church he was then rector. The Guildhall, built in the reign of James I. is now used for parish purposes; the old council chamber as a reading room and Friends. The Baptist chapel, in Park street, is a structure purposes; the old council chamber as a reading room and the upper chamber for parish meetings; there is also a lock-up in the same building used by the county police. The total amount of charities for various purposes was at one time about £1,000 yearly, but has materially decreased, one time about £1,000 yearly, but has insterially decreased, owing to the depressed state of agriculture, and the gross value is now about £700. Yerdley's charity, conditionally bequeathed temp. Henry VII. by Thomas Yerdele, was realized on the failure of all his issue in 1498: William, second Baron Maynard, by will, in 1698, left £4,000 for various charitable objects. A pleasure fair is held on the various charitable objects. A pleasure fair is held on the Monday before Whit Monday and another on the 10th of August for cattle. The town has a street called Fishmarket street, where that market was formerly held. Horham street, where that market was formerly neld. Hornam Hall, about 2 miles south-west, is a fine castellated edifice partly covered with ivy: it was built by Sir John Cutts kt. who died in 1520; and at that time it was of much larger dimensions than at present: but one wing and the chapel were taken down about the middle of the last century and other portions in the years 1841 and 1843: this was the residence of the Princess Elizabeth during part of the reign of Queen Mary and she subsequently visited it when queen in 1571; it is now the property of the Rev. George West M.A., J.P. rector of Thaxted 1856-60, and residence of Alfred Paget Humphrey esq. Mr. J. Evans, 10 John street, Bedford row, London, is lord of the manor of Fitzralphs, in this town. The principal landowners are Rev. G. West M.A. J.P. who is lord of the manor, Guy's Hospital and Lady The soil is heavy; subsoil, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 6,240 acres of land and 12 of water; rateable value, £7,398; the population in 1881 was 1,914.

THEYDON BOIS (or THOYDON BOIS) is a parish bounded by the Roding and the highway from London to Ongar, a considerable portion of which consists of forest land—whence the adjunct; it has a station on the Ongar branch of the Great Eastern railway, 2 miles south from Egg ag, 5 south-west from Ongar and 15 from London, in the Western division of the county, Ongar hundred, Epping unon and petty sessional division, Waltham Abbey county court district. Lambourne rural deanery, Essex archdeaconry and St. Albans diocese. The Essex and Herts Water Company's mains extend here. The church of St. Mary, an edifice of red brick and stone in the Early English style, occupies the site of the former church, begun in July, 1843, completed in April and consecrated, June 5th, 1844; but in onequence of its unsoundness of construction, it was found necessary to take it down in 1850, after standing only six years; the present edifice, of which Sydney Smirke esq. was the architect, consists of chancel, nave, north vestry and a western tower with spire containing a clock and 3 bells, and was opened for Divine service on Sunday, February th. 1851: the east window is a memorial to the Rev. Geo. Hambleton, 32 years vicar of this parish, who died February 37d, 1374: the church contains a few interesting mural monuments, and a cur ons old painting of the "Royal monuments, and a cur ous old painting of the "Royal Aras," baring the initials J. R. (James I.); in 1887 the cuterior was thoroughly restored and decorated, the cost beng derayed by subscription: the old church, dating from the middle of the 15th century, was situated half way between Theydon and Abridge. The register dates from 1717 only the older register books having been stolen. The long is a vicarue, yearly value from tithe rent-charge fix, with residence and 5 acres of glebe, in the gift of Mrs. Hall Dara and held since 1874 by the Rev. Charles Edwar (Campbell 8.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. Here is a Bapt st Chapel. Here is a charity of £1,000 left by Mrs. Elizabeth Wild; the purchase of £988 178. 6d. was effected with the above-mentioned sum, and the investment stands Railway Station, William Basford, station master in the names of the late Rev. George Hambleton, Messrs. William Wederell, William Carter and Mrs. Abbot; the interest, duty free, amounting to £29, is distributed with the annual rent of Theydon Mead, together with £2 payable yearly from the Elwes estate; one-sixth part is given to poor widows and the remainder to the general poor; there are also four almshouses, founded in 1753 by Benjamin Smart esq. then lord of the manor, for poor widows. The trustees of the late Robert Westley Hall Dare esq. are lords of the manor and principal landowners. John Strype M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, the well-known ecclesiastical historian, was vicar here from 1669; he subsequently held for 66 years the vicarage of Low Leyton, and afterwords the sinecure of Terling and the lectureship of Hackney, where he died 11 December, 1737. The notorious miser, John Elwes, who sat in parliament for some time as member for Berks, also lived occasionally at Theydon Hall, then his property, but died at Marcham, Berks, 26 Nov. 1789. and red brick, with stone dressings, and consists of chancel, nave, two porches and an embattled western tower with turret containing 5 bells; the tower was built by Sir John Crosby, of Crosby Hall, Bishopgate street, London, in 1552: there are monuments in the church to Sir John Archer knt. appointed justice of the Common Pleas, 1659, ob. Feb. 8th, 1681; and to Anne, wife of Sir William Fitzwilliam, of Milton, in the county of Northampton knt. lord-deputy of Ireland; she died 11 June, 1602 and was the foundress of almshouses in this parish: to Mary Archer, daughter of John, Earl Fitzwilliam and wife of John Archer esq. of Coopersale in this parish; she died Sept. 10, 1776: to Denton Nicholas esq. M.D. and Jane, his wife, 1714 and to Sir Charles Dun knt. and Joan, his wife, 1617-40: there is also a fine marble monument, with a sarcophagus and medallion portraits, to William Eyre Archer esq. M.P. for Berks, Susanna his wife and others of this family, with inscriptions from 1739 to 1757 and memorials, to the following rectors of the parish: William Kyrkeby, ob. 1458, brass, with effigy and arms; James Meggs s.T.P. with other members of his family, 1665-72; Strotherd Abdy M.A. archdeacon of Essex and 21 years rector, ob. 1773 and John Nicholas, ob. 1721: there is also an inscription, almost illegible, to Elizabeth, wife of Sir William Waldegrave, of Smalridge, ob. 1556 and numerous inscribed stones of modern date: the church was partially restored in 1885, for the most part at the expense of the Rev. Sir Cavendish Hervey Foster bart. B.A. rector 1843-87, who also inserted a stained east window, and the church-yard has been enlarged. The registers are complete, with few exceptions, from the year 1558: the Manor Court rolls, from an early date, are also kept in the vestry chest. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £650, with 64 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Sir Wm. Neville Abdy bart, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Charles George Beaumont Hotham M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge; the rectory house is pleasantly situated close to the church.

COOPERSALE, the portion of the parish adjoining Epping, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish Oct. 22, 1852, and is in the Chigwell rural deanery: the church of St. Alban, erected in 1852, at the cost of Miss Archer Houblon, is an edifice of flint in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western rurret containing one bell: the east window is a memorial to members of the Houblon family: the chancel has a credence and piscina and on the south side are sedilia. The register dates from the year 1852. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value about £320, derived in part from endowment, and in part from a rent-charge upon the tithes of Theydon Garnon, in the gift of Miss Archer Houblon, and held since 1854 by the Rev. Richard Fort M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford; the vicarage house was built at Miss Houblon's expense. The area is included in Theydon Garnon. The population in 1881 was 600. A parish room was built in 1882 at the expense of Miss Archer Houblon.

PRIVATE RESIDENTS.

Allen Mrs. Hemnall street

The Theydon Garnon and Coopersale Cottage Garden Society hold a show annually. The charities of the parish produce about £80 yearly, derived from land left about 1780 by Lady Wentworth and there are six almshouses for poor widows, four of which, founded in 1602 by Lady Ann Sydney Fitzwilliam, are each endowed with an income of 4 yearly, the other two receiving a like yearly sum from the parish. Here is the workhouse of the Epping union, with about 175 inmates. Gaynes Park is the seat of William Swaine Chisenhale-Marsh esq. J.P.; the mansion is a fine building of stone in the Tudor style and is very pleasantly situated on an eminence in an extensive and well-wooded park of 100 acres, commanding extensive views of the surrounding country. Coopersale House, the property of surrounding country. Coopersale House, the property of John Archer Houblon esq. J.P. of Hallingbury, and eccupied by Miss Archer Houblon, is a structure of brick and stone in the Tudor style, situated on a declivity, to the right of the road to Epping; the grounds are extensive and well arranged and contain a large sheet of water; it washeld by the Archer family from the time of Henry V. who is said to have changed the name of this family from Dubois to Archer on the occasion of a shooting match at Havering, when one Simon Dubois, his attendant at Agincourt, acquitted himself so remarkably as to win from the king this distinction. W. S. Chisenhale-Marsh esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor of Theydon Garnon, Hemnalls and Gaynes Park, and Sir William Bowyer Smijth bart, of Attleborough Hall, Norfolk, are the principal landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, London clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. WEST THURROCK and PURFLEET.

West Thursock is a parish, 3 miles east from Purfleet and it west from Grays station on the London, Tilbury and Southend railway, it south-east from Romford and 19 from London, in the South Eastern division of the county, Chafford hundred, Orsett union and petty sessional division, Gravesed county court district, rural deanery of Orsett, archdescoury of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. The Guys and Upminster section of the London, Tilbury and Southend railway, now in course of construction, joins the main line here: it will pass through South Ockendon, where there will be a station, and eventually continue to Romford. The church of St. Clement is an ancient structure, consisting of chancel, nave, north transept, aisles and a low but massive embattled tower at the west end, containing 3 bells, dated 1632: the nave and aisles are the oldest part and date from rather early in the Lancet period: the chancel and west chantry are Decorated, and some windows in the aisles and chantry Perpendicular, the tower being late in the same style, while the south chantry is modern Gothic; the material is chiefly flint, banded, in the case of the tower, with stone : this church, built on the river bank and far away from the nearest house, was erected, it is supposed, soon after the marder of Saint Thomas à Becket, for the convenience of pilgnms going to his shrine at Canterbury: in the north pagina going to its surrice at cancer on; in alabaster of a laight and his lady, representing Sir Daniel Holford kint.

Attorn of the living, who put in the east window in 1623, and his wife; in the chancel floor is this inscription, in Roman letters on a brass let into a slab of shell marble, "Katherina Ridinge Filia Homfridi Haies obiit Decimo exto Die Decembris anno domini 1591, anno ætatis suæ ricesimo quarto." Another brass is that of Humphrey Heies, ch. Oct. 10, 1584, and his son of the same name, oh Jan. 22, 1585, with eighteen elegant Latin lines, containing a succession of puns on the name of Hays or Heies: a rectangular slab near the east end of the chancel floor is insented-"Nichol(a)s: Ferobard: gist: ici: dev: de: sa: sime: eyt: merci:" and in the centre is the matrix of a florated cross, with a demi-figure in the head. The regismarked cross, with a demi-ngure in the head. The register of marked dates from 1668; burials, 1681; baptisms, 1683. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rest-charge [292, with 3 acres of glebe and residence, in the gilt of Samuel Whitbread esq. M.P. and held since 1875 by the Rev. Thomas Aldersey Morley M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1876, and there is also a chapel called "The Iron Room" hull; 1882, which the work the executions of Mr. Room," built in 1885, chiefly through the exertions of Mr. W. H. Vellacott, but attached to no particular denominain There are traces of a monastery still extant. Here are extensive cement works. Samuel Whitbread esq. M.P. of Southill Park, Beds, who is lord of the manor, the Tunnel Green Company and John Edward Curtis esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, chalk. THEREN DOCKS.—The deep water docks of the East and was load bock Company, commonly known as "the Til-bary docks," but locally in the parish of Chadwell St. Mary, were opened on Saturday, April 17th, 1836, by H. H. Debree es, chairman of the company. These are now the diest deep water docks in the kingdom, and were constructed in about four years, at a cost of about £3,000,000, from plans by Mr. A. Mauning, engineer to the company, and Mr. F. C. Ablfeldt. For the accomplishment of this great work, the company acquired in 1882 an area of 460 area of land, of which about 100 acres are occupied by the docks and their accessories. The docks include a tidal buin 19t acres in extent, with a width at the entrance of 300 leet; a depth at low water springs of 26 feet, and at ordinary high water springs of 45 feet, so that the largest ships, whether discharging or loading, can enter or leave at any state of the tide; the other principal sections comprise a main duck of 23 acres, 1,800 feet long and 600 feet wide; three branch docks, each 1,600 feet long and 300 feet wide, and covering together an area of 291 acres; lock, and grav-

TILLINGHAM is a parish and large pleasant village, 4 miss north-east from Southminster station on the Great Eastern railway, 7 miles north-east-by-north from Burnhain and 14 east-south-east from Maldon, in the South Eastern division of the county, Dengie hundred and petty sessional division, Maldon union and county court district and in the rural deanery of Dengie, archdeacoury of Essex and diocese of St. Albans: the rillage is very pleasantly situated about 3 miles from the German Ocean, but the parish extends to its borlers. The church of St. Nicholas, which stands in the centre of the village, upon a fine open space, is an ancient bulling of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular stries, repaired in 1708 by a rate on the inhabitants, the south aisle being rebuilt in 1866; it consists of chancel, nave of four bays, south aisle, porch and an embattled tower at the west end containing 6 bells, the tenor dated 1684 and the fourth bell 1707; these bells, long silent on account of the deayed state of the apparatus, were thoroughly refitted and rebung, and a sixth bell added in 1889, at the cost of Miss Sabrook, of Chelinsford : the tower was much damaged by Latning towards the close of the last century, but in 1888 was completely restored and its stair-turret rebuilt from lands axied by the vicar; a clock with chiming apparatus was placed in the tower in 1887, at the cost of the parishloner; the pixcina and sedilia are still intact, and the font is a heautiful specimen of early work: there are brasses to Elsari Woles esq. b. July, 1584, with two Latin verses; to Lair Margaret Wyott, ob. 1526 and to John Wakeman, ob. 154: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1362. The living is a vicarage, commuted tithe rentvar 1562. The living is a vicarage, commuted tithe rent-charge £329, with 133 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and held since 1379 by the Rer. William Coase Miller, Theol. Assoc. of king's College, London. The rectorial commuted rent-thange amounts to £797 178, which together with about £1000 a year derived from lands in the parish, belongs to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's and is applied, after deducting a grant to ten poor livings in the county, to the repair of the cathedral. There are Baptist, Congregathe repair of the cathedral. There are Baptist, Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a place of worship for the Peculiar People. The charities now (1890) amount to about £18 yearly, chiefly derived from land bequeathed in the year 1652 by Colonel Gregory Baker, a distinguished Royalist, and distributed to the poor; there are also almshouses endowed with £20 a year founded by the same benefactor for four poor people. The manor and tithes of this place were given by Ethelbert, Bretwalda of England and King of Kent (550-616) to the Cathedral of St. Paul. The lords of the manor are the Ecclesiastical Commissionare. The lords of the manor are the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The principal landowners are the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, Miss Willes, W. Attenborough, James Gale and James and Thomas Jackson esqrs. The village his been much improved by the erection, in 1881, of some picturesque cottages by the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, who previously purchased and removed, at a considerable outlay, several dilapidated tengengis. There is much lead here formed and dead tengengis. chased and removed, as a summer and hard here formerly marsh, but now drained and undercultivation. The soil is various; subsoil, gravel and loam. UGLEY (or OAKLEY).—The name of this parish has been ! variously pronounced. Quercetum appears to have been the name by which it was known by the Romans, from the locality abounding in oaks, and according to Morant the name has been corrupted, by the pronunciation of the Norman clerks, from Oakley to Ugley; it is situated on the high road from London to Newmarket, between Bishop's Stortford and Saffron Walden, 51 north from Bishop's Stortford, 33 from London by road and 2 miles north-west from Elsenham station the main line of the Great Eastern railway to Cambridge, in the Northern division of the county, Clavering hundred, Saffron Walden petty sessional division, Bishop's Stortford union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Peter is an ancient edifice of brick in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transept, south chapel, south porch, organ chamber and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells: the chapel on the south side was originally built from the ruins of Bollington church: there is a coloured window on the south wall of the chancel; the east window is partly stained: there is another stained window in the chancel which also retains a piscina: on the north wall of the church is a plain brass, in good preservation, and apparently local work, to Richard Stock, who died 3 May, 1568: the parish chest, of wood and iron, with several locks, is ancient and well preserved: the church was completely restored and a tranept added in 1866. The register dates from the year 1560. sept added in 1800. The register dates from the rent-charge froe, with 15 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Governors of Christ's Hospital, and held since 1880 by the Rev. George Atkinson Crossle M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge. Charities, left by Robert Buck, 1620; Thomas Buck, 1679; and Edward Sandford, 1863, amount to £48 yearly and are chiefly distributed in coal and clothing. WAKES COLNE, see COLNE, ancient market town lying opposite to parts of the counties of Midliesex and Herts, the navigable river Lee, in several branches, running through the town, about one mile east from the Waltham Cross station of the Great Eastern railway and 14 miles from Shoreditch : it is the head of a county court district, in the Western division of the county, and but hundred of Waltham, Edmonton union, and in the rural deanery of Chigwell, archdeacoury of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. A local board of health of 12 members was established in 1845. The parish is in the Metropolitan police district and a police station was erected in Sun street in 1876. Gus works were erected in 1869, and the supply of water is from the East London Water Works. The town of Waltham Abbey, which consists of one main street and serval others branching from it, derives its name and origin, according to Ogborne's "History of Essex," from the following circumstance:—Toui, standard-bearer to Canute the Dine, attracted by the abundance of game in this locality, built a small station, which gradually grew into a village peopled by his vassals and retainers; he also erected a church, in which to deposit and preserve a relic of the Holy Cross, said to have been brought here by a miracle. The estate seems rapidly to have increased, and when it descended to Atheletin, on the death of his father Toni, it was regarded as a great possession. Athelstan, however, by his prodigality soon designted his wealth and the whole appears to have passed to the Crown, for Edward the Confessor bestowed it on his brother-in-law Harold, son of Earl Godwin, who greatly enlarged and enriched the abboy, endowing it with many of his former possessions, which, connected with it as hamiets or townships, are traceable to the present day. ammits or commings, are tracease to the present day. On the death of the Confessor, Harold ascended the throne, but being defeated and slain at Hastings 14th October, 1056, by William the Norman, his body, with those of Gurth and Lodwin, his brothers, was brought hither and interred, ac-ording to general tradition, by Githa, their mother, in the choir or eastern chapel; in confirmation of which it is stated that in the reign of Elizabeth, a rich grey marble tomb was discovered and, from its pillareted supports and the cross foury upon it little doubt exists that it covered the remains of the ill-fated Harold and his gallant brothers. The abbey lank were seized by William and apportioned among his followers: King Henry II. however, recovered the scattered enforments and re-endowed and re-dedicated the church to the Holy Cross and St. Lawrence, exchanging the monks for regular canons. Henry III. was also a great benefactor and often, amilst the many changes he experienced, retired to the Abbey of Waltham, and bestowed on the town the privilege of holling its fairs and weekly market. King Henry VIII. poss seed a house in Romeland and it was here that the first see is of the Reformation were sown. The abbey had continued from its foundation for 478 years, when, on the 23rd March, 1540, it was surrendered to Henry VIII. by Robert Fuller, the last abbot, at which time its revenues amounted to £1,097 yearly, the abbot also ranking as a peer of parliament.

All that now remains of the once famous abbey is the mre, which constitutes the present church of Holy Cross and St. Lawrence; its original form was that of a cross, with a bifty square tower in the centre, rising from four arches and opening to the choir, nave and transcepts; but the tower and everything to the eastward of it is now gone: the ensing fragment consists of seven bays, with triforium and cerestory, aisles, a chapel to the south aisle and a western tower 36 feet in height, erected in 1556, with a low prantial roof and containing 6 bells: the areades have round arches, on massive circular piers, both enriched with Living ornament: as a very early example of the Norman the tis singularly interesting, and some part of it is, perhaps an erior to the Conquest: the triforium arches are bold and simple, but those of the clerestory have three openings in eschbay: the chapel, a work of the Decorated period, has below it a large crypt, considered to date from circ. 1316: if consists of two bays with quadripartite vaulting and small windows, which do not appear to have ever been Razed, and has been used as a burial place for the family of Morgan of Warlies and others: at the west end of the charel is a fine six-light square-headed window with rich tracery, but that of the four windows on the south side is new; a restored Norman doorway leads into the south aisle of the church, on the right of which remains a fragment of Waltream Abber (or Waltham Holy Cross) is a parish and ancient diapered work: the chapel was once a chantry and subsequently served as a school-room, the first school-master recorded after the Reformation being John Matthew, who held that post in 1598: the fine arch at the east end of the nave, which formerly upheld the western side of the tower, although filled in, is plainly discernible, and on one of the jutting ruinous ends of the south transept may be seen a portion of two round-headed arches, carved with zig-zag ornament: a door and window in one of the buttresses on the south side have been restored at the expense of the late incumbent's family: there are mural brasses in the church to Edward Stary, ob. 1555, his wife Katherine, ob. 1565, and Francis their son, with 12 English verses; and to Thomas Colte esq. ob. 1559, and his wife Magdalen (who placed the memorial in 1576 and died in 1591), with six sons and four daughters: in the south asise is the large tomb of Sir Edward Denny kt. and Margaret his wife, with recumbent effigies: there are many floor stones to the families of Hillersdon, Floyer, Rudhall and Naylor, and ledgers from which brasses of abbots have been removed: ledgers from which brusses of abbots have oeen removen: a memorial window and a carried oak screen were erected to the memory of the Rev. James Francis M.A. late vicar, by the parishioners in Dec. 1886. The register dates from the year 1563. The living is a donative vicarage, net yearly value £190, including half an acre of globe, in the gift of the trustees of the Earl of Norwich, a peerage which became extinct in 1836, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Francis Burdett Johnston M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels and one for the Brethren. The cemetery, situated in the Sewardstone road and opened in 1857, occupies about 4 acres and contains two mortuary chapels; it is under the control of a Burial Board of nine members. There are almshouses in High Bridge street, founded by George Greene (purveyor to King James I.) in the year 1626, for the use of eight poor widows, each of whom receives 2s. 6d. weekly; they were rebuilt in pursuance of the will of the late Mr. Robert Mason by his executors, in the year 1818: there are also a few bequests, value about 50, to be given in bread. A market is held on Tuesdays for cattle, sheep and pigs, granted as already stated by King Henry III.; and fairs are held on the 14th of May, June oth and 25th and 25th of September. On the banks of the Lee is a large Government establishment for refining saltpetre and for the manufacture of gunpowder, for which new works are now (1890) being erected about half a mile west of the town. Here are also breweries, flour mills and manufactory of percussion caps. Sir Herewald Wake bart, of Courteen Hall, Northampton, is lord of the manor of Waltham Holy Cross, and Major Charles William Hamilton Sotheby J.P. is lord of the manor of Sewardstone: the principal landowners are Sir Herewald Wake bart.; Sir T. F. principal landowners are Sir Herewald Wake Dart.; Sir T. F. Buxton bart.; Capt. Richard Beale Colvin, of Felix Hall, Kelvedon; Peter Mills esq. of The Grange, Sewardstone; William Melles esq. M.A., J.P., D.L. in about a miles cost in a sheltered valley on the read to is about 3 miles east in a sheltered valley on the road to Copt or Copped Hall: the estate consists of about 1,000 acres. Near the park are two obelisks, both of the last century, but without inscription; the first, which stands on a waste spot south of Copt Hall Green, gives its name to an adjoining farm; the second is in a meadow on the other side of Cobbin's Brook, and a neighbouring wood gains its name from it. Monkhams Hall is the residence of John Berry White esq. Waltham Holy Cross is a large parish, consisting of the township of Waltham Abbey and the hamlets of Holyfield, Upshire and Sewardstone, containing 10,419 acres of land and 103 water; rateable value, £37,578; the population in 1881 was 5,368. Waltham Abbey township has an area of 741 acres and a population of 2,008.

> Sewardstone is a hamlet of Waltham Abbey about 22 miles south from the Waltham Cross station of the G. E. railway and about 3½ miles north from Chingford station on the road to Chingford. archdescours of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. There are now three public taps in the village for the supply of water, an hydraulic ram being placed at the spring in South House meadow, from whence the water is pumped into a small reservoir 500 yards from the spring. The church of SS. Mary and Lawrence is a large edifice of flint and stone, in the Late Perpendicular style, with a Norman tower and foundations of the same date in the chancel: it consists of a capacions chancel with clerestory added in the 16th century, nare of four bays with clerestory, north aisle, built in 1875, and south aisle in 1500, south porch and a western tower, surmounted with a characteristic bell-cot and containing a clock and 8 bells of various dates from 1422 to 1796 (the tenor weighing 28 cut.); connected with the bells is a chiming sparatus, playing every four hours : the stained east window is a memoral to the late Mr. Tufnell and the west window of the north asle to the late Rev. J. H. Dver, vicar 1857-1871: at the east end of the north aisle (removed from its position in then are when the aisle was added) is a beautiful tomb with recumbent effigies, erected by Sir Anthony Everard, knight, to the memory of his wife, ob. 1611; he died in 1614, before its competion, and the inscription recounts his death in that year: on the pavement, also recumbent, are figures of two male infants and one female: there are slabs with brases to Thomas Wiseman and his wife, with effigies (1589), and to Sir Rehard Everard, knight (1611), and his wife (1617): a slab on the wall of the south aisle perpetuates the process and fortunes of another of the Everard family, who poses and fortunes of another of the Everard rammy, who was feet on the Goodwin Sands, 27 Nov. 1703: a stone receive with mohes containing sculptured figures was placed in the chancel in 1834 in memory of Col. A. J. Tufnell, eldest son of J. WALTON-ON-THE-NAZE (or WALTON-LE-SOKEN) is parish, small seaside town and watering place with a terminal station on the Tendring Hundred branch of the Grest Eastern railway, 7½ miles south from Harwich by water and 16 by land, 7½ east-south-east from Tendring, 193 waser and 10 of land, 75 east-south-east from Lendring, 1937 east from Cochester and 715 from London, in the North Easten division of the county, Tendring hundred, petty sessional division and union, Harwich county court district, rural denerty of St. Osyth, archdeaconry of Colchester and dioses of St. Albans: this and the adjoining liberties of Thorpe and Kirby are called the Sokens, from a Saxon word implying privilege; some of the peculiar privileges enjoyed were exemption from archdeaconal and commissary jurisdiction, power to administer and execute laws for themselves and equal rights of a wife with her husband in the ownership of land; the Sokens were given by King Athelstan to St. Paul's, London, some time prior to A.D. 941; formerly the parish extended much further out to sea and ruins are said to have been discovered on a shoal called the West Rocks, 9 miles from shore; the town lies between the ea-cliffs and Walton Creek, which is much frequented by sportsmen in quest of wild fowl and on the head of the creek stand powerful tide and wind mills: the air is salubrious and bracing, and the beach, consisting of sand and fine shingle, is well adapted for bathing and affords a pleasant promenade, the ebb tide leaving a hard smooth sand : the cliffs adjaning the town have been protected from the encroachments of the sea by the construction of breakwaters, and other measures are intended to be taken, a bill being now pages; Walton is bounded on three sides by the sea, the and terminating in a bold promontory called the "Naze," on which stands Walton Hall, adjoining which is a lofty tower built by the Corporation of the Trinity House in 1796: the south slopes and seaward summit of this elevated land he being laid out for building with pleasant walks and plantations, sheltered from the north, with a wide view seaward, the former under the name of "South Park," the latter as "Walton Naze Park:" it has been proposed to form a railway to connect Walton-on-the-Naze with Harwich is a line account of the Naze with Harwich is a line account of the Naze with Harwich as line account of the Naze with Harwich as the naze of the naze of the Naze with Harwich as the naze of the Naze with Harwich as the naze of th by a line passing along the west side of the Naze, crossing James passing among the west said to the neet through Pewit Island, Oakiey, Ramsey and Ramsey Ray, now called "Parkeston;" up to 1890 nothing has however been done. The coast is chiefly composed of dark London clay. At the Nate this is overlaid by the crag formation, famous for its abandance of fossils, and is frequently resorted to by geologists: the red crag here found is considered the oldest in England and alone of all the red crag beds yields shells in the condition in which their immates died—bivalves not un-frequently with both valves united and univalves with the pulns unimpaired: fossil remains have been found of antedilarian beasts : pyrites and coprolites from the London clay and upper beds are collected on the shore and cliff as well as nolules of calcareous clay of septaria used for making Roman cement: copperas works formerly existed here and a considerable quantity of the mineral is still obtained from the beach. The town is lighted with gas and well drained and is supplied with an abundance of fine spring water by means of pipes from Mistley, by the Tendring Hundred Waterworks Company: the management of the town is under a local board of commissioners, who also form the local urban sanitary authority: the pier is 800 ft. long and by an Act of Parliament dated 19th Feb. 1878, its further entension is authorized for a distance of 355 feet, together with other improvements for the convenience of steamboats and other ressels; this, however, still (1890) remains to be accomplished: many yachts resort here and water excur-sons form the prevailing recreation: a regatta is usually bell in August: during the summer season, steamers run to and from London, Clacton-on-Sea and Harwich and several times a day from Harwich up the river Orwell to I seath. The church of All Saints, partially rebuilt of stone in 1673, was completed, except the upper portion of the tower, and consecrated in 1882; it is an edifice in the Early Decorated style and consists of chancel with vestry and organ chamber, nave of five bays, south aisle and an unfinished western tower containing one bell; attached to the tower is a handsome north porch: the organ was erected in 1882: there are about 600 sittings: the old building of red brick was consecrated by Bishop Porteus in 1804 in place of an ancient edifice, which, with the churchyard and every house near it but one, had been entirely swept away by the encroachments of the sea in 1798: a prebendal stall in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, which takes its name from an estate engulphed by the sea, but formerly part of this parish, is now called "Probenda Consumpta per Mare." The register of baptisms dates from 1672; marriages, 1638; The register of baptisms dates from 1672; marriages, 1638; burials, 1690; some of the later registers are at Kirby-le-Soken; in the burial book the following extract appears—"1764, John Pittman, vicar; Allen Wa'ker, curate. No burials this year, the only instance of this century." The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £124, with 1 acre of glebe and residence in the gift of trustees, and held since 1876 by the Rev. James Theo lore Cooke M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, and diocesan inspector of schools. The Primitive Methodist chapel built in 1875 will seat 100 persons; the Society of Friends' meeting house is at present (1890) closed. The Congregational church in Station road was erected in 1878 and has 320 sittings. The Plymouth road was erected in 1878 and has 320 sittings. The Plymouth Brethren have an iron meeting house in Saville row, erected in 1889, with 100 sittings. The Public Hall in High street, a large structure of brick holding 300 persons is at present (1890) disused. An extensive iron foundry here belonging to R. Warner esq. finds employment for 150 to 200 hands. The brick earth and strong clay are being manufactured into bricks and tiles of a good quality at the Port Walton works. There are several good hotels, including the "Albion," "Marine," "Dorling's," and the "Portobello:" the three first have assembly rooms attached, and connected with the Marine hotel is a bijou theatre. The constguard station is at the east end of the town; the force consists of a chief officer and 11 men. A fair was formerly held here on chief officer and 11 men. A fair was formerly held here on July 3rd, but has now become obsolete. A lifeboat called the "Honorable Artillery Company," was presented in 1334 by the Dramatic Club of the Honorable Artillery Company to the Royal National Life Boat Institution for service on this coast, which is only about eight miles from the dangerous "Gunfleet" sands. The Convalescent Home, established in "Gunfleet" sands. The Convalescent Home, established in 1835, is an offshoot of St. Albans' Diocesan Nursing Institution and is supported by voluntary subscriptions. The Home of Rest in High street, connected with the Field Lanc Mission is used in the summer months for the benefit of poor invalids requiring the sea air. There are about 30 acres of land, left chiefly by Mr. John Sadler, in 1563, for the good of the poor, the income of which is managed and the good of the poor, the include it which is managed and distributed by trustees, under the direction of the Charity Commissioners. Two parcels of land formerly belonging to the poor and yielding respectively £15 and £4 tos. annually have been submerged, as also the greater portion of two farms comprising 90 acres of land purchased in 1793 by the governors of Queen Anne's bounty for the augmentation of the living of Holy Trinity church, Colchester. Edward Chapman esq. of Harwich, is lord of the manor. Adolphus Chapman esq. or carwien, is ford of the manor. Adolphus Edgar Church, of Colchester, is coroner for the district called the Sokens. Sir John Henry Johnson J.P. of St. Osyth's Priory, Richard Blanshard esq. F.R.G.S., M.A., J.P. of Fairfield, Lymington, Hants, Robert Warner and Peter S. Bruff esqs. are the principal landowners. The soil is fertile, consisting chiefly of loam, crag and sand; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats &c. The parish contains 2.146 acres of land and years subsoil, clay and grave. The chief crops are where, pariety, oats &c. The parish contains 2,146 acres of land and 1,106 of water; rateable value, £6,006. the resident population in 1871 was 1,070; and in 1881, 1,376; but in the summer

WANSTEAD and SNARESBROOK.

7 mile from Whitechapel or Shoreditch churches; it is in the Eastern Metropolitan postal district, within the jurisdiction of the Central criminal court and Metropolitan police, in the Southern division of the county, Becontree andred, West Ham union, Bow county court district, and in the rural deanery of Barking, archdeaconry of Essex and dioxeof St. Albans, and is governed by a Local Board of nine members, formed June 9, 1854, under the "Public Health Wanstead appears to have derived its name from the Saxon words wan (white) and stede (mansion) and is first mentioned as having been bestowed on St. Peter's, at Westminster, by one Alfric, which grant, it is said, was confirmed by Edward the Confessor: at the Domesday Survey it was held of the Bishop of London by Ralph Fitz Brien, its annual value being 40s.: in the reign of Henry III. it passed by marriage to William de Huntercombe, at which time it was held upon suit and service to the Bishop of London. In the reign of Henry VIII. Giles, son of Sir John Heron, who marned the daughter of Sir Thomas More, refusing to acknowledge the supremacy of the King, was attainted, his estates furfeited and Wanstead forming part thereof, passed to the forwar In 1549 Edward VI. granted it to Lord Rich, whose on in 1577 sold it to Robert, Earl of Leicester, from when it passed to the families of Mildray, Child, Tylney and Landing Child, Tylney and decended ultimately to Miss Tylney-Long, who married the Hon. Win. Pole-Tylney-Long-Wellesley, afterwards

Wassian is a parish, a mile and a half north-west from liked, 200 yards south from Snaresbrook station on the his cousin. Here stood, in the 18th century, a mansion, built by Sir Richard Child (afterwards created Earl Tylney) in 1715: the Prince de Condé, Louis XVIII. and other members of the exiled Bourbon family resided here during the time of the first Napoleon. Owing to the extravagance of the above named Hon. W. Pole-Tylney-Long-Wellesley, the whole contents of the mansion were disposed of in June, 1822; and the residence was subsequently pulled down and sold in lots. A grotto, built at immense expense by the late Countess of Mornington, was the only monument of this fine estate remaining until the early part of 1885, when it was unfortunately burned down. A tesselated pavement and other Roman antiquities were found in the park in 1735. The church of St. Mary, rebuilt in 1790, at the cost of Sir James Tylney-Long bart, of Draycot, Wilts, is a brick structure, cased with Portland stone, in the Classic style, from designs by Mr. Thomas Hardwick, architect, and consists of chancel, nave and sigles west, portry graposted on sillerance. nave and aisles, west porch, supported on pillars of the Corinthian order and a Doric portico, surmounted by a cupola resting on eight Ionic columns and terminating in a small turret, containing a clock and one bell: in the chancel is a sumptuous marble monument with effigies to Sir Josiah contains 600 sitting. In the churchyard lies buried John Saltmarsh, of Magdalene College, Cambridge, an Antinomian divine, who died at Ilford in 1647. The register dates from the year 1640. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge, 1374, net yearly value £700, including 35 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Earl Cowley, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Morton Drummond M.A. of Caius College, Christ Church, a chapel of ease to St. Mary's, Cambridge. erected and opened in 1861, is a building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and a western tower, containing a clock and 8 steel bells: the church will seat about 650 persons. Dr. James Pound, naturalist and astronomer, was rector here from 1707 till his death in 1724; and James Bradley D.D.his nephew, also a distinguished astronomer. Society performs to the first of the state tinguished astronomer, Savilian professor at Oxford, and the successor of Halley as astronomer-royal, was for some time curate during the incumbency of his uncle, and d. 13 July, 1762. Admiral Sir William Penn, father of the founder of Pennsylvania, was a resident here, he died 16 Sept. 1670. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels and a Free Methodist chapel and a Friends' Meeting house. The Charities for distribution amount to £37 yearly. At New Wanstead the Weavers' Company have erected a block of almshouses in lieu of those situated in Potter's fields and Old Street road, London, and founded in 1725; these are for twelve poor freemen and twelve widows. Wanstead Park, which is under control of the Corporation of London, consists of about 184 acres, formerly constituting an outlying portion of the Tylney estate, acquired by the Corporation from Earl Cowley, by an exchange of 50 acres of scattered land and a payment of £8,000, and conveyed to the Epping Forest Committee in trust for the public. The park, opened in August, 1882, has several fine pieces of water and a heronry, Adjoining are the Wanand is becoming much frequented. stead Flats, another open space, levelled and partially planted with trees and shrubs in the spring of 1886; the cost being defrayed from the Mansion House fund raised for the benefit of the unemployed. At Lake House, south-west of the park, Thomas Hood wrote his novel "Tylney Hall:" this house was originally built as a summer-house to the park. Earl Cowley is lord of the manor. At Wanstead is a metropolitan police station for a force of four inspectors, one sergeant and eighteen constables. The area is 1,951 acres of land and 51 of water; rateable value, £83,700; the population in 1871 was 5,119, and in 1881, 9,414 (including inmates of the Infant Orphan Asylum). The population in the urban sanitary district in 1881 was 5,362.

Parish Clerk, John Miller, Wellesley road.

Snaresbrook is a hamlet of Wanstead, on the Woodford road, with a station on the Great Eastern railway, 63 miles from Shoreditch and Whitechapel churches. The Merchant Scamen's Orphan Asylum, situated on the right of the Woodford road, near the Snaresbrook railway station, was first established in 1827 in St. George's-in-the-East, London, for the maintenance, clothing and education of the children of deceased British merchant seamen, from all parts of the world: up to the year 1886 more than 1,700 children have enjoyed the benefits of this charity and there are now 270 in residence, the premises being available for a full complement of 300: children are elected to vacancies by the votes of the governors, no child being elected unless it polls 50 votes: candidates for election must also be over seven and under 11 years and free from all disease or infirmity and must further be recommended by a governor and approved by the board of management: the institution is under the patronage of the Queen and is controlled by a committee of 20 gentlemen: the present buildings, creeted in 1861 and opened in 1862, are of red and black brick with white stone opened in 1002, are of red and black brick with white stone dressings in the Gothic style, from designs by Mr. G. C. Clarke, architect, and have been twice enlarged; the buildings include a lofty tower with spire, and a chapel, opened in 1882 by the Prince and Princess of Wales; Mr. F. W. Rawlingen see: Miss Holkin materia. linson, sec.; Miss Hodkin, matron.

The Eagle pond or lake, one of the principal features of the place, is a sheet of water about roly acres in extent, now secured for the enjoyment of the public, and in the summer months is frequented by anglers; at the east end of the lake is the Eagle Hotel, a well known and favourite resort, with large gardens and pleasure grounds.

On the south side of the lake stands the Infant Orphan Asylum, founded at Hackney in 1827 by Dr. Andrew Reed and others and removed here in 1843: the present building, the foundation stone of which was laid by the late Prince Consort in 1841, was opened in 1843 by the late King of the Belgians, and is a structure of brick with stone dressings, in the Elizabethan style, consisting of a central block, with projecting wings. The institution is intended for the orphan children of respectable parents, who are received from their | CARRIERS TO LONDON pass through daily earliest infancy, and may remain till they attain the age of 14 or 15 years. Elections take place in May and November and about 60 are admitted annually; there are now (1890) 700 children in the asylum, which is entirely supported by voluntary contributions.

GREAT WARLEY (or West Warley, or Warley) ABBESS) is a parish and village, 6 miles east from Romford, 18 from London and 3\frac{1}{2} south from Brentwood station on the main line of the Great Eastern railway, in the Mid division of the county, Chafford hundred, Brentwood petty sessional division and county court district, Romford union, rural deanery of Chafford, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of The London, Tilbury and Southend Railway St. Albans. Company's direct line from Barking to Pitsea passes through the parish. The church of St. Peter, restored in 1860, is an edifice of brick principally in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel and nave and a western tower with a low spire containing one bell: the east and south windows in the chancel are stained, and on the north side of the chancel is a mural monument with a demi-effigy to Gyles Fleming, gent. ob. 18 Oct. 1623, and to Gyles Fleming, his son, ob. 1633. The register dates from 1539 and is in excellent preservation. There is also a curious list of "Briefs," dating from 1709 to 1768. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £488, with 9 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of St. John's College, Cambridge, and held since 1866 by the Rev. Hammond Roberson Bailey M.A. late fellow and tutor of that college. Christ Church ecclesiastical parish was formed 27 July, 1855, out of portions of Great Warley, Shenfield and South Weald parishes, in its immediate neighbourhood. The church is an edifice of brick with stone facings, in the Early English style, consisting of nave, aisles and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing one bell: the church was en-larged in 1877. The register dates from the year 1855. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £270, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Francis Tovey Colson M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cam-The Catholic church, dedicated to the Holy Cross and All Saints, was erected in 1881 at a cost of about £2,500, and is an elitice of Kentish rag in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and a small western turret containing one bell: the Rev. C. J. Moncrieff Smyth is priest in charge. A Cemetery of 2 acres for Christ Church parish was formed in 1860; it has one small mortuary chapel and is under the control of a Burial Board of seven members.

"The Crosses," Great Warley, is now utilized as a holiday home for working girls of the city of London and is supported by Evelyn Heseltine esq. of the Goldings. Here is a pumping station, belonging to the South Essex Water Works, the water being conveyed hither from Grays, 9 miles distant, for the supply of the town of Brentwood. Hampden House is the residence of James Williams Cook esq.; Warley Place of Frederick Willmott esq. and Goldings of Evelyn Heseltine esq. Lord Headley, who is lord of the manor, and Richard Benyon esq. of Englefield Park, Reading, Berks, are the principal landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, loam, with patches of gravel. The chief crops are wheat, beans, The acreage is-arable, 1,339; pasture, barley and peas. 1,017; common (now inclosed), 159; and wood, 209; rateable value. £7,047; the population in 1881 was 1,413.

The church was restored in 1886 at a cost of about £1,000, from plans by and under the supervision of the Rev. Ernest Geldart, rector of Little Braxted, when the south aisle was rebuilt on the old foundations, and other improvements made; in the course of the work, the ends of the Perpendicular rood screen, bearing traces of colour, were discovered embedded in the nave walls. The register dates from the year 1757. The living is a rectory, gross tithe rent-charge commutation (421 5s. with four acres of land, but without house, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Nicholas Brady M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who resides at Rainham Hall. There is no manor. Robert Westley Hall Dare esq. of Newtownbarry House, co. Wexford and Sir Thomas Barrett Lennard bart. D.L., J.P. of Bellius, are the principal landowners. The soil is gravelly and sandy; subsoil, gravel. A large portion of the parish is marsh land used for pasture. The chief crops are wheat and barley, also peas and other vegetables. The area is 1,301 acres of land and 207 water; rateable value, £3,905; the population in 1881 was 196.

ment to Mark Mott esq. erected by Dorothy Mott, founder of Mott's charity, valued at £400: there are also recumbent slabaster figures of a man and his wife, dated 1462: the more is separated from the chancel by an ancient oak screen : there are 5 stained windows, including one to Lieut. Marsh, son of the Rev. William Marsh, late vicar, who was killed in the Alghan war, 1878-80, and another to Mr. Thomas White: the interior of the church and the exterior of the chancel were wholly restored in 1875-7. The register of baptisms dates from 1648; burials, 1647; marriages, 1701. The living is a marage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £335, net £251 with 2½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Master and Fellows of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and held since 1890 by the Rr. Repaid Hay Hill LL. B. and formerly fellow and totar of that college. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners hold the recornal tithes. This benefice was formerly a rectory down to 1492. The vicarrage house was left by a former man, a trust to the Master and Fellows of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, to be rented by the vicar of Wethersfield, but until occupied by the present vicar had ceased to be so used for over 100 years; the house contains an old library, left is a Congressional chapel, built in 1662 and rebuilt in 1822. In 1634, Walter Wiltshire, of Great Windsey, in Finchingfield jurish, who died in 1641, left the farm, comprising 105 acres now producing a gross rental of £60 yearly, for a Sunday afternoon and Thursday morning lecture, which are now abolished and the lectureship merged in the curacy of Wethersield. From £80 to £100 is yearly distributed in brad and coals to the general poor. Thomas Fitch left by will in 1702 several benefactions for educating and clothing poor boys of this parish, the income, amounting to 431 123 6d. is now expended for the maintenance of the Wethersheld schools. #### WHITE COLNE, see COLNE.

WICKEN BONANT (or WICKEN BONHUNT) is a small | rillice and parish, situated on the banks of a winter brook which rises in the adjoining parish of Arkesden and passing through this parish falls into the Cam, at Newport; it is 2 noise west from Newport station on the main line of the fired Eastern railway, 5 south-west from Saffron Walden and to north from Bishop's Stortford, in the Northern divi-200, of the county, Uttlesford hundred, Saffron Walden petty seemal division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Saffron Walden, archdeaconry of Col-dester and thoose of St. Albans. The church of St. Marraret originally dated from the middle of the 11th century and was in part rebuilt at the latter end of the 12th century : a portion of the nave and chancel arch was again rebuilt at the end of the 13th century; but excepting the addition of a porch in the 16th century, nothing appears to have been done to the church till the early part of the 18th century, when the tower either fell or was taken down and the bells were then placed in a wooden cot over the west gable of the nave: the present structure was restored and in part rebuilt in 1858-9, he loke Hanson Sperling esq. of Kensington, and consists of the original Early English chancel restored, to which a nave, south part, and western tower with broach spire have been added in the Decorated style: the beliry stage of the tower has eight large traceried windows and contains 3 bells: the whole of the windows are stained: the chancel is stalled and whole of the windows are stained: the chance is staned and divided from the nave by a carved oak screen. The registers date from the year 1588. The living is a rectory, not yearly value £250, including residence and 45 acres of globe, in the gift of and held since 1862 by the Rev. William Blowers Bliss M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The rectory house, formerly on the north side of the churchyard, was burned down in 1590; the present house and church, erected about 1856 on another site by the late rector at a cost of £5,000, is in the Gothic style; the attached private chapel is fitted with stalls and has a stained window. The Brick House, the residence of John Pollitt esq. was built by William Bradbury esq. who died in 1622 and is a small structure, with ornamental gables and the arms of the Bradbury family over the door. The Bonhunt farm is situated about half a mile east from the church, and adjoining it is the desecrated chapel of St. Helen, which existed as far back as the roth century: it consists of a small chancel and nave of very early Norman work and is now used as a barn; it is probable that this was formerly a parish church, but the parish becoming consolidated with Wicken it fell to decay: two stone coffins and some human bones were dug up in a close adjoining. Hall, which adjoins the church and is now a farmhouse, was formerly surrounded by a moat. The principal landowners are Joseph Charles Thomas Smith M.A. lord of the manor.

and Harold Edmund Byng esq. J.P. The soil is heavy on the hills and mixed; subsoil, chalk, with some gravel in the lowlands; in the valley the crops are principally on the fourcourse shift. The area is 822 acres; rateable value, £954; the population in 1881 was 162.

WITHAM with CHIPPING HILL is a pleasant and ancient town on the river Guith or Podsbrook, near its confluence with the Blackwater; part of it lies on the ancient Reman and modern high road from London to Colchester, and the other part, known as "Chipping Hill," lies around the church, half a mile from where the main part of the town is now situated: the Great Eastern railway has a station here, a branch line between Maldon and Braintree Juning the main line at this point; it is 6 miles north from Maiden, 14 miles south-west from Colchester, 7 south-west from Cozgeshall, 8 north-east from Chelmsford, 8 south-east from Braintree and 38 from London and is in the Eastern division of the county and the chief place of the hundred and head of a petry sessional division, in Braintree union and county court district, rural deanery of Witham, archdea-court of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. The town conry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. has a board of health of 9 members, established in 1852, and is lighted with gas by a company. Water is obtained from an artesian well and a spring near Blunts Hall, and the supply is under the control of the local board. The church of St. Nicolas is an ancient but spacious and lofty edifice, thefly in the Early Decorated style, with walls partially bould Roman brick, and consists of chancel with aisles, have of four bays, aisles, a fine south porch and an embatthel western tower containing a clock and 6 bells: there are several stained windows: the Transition south door, dating from the 12th century, is the most ancient feature in the present structure, but the body of the church appears to have been erected about 1327: the church was repaired in the year 1877 under the direction of Mr. Joseph Clarke, architect, when the upper part of the tower was rebuilt, two bells re-cast, the galleries removed and the church partially reseated; the cost of the whole was £2,000: the church contains a fine tomb with effigies and a Latin inscription to John Southcote, a justice of the Queen's Bench, 1563 to 1584, ob. April 18th, 1585, and to his wife: there are others to Sir Robert Nevill, ob. 1593; Robert Barwell gent. ob. 27 June, 1697, et. 44; also several tombs of the East family, baronets and ancestors of the present Sir Gilbert Augustin Clayton-East bart. of Hall Place, Hurley, Berks, from William East esq. buried here in 1726, to Sir Gilbert East bart. who died 11 December, 1828 and was also buried here; and to four vicars of the church, viz .: - Robert Tinley D.D. prebendary and archdeacon of Ely, ob. 25 November, 1616; the Ven. Jonas Warley D.D. d. 9 August, 1722, at. 73; the Ven. Andrew Downes M.A. d. 19 October, 1820, at. 78; and the Rev. Joseph Jefferson M.A., F.S.A. d. 28 December, 1821, et. 61: in the floor of the chancel is a stone with a much obof the fine flow of the California is a sound of the first a fine flow of the literated inscription to Rishop Lindsell, and bishop of Colchester and one time vicar of this parish. The register of The register of baptisms and marriages dates from 1669 and of burials from 1678. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £525, with a house and 127 acres of globe, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1886 by the Rev. David Ingles M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. All Saints', a chapel of ease to the parish church, is a building of cut flint with white brick quoins, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and transepts, and was erected in 1842, at a cost of £5,000, defrayed by subscription: the land was given by the late W. H. Pattisson esq.: there are 700 sittings, of which 400 are free. The Catholic church, dedicated to the Holy Family, is a modern building of this Kontiel required the Canada and the state of the Catholic church. building of blue Kentish rag with dressings of Caen stone, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, sacristy, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: the church will hold 200 people and has a school adjoining. The Congregational chapel was rebuilt in 1840, at a cost of  $f_{1,700}$ ; the congregation dates from 1715. There are also Baptist and Wesleyan Methodist chapels, and the Peculiar People have a meeting house. There are three blocks of almshouses in the parish, one of which is connected with the Nonconformists, the others being in charge of trustees: the total income of these charities amounts to about £ 180 yearly, and the most ancient endowment is that of Thomas Green esq. which dates from 1401 and supports 18 persons: there are other charities, amounting to £57 yearly, which sum is distributed in bread and fuel. The market, originally held on Sunday, afterwards on Wednesday, and then on Tuesdays, on Chipping hill, where the parish church is situated, is now discontinued. Fairs are held on the Friday and Saturday in Whitsun week and on June 4th at Chipping Hill. Here are the branch banks of Messrs. Mills, Bawtree and Co. and Sparrow and Co. and a savings bank. There is a literary institution and a library of about 2,000 volumes. There is also a police station. On Chipping hill are the remains of a circular camp, with a double vallum, probably of British origin. There are four manors, viz.: —Blunt's Hall, Newlands and Chipping, and manors, viz.:—Blunt's Hall, Newlands and Chipping, and Hogpen. Lord Raleigh is a landowner and lord of the manor of Blunt's Hall. Charles Henry Copley Du Cane esq. D.L. of Braxted Park, is lord of the Newlands and Chipping manors, and all property within these manors is subject to a tine of one year's value upon death or alienation; if, however, the person taking the property were born within the manor, or be already a tenant of it, no such fine is payable: this custom is peculiar and there are but few instances in which it prevails. The vicar is lord of the manor of Hogpen. The land is principally arable and level; subsoil, gravel. The area is 3,633 acres of land and 16 of water; rateable value, £13,885; the population in 1881 was 2,956, which is also the local board district.

WIVENHOE is a parish, situated on a gentle declivity of the Colne, 5 miles south-east from Colchester and 57 from London, with a station on the Tendring Hundred branch of the Great Eastern railway, from which a short line extends to Brightlingsea; it is in the North Eastern division of the county, Colchester division of Lexden hundred, Lexden and Winstree petty sessional division and dred, Lexden and winstree petty sessional division and union, Colchester county court district and in the rural deanery of Dedham, archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of St. Albans. Wivenhoe also forms, with Brightlingsea and Rowhedge, a member of the Cinque Port of Sandwich in Kent. There is a good quay and the population is largely engaged in the fishery of oysters and sprats. The is obtained from a brook, and the inhabitants can purchase four buckets for one penny, from the water carts at their doors, but some houses have pumps of their own. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a building of stone, consisting of chancel with south aisle, nave of four bays, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower with clock and 5 bells and was restored in the year 1860 at an expenditure of about £3,000: in the church are brasses in good preservation, to Sir Thomas Westeley, priest, chaplain to the Countess of Oxford, ab. 1535, with effigy, vested, and bearing a chalice and wafer; another of Flemish work to William, 2nd Viscount Beaumont and titular Baron Bardolf, with effigy in armour, and triple and super-canopy Bardott, with emgy in armour, and triple and super-campy, and a marginal inscription, ob. 1507; the third is to Elizabeth (Scroope), second wife of John de Vere, 14th Earl of Oxford, and widow of William Beaumont, ob. 1537, and exhibits her effigy with coronet and heraldic mantle, triple and super-canopy and marginal inscription, both much mutilated: in the vestry is a chest of Flemish workmanship, highly embossed and studded with nails: this church suffered considerable damage by the shock of an earthquake 22 April, 1884. The register of baptisms dates from 1566; burials and marriages, 1560. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £400, with 60 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the trustees of N. Cæsar Corsellis Lawton esq. (a minor). The Congregational chapel was erected in 1846 by Mr. Thomas Sanford and there is also a Wesleyan chapel. The Cemetery, situated about half a mile from the church, comprises 2 acres and is under the control of a burial board of 8 members. The sum of 5,5,000 was left by the late Miss Mary Ann Sanford, for building and endowing six almshouses for six widows, who have been born and resided all their lives in the parish, preference being given to the widows of seamen; they receive 6s. per week. A further endowment was made of £500 by Mrs. Kezia Hines, the sister of the above, for the yearly. A fair is held on the 4th of September yearly. Ship and yacht building is carried on here and boats for the oyster dredging trade are also built. Wyvenhoe Park, the residence of Hector John Gurdon-Rebow esq. R.A., D.L., J.P. is about a mile and a half from the village; the mansion, a modern building, received considerable damage by the shock of earthquake mentioned above; the park is undulating, well timbered, stocked with deer and contains about 180 acres. At the Domesday Survey the manor of Wivenhoe was held by Robert Gernon as part of his barony of Stansted Mountfichet; in the 15th and 16th centuries it was held by the De Vere family, Earls of Oxford, and was sold in 1657 by Aubrey, 19th earl K.G. to Nicholas Corsellis, an ancestor of the present owner (a minor), whose family was long seated at Wivenhoe Hall, a fine old mansion with pleasant grounds on the north-west side of the village, now occupied by Claude Egerton Egerton-Green esq. J.P. principal owners of the land are Hector John Gurdon-Rebow esq. B.A., D.L., J.P. and the trustees of N. C. Corsellis Lawton esq. who are lords of the manor. The soil is light; Lawton esq. who are lords of the manor. The soil is light: subsoil, gravelly. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 1,542 acres of land and 42 of water; rateable value, £6,463; the population in 1881 was 2,219. Parish Clerk, George Hewett. Post, M. O. & T. O., S. Fowler F.R.I.B.A. of Louth, Lincolnshire, will consist, when complete, of a semi-circular apsidal memorial chancel, erected by the Misses Nutter, of Wanstead, with vestries and a transeptal chapel on the north side, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, south porch, and at the west end of the north aisle a lofty tower of four stages, with angle pinnacles and octagonal broach spire, relieved by three bands of ornamental work and dormers at the base: a handsome reredos of stone representing "the Ascension" and three stained windows have been placed in the chancel: the church when finished will seat 1,000 persons. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from endowment £150, with pew rents, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Abram Smythe Palmer B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. A small Mission room, erected in 1882 in Beaconsfield road, will seat 100 persons. The Congregational church, George lane, erected in 1885-6 from designs by Mr. Thomas Arnold M.R.I.B.A. of Basinghall street E C, is a structure of Kentish rag stone, squared with Bath stone dressings in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, organ chamber, vestries and the lower stage of the tower: the cost, inclusive of site, was £6,000: an organ was erected by subscription in 1889 at a cost of £450: there are sittings for 700 persons. The Congregational church, situated at the top of Snakes lane, Woodford Green, and built in 1873, is an edifice in the Gothic style, and consists of a large and lofty apsidal nave, trothic style, and commission a magnification of the sister, transepts and a tower with spire together 145 feet high it will seat 800: there are schools attached. The Wesleyan Methodist chapel in Derby road is an edifice of brick erected in 1876. There is a Baptist school-chapel, opened in 1882, and a Mission Hall in Grove road, erected There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels in 1883. and a Congregational Mission chapel and school and a Primitive Methodist chapel at Snakes lane. The Woodford Art and Industrial Society, for the encouragement of local amateur talent, was established in 1877 by the leading ladies of Woodford; yearly exhibitions, including collections on loan, are promoted by this society, which embraces in its operations the parishes of Woodford, Chigwell, Chingford and Wanstead. The Wilfrid Lawson Temperance hotel, situated at the junction of Chingford lane with the Epping main road, is a structure of brick in the Gothic style erected in 1883 at a cost of about £7,000: the local board have their offices in its buildings, which includes a hall for meetings and entertainments. Woodford Hall, formerly meetings and entertainments. Woodford Hall, formerly the seat of the Hickman and Maitland families, is now a convalescent home for the poor of London; it was first established by Mrs. Gladstone in 1866, at Clapton, Middlesex, but in the following year was incorporated with a similar institution at Snaresbrook, founded by Mrs. Charlesworth, and was transferred to Woodford in 1869; about 80 patients suffering from any form of disease not contagious are received here free of charge. The charities are £1,000 left by Mr. Thomas Read, of Woodford Wells, the interest to be given to the poor in clothing in October, and £750 left by the late Dr. Bunce, of Salway Hill, Woodford, the interest to be given away in coals yearly to twenty-five families. The custom of Borough English prevails in these manors, of which Earl Cowley is the lord and also the principal landowner. The soil is loam and gravel; subsoil,

Clay.

WOODFORD BRIDGE, situated about 2 miles north-east on the road to Chigwell, is an ecclesiastical parish formed Dec. 19, 1854. The church of St. Paul, erected in 1854 and rebuilt in 1886, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a tower on the north side, with small spire, containing one bell: the church will seat 400 persons. The register dates from the on the north side, with sinal spire, containing one bear: the church will seat 400 persons. The register dates from the year 1854. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence, in the gift of the rector of Woodford, and held since 1855 by the Rev. Charles Blackmore Waller M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. A new asylum for the county of Middlesex is now (1890) in course of erection on part of the Claybury Hall estate here; the site, consisting of 270 acres, has an elevation of 230 feet above Ordnance datum, and includes a mansion, bailiff's house, and farm buildings; the purchase is estimated to cost £36,000: the buildings, intended to receive 1,200 male and 800 female patients, will also include a residence for the medical superintendent, and the estimated cost is £337,945. The area is 1,100 acres; population in 1881, 1,175.

WOODFORD WELLS is a consolidated chapelry, constituted October 29th, 1875. All Saints' church, opened November, 1874, at a cost of £6,000, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, north transept, aisles and south porch: there are 666 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from 1874 and that of marriages from 1876. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £400, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Nicholas Richard Fitzpatrick M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There is a Metropolitan police station here, occupied by a sub-divisional section of the J division, with a force of 5 inspectors, 1 sergeant and 26 constables, who supervise the districts of Woodford and part of Buckhurst Hill, Loughton, Woodford Bridge, Chigwell and Chig-

The area of the entire parish is 2,126 acres of land, 20 of water; rateable value, £57,049; the population in 1871 was 4,609 and in 1881 7,154, which is also the local board district. Parish Clerk, Edward Newman, Woodford.

WOODHAM FERRERS (or WOODHAM FERRIS) is a village and parish, situated on the slope of a hill, 10 miles north-west from Rochford, 3 north from Hull Bridge wharf on the Crouch, 6 south-west from Maldon and 9 south-east from Chelmsford, with a station on the Maldon and Southminster branch of Great Eastern railway, 34\frac{1}{2} miles from London, in the Mid division of the county, Chelmsford hundred, union and petty sessional division, Maldon county court district, rural deanery of Danbury, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. There is still standing part of the ancient mansion of Edwin Sandys, Archbishop of York, 1577-89. The church of St. Mary, built by Robert de Ferrers, 4th Earl of Derby, in the reign of Henry II. consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: the church underwent a thorough restoration in 1884 at a cost of £980, under the direction of Mr. Charles Pertwee, architect, of Chelmsford, when the oak roof of the nave was restored to view and the church reseated with open benches: there is a mural monument of marble on the north side of the chancel, with an inscription as follows "Cecilie, wife of Edwin Sandys, Archbishop of York, and daughter of Thomas Willford, of Cranbrook, in Kent esq. sister to the worthy souldiers Sir James Willford and Sir Thomas Willford." "She dep'rted this life constant in Christian faith, 5 Febi. 1610, at ye rising of ye sun"—the Archbishop predeceased her at Southwell, Notts, 10 July, 1558: the memorial was erected by her eldest son, Sir Samuel Sandys kt. in 1619, he being then sheriff of Worcester; on the same monument are the names of six other sons of this lady and of two married daughters: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £926, with 20 acres of glebe, in the gift CARRIER TO CHELMSFORD.—John Chapman, tues. & fri

The church of St. Andrew is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, north aisle, south porch and a western tower containing a clock and 3 bells, dated 1591 : in the chancel are a piscina and three stained windows, the east window being a memorial to the Rev. George Tufnell, east window being a memorial to the church was thoroughly restored in 1869-70, late vicar: the church was thoroughly restored in 1869-70. seated with open oak benches and an organ introduced. The register dates from the year 1557. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £343, with residence and 5 acres of glebe, in the gift of J. J. Tufnell esq. and held since 1845 by the Rev. Thomas Pilkington Tufnell M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. Charities, producing £45, derived in part from a bequest in 1564 by Thomas Love, of Little Horkesley, for the benefit of this and other parishes, are distributed yearly. James Robinson, in 1832, invested in the names of the vicar and churchwardens and the Archdeacon of Colchester, money sufficient to produce £35 yearly, for the purchase of coal to be sold to the parishioners at a reduced price and £15 for blankets and winter clothing, to be distributed at the discretion of the vicar; he also by will dated August 27th, 1832, directed his executors to invest in their names, in Government securities, the sum of £500, and to distribute the interest annually to the deserving por on St. Thomas' day. John Jolliffe Tufnell esq. D.L., J.P. of Langleys, Great Waltham, who is lord of the manor and Thomas George Hallum esq. are the principal landowners.

The soil is light loam and clay; subsoil, loam and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,256 acres; rateable value, £2,716 7s. 6d.; and the population in 1881 was 477.

Monger George, Wheat Sheaf P. H WRITTLE, formerly a market town, is a village and parish near the river Can, a feeder of the Chelmer, on the road from Chelmsford to Ongar, 24 miles west from Chelmsford station and the Chelmer navigation, in the Mid division of the county, Chelmsford hundred, petty sessional division, county court district and union, rural deanery of Chelins-ford, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans. A part of this parish was taken in March 1888 to form the new parish of Chignall. The village is lighted with gas from works belonging to the Writtle Brewery Co. The church of All Saints is a spacious building of rubble, with stone dressings, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles and consists of chancel, restored in 1885, clerestoried nave, entirely rebuilt in 1879, at a cost of about £1,000, aisles, north and south porches and a lofty embattled western tower of stone, with pinnacles, rebuilt in 1802 and containing a clock and 8 hells: the church has a Norman font: on the north side of the chancel is a marble monument consisting of two pillars supporting a cornice and inclosing various allegorical figures and subjects, with an inscription to Edward and Dorothea Pinchon, and near it another monument, also of marble, representing a father and mother with four sons and six daughters; above on a brass plate is an anonymous inscription: here is also an inscribed plate to Edward Elliott, of Newland, Essex, ob. Dec. 22, 1595, et. 60: on the south side of the chancel is a memorial 14 feet high and 7 feet wide, with bust to Sir John Comyns kt. Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer (1738-40), who died Nov. 13, 1740, erected by his nephew and heir, John Comyns, of Hylands esq. in 1759: on the chancel floor are inscribed ledgers of stone and marble to John Pinchon, of Writtle, son of Sir Edw. Pinchon, ab. July 30, 1654; John, his son, 1672, and Anne, wife of the latter, 1675; and to the Rev. John Birch LL. B. rector of Corringham and vicar of Margaretting, Essex, besides several memorials to the Comyns family and the Petres, of Fithlers, including one to Elizabeth, wife of John Petre esq. ob. Aug. 1658: on the east wall of the north aisle is a brass to Edward Hunt, of Writtle, gent. and his wife, ob. 1605-6; a small brass to Constans, "meyden doughter" of John Berners esq. ob. 1524 and a third, now imperfect, to Wm. Pinchon esq. ob. 1592, Rose (Reddin) his wife, 6 sons and 3 daughters: in the nave is the figure of a man in armour, of the Hyde family, with his wife, c. 1500, 6 sons and 2 daughters: in the chancel are the figures of two men in armour and two ladies with groups of children; the inscription, now lost, was to Thomasina, daughter of Thomas Heveningham, jun. and wife successively of Thomas Berdefield, John Bedall and Walter Thomas, gent. 1513: of another fine brass, all that now remains is a scroll with the word "Mercy;" and there linger also two shelds, c. 1580: a new organ was erected in 1887, at a cost of £325, raised by subscription. The register dates from the year 1634. The living is a chaplaincy or ricarace, tithe rent-charge £600, net yearly value £468, with 21 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of New 1

College, Oxford, and held since 1834 by the Rev. Thomas Leslie Papillon M.A. formerly fellow and tutor of that college. A list of 30 vicars, from the year 1405 to 1884, is preserved in the college archives. The vicar of Writtle, as a chaplain appointed by New College, requires no institution by the bishop of the diocese. On Writtle Green there is a Congregational chapel, rebuilt in 1885 at a cost of £500, and now seating 200 persons. There are almshouses near the churchyard (Hawkin's charity) for six widows. Here is an extensive brewery with maltings carried on by the Writtle Brewery Co. Limited, who are also owners of the gas works. Within this manor a curious custom prevailed in early times, called "Leppe and Lasse," under which every cart coming to a part called "Greenbury," except the carts of peers, paid 4d. to the lord of the manor: Greenbury is supposed to have been a market place and had therefore this privilege granted to it. John Bastwick M.D. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, born at Wittle in record afterwards a physicine of Callege. born at Writtle in 1593 and afterwards a physician at Col-chester, was a person of considerable notoricty in the 17th cen-tury: being a good Latin scholar and possessed of no mean ability, he embarked in a literary career and unfortunately for himself attacked the flagrant existing abuses of the Church; persisting in this course, he was first heavily fined and thrown into prison and afterwards, together with Prynne and Burton, condemned to the pillory and deprived of his ears: in 1640 Parliament reversed these sentences and ordered him a reparation of £5,000 out of the estates of the Archbishop of Canterbury, of which, in 1644, sufficient was received for the maintenance of himself and his wife: was received in the maner. Lord Petre D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, and Arthur Pryor esq. D.L., J.P. of Hylands, Chelmsford, are chief landowners. The soil is various, clay Chelinsford, are chief landowners. The soil is various, clay and loam; subsoil, chiefly clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, clover, beans and roots. The area is 8,325 acres of land and 27 water; rateable value, £12,917; the population. including Highwood, in 1881 was 2,412.

Highwood is a hamlet and ecclesiastical district formed Oct. 29, 1875, from the parish of Writtle, from which place it is 2½ miles south-west, 5 miles west-south-west from Chelmsford and 4 miles north from Ingatestone station on the Great Eastern railway. The church of St. Paul, erected in 1842 as a chapel of ease to Writtle, is a plain building of brick consisting of small chancel, nave, west porch and a western turret containing one bell: there are 300 sittings. The living is a vicarage, endowed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners with an annual grant of £50, also by New College, Oxford (who are the patrons), with tithes amounting to £121 gross value, with residence, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Henry Milward Burgess M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. The area of the ecclesiastical parish is 3,400 acres; and the population in 1881 was 665.

Official Classes, Titled, Annded, and

TWENTY THOUSAND NAMES,

GIVES AN ALPHABETICAL LIST OF

ALL MEMBERS OF NOBLE FAMILIES, BISHOPS, PRIVY COUNCILIORS, BARONETS, AS OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, LORDS-LIEUTENANT, GOVERNORS OF COLONIES, KNIGHTS AND COMPANIONS OF ORDERS, DEANS, AND ARCHDEACONS, JUDGES, SERJEANTS-AT-LAW, QUEEN'S COUNSEL, ETC., SUPERIOR OFFICERS OF THE ARMY AND NAVY, COUNTY MAGISTRATES, AND OWNERS OF THE PRINCIPAL SEATS IN ENGLAND.

PRICE, 16s.

The object of this Book is to include, in one general alphabetical list, all those who have any definite position, or title, from Hereditary rank, or order conferred on them by the Sovereign, or from any of the higher grades of the Military, Naval, Legal, Clerical, or Colonial Services of the State; also Deputy Lieutenants, Royal Academicians, Presidents and Vice-Presidents of Learned Societies, County Court Judges, and the larger landowners of the United Kingdom. It is to be observed that it is the only book which enables any one, by reference to a single list, to determine whether any person having a particular title exists, and if so, to discover his residence.

"For general use there is no more compact work than 'Kelly's Handbook to the Titled, Landed and Official Classes."—Daily Chronicle, February 7th, 1890.

"Is an invaluable work of reference, as the names of all classes having a social status are contained within its pages, whereby the necessity for referring to various works for different sections of society is avoided. The corrections have been brought down to the latest possible period, and the volume will be found equal to any of its predecessor in accuracy."—Court Journal, March 1st, 1890.

"Is one of the handlest and completest books of reference of its kind. The volume for 1890, which has just been issued, is to the full as complete, as concise, and as exhaustive in range as it has ever been. There are many names here which may be looked for in vain elsewhere; and the vast amount of information in the book is so well arranged that what is required may be found in a moment."—St. Jame! Gazette, February 25th, 1890.

"It is stated that the proof of every entry has been submitted to the person referred to, in order to ensure accuracy. As the result of frequent use, we can speak highly of its utility and trustworthiness."—The Globe, February 3rd, 1890.

"It is, of course, a book that calls for no criticism, but it may be stated that the work has been very carefully built up, and with an accuracy not always to be found in companion publications. Every writing table and reading-room ought to have a copy."—The While-hall Review, February 8th, 1890.

"Among the tables prefixed is one of the relative rank and precedence in the Army and Navy, and lists of the regiments of the Line and Militia according to their old and new designations, are also given."—The Army and Navy Gazette, March 15th, 1890.

"This work has for sixteen years supplied a much-felt want, because it is not so cumbersome as Burke's Peerage, takes in a larger number of names, and is alphabetically arranged so as to be very convenient for reference."—The Clow Yerse, February 5th, 1890.

&quot;Not the least valuable of Mesers. Kelly's Directories is the 'Handbook to the Titled, Landed and Official Classes.' This, of course, travels over much the same ground as the 'Royal Blue-Book' and other books that have been noticed, but the method of treatment is different. Almost the whole of the Handbook is an alphabetical list. This obviates the necessity of consulting a variety of books, and makes the most perfect form of reference known to us is 'Kelly's Handbook to the Titled, Landed and Official Classes,' a most convenient work, containing as it does all county magistrates and all members of the various 'Orders,' and enabling the reader to find in a moment all those persons who are commonly described as 'somebody,' "The Athenaum, February 16th, 1890.

"Yoe effort has been spared to give the latest information, and of this we have found some unexpected proofs. We are from our own knowledge, in a position to recommend the work as a manual of the greatest utility." —The Queen, February 15th, 1890.
