The Lunatic Asylum for three counties, Hunts, Beds, and Herts, is at Stotfold, in Bedfordshire.

Herts, is at Stotloid, in Bedfordshire.

A Reformatory Institution for the county was built by subscription, in 1857, at Crou h Field, near Chapmore End, Bengeo: it is a commodious unitding, capable of holding so inmates, who are instructed and trained to habits of industry, and also employed in cultivating 40 acres of surrounding land: it is supported by voluntary subscriptions and a Government grant: Ishmael Fish, superintendent

The West Herts Infirmary, at Hernel Hempstead, was established in 1826, and rebuilt in 1875-1877, from designs by Messrs. Coe and Robinson, of Furnival's inn, at a cost of 114,000: the site adjoins the old building, and slopes rapidly to the west, being sheltered by hills on the north and east: the building, opened in November, 1877, by H.R.H. the Duchess of Teck, is a structure of Cowley brick, with red bands and Ancaster stone dressings, and is in the Italian style, and forms three blocks; the centre is devoted to the administrative department and dwellings for the resident officers, operating room, and rooms for out-patients; the two wings are occupied by the in-patients, for whom there are fifty beds; the approach is through haudsome lodge gates and by a wide carriage drive; the average number of in-patients is about 388 and of out-patients 740; John Williams M.D. consulting physician; Barnard Holt F.R.C.S. Eng. and W. H. Hobson, consulting surgeons; Russell Steele M.D. F. C. Fisher F.R.C.S. Eng. R. L. Hatterbury M.D. and J. R. B. Dove M.B., B.s. hon. surgeons; William Drewett Arnison M.B., B.S. house surgeon and assistant secretary; Capt. C. A. Cooper, hon. secretary.

The Hertford General Infirmary is a stuccoed brick building, erected in 1832, in the North road, Hertford; it was enlarged and thoroughly repaired in 1878, at a cost of about £3.000; there are beds for 42 patients; the number of inpatients admitted during 1889 was 304; and of out-patients 1,923; a chapel adjoining for the use of the inmates had been erected at the sole cost of Robert Smith esq. amounting to £500: John Tasker-Evans, jun. M.D., C.M. and Ernest Richard Evans L.B.C.P. Lond. hon. medical officers; Charles Edward Hutt L.R.C.P.Lond. house surgeon and secretary;

Rev. Robert Rutland M.A. chaplain.

The Hertfordshire Seaside Convalescent Home is at Bopeep, St. Leonard's, Sussex, and is for the reception of Hertfordshire patients: in 1880 the resources of the Home were increased by the erection of buildings for 42 patients, the cost of which amounted to £5,500; the Home is wholly sustained by county subscriptions: the Rev. Frederick Burnside, of Hertingfordbury, is the secretary.

The North Herts and South Beds Infirmary is situated at Hitchin, was established in 1840, and has 23 beds: during the year 1889 there were 230 in-patients and 1,156 outpatients: Oswald Foster, James Henry Gilbertson L.R.C.P. Local Government Act, 1888, 51 & 52 Vic. c. 41.

Under the above Act, Herts, after the 1st April, 1889, | for the purposes of the Act, became an administrative county (sec. 46), governed by a County Council, consisting of chairman, aldermen and councillors (the number of councillors being determined by the Local Government Board), to be elected in manner prescribed by the Act (sec. 2).

The chairman shall, by virtue of his office, be a justice of the peace for the county, without qualification (sec. 46).

The police for the county will be under the control of a standing joint committee of the Quarter Sessions, and the the justices) shall be transacted by the County Council.

County Council, to be appointed as therein mentioned (sec. 9).

The coroners for the county will in future be elected by the County Council, and the clerk of the peace shall be ap-pointed by such joint committee, and may be removed by them (sec. 83-2).

The clerk of the peace for the county shall also be the clerk

The clerk of the peace for the county of the County Council (sec. 83-1).

The administrative business of the county (which would, if this Act had not been passed, have been transacted by the County Council.

GEOLOGY OF HERTFORDSHIRE.

In the Transactions of the Watford Natural History Society (vol. 1. p. 78) there is a very useful list, compiled by Mr. W. Whitaker, of about sixty papers, which have been written on the geology of this county. If, however, the student provides himself with the geological maps of the surface issued by the Government Survey, together with the "Memoir on the Geology of the London Basin," by Mr. Whitaker, he will be in possession of almost everything that is known, up to the present time, about the rocks of the district. The Rev. J. C. Clutterbuck has made many valuable observations bearing on the question of the water supply, and Professors Prestwich and McKenny Hughes, Messrs. John Evans, S. V. Wood, jun., Hopkinson and others, have

and Cadwell to Ashwell. At the hottom of the chalk marl we find a bed of phosphatic nodules, wrongly called coprolites; this bed is largely worked at several places between Hitchin and Cambridge.

The Lower White Chalk, or chalk without flints, rises in a rather steep slope, above the beds already described; it forms in fact, all the western slope of the well-known Royston and Luton Downs, and their continuation, the Chiltern Hills. There are comparatively few flints in the Lower Chalk, but they are not altogether absent. Fossils are fairly numerous, but not of many species, the shells Terebratula and Inoceramus being most common.

The Chalk Rock is a hard cream-coloured bed which forms the top of the Lower Chalk; it contains layers of done good work.

In describing the rocks of Hertfordshire we will begin in the north-west of the county, as we shall there find the rings when struck by the hammer. Owing to its superior rings when struck by the hammer. hardness it is found near or at the top of the line of chalk hoe and two or three miles to the north of Hitchin and Baldock, the county boundary just touches a stiff clayey bed called The Gault, and includes a small portion of a soft white and green sandstone which rests upon it, and is known as the Upper Greensand. These beds form part of the plain which runs along the western foot of the chalk hills, and as they hardly enter the county may be dismissed with a mere mention.

The Chalk. -Mr. Whitaker has sub-divided this wellknown formation as follows:--

	Feet.
Chalk with flints	300
Chalk rock
Chalk without flints	400
Totternhoe stone	6
Chalk marl	. 8o

The lowest bed or Chalk marl rests upon the Upper Greensand and forms part of the same low ground; its top bed is a sandy limestone, called the Totternhoe stone; this minute shells of a class of animals called foraminifera. can be traced from Tring by Miswell, Marsworth, Pirton Countless millions of these tiny creatures still inhabit our

THE CRETACEOUS FORMATION.—Westwards of Ivingne and two or three miles to the north of Hitchin and Apsley, south-west of Dunstable, Kensworth, at Jack's Hill
Aldock, the county boundary just touches a stiff clayey Windwill, south of Baldock, and thence north eastward to Lannock Farm.

The Upper Chalk .- This division forms the long and gentle south-east slope, reaching from the hill-tops down to Rickmansworth, Watford, Hatfield and Hertford, and thus really forming the greater part of the county. It is characterised by numerous layers of black flints which indicate the lines of bedding and show the dip to be very small, not more than three or four degrees, and to the south-east. The Upper is also much softer and whiter than the Lower Chalk, its fossils are also different; sea-urchins, as Micraster, Ananchytes, &c., and sponges abound. A small "inlier" of chalk is found at Northaw, having been exposed by the denudation of the overlying strata.

To the naked eye chalk appears a white homogeneous rock, but when it is broken up in water and examined under the microscope, the whole mass is seen to be composed of the oceans, and as they die their shells sink to the ocean-floor, the New River Company (for water), we have most interestforming, by their soft incessant rain, great thicknesses of ing evidence of the existence of rocks of great geological whitish mud which, if hardened and compressed, would form age, lying far below the surface: a rock indistinguishable from our chalk. We assign, there-ford, to the chalk a similar origin.

Chalk scenery is too well known to need description. The chalk district of Hertfordshire is, however, much more fertile and better wooded than the tracts of the same rock in the south of England, which form the North and South Downs, &c., and this is due to the covering of clay, brickearth, sand, gravel, &c., which usually conceal the chalk from view in this county, and which we shall presently describe. On the summit and western slope of the Chiltern Hills the characteristic rounded downs and hollow combes are, however, well shown, as at Ivinghoe, Dunstable, between Sundon and Pirton &c. Deep wells in the chalk yield large supplies of pure though hard water. The Colne Valley Water Works Company has sunk a large well in the Bushey Meadows, near Watford, to a depth of 235 feet. The water obtained near Watford, to a depth of 235 feet. The water obtained is softened by Dr. Clark's process, and then pumped up to a reservoir on Bushey Heath, 518 feet above the sea, from which it can be conveyed to any point between London and Watford by gravitation alone.

Chalk is burnt into lime for building and agricultural pur-Chalk is burnt into mine to unitaring sales of the poses. It was formerly more used for building than at present, and St. Albans Abbey contains much chalk, or Thateanhee stone together with many rough flints. For Totternhoe stone, together with many rough flints. For andoor use it is well fitted from its lightness, but when exposed to the weather it rapidly decays, as witness the noble western front of Dunstable Priory church.

The height of a few places on the chalk tract above the level of the sea may here be given: Dunstable toll-house, 558 feet; Great Officy Church, 524 feet; Hitchin Church, 216 feet; Stevenage, 306 feet; St. Peter's Church, St. Albans, 402 feet; St. Andrew's Church, Hertford, 137

TERTIARY PERIOD. - EOCENE FORMATION. and east of Hertfordshire are composed of beds of clay and sand, between the time of whose formation and that of the chalk there elapsed a period to be measured, perhaps, in millions of years. In these Eocene bels the fossils are en-tirely of different species to any which we find in the chalk, and some of the shells are identical with those now

The Woolwich and Reading Beds. - These are the lowest Eccene beds which occur in Hertfordshire, and they rest directly upon the chalk; they consist of alternations of bright-coloured plastic clays with sandy beds; their thickness here is about 25 feet. We can trace them from Hareheld Park to Watford, where there are good sections at Bushey Heath and Watford Heath Kilns; thence they run by Hatfield Park to Hertford, where again there are good sections in the brickyards. At the junction with the chalk there is usually a layer of green-coated flints. Fossils, with the exception of one or two bands of oysters, are of rare occurrence.

The London Clay .- This is of a brownish hue at the surface, but bine when dug at any depth. It covers over the Reading Beds, and is indeed seen occupying the upper part of the brick pits already named near Watford, Hat-field and Hertford. From these points it extends to the south and east until it passes out of the county; it rises gently from its northern boundary into hills of some elevation, forming a second escarpment parallel to that of the chalk and about 16 miles distant from it. The lowest stratum of the London clay is known as the "Basement Bed;" it contains a layer of flint pebbles.

Eccene Outliers - Detached patches of the Eccene bods above described occur at several points on the broad chalk tract, thus indicating the former extension of these bods over a much larger area to the north and west than they now occupy. These outliers are found at Mi klefield Hall, now occupy These outliers are found at Mi klefield Hall, Micklefield Green, Sarratt, Abbots Langley, Pedmon', Bennet's End, Leverstock Green, and on the St. Peter's side of St. Albans,

THE DRIFT.-With the exception of the upper part of the chalk ridge, the strata we have been describing above are hardly ever found forming the actual surface of the county. They are generally covered over by irregular beds of gravel, sand and clay of comparatively recent origin, and which mask and obscure the solid beds that lie below. These surface beds are termed drift because they are believed to have been brought from a distance, chiefly by the aid of ice, during the Glacial Period, a time when England was more than once submerged, and when icebergs and glacials came downwards from the north, laden with stones and all kinds of débris from the rocks they had grated over.

Upon most of the chalk district we get a thick layer of clay with flints. This appears to be the result of the decomposition of the chalk during long ages, the soluble partcarbonate of lime-having been carried away by rain water. Gravelly beds which occur at Hertford, Barnet, &c., are of the Middle Glacial age, and these are overlaid by the great chalky boulder clay, which is Upper Glacial; this is well seen at Bricket Wood, about half way between Watford and St. Albans, where it is twenty feet thick. Lastly, beds of gravel and brick-earth occur along the river courses, deposited by the streams in later times.

We must not omit mention of the masses of "Hertford-chire pudding stone" which are scattered over the surface. These consist of flint pebbles in a siliceous matrix and come from the Woolwich and Reading Beds. The stratum which probably yielded them may still be found between Aldenham and Shenley.

PREHISTORIC MAN. - Several instances are recorded by Mr. John Evans, in his great work, "The Ancient Stone Implements of Great Britain," of discoveries in this county of the chipped and polished flint and other stone tools and weapons, which were used by the inhabitants of this country before the discovery of the properties of metal.

In these we can distinguish two periods, an earlier or Palwolithic stone age, when the tools, &c., were merely roughly chipped nodules of flint, and a later or Neolithic period, when considerable skill in the manufacture of such objects had been obtained, as is evidenced by the more delicate and varied forms, and by the fact that most of the objects have been rubbed or polished.

Palæolithic implements have been found by Mr. Evans at Bedmont, near Abbots Langley, in the valley of the Gade; by Mr Penning, of the Geological Survey, in the neighbourhood of Bishop's Stortford; and by Mr. W. G. Smith in high-level gravels near Hertford and Ware.

Of neolithic tools, the flint axe-heads called celts have occurred at Ware, Albury (64 in. by 18 in. and polished all over), Abbots Langley (42 in. long, with the edge intentionally blunted by grinding, so that it was possibly a battleaxe), and Panshanger. Flint flakes or chips, evidently the work of man, have been found near St. Albans, Abbots Langley and Ware. At Tring Grove in 1763 a skeleton was found, with which flint arrow-heads, some polished thin stones (bracers), a ring of jet and two urns had been in-But with the advent of Man the geological record into that of History.

ABBOTS LANGLEY (or CHILTERN LANGLEY) is a parish one mile and a half east from King's Langley station, on the main line of the London and North Western railway, 4½ miles south-east from Hemel Hempstead, about 3 north from Watford and 21 from London, in the Western division of the county, Cashio hundred, Watford union, petty sessional division, county court district and rural deanery and in St. Albans archdeaconry and diocese: it derives its name from having been at an early period granted to the abbey of St. Albans in contra-distinction to the adjoining parish of King's Langley. Nicholas Breakspeare, afterwards Adrian IV, the only English Pope, is said to have been born here. The church of St. Lawrence is an ancient building of flint, in the Norman and later styles and consists of chancel with a large aisle on its south side, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled tower at the west end containing a clock and 6 bells, the first five dating from 1734 and the tenor from 1809: there can be little doubt that a Saxon church existed on this site, for at the Domesday Survey there was a resident priest here: it was enlarged about 1200 and a nave and aisles added: of the Norman building, only the arcade of the nave now remains: the chancel was only the arease of the nave now remains: the chancel was rebuilt in part by Abbot John de la Mook (1396-1401) and completed, after his death, by William de Westwyk, Camerarius of St. Albans abbey: the chancel aisle was built about the same time, but the wall dividing it from the chancel was not pierced with arches until 1840: the octagonal font dates from about 1400: at the west end of the south aisle of the nave is a marble monument to Robert Lord Chief Justice Raymond, with a full-sized figure of the judge in a reclining posture, in his judicial robes; he was born in 1673, became Chief Justice of England, 2 March, 1724, and was created Baron Raymond of Abbot's Langley, 15 Jan. 1731; he died 19 March, 1732: there are brasses, with effigies, to Rauffe Horwood, ob. 1498, and his wives Elizabeth and Joan, with three sons and three daughters; Thomas Cogdell, yeoman, ob. 1607, and his wives Jane and Alice, and to a lady, c. 1570; the male effigy and three figures of children are lost; there is also an inscribed brass to Robert Nevyll, ob. 1475, and Elyn his wife, figures lost, 1475 to 1607, and a mural monument of marble, with the ettigy of a female in the act of prayer, to Annie, wife of Francis Combe esq. of Hemel Hempstead, 1640-41: the church was thoroughly restored and reseated in 1867: there are four stained windows: there are 500 sittings, 150 being free. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a discharged vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £251, with 3 acres of glebo and residence, in the gift of E. Henry Loyd esq. and held since 1878 by the Rev. Francis Henry Hodgson M.A. Trinity College, Cambridge, and rural dean of Watford. There is a small iron church at Bedmont, erected in 1880 by William Hammond Solly esq. J.P., D.L. and seating 150 persons, and there are also Congregational, Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. The Booksellers' Provident Retreat, erected in 1846, consists of seven houses in the Tudor style, for members and their widows, who are elected after 60 years of age and receive annuities ranging from 20 to 50 guineas; secretary, George Larner, 48 Paternoster row E C. There is a Conservative Club, established in 1886.

The parish doctor's Club is available for men whose wages do not exceed 30s. per week and in 1889 there were 65 memoers availing themselves of this advantage. £36 198.
3d. from various charities left by Francis Coombe, of Hemel Hempstead, in 1641, Mrs. Susanna Freeman, Lady Charlotte Barbara Villiers, in 1810, and by others, is distributed in money and clothing to the poor of the parish. A pleasure fair is held on the 1st of May. A village horticultural show for cottage gardeners is held annually, when prizes are awarded; and about 70 garden allotments are under culti-vation at Bedmond, Railway terrace and Trolley bottom. Readings, lectures and concerts are given during the winter season. Cecil Lodge, pleasantly situated amidst beautiful scenery, is the residence of James Panton esq. House, on the high road at the entrance of the parish, is the residence of Edward Alfred Woolley esq. The manor belongs to Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and Trinity College, Oxford. The principal landowners are the Earl of Clarendon, the Earl of Essex, the Earl of Verulam, Edward Henry Loyd esq. J.P. of Langleybury, King's Langley, John Dickinson esq. J.P. of Abbots hill, Nash Mills, John Evans esq. D.L., J.P., D.C.L., LL.D., V.P. and Treis. R.S., Pres. S.A. and Henry Reynolds Solly esq. J. P. of Bedmond, St. Stephens, St. Albans. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, chalk and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 5,255 acres of land and 26 water; rateable value, £22,431; the population in 1881 was 2,989.

Bedmont (or Bedmond) and SHEPPEYS form a large hamlet I mile north; KITTERS GREEN, half a mile south, and TROLLEY BOTTOM, half a mile south-east, are other hamlets; PRIMROSE HILL adjoins King's Langley, and is in that ecclesiastical parish. Parish Clerk, Mr. John Chalk.

ALBURY is a parish, 5 miles north-west from Bishop's | Ecclesiastical Commissioners. Charities amounting to £58 Stortford and 3½ east from Braughing and Standon stations on the Buntingford branch of the Great Eastern railway, left by Thomas Leventhorpe in 1594, Gunter's and Mott's in the Northern division of the county, Edwinstree hundred, Albury petty sessional division (held at Hadham), Bishop's Stortford union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Bishop's Stortford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The river Ash flows through and diocese of St. Albans. The river Ash flows through the parish. The church of St. Mary, although much altered by modern restorations, may perhaps be attributed originally to about 1320, or perhaps somewhat earlier; it is an edifice of flint with stone dressings, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 3 bells, two with early inscriptions and the third dated 1607: there are brasses with effigies to Thomas Leventhorpe esq. ob. 1588, twice high sheriff, and Dorothy (Barlee) his wife, ob. 1574, and six children: there is an inscription of six Latin verses, and another to John Scroggs, gent. ob. 1592, and his wife: a third brass has effigies of a knight in armour and his lady and a defaced shield with crest and mantling, date cir. 1475: in the north aisle is an ancient tomb with effigies the size of life, but much mutilated, of a knight in complete armour and his lady; the end and sides of the tomb are deeply incised with quatrefoil panels, inclosing shields, and the figures have at some time been coloured; they have been conjectured to represent Sir Walter de la Lee and his wife, cir. 1396: there represent Sir Watter de la Lee and his wife, cir. 1390; there are 200 sittings, all being free. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £250, with eight acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1889 by the Rev. ALDENHAM is a village and parish situated near the ! Aldenham House, formerly called "Wigbournes," the seat of river Colne, 2 miles west from Radlett station on the Midland railway, 3 north-east from Watford station on the North Western railway, 6 south from St. Albans and 143 from London, in the Mid division of the county, Cashio and Prom London, in the Mid division of the County, Casha and Dacorum hundreds, Watford petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Watford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. Water, obtained from deep wells in the chalk, is supplied by the Colne Valley Water Co. The church of St. John the Baptist is a building of flint and stone, chiefly of the Perpendicular period and consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, north porch and a lofty embattled tower with shingled spire, and a turret at the north-east angle containing a clock and 8 bells, dating from 1683 to 1889 and a small bell dated 1647: in the chancel are triple sedilia and a piscina and there are some remains of a carved oak screen, the fragments of which were collected and refixed at the cost of H. H. Gibbs esq. : the font is a rectangular structure of Purbeck marble resting on a cylindrical stem and may be assigned to about 1250; the parish chest is extremely fine, perhaps unique, and is carved out of a solid piece of oak 9 feet 8 inches in length; it has 17 massive hinges and is secured by 8 hasps, besides locks and an iron bolt: in the vestry are two ancient helinets: there is a series of brasses from 1450 to 1883, including in the chancel brasses with effigies to a civilian, his wife and 8 children, c. 1450; a civilian with 11 children, c. 1520; Lucas Goodyere, in shroud, ob. 1547; an inscription with 4 heraldic shields to Nicholas Chowne, gent. c. 1580; another, with raised letters, placed in 1835 by Viscount Falkland to Sir Edward Caryekt. ob. 1618, and Catherine (Knevett) his wife, widow of Henry, 1st baron Paget K.B. ob. 1622; to their son, Sir Henry Carve, 1st Viscount Falkland, ob. 1633, and to Adolphus Carye, son of Lucius, 2nd Viscount Falkland, ob. 1640, all of whom were buried in this church; an inscription, placed in 1800 to Anne, daughter of Sir Philip Carve kt. of Stanwell, Middlesex, and wife of William, 6th baron Willoughby of Parham, ob. 1671; and one other, erected in 1889, to the Rev. William Pope, vicar, ob. 1724, both also buried in the church: in the north aisle is an inscription on brass, erected 1890, to Patience Thomas Adams, d. 1793; Martha, his wife, d. 1795, and their son, Charles, d. 1779, all here interred, and in the south chancel aisle are brasses with effigies to two civilians, both c. 1520; another, with 2 wives and 3 children, c. 1525; and a civilian with 3 wives and 19 children, c. 1525, only the effigy of one wife now remaining; Jane Warner, c. 1535, and a daughter; Edward Brisko, gent. of Orgarhall, ob. 1608, and Helen, his wife; and a figure of a lady, c. 1535, or perhaps earlier; in the vestry are preserved two palimpsest brasses, one of a mutilated shield and another bearing part of an inscription to John Long, alderman of London, ob. 1536; and there remains the matrix of the effigy of Ralph Stepney, ob. 1544; besides a number of modern brasses to the Mason family, 1809-74, and to the Palk, Hibbert, Gibbs, Gilbert and Fitch families 1841-83: in the chancel is a large altar tomb to John Cognill, of Bentley, d. 1714 and a double canopied tomb of the latter part of the 15th century, with recumbent effigies of two females; there is also here a marble sarcophagus, with medallion portraits in low relief, to Robert Hucks and Sarah his wife, d. 1771: the east window is a memorial to the late George Henry Gibbs and of his wife Caroline, presented by his son Henry Hucks Gibbs in 1882; there is also a memorial window to Mary Ann, widow of G. W. Thellusson, of Otterspool, 1851 and several other stained windows: the church was restored in 1840 under the direction of the late Sir Charles Barry, when the chancel was newly roofed; in 1882 the church was again restored from the designs of Sir A. W. Blomfield M.A., A.R.A., F.S.A. architect, of London, solely at the expense of Henry Hucks Gibbs esq. patron of the living: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £85, gross yearly value £580, including 14 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Henry Hucks Gibbs esq. and held since 1884 by the Rev. Kenneth Francia Gibbs 24 of Christ Church, Oxford. The Kenneth Francis Gibbs M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The almshouses, founded together with the Grammar School in amsnouses, founded together with the Grammar School in 1597 by Richard Platt, brewer and alderman of London, bave 12 inmates, each of whom receives £15 yearly, together with a coat or gown and fuel. £15 from charities, left by efficient brown in 1635, William Hutchinson in 1697 and others, is distributed in fuel, bread and blankets. The church estate, consisting of 3 cottages, a publichouse and 7 chantry attached to the abbey of St. Albans, is a cruciform

Henry Hucks Gibbs esq. J.P., F.S.A., F.R.G.S. is a spacious mansion of brick, standing in a park of about 200 acres; to the right of the house is a lofty clock tower with vane. Aldenham Abbey is the residence of Charles Van Raalte esq. Otterspool, the residence, since 1870, of S. Taprell-Holland esq. derives its name from a large pool of water, fed from a steadily flowing spring, of large volume, rising from a well about 30 feet deep, the water of which, after filling the pool, discharges itself into the river Colne, on the left bank of which stands the house, with lawns and gardens sloping to the river for over half-a-mile and grounds containing fine trees and shrubs of considerable age. There are several other gentlemen's seats in the parish. Lord Rendlesham, who is lord of the manor, Henry Hucks Gibbs esq. and Sir Walter George Frank Phillimore bart. D.C.L. Shiplake House, Henley-on-Thames, are the principal landowners. The soil here is light; subsoil, gravelly and side of Aldenham is heavy clay land. The area is 6,033 acres of land and 80 water, including Aldenham Abbay, or Wall Hall, of 38 acres, said to be extra-parochial; rateable value, £21,242; the population in 1881 was 1,833.

ROUND BUSH is half a mile east, where are four houses, erected by the late Mrs. Stuart, of Aldenham Abbey, in the year 1839, for four aged labourers; there is no weekly or other allowance. High Cross is a quarter of a mile north-east.

Letchmore Heath and THE FOUR WAYS is a village one mile south-east. Boydon's HILL adjoins. At Letchmoor Heath there is an iron mission room, which is licensed for divine service and will seat 100 persons; services are held here on sundays and wednesdays.

GREAT AMWELL is a parish and village pleasantly tomb of Isaac Reed esq. F.S.A. the Shakespearian comsituated on the declivity of a hill overlooking the Lee valley, mentator, who died at Amwell, 5th Jan. 1807: in 1866 the 23 miles north from Hoddesdon, a mile and a half eastsouth-east from Ware, 3 east-by-south from Hertford, in the Eastern division of the county, Hertford hundred and county court district, Ware petty sessional division and union. rural deanery of Ware and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans, containing within its boundaries parts of the towns of Hoddesdon and Ware. The name Amwell is supposed to be a corruption from "Emma's Well," a spring issuing from the foot of the hill, where runs the New River, which takes its rise at Chadwell spring, about two miles west, in Little Answell, uniting with a tributary stream a little below this spring. The church of St. John the Baptist, standing on the side of the hill, is an ancient building of flint and brick in mixed styles, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, and an in mixed styles, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, and an embattled western tower with low spire containing 4 bells:

Wormley, in 1617; Sylvins Elwes, in 1638; Elizabeth Brainger, Messrs. Plomer & Hill, are distributed at the discretion of the nave and two hagioscopes: there are three stained windows, one of which was contributed by the children of the parish at Easter, in 1857, and another at John Scott, of Amwell, who was born in Bermondsey, 9th children of the parish at Easter, in 1857, and another at John Scott, of Amwell, who was born in Bermondsey, 9th January, 1730, and resided in a house on the Hertford road, near the railway station at Ware, where the singular grotto constructed by him still remains; he died 12th December, 1783. Just below the church is a bridge over the New c. 1400 and over the vestry door another small brass with a shield of arms and an inscription to Anthony Manukes, a former vicar, ob. 1684; under the tower, within the entrance to the church, is the brass figure of a man, with matrices of the effigies of his two wives and some figures of children; there are memorial inscriptions to Sir Jeffrey children; there are memorial inscriptions to Sir Jeffrey Elwes kt. of Hoddesdon, d. 1776; and his wife, Hannah, d. 1752; and to the Rev. Jeffrey Elwes, his son and vicar of Amwell, d. 1781 and his wife Mary: on the north side of the nave is a monument to William Empson M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge and professor of law at Haileybury College, d. 1852: in the churchyard is a mausoleum of brick, helpoging in the family of Mulna whence is an incontinuous mentator, who died at Amwell, 5th Jan. 1807: in 1866 the church was restored and reseated at a cost of £1,200: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558, but is imperfect between 1586 and 1590; it contains an interesting record of the burial of William Warner, the contemporary and friend of Shakespeare, who did 9th March, Incorporated with the parish register are some important fragments of a register belonging to Hoddesdon The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £240, chapel. The hving is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge 220, yearly value $\int_{300}$, including 22 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the wife of the present vicar, and held since 1864 by the Rev. Richard Parrott M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, and surrogate. Charities amounting to $\int_{37}$ yearly, arising from bequests by William Purvey, of Wormley, in 1617; Sylvins Elwes, in 1638; Elizabeth Sprainger, Messrs. Plomer & Hill, are distributed at the discretion of the trustees. The neighbourhood is very picturesque, and has been celebrated by the Quaker poet. 1783. Just below the church is a bridge over the New River and near it are two small islands, planted with shrubs and evergreens: on the one near the bridge is a stone bearing the following sonnet, written by J. Scott :-

> "Amwell! perpetual be thy stream, Nor e'er thy springs be less, Which thousands drink who never dream, Whence flows the boon they bless. Too often thus ungrateful man Blind and unconscious lives, Enjoys kind 'Heaven's' indulgent plan, Nor thinks of 'Him' who gives."

Conege, 2. 16,22: In the chartery and adsolution of the learning to the family of Mylne, whereon is an inscription to Robert Mylne r.r.s. the constructor of Blackfriars bridge, and architect to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, where he was buried; he died 5th May, 1811; here also is the Haileybury College, are the principal landowners.

ASHWELL is a parish and large village, situated among church was restored and reseated with open seats in the the chalk hills in the valley of the Rhee, a tributary of the year 1868; and an organ erected at a cost of £400, subthe chalk hills in the valley of the Rhee, a tributary of the Cam, on the Cambridgeshire border of the county, 41 miles from London, 4½ north-east from Baldock and 7 south-west from Royston, with a station 2½ miles south-east from the village on the Hitchin and Cambridge branch of the Great Northern railway, in the Northern division of the Great Northern railway, in the Northern division, Royston union and county court district, rural deanery of Baldock and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans: that this locality was a British settlement there can be no doubt and the existence about a mile south-west of the entrenched camp called "Arbury Banks" sufficiently proves its British origin; it is supposed also to have been a Roman town or station under the name of Mayrovinium and Roman and British coins have been found here: at the time of the Norman survey it was a market town and had several annual fairs: it now consists of several small streets of scattered houses irregularly placed, with outlying farms: there are two breweries, which give employment to a considerable portion of the population, the remainder being engaged in portun of the population, the remainder being singaged in agriculture. Ashwell Fields, a large tract of common land, has been brought into cultivation. Thirty springs which rise in the village form the head of the river Cam, or Granta. On both sides of the river large beds of coprolites have been discovered. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, a building chiefly of clunch, and for the most part of Early English date, consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, north and south porches, the latter with a parvise, and a lofty western tower, surmounted by a finely-tapering spire, rising to a height of 176 feet and containing 6 bells, dated respectively 1702, 1604, 1817, 1787, 1808 and 1789; the tenor weighs 18 cwt.: on the walls of the tower are various inscriptions rudely carved with knives; of these the greater number are illegible, save here and there a word, but one remains which seems to read: "Quot gratize fonte (fontis) tot dolores domini monte (montis):" the north wall of the tower is nearly covered with rude carvings, some of very early date: there were also Latin inscriptions on nearly all the columns, especially on the north side, but these are no longer legible; one singular and interesting inscription, though but fragmentary, seems to refer to the great pesti-lence of 1349 and runs as nearly as can be read as follows, "Pestilentia mæsta cruenta miseranda ferox molesta super est plebs pessima testis. In fine venit ventus validus in hoc anno Maurus in orbe tonat, MCCCLXI:" the pulpit, of oak, is dated 1627: at the end of the south aisle, formerly the Lady Chapel, are the remains of a reredos, a piscina, and a spacious aumbry: in the north aisle is a large altar tomb, without inscription: in the south aisle is a memorial window to Mary Susanna Tinling, who died in 1857: the year 1868; and an organ erected at a cost of £400, subscribed by the parishioners: there are 460 sittings, 160 being free. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from 1686; burials from 1678. The living is a rectory, tithe rentcharge £669, net yearly value £360, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1851 by the Rev. Henry William Hodgson M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford. There is a Congregational chapel with 400 sittings, Particular Baptist (150), Wesleyan (350) and Primitive Methodist (150), chapels. The charities for distribution in money and kind amount to about £39 yearly, left at various dates from 1582 to 1701 by Lawrence Williams, John Sell, The Rev. Thomas Chapman, Thomas Plomer, Richard Morley and wife and Edward Cumberland Waller. Sells and Plomer's charities and the poor's land together consists of 27A. 37P. of land allotted under the award of the Inclosure Commissioners. 22 Jan. 1863; Polmer's other charity of 5A. IR. 10P. yields 18 158 yearly for apprenticing. The Ecclesiastical yields £8 15s. yearly for apprenticing. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are Joseph Trueman Mills esq. J.P. of Clermont, owners are Joseph Trueman Mills esq. J.P. of Clermont, Watton, Norfolk, Edward Snow Fordham esq. M.A., Ll.M., J.P. and Mr. Thomas Chapman. The soil is chalky and very favourable for the growth of barley. BARKWAY is a parish and village situated on the by the Rev. Frederick Leycester Fisher M.A. of Jesus Col-Cambridge road, 4 miles south-by-east from Royston, 42 north-north-east from Buntingford and 35 from London (Buntingford on the Great Eastern and Royston on the Great Northern are the nearest railway stations), in the Northern division of the county, Edwinstree hundred, Odsey petty sessional division, Royston union and county court district, rural deanery of Buntingford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary Mugdalen is a structure of broken flint with dressed stone quoins, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with clerestory, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with four pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bels, dated 1797; the tenor weighs 16cwts.: in the east window of the south asile are collected many fragments of old stained glass, forming part of a series representing the "Creation:" there are several tablets and monuments, one of which is a large sarcophagus of marble, with a bust by Johan Michael Rysbrack, to Admiral Sir John Jennings, knighted in 1704, after the severe but indecisive battle off Malaga between the French and English fleets, under Louis Alexander de Bourbon, Count of Toulouse, and Vice-Admiral Sir George Rooke, August 13, 1704; he died in 1745, and there are memorials to the family of Peachey, Barons Selsey, 1754-1811: the church was completely restored in 1862 and the tower rebuilt by the late Hon. Mrs. Vernon Harcourt, daughter of John, and Baron Selsey; she died July 16, 1871: an inscribed brass, with figures and an inscription to Robert Poynard, ob. 1561, and his wives Joan and Bridget and four daughters, found under the pews during the restoration, has been affixed to the north wall: the chancel, containing several monuments of the Chester and Clinton families, of the dates 1686 and 1816, was restored at the same time at the cost of the late Col. Henry Clinton, who died in 1881, the whole work being carried out under the direction of Benjamin Ferrey esq. architect: there are 500 sittings, 400 being unappropriated. The register dates from the year 1583. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of Reed annexed, tithe rent-charge £12, joint net yearly value £340, including 591 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Admiral Hon. George Henry Douglas, and held since 1881

lege, Cambridge. Here is a Congregational chapel. A fair for pedlars' ware was formerly held here on the 20th of July, but it is now abolished. Charities left in 1638 by Sir Robert Chester, Sir Edward Chester his son, in 1608 by Henry Gwynne and by others, provide about £40 yearly for distribution in bread and money. There is a reading room and public baths built by the Hon. Mrs. Vernon Harcourt. Admiral the Hon. George Henry Douglas J.P. who is lord of the manor, the trustees of the late Col. Clinton and Edward Heaton-Ellis esq. J.P. of Wyddial Hall, are the chief land-owners. The soil is part light and part heavy; subsoil, chalk and clay, with small portion sandy gravel. The area of Barkway is 3,251 acres; rateable value, £3,373; the population in 1881 was 782, exclusive of Nuthampstead.

Newsell hamlet is three-quarters of a mile north from Barkway: Newsells Park is the seat of Admiral The Hon. George Henry Douglas J.P.: Cokenach, the property of Mrs. Clinton, is now occupied by Walter Barham Green esq.

NUTHAMPSTEAD is a hamlet a mile and a half east, on the Essex border of the county. MORRELL GREEN adjoins, where there is a brickfield, the property of Col. H. R. Clinton. Baron Dimsdale M.A., M.P., D.L., J.P. of Essendon Place, and John Williamson Leader esq. M.A., J.P. of Buntingford, are the chief landowners. The area of Nuthampstead is 1,960 acres; rateable value, £1,155; the population in 1881 was 217.

BARNET (called Chipping or Market Barnet, but members. The parish is lighted with gas and supplied with popularly High Barner) is a market and union town, containing part of South Mimms and part of Hadley, situated on an eminence on the Middlesex border of the county, on what was formerly the Great North road, II wiles from London, 9 south from St. Albans, 94 south from Welwyn and 84 south from Hatfield, is the head of a county court district, in the Mid division of the county, Cashio hundred, Barnet petty sessional division and in the rural deanery of Barnet and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The Great Northern Railway Company has a terminal station at High Barnet, the line joining their branch from Finsbury Park to Edgware at Finchley: the company have also a station on their main line at New Barnet, about 11 miles east from the town. The Local Government Act, 1858, was adopted 25 Sept. 1863; the board consists of 12 water by the Barnet District Gas and Water Company, incorporated in 1866 and 1872, the works being situated at corporated in 1600 and 16/2s, the works being situated at New Barnet: the water is obtained from two artesian wells, sunk in the chalk to a depth of 500 feet. The parish church of St. John the Baptist was originally erected about 1250, and a century later the tower, wholly disconnected from the church, was built : about 1420 the main building was demolished, excepting the north wall, and a new church, extending to the tower, was erected in its place: in 1875 the church was thoroughly restored and much enlarged by the addition of a nave, chancel and tower, the original nave being made a north aisle, while the old north aisle remained beyond it; the old tower was also partly taken down and added to the former nave, a new tower being raised at the west end; this contains a clock with chimes and a peal of 8 bells, dating from 1811 to 1875: the church is now a buildistituated on Barnet common, were founded in 1823, from ing of flint and stone, in the Decorated and Perpendicular the proceeds of a bequest in 1558, by Eleanor Palmer, styles, consisting of chancel, south transept, with the mortuary chapel of Thomas Ravenscroft, nave of eight bays, two north aisles and tower: the restoration and rebuilding were carried out under the direction of Mr. W. Butterfield F.S.A. at a cost of £16,000, raised by a mortgage of the Ravenscroft land, to be repaid in 20 years: the east window is stained: there are numerous memorials in the church and churchyard to the Ravenscrofts, 1611-89, including an altar tomb with recumbent marble ettigy in the mortuary chapel, to Thomas Ravenscroft, ob. 1620; James Ravenscroft, founder of Jesus Hospital here, gave certain lands in 1679, from the proceeds of which his father's tomb should be kept in repair and the chancel and vestry of the church repaired; the ground rents of this estate produce an annual income of about £1,670: there are 930 sittings, half being free. parish register of burials and marriages dates from 1678 and of baptisms from 1705, some of the earlier pages of the later register being lost. The living was declared a rectory Dec. 11. 1866, tithe rent-charge £302, net yearly value £400, including 89 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Daniel William Barrett M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. Christ Church is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1852 from the mother parish of South Mimms, Middlesex. The church, situated in the New road, is a building of flint, with stone quoins and dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, south aisle, south porch and a turret at the west end containing one bell; it was built principally at the cost of the late Capt. John Trotter, of Dyrham Park, South Mimms, and was opened in 1845 and consecrated 1852: there are sittings for 700 persons, of which about 200 are free. The register dates from the year 1853. The living is a vicarage, endowed with the interest of £1,000, net yearly value £260, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. Mowbray Trotter M.A. rector of St. Mary de Crypt, Gloucester, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Henry Joy Browne M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge College, Cambrid bridge, and domestic chaplain to the Marquis of Sligo. The Catholic church, in Union street, is dedicated to SS. Mary the Immaculate and Gregory the Great, and will seat 200 persons. Here is a Congregational chapel with 300 sittings, persons. Here is a Congregational chapel with 300 sittings, a Baptist chapel, scating 160, and a Wesleyan chapel, scating 200. The Town Hall, in Union street, erected in 1862, is a plain brick building. There is a local newspaper, the "Barnet Press," issued on Saturday. A cattle market granted by Henry II. is held every Wednesday and fairs yearly, on the 8th, 5th and 10th of April and 4th, 5th and 6th of September and 21st November; the two former are great cattle and horse fairs, to which many thousand head great cattle and horse fairs, to which many thousand nead of beasts are sent from all parts of the country, but principally from Scotland. The principal charities are—Valentine Poole's, now (1890) of about £260 yearly, left in 1601 and applied to the reduction of the poor's rate; Henry Smith's, left in 1625, amounts to about £20 yearly and is applied to the distribution of coats and clocks to the poor. Garrett's Almshouses, in Wood street, were erected in 1731 at a cost of £400, being part of a bequest of £800, left by Mr. John Garrett, merchant tailor, of London, for the maintenance of six old single or widow women: numerous other gifts have since been made to this charity; each pensioner has a yearly sum of £17 18s. The Leathersellers' Almshouses, in Wood street, form a structure of white brick in the Gothic style and were erected in 1843 under a bequest of the late Richard Thornton esq. to the Leathersellers' Company, of which he was master: eight new houses were built in 1865 and there are now 20 occupants, each of whom receives 10s.

the proceeds of a bequest in 1558, by Eleanor Palmer, widow, of Kentish Town, London, for the support of six aged married couples, who receive 8s. per week : the annual income is £150, of which £32 is received from the funds of Jesus Hospital. Jesus Hospital, most commonly known as Ravenscroft's Almshouses, situated on the north side of Wood street, Barnet, was erected in 1679 by James Ravenscroft, of High Holborn, London, for the maintenance of six poor women; the trustees are a corporate body and have at their disposal an annual income of £1,500, of which a portion is given to Queen Elizabeth's Grammar School; and the whole of the charities, excepting the Leathersellers', receive support from the Ravenscroft funds. There are Barracks situated in the High street and capable of holding 28 officers and men: here also is the depot of the 7th battalion King's Royal Rifle Corps. The Police Station is situated in High street.

The battle of Barnet was fought, not here, but at Hadley, in Middlesex, adjoining, on Easter Sunday, 14 April, 1471; the obelisk, erected in 1740 by Sir Jeremy Sambrook, of "Gobions," in North Mimms, to mark the spot, did so incorrectly; and it has since been removed to another site, also conjectural. The spot where the Earl of Warwick fell is said to be marked by two trees standing about 20 yards north of the obelisk. On Barnet common is a chalybeate spring, mentioned and extolled in "The Perfect Diurnall," 1652 and referred to by Fuller ("Worthies") in 1662, and by Pepys in his Diary, 11th June, 1664. In 1667 Alderman John Owen, citizen and fishmonger of London, gave £1 yearly for keeping the "Physic Well" in repair. A recreayearly for keeping the "Physic Well" in repair. A recreation ground of about 1½ acres, formed out of part of Barnet common, at a cost of £550, was opened 1883. The Hyde Institute and Reading Rooms for the parishes of Monken Hadley and Chipping Barnet, situated in the High street, were established by the late Mrs. Hyde, of Hadley, who left by will for this purpose the sum of £10,000. The soil is by will for this purpose the sum of £10,000. clay, gravel and sand, but chiefly clay; subsoil clay. area is 1,488 acres; rateable value, £25,774; the population in 1871 was 3,375, and in 1881, 4,283, including 178 officers and inmates of the workhouse.

ARKLEY, formerly called Barnet Common, is a hamlet and chapelry of Barnet, I mile west, situated on high ground and commanding extensive and beautiful views which open towards Bedfordshire and Buckinghamshire on the north, while on the south may be discerned the high grounds of Hampstead and Highgate and Muswell Hill, with the Alexandra Park and Palace. The neighbourhood is studded with pleasant villas, the branch of the Great Northern railway to High Barnet giving easy access to the City and West-end. The old Roman road between London and St. Albans, traces of old Roman road between London and St. Albans, traces of which may yet be clearly distinguished, passed through the centre of the district. The Episcopal chapel erected here in 1840 by the late Enoch Durant esq. of High Canons, Shenley, is a plain building of flint, with dressings of freestone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, western porch, and a turret at the west end containing one bell: the chapel contains a marble monument to the founder, and religiously contains a marble monument to the founder. and will seat 250 persons, 30 sittings being free. The register dates from the year [ ]. The living is a perpetual curacy, in the gift of the trustees of the late R. Durant esq. and held since 1890 by the Rev. Digby Johnson Learoyd, of Trinity College, Dublin.

held since 1866 by the Rev. Charles Edward Hadow B.A. of Trinity College, Oxford, and surrogate. East Barnet Congregational church is an iron and brick edifice, with two vestries and a turret. A cemetery of 80 acres, situated on the southern boundary of the parish and near New Southgate station, was opened in 1861 at a cost of £150,000; it has one mortuary chapel, and belongs to the Great Northern London Cemetery Company. The Boys' Farm Home, Church Farm, for the training, maintenance and education of destitute boys not convicted of crime, was founded in 1860 and is mainly supported by voluntary contributions: it was certified under the Industrial Schools Act in 1863: destitute boys, between 6 and 16 years of age, are, if healthy, eligible for admission: applications addressed to the hon, superintendent, Colonel Gillum, will be laid before the comrendent, colonel Gillum, will be laid before the committee: the Home is available for 90 boys, and 411 have now (1890) been admitted since 1860: there are now 88 boys: the Home, which adjoins the parish church and occupies 47 acres, is always open to visitors. The Clock and Watchmakers Asylum (Almshouses) are for 18 married couples and 6 widows, and is chiefly supported by the Goldsmiths' Company, who grant an annual sum of £300; Thomas Taylor, secretary. Oak Hill Park, the seat of Charles Edward Baring Young esq. M.A., M.P. is situated on an eminence. William Henry Richardson esq. M.A. of Chassel Effects is lead of the research. Chessel, Bitterne, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Charles Edward Baring Young esq. M.A., M.P. Mrs. Stern, the Cemetery Company, and the British Land Company. The soil is clay; subsoil, gravel. The area is 1,698 acres; rateable value, £34,294; the population in 1871 was 2,925; and in 1881, 3,972. Parish Clerk, Walter Stutters.

BAYFORD is a parish and village situated on an eminence, 3 miles south-west from Hertford, 52 east from Hatfield and about 20 from London, in the Eastern division of the county, Hertford hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Hertford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary, built in 1870, a little to the south of the former church, at the sole cost of William Robert Baker esq. is a cruciform building, faced with Kentish rag, in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and a lofty flèche above the intersection of the transepts containing 2 bells: a chapel existed here as early as 1366, at which date it was dedicated and the right of interment within its precincts granted; in 1803 the old chapel, building; these consist of two figures, one in plate armour, retaining its original rood-loft, was demolished and a plain brick edifice erected; this was in its turn removed in 1870 and the present church built: the chancel has seven lancet windows, all stained: the three centre bays and the roof of the chancel have recently (1890) been decorated according to a design by Sidney Gambier Parry esq.: on the north side of the chancel, under an arched recess, is an altar tomb with a very finely wrought marble effigy, in excellent preservation, to Sir George Knighton, kt. ob. 12 Nov. 1612; the figure is in armour with trunk hose, ruff and heavy jackboots: on the south side is an inscription, with a shield of arms; at the back of this recess, against the wall, are two brasses, discovered in 1870 during the re-

F.z.s. and vice-president of the Linnean Society, the well-known author of the "History of British Birds" and other similar works, who died at Greet Yarnouth 1. Sept. 1856: similar works, who died at Great Yarmouth, 1 Sept. 1856: a lych gate of good design stands at the entrance of the churchyard: there are about 185 sittings. The register churchyard: there are about 185 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £185, with residence, in the gift of W. R. Baker esq. and held since 1881 by the Rev. Robert Wellington Vidal M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford. William Yarrell, above mentioned, by will dated 12th Sept. 1856, left £500 Consolidated Bank Annuities, the interest to be applied in keeping the family grave in repair and the surplus to be distributed among the poor. Mr. Edward Jones, of Birchanger, Essex, who died 18th Nov. 1850, left £459 by will dated 18th June, 1840, the interest to be equally distributed triennially (after such expenditure as may be needful for keeping his tomb in repair) amongst the married male labourers of the parish, being housekeepers and about 25 years of age, who have never received parish relief. Bayfordbury, the seat of William Robert Baker esq. D.L., J.P. lord of the manor and principal landowner, is a modern mansion, standing on an eminence in an extensive well-wooded park and originally built about in an extensive well-wooded park and originally built about 1760 by Sir William Baker: the grounds contain some of the finest cedars in the country and a famous pinetum; the collection of pictures includes all but five of the 42 original portraits of the Kit Cat club, painted in the early days by Sir Godfrey Kneller, and taken about 1710 to Barn Elms, in the then village of Barnes, Surrey, to the house of one Christopher Kat or Cat, where the club at that time met:

BENGEO is a parish and village, situated just above the river Beane and separated from the parish of Ware by the river Rib, half-a-mile north from Hertford and 2 west from Ware, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union, county court district and partly in the municipal borough of Hertford, rural deanery of Hertford, and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Leonard (now disused) is an ancient building of Early Norman date and one of the oldest in the county, consists of apsidal chancel, nave and a small wooden turret at the western end containing one bell, dated 1636; nothing now remains in this church but its monuments, amongst which are the memorials to John Byde, alderman of London and Dorothy his wife, 1665; Humphrey Hall esq. of Goldings, ob. 1695; William Hirst D.D. a former vicar, ob. 1760 and Martha his wife and others: the church was partially restored during the years 1884-5, when the chancel was re-roofed and ceiled with oak, and since which the work of restoration has been continued from time to time and is now (1890) approaching completion: in the churchyard is the tomb of Eric, 7th baron Reay, who died at Goldings, Herts, July 7th, 1847.

The church of The Holy Trinity, erected in the year 1855 by the subscriptions of the parishioners and the neighbouring gentry, is a building of Kentish rag-stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and a western tower with lofty broach spire containing a clock and 6 bells, presented by Robert Smith esq. of Goldings in 1884; an organ chamber and organ were added in 1877 as a memorial to the Rev. Charles Deedes M.A. the east window is stained; in 1884 the chancel was refitted with oak choir stalls and a new oak pulpit and clergy desks introduced and a choir vestry built, besides other lesser improvements, at the cost of Robert Smith esq. D.L., J.P. of Goldings; in 1886 a reredos by George Timworth, including a representation of "The Draught of Fishes after the Resurrection," was presented by Robert Smith, and in 1888 the flooring of the nave was relaid: there are about 500 sittings, 350 being free. The register of baptisms dates from 1553, marriages 1539, burials 1547. In the parish church is also preserved a valuable register of burials in the cemetery of the Society of Friends at Hertford, extending from 1678 to 1782. The living is a rectory, endowed with tithes worth £630 yearly, with residence and about 6 acres of glebe, in the gift of Abel Smith esq. M.P. and held since 1881 by the Rev. John Colvile Morton Mansel-Pleydell M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who likewise officiates with his curates in the district church of St. Michael and All Angels at Waterford, and the Chapel of Ease at Tonwell. There is a Calvinistic chapel in Port Vale. The Hertford County Reformatory near Chapmore End was built by subscription and certified November 10, 1857, and is capable of holding 50 boys, who are educated and employed in cultivating 40 acres of surrounding land; it is supported by a Government grant, payments from the County Council, and the labour of the inmates. The charities amount to a yearly, arising from 4 acres of land left by Jane and Ann Shaw, which sum is distributed in bread among the widows residing in the parish; there are six almshouses for six poor widows without children and not receiving parochial relief. The Lammas land belonging to the parish consisting of 20A.

3R. 28P. yields £37 yearly, which is divided among the householders. At Waterford Marsh are 26A. 3R. 30P. of land, free to all the inhabitants of the parish to graze horses and cows. The late Captain William Rayner Best H. R. I. M. S. left by will, dated Jan. 16, 1869, £200 New £3 per Cent. Consols, the dividends of which, after necessary repairs to the testator's tomb, are to be applied to the relief of the poor, at the discretion of the rector and churchwardens. BENNINGTON is a village and parish, 8 miles north | from Hertford, 68 north-east from Knebworth station and 6 south-east from Stevenage station, both on the main line of the Great Northern railway, and 8 north-north-west from Ware, in the Northern division of the county, Broadwater hundred, Stevenage petty sessional division, Hertford union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Buntingford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Peter, situated on a fine elevation commanding an extensive view of the surrounding country, appears to date from the early part of the 14th century, and consists of a long and narrow chancel with chapel on the north side, wide clerestoried nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and a fine peal of 3 bells, dated respectively 1838 (1 and 2), 1793, 1853, 1630, 1777, 1696, 1721; the tenor weighs 14 cwt.: the chancel has triple sedilia and choir stalls of carved oak, and is separated from the nave by a lofty oak screen, surmounted by a cross: in the east wall of the chapel is a piscina and in the porch the remains of a holy water stoup: in a niche over the south porch is the mutilated figure of the patron saint: on the north side of the chancel, which epens to the chapel by an arcade of three arches, is an altar tomb adorned with the arms of Benstede and Moyne and bearing effigies of a knight in armour of the Benstede family and his wife : under the easternmost arch is a similar tomb with effigies, probably representing Sir John de Benstede and Joan his wife, 1432: there are various memorials to the families of Cæsar, 1622-61: the carved oak pulpit and some other fittings were presented by relatives of the rector: on the north nave wall are brass inscriptions to William, fourth son of George

Clarke, ob. May 23, 1591; and to John Clarke of Bennington, councillor-at-law, ob. June 11, 1634; and Edith (Cole) his wife, with four children: there also remains the upper portion of the brass of a lady, c. 1570, found in 1881, and now affixed to a pier in the chancel: the church has lately been restored under the direction of Mr. John Oldrid Scott F.S.A. architect; the chancel at the cost of the rector, and the nave at an expense of £700, defrayed by the parishioners and others; the work included the removal of the western gallery, the re-opening of the tower arch and the renewal of the floor of the church: there are 219 sittings, 179 being free. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £635, with 90 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of trustees, and is held since 1881 by the Rev. William Mills M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel here, with about 200 sittings. Charities from different sources, amounting to about £20 yearly, are distributed in money, bread and clothing amongst the poor. A sum of £10 yearly, arising from a bequest in 1693 by Henry Dixon, citizen and draper, of London, is applied to the apprenticing of two poor boys of this parish. A pleasure fair is held here yearly on July 10. Lordship, the ancient manorial residence, is situated near the church, and is the seat and property of Leonard Proctor esq.; Bennington Park, situated 12 miles east, is the residence of Capt. Hugh Montgomery Campbell J.P. and Bennington Lodge of the Rev. Jas. Dunne Parker LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.Met. soc. Bennington was anciently a residence of the Kings of Mercia. A parliamentary council was held here by Berthulf, King of the Mercians, about the year 850. The principal landed

Proctor esq GREAT BERKHAMSTED (or BIRKHAMSTEAD ST. Katherine, wife of Robert Incent, ob. 1520, and to Richard PETER), supposed by some to have been the Roman station Durocobrivis, is a town and parish and the head of a union, beautifully situated on the Bulbourn, with hills rising around it, and on the Grand Junction canal and the road to Aylesbury, with a station on the main line of the London and North Western railway, erected in 1874 and standing on a high embankment overlooking the town, with which it is connected by a bridge crossing the canal. The town is 26 miles from London by road and 28 by rail, 12 south-east from Aylesbury, 112 north-west from Watford, about 5 west from Hemel Hempstead, 5 south-east from Tring and 5 north-east from Chesham. The parish is in the Western north-east from Chesham. The parish is in the Western division of the county, Dacorum hundred and petty sessional division, Chesham county court district, and in the rural deanery of Berkhamsted and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The town is lighted with gas by a company from works situated in Mill street, and supplied with water obtained by an artesian boring in the soft chalk at a depth of 210 feet. The Waterworks and Baths are in the High street, and were erected in 1865, at a cost of about £6,000, by a limited company. There is a constant supply, which is forced up to the houses on the adjacent hills on either side of the town to a height of 220 feet. The parish church of St. Peter is an edifice of stone dating from a period anteredent to the Conquest, and during the restora-tion of the north transept in 1881 a fragment of a very early arch was discovered: the existing building contains portions of various styles, and consists of chancel, with St. Katherine's chapel on the south side, clerestoried nave, aisles (the chapel of St. John the Baptist occupying about one half of the south aisle), transept, with aisle on the east side of the north transept and a central embattled tower containing a clock and 8 bells, recast in 1838; it was probably rebuilt in the form of a Greek cross early in the reign of Henry III. (1220), the those on the north side the beautiful groined roof still remains: the windows, some of which have fine tracery, are later insertions (c. 1377): St. John's chantry may have been built c. 1350: the elerestory dates from c. 1450: and the upper part of the tower from 1540: there is some beautiful 14th century glass in the lancet windows of the chancel and the arms of Cecily (Neville), wife of Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York K.O. (d. 31 May, 1495) are preserved in a window in the nave: the east window is a memorial to the poet Cowper, whose father, the Rev. John Cowper D.D. was rector of this parish: the fine west window was the gift, in the year 1866, of Thomas Whately esq. and there are memorial windows to the Dorrien family (1852 and 1880), Mrs. Curtis (1872), Mrs. Cooper (1874) and W. Longman eq. (1877): there are several brasses and tombs, especially a fine altar tomb with recumbent effigies to Richard Torrington, ob. 1356, and Margaret, his wife; the brass canopy and marginal inscription being nearly all lost; a brass of John Raven, esquire to Edward the Black Prince, ob. 1395, an altar tomb to John Sayer esq. chief cook to Charles II. ob. 1682 and another to Sir John Cornwallis kt.

ob. 1544: there is also the brass of a lady, c. 1370; a half effigy of a priest, c. 1400; a small brass to Edmund Cook, Westbroke, 1485; an inscription to Robert Incent gent.

ob. 1485, and one bearing six verses of the 16th century, the reverse of which exhibits part of the brass of Thomas Humfre, goldsmith, of London, and Joan (Bayntan), his wife, c. 1500, with seven children: the very beautiful reredos in mosaic is a memorial to the Rev. James Hutchinson, a former rector, who died in 1872: on the tower arch is a large fresco representing the "Ascension:" in the chancel is a mural tablet to Anne Cowper, mother of the poet, d. 1737: the chancel was beautifully decorated in 1884 in memory of the Rev. John Wolstenholme Cobb M.A. rector, 1871-83: there are 1,100 sittings, this church being the largest in the county, next to St. Albans. The register dates from the year 1538 and has been well kept. The dates from the year 1538 and has been well kept. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £434, with 3 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Earl Brownlow P.C. and held since 1883 by the Rev. Arthur Johnson M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. The Rectory House is on the hill to the south of the church: here in the old rectory, now pulled down, the poet Cowper was born. Nov. 26, 1731, and in the garden is the old well-house known as "Cowper's well." There is a Congregational chapel, seating 600: the Baptist chapel, in High street, a building of brick and freestone, in the Farly High street, a building of brick and freestone, in the Early English style, with a spire 90 feet high, was built at a cost of £2.000, and has sittings for upwards of 500 persons; there is also a Strict Baptist chapel, with 120 sittings; Wesleyan chapel, with 200; Primitive Methodist chapel, seating 350; and places of worship for the Society of Friends and The Brethren, the latter with 400 sittings. There is an and The Brethren, the latter with 400 sittings. almshouse for six widows, founded by John Sayer, chief cook of Charles II. in the year 1681; the income of this charity amounts to £75 yearly, each inmate receiving 4s. 44. weekly and also firing at Christmas: other charities nave having been lengthened; the tower then rose no higher are those of King James I and King Charles I; Sir Henry than the flat buttresses which may be seen on the outside Atkins kt. of Chapham, Surrey, in 1636; Thomas Baklwin, and was probably surmounted by a low spire: chantry in 1639; Edward Salter, in 1696; Elizabeth Cradock, in chapels, including that on the south, dedicated to St. 1703; Richard Balshaw, in 1782 and others: these comprise Katherine, and now used for daily service, were almost impediately erected on the east side of both transepts, and in those on the north side the houtiful residual control of the control 148 128. 7d. yearly for clergy and church lectures: £16 118. for church repairs: £28 for education; £90 for distribution in bread; and £115 for distribution in money. The Town The Town Hall, situated in High street, and erected in 1860, is a wellbuilt structure of brick with stone dressings, in the Gothic style, and contains a spacious assembly room with magistrates' rooms, a market and stores ; here is also a Mechanics' Institute, founded in 1846, with a library of about 4,000 volumes, and now (1890) about 245 members. The Police Station for this division of the county police is in High street and has a resident inspector. The Working Men's Club, situated in High street and established in 1869, is well supported and has now (1890) 170 members. In the High street is a Working Men's Conservative Club, established in 1874, with 160 members. Straw plait is made here, also tent pegs for the army, spoons, scoops, shovels, bowls, powder and shaving boxes of beech; a considerable trade is carried on in coals, malt, brushes and timber; there is also a large chemical manufactory and Lane's well-known rose and nursery gardens are situated here; watercress is grown. Bishop's Stortford is the head quarters of E Company of the 2nd (Hertfordshire) Volunteer Battalion Bedfordshire Regiment. A stock market is held every Wednesday. Berkhamsted was a residence of the Kings of Mercia and a effigy of a priest, c. 1400; a small brass to Edmund Cook, stronghold in Anglo-Saxon times; subsequent to the the effigy wearing an anelace or pendent dagger, others to Domesday Survey a castle was built here, of which the ruins still remain: in this castle Henry II. kept his court; and it was besieged by Prince Louis in 1216. King Edward III. constantly resided here, as also did his son the Black Legg Batterbury M.D. Berkhamsted; Tring district, Prince: here also lived and died the famous Cecily Neville, Duchess of York, mother of Edward IV. and Richard III. : the castle, now belonging to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Duke of Cornwall, is held by the Earl Brownlow P.C. and is frequently resorted to for picnics. Berkhamsted House or Place, on the hill, a mansion in the Elizabethan style, built out of the ruins of the castle, is now occupied by Lady Sarah Haresfoot is the residence of Mrs. Smith-Dorrien; Ashlyns Hall, of Alfred George Lucas esq. field and Hertford branch of the Great Northern railway and 17 from London, in the Eastern division of the county, Hertford hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district and in the rural deanery of Hertford and arch-deaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Andrew is a building of stone dating from the beginning of the 17th century and consists of chancel, nave, north transept. a western belfry of wood with spire, containing a clock and 3 bells, two of which are respectively dated 1621 and 1718; the third bears an invocation to the Virgin: there are inscribed memorials to John Pendred gent. ob. 1630 and Elizabeth, his wife, ob. 1665; three children of Nathaniel Matthews, a former rector, 1662-9; George Nevill, ob. 1679 and Elizabeth, his wife, ob. 1685; Cromwell Fleetwood gent. oh. 1688 and Elizabeth, his wife, oh. 1621; and to Francis Woodley Horne, major 7th Hussars and third son of Sir William Horne, of Epping House, who was killed 31 Dec. 1858, on the river Raptee in Upper India, while engaged with mutineers of the Bengal army: in 1857 the church was repaired and faced with Kentish rag stone: all the sittings are free. The register dates from 1649, but its earlier portion is very defective, now (1890) consisting only of a few loose and tattered fragments. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £250, with 38 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Salisbury E.G. and held since 1834 by the Rev. Henry Walter Seawell B.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. A church service is conducted at the reading room every Sunday evening. A Provident Society, founded in 1828 and now conducted at Hatfield, provides for its members assistance in times of illness and a certain amount in case of death; it is liberally supported by the neighbouring landowners. This place has its name from its situation on each side of a ford on the river Stort and its prefix from its having been bestowed by William the Norman upon Maurice, Bishop of London, and his successors. William built here Waytemore Castle and the remains of the keep are still to be seen on the east side of the town. The river Stort is navigable hence until it joins the river Lee at Roydon, in Essex, and considerable traffic is carried on in malt, great quantities of which are made here, and in grain and other articles, which are sent to London. The town is governed by a local board of 15 members, formed in 1866: it is lighted with western lighted with gas by a company and supplied with water from works situated at Maze Green, belonging to the local board. thoroughly restored and a north aisle added to the chancel in 1869 at a cost of nearly £5,000, under the direction of Joseph Clarke esq. of London: during the progress of restoration a Norman font was discovered under the flooring, which is now restored to its place in the church; a fragment of a stone cross was also found in a similar position: in 1884 the chancel was restored, the roof raised, a clerestory added, an organ chamber built on the south side and a stained east window added by the late Rev. Charles Almeric Belli M.A. patron, a mosaic reredos being erected at the same time by patron, a mosaic reredos being erected at the same time by subscription; in 1888 a new organ was built, at a cost of upwards of  $\mathcal{L}_{1,000}$ , raised by subscription: there are 800 sittings, 241 being free. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge  $\mathcal{L}_{344}$ , with residence, in the gift of the precentor of St. Paul's Cathedral, and held since 1876 by the Rev. George Smith Bayne M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge. Holy Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 25 Jan. 1860: the church, situated in South street and erected in 1859 at a cost of about £1,800, is a building of Kentish ragstone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transept, vestry and a turret containing one bell: there are 300 sittings, all free. The register dates from the year 1859. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £303, net yearly ratue £250, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Bishop's Stortford, and held since 1867 by the Rev. Daniel Macaulay B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There is a Congregational chapel, seating about 850: a Baptist chapel, seating 200; a Weslevan, with 200 sittings; and a Salvation Army hall, holding about 250 persons. The Cemetery, formed in 1855, is situated on a commanding eminence south of the town and comprises about 81 acres, with mortuary chapels for the Church of England and Dissenters; it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members. The charities for distribution in fuel, bread and money amount to about £45: the church estates, together with other benefactions, produce about £133 yearly for church purposes; there is also £51 5s. yearly for apprenticing and £15 for public uses from Dane's gift: the property of the charities, together with a sum of 12, belonging to the Grammar school, is vested in 22 trustees, whose number is made up on being reduced to 10: there are almshouses for 8 women: there is a coal charity of about £80, distributed annually by the overseers, and part of which is expended in repairing the almshouses. Waytemore Castle, the erection of which has been attributed to the Conqueror, stands a little off the high road on the left leading to Hockerill and is built on an artificial mound of earth about 60 or 70 feet high, of an oval form: around the top is a wall from 2 to 3 feet in width, built of rough flint and inclosing an area of about 30 yards by 12: in October, 1850, the summit of the mound was uncovered and the foundations of various chambers disclosed: the whole is now overshadowed by trees and partly sur-rounded by a moat. The Corn Exchange, built in 1828, contains assembly rooms holding 500 persons, and a chamber for the meeting of magistrates and a Conservative club. Here are four banks, viz. The London and County, and Messrs. Tuke and Co. Sparrow and Co. and Foster and Co. There are malting establishments, brickfields, a foundry, coach and sacking works, limekilns and a large brewery, built in 1780. There are several old timbered houses in the town, one bearing date 1638 and some now occupied by working people, which, from their superior and in some cases elaborate construction, must at one time have been residences of importance. Bishop's Stortford is the head quarters of the C Company, 1st (Hertfordshire) Volunteer Battalion, Bedfordshire Regiment. The Bishop's Stortford club occupies premises in Windhill. A Conserva-tive club was established in 1883 and is located in the Corn Exchange: there is also a Liberal Association. The Working Men's club, situated in South street, was established 4 Nov. 1873, and comprises reading, billiard, smoking, coffee and other rooms, and has a library of 2,500 volumes: there is also a large hall, seating 800 adults, which is licensed for dramatic performances and religious services, and smaller rooms, and for all properties to. The Risbory's Stortfood rooms used for club meetings &c. The Bishop's Stortford cricket club is under the management of a committee of 16 members. The Volunteer Fire Brigade was established in June, 1880: there are two parish engines under the care of which are kept at the Police station, South street; the keys of which are kept at the Police station, South street: each fireman's residence is connected with the police station by an electric bell. On Thursdays a weekly cattle sale is held by G. E. Sworder and Sons, in Northgate End, and is largely attended by buyers from all parts: there is also a general market for horses, cattle and provisions on the same day in the centre of the town. The land is all freehold. The printhe centre of the town. The land is all freehold. The principal landowners are the Earl of Essex, Lord Ellenborough and Robert Gosling esq. J.P. of Hassobury. The area is 3,272 acres of land and 13 water; rateable value, £30,538. The population in 1881 was 6,704, viz. St. Michael's, 2,613; Holy Trinity, 2,361; All Saints', 1,730; inclusive of 210 inmates in the union workhouse.

Parish Clerk, William Henry Harrington. Sexton (St. Michael), Henry James Tucker.

Hockerill is a suburb within the parish, but to the east of Bishop's Stortford, with which it is connected by a bridge over the Stort, and was formed into an ecclesiastical parish 10 Feb. 1852. All Saints' church, erected from designs by Mr. G. E. Pritchett, architect, of Bishop's Stortford, at a cost of about £2,000 and consecrated in January, 1852, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch, two vestries and a bell-cot at the north-east angle of the nave, containing 2 bells: it was enlarged in 1878-9 at a cost of nearly £9,000, in accordance with designs by Mr. Joseph Clarke F.S.A. of Saffron Walden, diocesan architect: the stained east window Saliron Walden, diocesan architect: the stained east window was presented in the year 1852 by the congregation of St. James', Birch, Manchester, the present vicar of All Saints' having been curate there; and there are other stained windows: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1852. The living is a vicarage, endowed with 4200 yearly by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners and a tithe rentered. charge of £113, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held oxford, rural dean and surrogate. Here are the nursery grounds of Mr. A. Watkins. The principal landowners are the Debary and Taylor families. The area of the parish is 1,088 acres; the population in 1881 was 1,730.

BOVINGDON is a village and parish on the Buckinghamshire border, 233 miles from London, 23 south-west from Boxmoor station on the London and North Western railway, 4 south-west from Hemel Hempstead and 4 north-east from Chesham, in the Western division of the county, Dacorum petty sessional division and hundred, Hemel Hempstead union, Chesham county court district and in the rural deanery, archdesconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Lawrence is a building of flint and Bath stone in the Gothic style, originally erected about 1340 and rebuilt in 1856; it consists of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 3 bells, dated respectively, 1633, 1654 and 1845: under the tower is the effigy of a knight in full armour, carved in clunch and probably dating from about 1360: the east window is a memorial to Lieut. Henry Stuart Ryder, killed at the storming of the Redan, in the Crimes, 8 Sept. 1855; there are also other windows and various memorials, from 1765 to 1874; including a memorial window to Henry, 7th Duke of Beaufort, d. 17 Nov. 1853, and his duchess, and one, erected Feb. 1857, to Dudley, 18th and 18 the second results of Earl of Harrowby D.C.L., F.S.A. d. 26 Dec. 1857, to Dudley, 185 Earl of Harrowby D.C.L., F.S.A. d. 26 Dec. 1847, and Susan, his countess, d. 26 May, 1838; there are also memorial brasses to the Montagu family, Dukes of Manchester, 1800-48; and to that of Mayne, 1621-42: there are 446 sittings, 274 being free. The register dates from the year 1674. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from the year 1074. He wish is a vicarage, yearly value from the rent-charge £270, with residence and 10 acres of glebe, in the gift of five trustees and held since 1885 by the Rev. Thomas Palmer Stevens. There is a Baptist chapel. In the neigbourhood are the remains of a Roman camp and villa and in the center of the residence of the remains of tre of the village is a well, constructed in 1881 for the convenience of the villagers and in memory of Capt. the Hon. BRAUGHING, called in Domesday "Brachinges," an ancient town and parish, which gives its name to the hundred, with a station three-quarters of a mile south from the village, on the Buntingford branch of the Great Eastern It is situated on the river Quin, near its junction railway. It is situated on the river quin, near as junction with the Rib and on the road to Newmarket, 32½ miles from London by rail, 7 north-by-east from Ware, 6½ north-west from Bishop's Stortford and 4 south-east from Buntingford, in the Northern division of the county, Buntingford petty sessional division, Bishop's Stortford union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Bishop's Stortford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary is a building of flint, in the Lancet and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, with Brograve chapel and organ chamber on the north side, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles, large south porch and an embattled western tower, with spire, containing a new clock, erected by the parishioners in Nov. and Dec. 1887, at a cost of £95, and 8 bells, dating from 1615 to 1745; the B treble bells were given in 1745 by William Freeman esq. of Hamels, who died Feb. 1749, and in 1886 the whole peal was rehung on the old frame: there is a brass with effigies to a civilian and his wife, c. 1480; another of the same kind, c. 1490; one, with effigy, to Barbara, wife of Thomas Hanchett esq. ob. 1561, and inscriptions to Richard Grene gent. ob. 1561, and another of the same name, ob. 1610: on the north wall of the chancel, removed from the Brograve chapel, is a monument to Symeon Brograve esq of Hamels, ob. 21 Jan. 1638-9, and Dorothy (Leventhorpe) his wife, ob. 4 Aug. 1645; here also is a fine monument, with recumbent figures, to his younger brothers, Charles Brograve, ob. 8 Dec. 1602, and John Brograve, barrister-at-law, ob. 4 June, 1625: over the Brograve vault is a slab of black marble inscribed to Sir Thomas Brograve, 3rd and last bart. of Hamels, and great grandson of Symeon, ob. 6 July, 1707, and Elizabeth (Maynard) his wife, daughter of William, Lord Maynard, of Easton, Essex: there is also a very large and fine monument to the Rev. Ralph Freeman D.D. of Hamels and prebendary of Sarum, and Agnes his wife, both of whom died in July, 1772, and to others of that family from 1742, and a mural monument, with bust, to Augustine, son of Sir Simeon Steward kt. of Lakenheath, Surdell, a root, in the channel is a manufacture. Suffolk, ob. 1597: in the chancel is a memorial of brass on black marble to Miss Catherine Martha Mellish, late of Hamels Park, d. Feb. 1880, and her father and mother; John Mellish esq. M.P. for Great Grimsby, d. 9 April, 1798, from injuries inflicted by highwaymen on Hounslow Heath six days previously, and Charlotte (Pinfold) his wife, d. 8 April, 1797: in the vestry is an old painting of "The Resurrection," said to have been brought from Hamels Park: the communion plate includes a silver flagon and chalice, presented in 1718 by Mrs. Freeman : the old pulpit formerly belonged to the church of St. Christopher-le-Stocks, in the City of London, on the demolition of which it was given to this church in 1784 by the Rev. Peter Thomas Burford, then vicar of Braughing: in 1838 the nave roof was raised and re-covered and other repairs effected at a cost of over £300: in 1852-3 the tower and spire were renovated, under the direction of Mr. Savill, architect, at a cost of £130, and from 1855 to 1861 the clerestory and other windows and the porch were repaired: in 1866 the south aisle was restored at an expense of nearly £200 by Mr. Perry, architect, and in 1872-3 the exterior walls of the chancel were refaced with fints, the wood work of the nave roof made good and the tower arch opened, the total sum expended being about £500: the work of restoration was continued and completed in 1888, under the direction of Mr. Edmund Buckle. architect, when the fabric was carefully repaired, new flooring laid down and warming apparatus constructed, the mutilated windows refilled with tracery and glazed, and the whose name still survives in connection with a pond, called "Beckett's pond," a little to the south of the church. Bramfield House, formerly called "Green Hall," is now chiefly a modern building, having been much enlarged and improved about 1878. Abel Smith esq. M.P., D.L., J.P. of Woodhall Park, Ware, is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is sand and clayey; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are grass, wheat and barley. The area is 1,563 acres; rateable value, £1,863; the population in 1881 was 249.

F. H. Stoddart Say, vicar, 1846-78, is placed in a chamber formed on the north side of the chancel: the tower arch is now partially filled by an oak screen, elaborately carved and ornamented with the arms and crests of the Shepherd-Cross family, whose stall seats immediately in front of it replace the western gallery which belonged to the manor of Hamels; the upper part of the screen, which incloses the ringing chamber on this side, is pierced by glazed windows; the road loft stairs remain, and in the chancel is a low-side or leper window, which has been filled with stained glass by Mrs. Shepherd-Cross; the cost of this restoration, to which H. Shepherd-Cross esq. contributed £1,000, amounted to £2,230, and the total sum spent on the church since 1838 A.2., 230, and the total sum spent on the church since 139 has been about £3,700: the churchyard was enlarged in 1881 by the addition of an acre of ground adjoining it on the north side, given for this purpose by C. P. Villiers esq. M.P. of Richmond, Surrey, and H. F. Gladwin esq. 1. p. of Broughton Castle, Banbury, Miss Mellish's representatives, and consecrated 16 Aug. in the same year. The register of baptisms datas from 1662 in partiages and buriefle 166. dates from 1563; marriages and burials, 1565. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £290, including 233 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Goulhurn, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Philip Gordon Ward B.A. of Oriel College, Oxford. Two former vicars, Thomas Percy (1511-12) and Nicholes Hangel (2011) and Nicholas Hancock (1541-5), were priors of Holy Trinity, Aldgate, London. Here is a Congregational chapel, with Aldgate, London. Here is a Congregational chapet, who is stitings, a Wesleyan chapet seating too and a Primitive Methodist chapet at Dassells for 140 persons. A residence for the Congregational minister, with a school room and reading and coffee rooms, are now (1890) in course of erection, at an estimated cost, including site, of £10.030. The charities derived from different sources amount to £18.18s. yearly and are given principally in money and clothing. Tenant's gift of £4 is for education, and there are sums of £1 ros. for the repair of the alms-rooms and £2 for public uses. This was formerly a market town, the right to hold a market having been granted by King Stephen. A yearly fair, held on Whit Monday and Tuesday, was abolished in 1889 by order of the Home Secretary, on the petition of the leading parishioners of Braughing. The Kennels, belonging to the Puckeridge Hunt, together with a hunting box, were erected in 1886, at High Street, 11 miles north of the station, by Frederick Charles Swindell esq. who is (1890) master of the hounds. The pack hunt the district three days a week. Buntingford, Stevenage, Bishop's Stortford and Ware are convenient places for hunting visitors. In 1887 an old lane on the south side of the churchyard was made into a good road at a cost of £50, from funds in the hands of the churchwardens. In a cutting for a railway, at Wickham Field, a quantity of Roman pottery, fibulæ and fine specimens of Roman and English coins were discovered. The manor was interior rescated with oak stalls and benches and otherwise held at the time of the Domesday Survey (A.D. 1036) by

BRENT PELHAM, 800 PELHAM.

BROXBOURNE is a village and parish, with a station; 16th, 1880; the others are memorials to the Rev. Thomas on the Cambridge section of the Great Eastern railway and is on the Lee navigation, I mile south from Hoddesdon, 5 miles south-east from Ware and Hertford and 16 from London by road and 19 by railway, in the Eastern division bondon by road and 19 by rantway, in the Eastern unvision of the county, Cheshunt petty sessional division, hundred and county court district of Hertford, Ware union, rural deanery of Ware and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The new works of the Hoddesdon Gas and Coke Co. Limited are situated near the railway station. The church of St. Augustine is a noble building of stone and flint, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel (with north chancel aisles, huilt in 1522 by Sir William Say), nave of six bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with octagonal turret containing a clock and 5 bells, dating from 1615 to 1670: the church contains several handsome monuments, including an alter tomb of marble, with re-cumbent effigies to Sir Henry Cock kt. who was knighted in May, 1577, at the house of Sir Nicholas Bacon, lord keeper, at Gorhambury, and Ursula his wife, dated 1609; in the centre of the chancel floor is the brass effigy of a priest bolding a chalice, c. 1470, and on the south side of the chancel an alter-tomb of marble, with brass ettigies of a knight in plate armour, and a lady, both with heraldic dresses, to Sir John Say, ob. 1478, and dame Elizabeth (Cheyne) his wife, ob. 1473; and opposite, on the north side of the hancel, is the altar-tomb of Sir William Say, founder of the chapel, which originally bore the date 1529; there are other brasses of a priest in academic costume, c. 1510, on the south side of the chancel floor, inscription lost; three scrolls on the opposite side, two belonging to a priest in cope, the effigy being lost, and the third to the brass of Peter Meldwyn, priest, in academical dress, ob. 1465, the effigy of which is also gone; there are besides, three other scrolls let into the floor, east end of north aisle, and forming part of the brass of John Borrell, serjeant-at-arms to Hen. VIII. ob. 1531, and Elizabeth his wife, with thirteen children; and six English verses and a shield of arms, 1630, on the floor in the centre of the nave; various memorials remain to the families of Monson, Bosanquet, Skiffington, Rawdon and Hicks; and a curious font: there are three stained windows in the south aisle, one being the gift of Mrs. and the Misses Searle, in memory of the late Henry Searle, churchwarden, d. Jan.

Barrington Geary Moore, late vicar, d. 3 Feb. 1874, and to Ann Brymer, who died Jan. 1880: the church was repaired and an organ introduced in 1857, at a cost of  $\mathcal{L}1.800$ : in 1880 the whole of the roofs were repaired, the old plaster ceilings removed and oak boarding substituted; the chamber over the vestry has also been restored: there are about 550 sittings, about 330 being free. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1688, marriages 1741. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £306, residence, in the gift of Horace James Smith-Bosanquet esq. D.L., J.P. of Broxbourne-Bury, and held since 1879 by the Rev. John Salwey M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There are almshouses for eight widows, founded by Lady Monson in 1728 and endowed by her with certain property, the income arising from which now (1890) amounts to £237 28. 11d. yearly : each inmate receives 78. per week and other allowances: the almshouses are under the management of the Lady of Broxbourne-Bury. There are also other charities, to the amount of about £28 yearly, distributed in clothes and bread. Broxbourne-Bury, the seat of Horace James Smith-Bosanquet esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and principal landowner, is delightfully situated about 1\frac{1}{2} miles west from the high road, in the vicinity of Baas hill: the mansion is a large and picturesque structure of red brick with stone facings, in the Jacobean style, and stands in a well-wooded park of 330 acres. On the banks of the river are the extensive and beautiful Broxbourne gardens, which afford every facility for boating and fishing to those seeking summer entertainment and recreation. Messrs. Paul and Son, of the Old Cheshunt nurseries, and Messrs. William Paul and Son, of the Waltham Cross nurseries, have extensive grounds here. Near the station are the decorative terra cotta works of Messrs. James Pulham and Son, established in 1832. The soil is a light, sandy loam; subsoil, loam, clay and gravel. The crops are all the usual cereals and roots. The area of the parish is 4.535 acres, of which 1,932 are in the Broxbourne division; rateable value, £6,815; the population in 1881 was 785

Price James, Broxbourn street Prior Cornelius, Tudor cottage Pulham James BUCKLAND is a village and parish on the London and Royston road and on the summit of the chalk range, the waters on the south running into the Lee and the Thames. while those on the north empty themselves with the Cam into the Lynn deeps. The parish is 34 miles from London, 4 south from Royston and 3 north from Buntingford station, in the Northern division of the county, Edwinstree hundred, Buntingford union and petty sessional division, county court district of Royston and in the rural deanery of Buntingford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The houses on the east side of the London road are in the parish of Buckland, the greater part of the opposite side are in Therfield, for civil purposes, though by an Order in Council, 16th July, 1857, this portion of Therfield parish has been added to the rectory of Buckland for ecclesiastical purposes. The church of St. Andrew, built by Nicholas de Bokeland, in 1348, is an edifice of flint with stone dressings, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, hung in 1889 by public subscription, at a total cost of £220: at the east end of the south aisle was the Lady chapel, the piscina of which still remains: the font, a rude mass of Barnack rag stone, if genuine, is of a period anterior to the Conquest: in the south wall of the chancel and about two feet from the floor is a curious window, which appears to have been connected with a confessional, as before the necessary repairs were made on the splayed jambs in the thickness of the wall made on the splayed paints in the variaties of the wait there were figures of the Virgin in carmine coloured out-line: there are brasses to William Langley, rector of this church, ob. 1478, with effigy in cope; to Alice, wife of John Boteler, alderman of London, ob. 1451; and to John Gyll, ob. 1499 and others of this family, from Wraysbury, Bucks,

J.P. gave £100: the school will hold 85 boys; average attendance, 66; & is also used for public purposes; there is a master's residence attached; Robert Driver, master Girls' (situated at Bass hill), enlarged in 1867 as a memorial to the late George Jacob Bosanquet esq. by his widow: the school will hold 70 children; average attendance, 35; & are supported by Mrs. Smith-Bosanquet; Miss Elizabeth Susan Dickerson, mistress division, situated on the Great North road, 31 miles from London by road and 35 by railway, 10 north from Ware and 7 south from Royston, in the parishes of Aspenden, Layston, Throcking and Wyddial, which are in the Northern division of the county, Edwinstree hundred, Royston county court district and in the rural deanery of Buntingford and arch-deaconry and diocese of St. Albans; it is lighted with gas by a company from works erected at the south end of the town in 1861, and the water supply is obtained from neighbouring wells. The terminal station of the Ware and Buntingford branch of the Great Eastern railway, a single line of about 13 miles, is about half a mile south. Buntingford was constituted a special drainage district in 1872 and sewage works for the proper drainage of the town have been carried out. The river Rib flows through the town. The chapel of St. Peter, a chapel of ease to the parish of Layston, was erected in 1614-26 by Dr. Alexander Strange, then vicar, and has been endowed by various donors: it is a plain Cathle rear and has been endowed by various donors: it is a plain cruciform structure of brick, chiefly in a modified Gothic style of the 17th century and consists of apsidal chancel, pare and transepte: against the west wall of the north transept is a portrait of Dr. Seth Ward, Bishop of Exeter, 1661-7, of Salisbury, 1667-89, and Chancellor of the Order of the Garter in 1671; he was born at Buntingford in 1617. and died at Knightsbridge 6 January, 1689: there is also a curious engraved brass tablet, representing the interior of the chapel during Divine service in 1620, and an oval brass to the Rev. Samuel Collins M. A. formerly vicar of this parish and Mary his wife, 1762-67: there are 250 sittings, 150 being free. Here are Congregational and Particular Baptist chapels; the former will hold 330 persons. The almshouses were founded in 1684 by Seth Ward D.D. Bishop of Salisbury 1667-89, who was born here in 1617, and endowed with estates in the counties of Leicester and Lincoln, now (1890) of the annual value of £91; there are 8 mates, each of whom receives 48. per week. Other charities, left by various benefactors and chiefly by Mr. Henry Skynner, Sir T. Watts, Mrs. Sandbach, Mr. W. Biggs and Mr. W. Crouch, amount to about £125 annually and are distributed in bread, coals and money to the poor of Layston parish and town of Buntingford. The Rev. M. Strange left pansa and town of Buntingford. The Rev. M. Strange left acres of land, producing  $\mathcal{L}$  to yearly, for a sermon and for the repairs of the chapel; Bishop Ward left  $\mathcal{L}$  12 yearly for bind-ing apprentices; the Rev. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £735, with 35 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Mrs. Gregory, of Lee Park, Kent, and held since 1835 by the Rev. Tewkesbury Henry Kynaston, of Exeter College, Oxford. St. Peter's, Bushey Heath, had a district assigned 9th July, 1889: the church, formerly a chapel of ease, was erected in 1838 and is of brick in the Early English style. consisting of chancel, nave and transept and has one bell; it was restored in 1832, when east and west porches were added: there are 400 sittings. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge  $\mathcal{L}_{125}$ , gross yearly value  $\mathcal{L}_{200}$ , including pew rents, in the gift of Mrs. Gregory, of Lee Park, Kent, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Spencer Richard Arthur Buller M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. Here is a Catholic chapel, dedicated to the Sacred Heart and St. John the Evangelist: there are also Congregational, Primitive Methodist and Baptist chapels. The Colne Valley Water Works, situated here, were established in 1876; the pumping station is in the Bushey meadows, near Watford, and the water is drawn from the chalk at a depth of 235 feet and softened by Dr. Clarke's process; the reservoir is situate on Bushey Heath, at an elevation of 518 feet, so that water can be supplied to the highest land between London and Watford by mere gravitation. Bushey House is the residence of George Lake esq. J.P. Prof. Herkomer R.A. who resides here, has established a School of Art, where drawing, painting, sculpture, engraving and carving are taught under his direction, and dramatic performances are held in a small theatre, erected in 1888. From Bushey Heath a magnificent prospect is afforded over the Valley of the Thames, including Westminster Abbey, Hampton Court and Windsor. Bushey Hall, a mansion of red brick, with a tower, visible from the railway, and originally built at a cost of £150,000, was converted in 1882 into a hydro-therapeutic establishment, and was formally opened for this purpose by Alderman Sir Andrew Lusk bart.; Robert J. Banning M.D., M.R.C.S. is the resident physician.

Under a bequest, in 1631, by Barbara Burnell, widow, of Great Stammore, Middlesex, two poor widows of this parish receive a woollen gown every alternate year. A charity left in 1656 by John Gale is distributed in bread and cheese once a year. Mrs. Francis Fuller, widow, by will in 1708 bequeathed rent-charges amounting to £52 yearly, from a part of which bread is distributed every Sunday to twelve in 1883 at a cost of £1,500, from a bequest by C. J. Reveley esq. and endowed with £10,000, for 10 poor persons, each of whom receives 8s. per week, except the nurse, who has 10s.; whom receives as, per week, except the maje, who has 10s; medical attendance is also provided. Maj.-Gen. Frederick William Edward Forestier Walker C.B., C.M.G. of 32 Chester street, London's w, and the Earl of Essex are lords of the two manors of Bushey; the Earl of Essex owning the smaller manor. Richard Harrison esq. of Hansteads, Abbott's Langley, is lord of the manor of Bournehall, Bushey. The principal landowners are Loftus Otway, Henry Hucks Gibbs esq. F.S.A., J.P. of Aldenham, George Lake esq. J.P. R. P. Attenborough esq. R. P. Tebb esq. the trustees of Clayton William Feake Glyn esq. M.A. of Durringtrustees of Clayton William Feake Ulyn esq. M.A. of Diffring-ton House, Sheering, Essex (d. 1887); Rev. Humphrey Frederick H. Burchell-Herne M.A., J.P. of Bushey Grange, the Hon. Coplestone Richard G. W. Bamptylde, of 144 Piccadilly w, and the trustees of the late W. T. Eley esq. The soil is chalk, gravel and clay; subsoil, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, with much meadow land. The area is 3,208 acres of land; rateable value, £25,826; the population in 1881 was 4,788.

Parish Clerk, Jesse Dack.
Caldicor Hill is 1 mile east; Bushry Grove and BUSHEY MILL 22 miles north-west, near the Colne. Sexton, Jesse Dack.

1872 by the Rev. John Hemery Carnegie M.A. of & tion unknown) is a small and ancient building of clunch ! from the Ashwell pits, erected at the beginning of the 14th century: it is partly covered with my and consists of chancel, nave, north porch and a belfry at the west end containing one bell, dated 1718; in lowering the churchyard about the year 1842 a stone coffin containing two skulls was discovered at the west end : there is a piscina in the chancel and an inscribed slab on the floor to Peter Feuillerade, a Huguenot, and formerly rector here, ob. 1725: the font is Huguenot, and formerly rector nere, vo. 1725: the foliation octagonal and dates from the 15th century: there are 40 sittings, 20 being free. The register of baptisms dates from 1802; marriages, 1765; burials, 1805; the previous registers were accidentally destroyed by fire in 1812, when kept by a curate in his residence at Ashwell. Transcripts of the ancient registers of Bygrave and many other parishes may be seen at Messrs. Hawkins and Co. solicitors, Hitchin. A copy of those referring to Bygrave is also in the possession of Mr. John Smyth, of the Manor House, churchwarden. Smyth John, Manor house

The Marquess of Salisbury R.G., P.C. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. Near the Manor house are the remains of moats constructed in 1386 by Sir John Thornbury kt. then occupier, as a defence from bands of roving thieves and disbanded soldiers: he also obtained a licence 10 Rich. II. (1386) to crenelate "duus domos suos infa-manerium," being the only licence of this kind granted in manerium, being the only needed of this kind grants in the county during the 14th century. The soil is light leam; subsoil, clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 1,768 acres; rateable value, £2,997; the population in 1881 was 109. By the Divided Parishes Act a portion of the parish was annexed to Baldock in 1881.

CHESHUNT.

Is a large parish, extending 3½ miles on each side of the high road to Cambridge and is 4 miles south from Hoddesdon, 9 south from Hertford, 16½ from London by rail and 13 by road, in the Eastern division of the county, head of a petty sessional division, in Hertford hundred, Edmonton union, Waltham Abbey county court district, and in the rural deanery of Ware and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albane.

The parish is traversed on the eastern side by the North road through Ware, by the river Lee and the New River, and by the Great Eastern railway, which has two stations in the parish, the principal one for goods being at Waltham Cross, the other at Cheshunt. The Company opened, in 1800, a branch line from Edmonton to this place and have a station in Crossbrook street.

The Public Health Act of 1875 has been applied to the parish and is carried out by a board, consisting of 12 members; the parochial officers consist of three churchwardens and three overseers for the entire parish. The village is lighted with gas from the works at Waltham Cross, belonging to the Waltham Abbey and Cheshunt Gas Company. and a new water supply is now (1890) being laid down at a cost of about £25,000, the reservoir and pumping station being situated at the extreme north-west corner of the parish. New sewage works were completed in 1889.

This parish is subdivided into three wards, or divisions, known as Waltham Cross, Cheshunt Street and the Woodside wards; of these a portion of the Cross ward was formed into a separate ecclesiastical parish, Oct. 5, 1855

The church of St. Mary the Virgin, situated half a mile west of the high road, is an ancient edifice of stone and flint in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, and an embattled tower with an octagonal cupola, containing a clock and 6 bells, dating from 1636 to 1760: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. M. M. Preston, a former vicar, who died in 1858 : there are many monuments and some brasses in good preservation, including the following: -On the chancel floor a brass to Nicholas Dixon, rector here for 30 years (1418-48) canon of Lincoln, clerk of the Pipe, and a baron of the Exchequer from 26 Jan. 1423 till about 1443, ob. 30 Oct. 1448; effigy in cope lost, triple canopy and Latin inscription: other brasses to William Pyke, ob. 1449, and Elena his wife, with mutilated efficy on the floor at the east end of the mark; Joan Clay, ob. 1453, inscription lost; female effigy, c 1500; female effigy, c. 1520; Elizabeth (Garnett) wife of Edward Collen, citizen and freemason of London, ob. 1609. with small kneeling effigy at the east end of the north aisle; inscription to Agnes, wife of John Luthyngton esq. ob. 1468, at the east end of the nave; inscription to Conscancia (Vere), wife of John Parre, ob. 1502: in the chancel are various rural monuments to the Dacres family, including an altar tomb erected in 1543 to Robert Dacres eq. Privy Counsellor to Henry VIII. and to Elizabeth his wife: in the north aisle is a handsome marble monument with standing figure to Daniel Dodson, d. 30 Jan. 1741: there are also mural tablets to other members of this family: stained windows have been erected to General Miles, who died in 1860, Miss Phoebe Mardall and Mr. William Lund 1872, and a window in the tower has been restored as a memorial of Robert Archer, parish clerk here for 36 years, who died in 1872; there are other memorial windows to Herbert T. Crawter, d. 1876 and Emily M. Crawter, d. 1878; John Jessop, d. 1870; John Henry Sanders, d. 1876, d. 1876. and his widow: the restoration of this fine old church, built A.D. 1420, by Nicholas Dixon, then rector, was commenced by the late vicar in 1872, since which date a sum of about £4,500 has been expended in its thorough repair and the erection of a new south chancel aisle; a carved oak pulpit and lectern being at the same time presented by the Rer. W. W. Kirby M.A. vicar here 1871-8, and now rector of Barnsley, Yorks: the nave roof was reconstructed, and decorated in colour, with inscriptions, in 1873; in 1874 the restoration of the remainder of the church was proceeded with, under the direction of Mr. G. F. Bodley F.S.A archivet. tect; the whole of the walls and the roof of the nave have been restored and re-set, and the south porch rebuilt; the numbers

Goff's Oak was formed into an ecclesiastical parish, July 4, 1871, out of the Woodside ward, Cheshunt; population 1881, 795. The church of St. James, erected in 1867 at a cost of £2,240, and consecrated in July of that year, is a cruciform editice of brick and stone, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave and transcots, north porch, vestry and a low tower on the north side, with spire, containing one bell: the church was restored in 1870 at a cost of /400: a new organ was erected in 1871; the altar coverings of Uracht velvet were presented by J. Levick esq. and the communion plate by James Bentley esq. then of this perish: there are 421 sittings, 316 being free. The registhis parish: there are 421 sittings, 316 being free. ter of baptisms dates from the year 1868, and of marriages from 1871. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value, inclusive of pew rents, £130 net, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Cheshunt, and held since 1871 by the Rev. John Teague Greenway.

There is a Congregational chapel in Flamstead End seating 40 persons, and one in Crossbrook street, erected in 1857, upon the site of the old chapel, built in 1705: it has a tower with spire and will seat 450 persons. The former Congregational chapel and school in Cheshunt street has been transferred to the trustees of the Countess of Huntingdon's Connexion, and was entirely rebuilt in 1889, at a cost of about £1,600, and placed under the direction of the president of the College; it is a building of red brick with stone dressings in the Early English style and will seat 200 persons. There is a small Primitive Methodist chapel at Goffs Oak, built in 1868 and seating 100 persons.

A cemetery of 5 acres was formed in Bury Green road to which, in 1885, an addition of 1A. 2R. 20P. was made at a cost of £715; in the centre is a building, with square tower and spire, comprising two mortuary chapels; the cemetery is under the control of a burial board of 9 mem-

Cheshunt College, established in the year 1768, at Talgarth, in Brecknock, and transferred to Cheshunt in 1792 by the Countess of Huntingdon, was affiliated to the University of London about 1840, and is an institution for the education of young men for the Christian ministry, the students being at liberty on leaving the college to join what-ever religious community they prefer; it has a library, chapel with 200 cittings open to the public and good grounds; the buildings were enlarged in 1870; attached to students; the bouldings were entarged in 1870; attached to the college is the Lee scholarship and prize of £45, for students connected with the University of London; the Astbury entrance scholarship of £10; the Gill scholarship of £15 for Classics, Divinity and Moral Philosophy; the Dawson Theological scholarship and prizes, and the Dawson bursary of fic; the Rev. Henry Robert Reynolds p.p. has been president and professor of theology and exercis since 1860; there are now (session 1889-90) 36 Studente

Cheshunt Hall, in Crossbrook street, has a raised stage and retiring rooms and is used for concerts and lectures; it will hold about 300 people; Thomas Russell and Son are the proprietors.

St. Mary's Hall, in College road, an edifice of brick and stone, was built in 1868 and is used for lectures and readings. The hall will hold 400; F.G. Debenham esq. is the proprietor. There is a small hall at Goff's Oak, used for entertainents, which will hold too people. In Crossbrook street is a recreation ground of eight acres, with a pavilion, formed in 1889 and managed by a committee.

The Cottage Hospital, in Church lane, now (1890) in mile and a half north-west; Apcourse of erection from designs by Messrs. Young and Hall, west, are places in this parish.

Post & M. O. O., S. B. & Annuity & Insurance Offices, of Southampton street w c, will have two wards, with three beds and one cot in each: the cost of the building will be about £950, which has been raised by subscriptions; there is an endowment fund amounting already (April, 1800) to

There are almshouses for ten widows at Turner's Hill, founded in 1620, each inmate receiving the same allowance as those in the "Spital Houses." At Waltham Cross are four almshouses called the "Spital Houses," founded in 1625 four almshouses called the "Spital Houses," founded in 1625 for four poor widows, each of whom receives £4 per quarter, one two-quartern loaf of bread a week and 12 cwt. of coals a year; the gross income of the almshouses is £280 158. 2d.; the charities, for distribution in money and kind, amount to about £40 yearly; there is also a sum of £45 a year for apprenticing from Dewhurst's charity and £2 38. 6d. for sermons

Here are also market gardens, brickfields, large nursery grounds for the growth of rose and other trees, belonging to Messrs. Paul and Son, and in the several streams of the Lee and New River are fisheries. Extensive nurseries have been erected at Turnford by Messrs. Joseph and Thomas Rochford and at Mill lane, Cheshunt street by Edmund Roman coins have been found at Cheshunt: in front of the Roman Urn Inn, in Crossbrook street, may be seen an old urn, considered to be of Roman origin, embedded in the wall, which has given the name to the inn, having many years since been found on the spot whilst some excavations were being made. The old watch house, erected in 1789, still stands on Turner's hill.

Cheshunt Great House, the property of the Rev. Herbert Harman Mayo B.A. was once the residence of Cardinal Wolsey: a part of this building has been pulled down and the moat filled up, but a large portion still remains.

Wood Green Park is the residence of Edmund Theodore

Doxat esq. J.P. and The Lordship of Samuel Litchfield esq.

Doxat esq. J.P. and The Lordship of Samuel Litchfield esq. At Church Gate is Pengelly House, formerly the residence of Sir Thomas Pengelly kt. Chief Baron of the Exchequer in 1726, who was carried off by gaol fever, together with the greater part of his official staff at the Blandford assizes, 14 April, 1730: upon these grounds stood the residence of the Lord Protector, Richard Cromwell, "the peaceful Richard," who here passed the latter portion of his days under the surname of Clarke and died in 1712: this house was burnt down Nov. 0, 1838

surname of Clarke and died in 1712. Since the down Nov. 9, 1838.

Cheshant Park was formerly the property of Oliver Cromwell, a solicitor of Essex street, Strand, London, and a lineal descendant of the Protector; he was the author of some memoirs of the family, published in 1820, and died here May 31, 1821, aged 79: the estate afterwards passed by marriage into the hands of Mr. Russell, but he was not allowed to take the surname of Cromwell: it now belongs to the devisees of Mr. Russell and is in the occupation of Frank G. Debenham esq.

The manors are Cheshunt, which is the manor paramount and belongs to Sir George Rendlesham Prescott bart, of Isenhurst, Sussex ; Theobalds, belonging to the devisees of the late Thomas A. Russell esq.; Andrews and La Motte, to the Rev. Herbert Harman Mayo B.A.; the Rectory to Edmund Theodore Doxat esq. J.P. and Beaumont and Perriers belonging to Theodore John Fisher esq. Connected with the manors is a curious custom: an indefinite line, running through the parish from north to south, is called "the Bank line," and in cases of intestacy all copyhold property on the western side, or "above Bank" as it is termed, descends to the eldest son, whilst all on the eastern side, or "below Bank," descends to the youngest son; by far the greater portion of the parish, not only in extent but in value, is situated "below Bank."

The area of the entire parish, including the ecclesiastical parishes of Waltham Cross and Goff's Oak, is 8,379 acres of land and 100 water, viz. Cheshunt Street ward 1,697, Waltham Cross 1,898 and Woodside 4,884; rateable value, £52,436; the population in 1881 was 7,736, including Goff's Oak and Waltham Cross.

GREAT GADDESDEN is a village and parish, situated on the Gade stream, from which it derives its name, on the Buckinghamshire border of the county, and on the road from Hemel Hempstead to Leighton Buzzard and Dunstable, 26 miles from London, 3 north-west-by-north from Heinel Hempstead, 10 north-west from St. Albans and 5 north from Boxmoor station on the London and North Western railway; the parish is in the Mid division of the county, Dacorum petty sessional division and hundred, Hemel Hempstead union, St. Albans county court district, and in the rural deanery of Berkhamsted and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. John the Baptist, prettily situated in the valley of the Gade, is a building of Roman bricks and flint in the Early English style, dating from about 1280 or 1290, and consists of chancel with north chapel, restored in 1879 by Thomas Frederick Halsey esq. M.P. nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, four of which were cast in 1662 and one in 1723: there are several monuments to the Halsey family, dating from 1637 to 1854: the church was thoroughly restored and re-seated with open benches in 1863: there are 300 sittings, all being free. The registers date from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, tithe commuted at  $\chi_{244}$ , with  $4\frac{1}{2}$  acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Thomas Frederick Halsey esq. M.P. and held since 1872 by the Rev. William Thomas Tyrwhitt Drake M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here are places of worship for Baptists and Wesleyans. There is an iron chapel of ease to the parish church at Gaddesden Row, erected in 1885, and seating 200 persons. several charities, producing together about £25 and derived from various legacies left at different times by the family of Halsey and others: the total amount of invested funds now (1890) belonging to the parish is £489 9s. 10d. which Clarke Henry, baker, Potton end includes the produce of the sale of about 102 acres of land, formerly belonging to the vicarage, the interest of which is distributed in clothes, coals and blankets. Gaddesden Place, the seat of Thomas Frederick Halsey esq. M.A., M.P., J.P. is a noble edifice in the Italian style, built from designs by James Wyatt in 1774, and stands on an eminence commanding extensive views of woodland scenery. Earl Brownlow P.C. is lord of the manor; Thomas Frederick Halsey esq. M.A., M.P., J.P. is the principal landowner. The land in this parish is of a chalky and gravelly nature; subsoil, chalk, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley clay and gravel. The crief crops are wheat, one, only and turnips. The area is 4,149 acres of land and 13 water; rateable value, £5,633; the population in 1881 was 938.

LITTLE HADHAM is a parish, situated on the Essex border of the county, 3 miles north from Great Hadham station on the Buntingford branch of the Great Eastern railway and 3 west from Bishop's Stortford, in the Eastern divi-sion of the county, Edwinstree hundred, Albury petty sessional division, Bishop's Stortford union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Bishop's Stortford and archdesconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Edmund the Martyr is a building of flint with stone dressings, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north transept (built by the Capels in the 17th century), south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 5 bells, three of which are dated 1595, 1623 and 1693: a Perpendicular screen of oak divides the chancel and nave: there is a brass to Richard Waren, parson of Great Hadham, c. 1470, with effigy in cope; and another of a man in armour with his wife and 4 daughters, c. 1485; and within the communion rais lies Arthur, Lord Capell, Baron of Hadham, distinguished for his loyalty to King Charles I, and on that account beheaded in Old Palace yard March 9th, 1648-9; near him is also buried his second son, Sir Henry Capell K. B. first and only Baron Capell of Tewkesbury and Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, who died at Dublin Castle 30th May, 1696: the chancel was restored in 1885 from the designs of Sir Arthur Blomfield A.R.A., F.S.A. and contains a memorial window to the late Nicolas Parry esq.: there are sittings for 300 persons. The register of baptisms dates from 1559; marriages, 1560; burials, 1561. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £751, with five acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of London, and held since 1875 by the Rev. James Marshall Bury B.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The charities for distribution in money and kind are about £43 yearly, arising from bequests by John Hammond in 1770, Thomas Chapman in 1818, John Chapman in 1820, William Chapman in 1870, Thomas Mott In 1822, Elizabeth Scott in 1853, Frances Sloane in 1877, James Chaplyn in 1837, and Ann Scott in 1837. The Capells, Earls of Essex, take their title of Barons of Hadham from this place. Hadham Hall, the property of the Earl of Leicester R.G. and occupied by Samuel Betts esq. J.P. is large and substantial building affording a good specimen or the Late Elizabethan period; the principal entrance is flanked by two hexagonal towers, and the western front has a lofty tower on either side of the principal entrance; a corridor, with mullioned windows, runs the whole length of corridor, with mullioned windows, runs the whole length of the house, 135 feet: Queen Elizabeth visited the Hall in 1578. The Marquess of Salisbury R.O., P.C. who is lord of the manor of Hadham Parva, the Earl of Essex, lord of Little Hadham, Samuel Betts esq. J.P. Richard Hunt esq. of Stanstead Abbots, and the trustees of the late Nicolas Parry esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, London clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. Here are chalk pits, and bricks are made here. The area is 3,081 acres; rateable value, £3,732; the population in 1881 was 853.

Bury Green is a mile and a quarter south-east: Green STREET a mile south-east.

There is a Congregational chapel at HADHAM FORD, with a Sunday school adjoining.

HARPENDEN is a large village and parish, separated | sented by the late Mrs. Lawes in memory of the family of HARPENDEN is a large village and parish, separated for ecclesiastical purposes from the adjoining one of Wheathampstead in 1859, the two parishes, for civil purposes, having always been distinct; it is situated on the Bedford road, 5 miles south-by-east from Luton, 5 north from St. Albans and 24½ from London, in the Mid division of the county, Dacorum hundred, St. Albans petty sessional division, union and county court district and in the rural deanery, architectors and discounts and discounts and discounts and discounts of St. Albans. The Midland roll. archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The Midland railway has a station in the village, and a line of railway from this place to Hemel Hempstead is also worked by that company; there is also a station on the Luton branch of the Great Northern railway, about one mile distant. The village is lighted with gas from works situated at the Bowling Alley, the property of a company, formed in 1864, and is supplied with water from works situated on the Park View estate, belonging to a private company, formed in 1885. The church of St. Nicholas, rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1862 and re-opened 7th November in that year, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel with aisles of two bays, nave of four bays, aisles, transept, south porch and an ancient embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells, the first dated 1574, the second and third 1612, the fourth 1571 and the fifth is inscribed to St. Michael: the original tower was central and is believed to have been destroyed by fire; the present tower, situated at the west end, was probably erected about 1470; the east window, of stained Munich glass, was the gift of the late Misses Wilson of Harpenden; in the north transept is a memorial window pre-her husband, the late John Bennet Lawes esq. of Rothamsted, d. 1822, and there is another memorial window to Caroline, wife of F. R. Spackman esq. M.D. 1862: in the north transept is a brass with armorial achievement and kneeling figures to William Cressye esq. ob. 1558 and Grace (Johnson), his wife, 1571; in the nave are brass figures of a man and his wife, and an inscription to William Annabull, ob. 1456 and his wife Isabella, ob. 1441; there are various monuments to the family of Jenkyn of this parish, 1694-1837; and to that of Haddon, 1817-46; a mural monument to Robert Rudston, 1642, and others: the organ was reconstructed in the chancel in 1888 at a cost of £450, raised by public subscription: there are 650 sittings, 391 being free. The regis-ter of baptisms dates from 1563; marriages and burials, 1562. The living was declared a rectory 24 July, 1866, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £600, with 3½ acres of glebe, charged with payment for rebuilding the rectory house; in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1859 by the Rev. Edward Thomas Vaughan M.A. some time fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge, hon. canon of St. Albans and of Christ's College, Camoringe, non. canon of St. Albans and surrogate. There is a Congregational chapel with about 150 sittings; Primitive Methodist, seating 130 and a Wesleyan chapel, seating 450. The old Wesleyan chapel, built in 1839, was replaced in 1886 by a new chapel, with Sunday school, from plans by Mr. J. R. Brown, erected at a cost of £1474. Marshall's charity, left by will in 1719 by Thomas Marshall, of Wheathampstead, and now consisting of 4 houses and 40 screen of land produces £201 yearly. charity, left by will in 1873 by Elizabeth Kingston, spinster, consists of the interest of £1,000,23 per Cent. Consols, to be applied for the use of widows above 60 years of age and fatherless girls under 16, and also the interest of £500 for the use of widowers above 70 years of age; Hunt's gift of £6 138. 4d. left in 1592 by William Hunt, of Harpenden, by will, and Smith's charity of £8 yearly, are each distributed in money and bread to the poor of this parish. The Harpenden Institute, originally founded in 1858 as the "Harpenden Lecture Institution," was refounded in 1865 under the name of the "Harpenden Lecture Institution and Reading Club;" a suitable building was erected by H. Tylson Hodgson esq. J.P. and opened to Jan. 1887; it comprises a large room seating more than 100 persons, a reading-room well supplied with daily and weekly papers, a library of about 350 volumes and a loan library from Mudie's, and a recreation room: there is an Art Class and a Young Men's Mutual Improvement Society associated with the Institute; visitors are allowed the use of the reading-room on payment of one penny per day. There are two breweries, several gravel pits and brick yards, also a steam laundry employing many hands. Harpenden is a principal centre for hunting, the kennels of the Herts hunt being at Kinsbourne Green; E.R. Sworder esq. of Luton, is master of the hounds. Races are held on the Luton, is master of the nounds. Races are new on the Common on the Friday before Epsom races, the course being about 2 miles in length and of good width. The "Lawes' Testimonial Laboratory," for scientific investigations in connection with agriculture, situated in the village of Harpenden, about half-a-mile south-east of Rothamsted, was erected in 1855 by public contributions, from the designs of Mr. I. C. Gilbert, architect, of Nottingham, and presented to Sir John Bennet Lawes bart for his past valuable services to agriculture as well as to assist him in the further prosecution of his experiments; there is now in the Laboratory a collection of more than 40,000 bottles of samples of experimentally-grown vegetable produce, animal products, of ashes or of soils, besides some thousands of other uninclosed samples; and a new detached building was erected in the autumn of 1888, comprising two large rooms for the storing of specimens and for some processes of preparation and a drying room. The Rothamsted station has up to the present time been entirely disconnected from any external organization, and has been maintained entirely by Sir John Lawes bart, who has by deed, executed in 1889, set apart a sum of £100,000, the laboratory and certain areas of land for the continuance of investigations after his death, in accordance with the provisions of the deed; trustees and a committee of management, including the donor, have been appointed; the control of the Laboratory is entrusted to Dr. J. H. Gilbert F.R.s. who has been associated with Sir John Lawes from June, 1843. up to the present time.

boys of Wheathampstead and Harpenden; Miss Kingston's

Rothamsted, the residence of Sir John Bennet Lawes bart. lord of the manor of Rothamsted and principal landowner, is pleasantly situated in a park well studded with lofty trees and plantations: the house is a building in the Early English style, originally erected about 1470, but considerably en-larged and modified by the present owner: the principal entrance, under a clock tower, faces the south and com-mands extensive and beautiful views. About 50 acres of land near the village have been appropriated by Sir J. B. Lawes for the benefit of the parish labourers, who farm the same in allotments. The Dean and Chapter of Westminster are lords of the manor of Wheathampstead-cum-Harpenden. Colonel Smyth, of the Grange, Welwyn, is lord of the manor of Annables; the ancient manor house is situated two and a half miles from the village. The soil is sound loam resting on clay and underneath is chalk mixed and yields good crops of wheat, oats and barley, roses &c. The area is 5,111 acres; rateable value, £20,726; the population in 1881 was 3,064, but now (1890) is close upon 5,000.

BOWLING ALLEY, three quarters of a mile, and Top Street are to the south-east; Harpenden Bury is 11 miles west; Park View, situated on the north side of the Midland railway, has a charming and picturesque view overlooking the village and Rothamsted park; Cooter's End is one mile north-west; Hatching Green is one mile south; Hammond's End is 12 miles south; Cold Harbour is one mile northwest; Annables' and Turner's Hall are about 3 miles north west; Kinsbourne Green is 11 miles north-west. Batford and Pickford corn mills are on the Lee.

KINSBOURNE GREEN.—The school church, dedicated to St. Mary's, is a building of stone and will seat 150 persons. Here is also a Wesleyan chapel for 150 persons.

COLD HARBOUR.—The mission church, erected in 1889, is a small edifice of brick. Here is also an iron Wesleyan chapel, seating 200 people. Sexton, George Rodwell.

Experiments, The Laboratory HATFIELD (or BISHOP'S HATFIELD) is a small and formerly an effigy in brass : there is a large piscina on the ancient market and union town and large parish, situated on the declivity of a hill on the Great North road, 20 miles from London, 7 west from Hertford, 81 north from Barnet, 41 south from Welwyn, 10% south from Stevenage, 14% south from Hitchin and 5 east from St. Albans, not far from the river Lee, in the Mid division of the county, hundred of Broadwater, petty sessional division of Hertford, county court district of St. Albans, and in the rural deanery of Hertford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans: the main line of the Great Northern railway passes a little to the west of the town and has branches to St. Albans, Hertford and Luton: Hatfield New Town is about half a mile west of the railway, on the St. Albans road : on the Lee are several mills : the town is partly paved, lighted with gas by a company from works situated in French Horn lane, and supplied with water from the mains in Hatfield Park, belonging to the Marquess of Salisbury x.G. The church of St. Ethelreda is a cruciform building of flint with stone dressings, consisting of chancel with aisles or chapels, nave, transepts with quasi-aisles, north and south perches and an embattled western tower with spire, erected through the munificence of the late Marquess of Salisbury, and containing a clock and 8 bells, re-cast in 1786; the nave, which is Decorated, is 73 feet in length and 36 feet in breadth; and the chancel 43 feet 6 inches in length: dividing the south aisle from the transept is a Norman arch, enriched with the dog-tooth ornament: the north chancel aisle, or Salisbury chapel, extends along the whole length of the chancel on the north side, from which it is divided by an arcade of three plain round arches, supported on Ionic columns of rough granite and further ined on both sides by wrought iron gates of exquisitely delicate workmanship and design, the production of an Italian artist: the ceilings are panelled and as well as the walls are beautifully painted with scroll work and allegorical figures of the Evangelists, the lower part being wainscoted with marble: on the west wall, over the Early Eng-lish arches, is a large painting, also in fresco, of the parable of the wise and foolish virgins: the floor is of black and white marble and alabaster: the chief monument is that of Robert Cecil, first Earl of Salisbury K.G. and Lord High Treasurer, who died 24th May, 1612; his recumbent effigy, executed in marble by Simon Basyll, represents him in full robes, with the insignia of the Order of the Garter: the slab of black marble on which the figure is placed is supported by four kneeling figures, representing the four cardinal virtues; and on another slab beneath, resting on a mat, is a life-sized representation of a skeleton, also in white marble: near this and on the floor is the figure of a man in armour, bearing a shield, carved in low relief; on the south side of the princishield, carved in low relier; on the south side of the principal monument is another effigy in mezzo-relievo, carved in Purbeck marble, with an inscription almost illegible, but commemorating William Curll esq. 1617: at the east end is a memorial window to Lady Blanche Mary Harriett Balfour, d. 19 May, 1872; and another on the north side to Lady Mildred Arabella Charlotte Beresford-Hope, d. 18 March, 1881, both sisters of the Marquess of Salisbury: the south or Brockett chapel is separated from the chancel by two Decorated arches, and contains a tomb with two life-sized recumbent figures in stone of females, reclining on their elbows and raised slightly the one above the other; over these are the arms of the Brockett family, with an iron helmet suspended on the wall and immediately below is an inscription to Dame Elizabeth Brockett, wife of Sir John Brockett, of Brockett Hall, Herts, kt. ob. 24 June, 1612. and underneath a curious epitaph to Dame Agnes Saunders, ob. 28 October, 1588: on a pedestal against the south wall are busts of Sir James Reade bart. d. 16 October, 1701; and Sir John Reade bart. d. at Rome, 22 February, 1711-12, and the medallion of a lady by Rysbrack, in 1760; beneath is a long inscription, 1701-31: in the chancel is a brass inscription to ffulke Onslowe, gentleman, of Onslowe, Salop, and Mary south side of the chancel, with Early English mouldings and another in the north transept: most of the windows are stained: the reredos of alabaster and mosaic is exquisitely wrought, and includes a group of the Crucifixion and figures of saints in marble: the pulpit, of Caen stone, richly carved with figures in bas relief, was given in the year 1872 by Mr. Wynn Ellis, of Ponsbourne Park: in 1872 the church was completely restored by David Brandon esq. architect, at the cost of the Marquess of Salisbury: there are 700 sittings, mostly free. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Totteridge annexed, joint gross yearly value £2,007, with 107 acres of glebe and residence in the gift of the Marquess of Salisbury K.G., P.C. and held since 1888 by the Rev. Lord Rupert Ernest William Cecil M.A. of University College, Oxford. The Cemetery church, situated at Newtown, is a chapel-of-ease to the parish church and was built in 1877 by the munificence of the Marquess of Salisbury, and opened by the Bishop of St. Albans, January 29th, 1878; it is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of nave, south porch and an open western turret containing one bell: there are sittings for about 80 persons: attached is a small cemetery, occupying about one acre: the Rev. Nathaniel Shirley Hodson M.A. is curate in charge and chaplain to the union. In Park street is a Union chapel for Evangelical Christians of all denominations, built in 1823 and seating 300 persons. There is also a Wesleyan chapel in the town, erected in 1889, with about 200 sittings. The Conservative Club, situated in the London road and erected by the Marquess of Salisbury K.G., P.C. in 1884, comprises a temperance hotel and public hall, holding 400 persons, together with reading rooms and a library of about 6,000 volumes. The Herts Agricultural Society, re-established in 1879, of which Baron Dimsdale M.P. is the president, holds its meetings at Hatfield. The charities include a yearly sum of £60, arising from the proceeds of the sale of an estate called "Clarke's" or "Legg's," at Ludwick Hyde, in this parish, given by Sir Francis Boteler, of Hatfield Wood Hall kt. in 1678; from this charity five poor widows receive $10 yearly each, the selection being made by the Marquess of Salisbury: of these four must be from Hatfield and one from Tewin, but after their election they may reside in any part of the country: Mrs. Mary Ross left by will, in 1806, £3 yearly for six poor widows. There are other charities, amounting to £4 12s, yearly for distribution. The fairs are held on April 23rd and October 18th. The parish lies on the dividing range between the Lee and the Coine.

Hatfield House, the seat of the Marquess of Salisbury K.G., P.C. erected by Sir Robert Cecil, first Earl of Salisbury K.G. between the years 1605 and 1611, is a noble mansion of brick with enrichments of stone and is considered one of the finest specimens extant of Early Jacobean architecture; the whole design includes a central building and two wings in the form of the letter E, the wings projecting to-wards the south, so as to include three sides of a court: on the north front of the house is a court inclosed by a balustrading and iron gates, but except for the projection of the porch, the northern façade is but little broken in outline; on the south side the advancing wings give much variety to the building, in front of which there is also a large open gravelled court, with diversified lawns and flower beds on either hand; this has also remarkably fine iron gates, erected by the late Marquess prior to the visit of Her Majesty and H.R.H. Prince Consort, Oct. 1846: the gal-leries which extend along the whole length of the south façade between the two wings, are 160 feet long; that on the first floor remains as it was originally designed and has an elaborately ornamented ceiling and walls panelled with carved oak; the gallery on the ground floor was formerly a corridor orner was a consider or the gallery or the ground floor was formerly a corridor or the gallery or the ground floor was formerly a corridor or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gallery or the gall a corridor open on one side to the air and has only of late years been converted into a gallery by filling up the arches with height another than the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the side of the his wife, 1582-1602; on the floor of the tower is another with brick tracery and glass; this gallery is paved with brass to the same person, also dated 1602, over which was from the Armada and others brought from the Crimes : in the west wing of the house are the chapel, the library and numerous bedrooms: east of the entrance is the great hannumerous bearcoms: east of the entrance is the great ban-queting hall, the state drawing-room and other apartments: the chapel was restored in 1872, a marble altarpiece being added and open stalls substituted for the old pews; the panelling on the walls is partly original, the new work being made to accord with the old: a gallery containing many pictures runs round three sides, and above the communion table is a large and ancient stained window: the western wing of the house beyond the chapel was injured by a fire which occurred on the 27th Nov. 1835, when several of the rooms were en-tirely consumed and the Dowager Marchioness of Salisbury (grandmother of the present Marquess) perished in the flames, which originated in her chamber: over the fireplace in this room is a memorial portrait of the Marchioness let into an oval medallion: the library is fine room nearly 60ft. long, well furnished with books in lofty cases and ornamented with a portrait in Florentine mosaic of the first Earl of Salisbury: Hatfield House is rich in historical documents, and its notable collection of MSS. is perhaps the largest and cernotation consists of each of the properties are the fargest and certainly the most valuable attached to any mansion in the hingdom: here are the forty-two Articles of Edward VI. with his autograph; Cardinal Wolsey's instructions to the Ambassadors sent to the Pope by Henry VIII. with Wolsey's autograph; the casket letters that procured the conviction attegraph; the castel letters that produced the conviction of Mary Queen of Scots; and a pedigree of Queen Elizabeth, dated 1559, and tracing her ancestry to Adam. The State papers in the collection extend through the successive administrations of Lord Burghley and his son, the Earl of Salisbury, and comprise documents which came into Lord Burghley's possession from his connection with the Court, including no fewer than 13,000 letters, from the reign of Henry VIII. to that of James I.: among the earlier MSS, are copies of William of Malmesbury's and Roger Hoveden's Chronicles; a splendid MS. on vellum, with a beautifully executed miniature of King Henry VII. the original depositions touching the divorce of Ann of Cleeves; the proclamation of Edward VI. made on his ascending the throne, but not noticed by historians; and the original Council Book of Queen Mary; the historical MSS. of Elizabeth's reign contain various memoranda in Lord Burghley's hand; the Norfolk book of entries, or copies of letters on Mary Queen of Scots; and a regular official account of the Earl of Northumberland's conspiracies, besides the actual draft of the proclamation declaring James I. King of England, in the handwriting of Sir Robert Cecil, and various MSS. illustrating Raleigh's and the gunpowder plot: the house is lighted by the electric light, maintained by engines at the saw mills two miles distant, the house and mill being in telegraphic and telephonic communication with each other: on the western side of the house there is a formal square garden, surrounded by a walk overarched by trees, at the corners of which are mulberry trees said to have been planted by James I. below this is another sunk garden, the site of the old episcopal palace; of this one side, including the banqueting ball, now forms the stables and outer offices of the house: the original plan of this country residence of the Tudors was a square inclosing a central courtyard, with some additional buildings on the north and on the south: the gate house still remains, now giving admission to the stable-yard from the town and the greater part of the western front; this is built of dark-red brick only, without stone facings and is simple and effective in design, having a low projecting central turret: the great hall, now converted into a stable, still retains its original and fine open roof of old English oak, the beams of which spring from grotesque corbel tables: at the grand entrance, opposite the railway station is a bolome and content. Decorated ironwork with station, is a lodge and gates of Decorated ironwork, with piers of carved stone in the Jacobean style, erected in 1879; a level road crosses the valley into which the town extends, by a lofty viaduct of red brick, and then, sweeping round near the edge of the park, enters the main drive to the house from the north. The park, the largest in the shire, is beautifully undulating, finely wooded and well stocked with deer; it is bounded on the north by the river Lee and on the west, for about two miles, by the Great North road from Barnet: there is still standing in the park the oak tree, now fenced in, under which Elizabeth is said to have been reading when the news of her accession was brought to her in November, 1558; she had however, certainly, resided here several years before she ascended the throne. Charles I. was kept in custody here for some time. Warren Wood is the residence of Charles Butler F.R.G.S., D.L., J.P. The Manues of Salisbury E.G., P.C. who is lord of the manor, maquess of Saisoury E.G., P.C. who is form of the manning and Earl Cowper E.G., P.C. are the principal landowners. The soil is various, partly light and the subsoil gravelly. The area of this, the largest parish in the county, is 12,884 acres; rateable value, £36,069; the population in 1881 was 4,059, including 59 officers and immates of the workhouse.

NEWGATE STREET is a hamlet in Hatfield parish, 6 miles south-east and 4 north-west from Cheshunt. St. Mary's church, built in 1842 at the cost of the late Thomas Mills esq. of Tolmers, is a cruciform structure of Bath stone. in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, transcrts, south porch, and a detached western tower, with broach spire, containing 1 bell: all the windows are stained. broach spire, containing I bell: all the windows are stained, the west window being a memorial to the founder, who died in 1862: a new chancel was erected in 1887 by the Mills family: the church will seat about 150 persons. The register dates from the year 1863. The living is a perpetual curacy, gross yearly value £100, with residence, in the gift of Joseph Trueman Mills esq. of Clermont Watton, Norfolk, Joseph Trueman Mills esq. of Clermont Watton, Norfolk, and held since 1883 by the Rev. William Henry Kemm M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. There is also a chapel-of-ease licensed by the Bishop of St. Albans, at Hatfield Hyde, two miles north-east, erected in 1882, at the expense of the Marquese of Salisbury R.G., P.C. from designs Mr. Eustace Balfour, architect: it is in the Decorated style and consists of chancel and nave under one roof, with an organ chamber and vestry on the north side, and will seat 120 persons: the Rev. Edward John Edwards M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, domestic chaplain to the Marquess of Salisbury, is curate in charge.

At WOODHILL, about four miles south-east, is St. Mark's. a large chapel of ease, built by the late Marquess of Salisbury K.G., P.C. in the year 1852 and rebuilt by subscription at a cost of £2,000 in 1880: it is a plain building of flint, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch, vestry and a western turret containing one bell: the east window is a memorial to William Franks M.A., F.R.S. 1860. The Rev. Jacob Anastasio Forrest M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford, is curate in charge. Here is the seat of Mrs. Franks.

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD.

WITH BOXMOOR.

HENEL HEMPSTEAD is a market and union town and with Bolley esq. A.B.A., F.S.A. at the expense of the Misses the districts of Boxmoor and Twowaters and the hamlets of Hamilton and Miss Godwin: there are memorial windows the districts of Boxmoor and Twowaters and the hamlets of Corner Hall and Crouchfield forms a parish. The Midland Railway Company have a branch from their main line at Harpenden to this place with a terminal station here; Boxmoor station, 24 miles from London, on the main line of the London and North Western Railway, is 14 miles distant; an omnibus meets all trains. The town is situated on the river Gade, close to the Grand Junction Canal and the Aylesbury road, 5 miles east from Berkhamsted, 7 north from Watford and 8 west from St. Albans. The parish is in the Western division of the county, Dacorum hundred and petty sessional division, St. Albans county court district and in the rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans.

The town was incorporated by Henry VIII. and its government is vested in a bailiff, chosen annually on St. Andrew's day: it is partially paved, and lighted with gas by a company from works situated at Boxmoor, erected in 1867, at a cost of £12,000: water works and public baths and washhouses were erected in 1866 by a company; the water is obtained by an artesian boring on the site of the works in Marlowes

The church of St. Mary is a large and ancient cruciform building of clunch stone and flint in the Norman and Early Decorated styles, the earliest portions dating from about 1150 and comists of chancel with north aisle, nave of six bays with clerestory, aisles, transepts, south porch and central tower with plain corbelled parapet and lofty octagonal leaded spire containing a clock and 8 bells and chimes playing 8 tunes: the church is a fine specimen of Norman architecture, of which the arcades of the nave and the west door are admirable examples, but the windows in the south wall of the chancel are Decorated: important structural repairs were made in the church in 1846 at the expense of Henry Newton Heale esq. of Highfield House in this parish: in 1862-3 it was restored at a cost of £3,600, raised by subscription, under the direction of Mr. Ewan Christian, architectured and the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the s tect, and a new organ was also erected; the transept roofs, which are very fine examples of 14th cent. work, were opened and restored in 1830, also by Mr. Christian, and the very fine 15th cent. roof of the nave was restored in 1885: a reredus and stained east window were erected in 1880 in memory of the Dowager Lady Cooper, who died 16 Sept. 1878, by her children, and in 1838 a new west window was inserted and the 13th cent. colouring of the roof and to the late C. E. Grover esq. and to the late Henry Day esq.: a fine brass, with figures, to Robert Albyn and Margaret, his wife, 1480, and a monument to the late Sir Astley Paston Cooper burt. d. 12 Feb. 1841: there are 658 sittings, 212 being free. The register of marriages and burials dates from 1558; baptisms, 1566. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-1538; baptisms, 1500. Inc living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £496, with an addition of £110 yearly, arising from house property, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chan-cellor, and held since 1886 by the Rev. John Robbins D.D. of Christ Church, Oxford.

St. Paul's is an ecclesiastical district formed Sep. 27. 1878: the church (formerly a chapel of ease to St. Mary's) was built by subscription, on a site given by Sir Astley Paston Cooper bart, at a cost of about £3,000 and was consecrated June 22nd, 1869: it is a structure of flints dug on the site, with quoins and dressings of Bath stone, in the Transitional style of the period between Early English and Decorated and consists of a chancel with aisles, nave of five bays, aisles, north transept, south porch and a turret at the north west angle of the nave containing one bell: there are foot sittings, 350 being free. The register dates from the year 1878. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £275, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Hemol Hempstead, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Edward Jordan Gallop M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford, chaplain of King's College Hospital Convalescent Home and of Hemel Hempstea Union, and surrogate: a vicarage house was erected in 1882 from designs by Messrs. Coe and Robinson.

Here are Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, a meeting-house of the Society of Friends and a church belonging to the Reformed Church of England. The Baptist chapel at Marlowes was opened on the 15th of October, 1861, and will seat 750 persons. The cemetery, situated in the Heath Park road and comprising an area of 8 acres, was formed in 1876 and has two mortuary chapels and residence for the superintendent; it is under the control of a burial board of 13 members.

The town possesses a fine range of handsome public build-gs. The spacious Town Hall, built in 1851, is a structure of red brick and stone; beneath it is a Corn Exchange; and above a Literary Institute with a reading room and a library of 800 volumes: there is a vestry ball at the north end: the Corn Exchange has spacious lofts for the storage of grain; these form unitedly one building extending nearly 200 feet walls of the chancel renewed, under the direction of G. F. along the High street and were erected at various times during the period 1851-68, from designs by Mr. George Low, architect, of Basinghall street, London, at a cost of £5,000, defrayed from the revenues of the Bailiwick, assisted by grants from the surplus arising from the Boxmoor trust: a portion of the corporation buildings is occupied by the branch of the London and County Bank: there is also a branch in the town of the Bucks and Oxon Union Bank Limited and a Savings Bank.

In 1838 the High Bailiff, in conjunction with the Town Improvement Committee, erected, from designs by Mr. Low, a spacious market place, adjoining the churchyard; three large shops have also been erected next to the market place, on the site of the old shambles: the total cost of the improvements was £3.500.

There is a Working Men's Club, established in the year 1874, and a Police Station, with deputy chief constable's residence. A public recreation ground, in Queen street, was opened in 1878.

Near the checken

Near the church is an ancient edifice called the 'Bury,' which previous to the Reformation belonged to the rector and convent of Ashridge; over the doorway are the arms of Richard Combe, who held it in 1558, and in the gardens is an underground passage said to extend to the church.

Straw plaiting is carried on to a limited extent, the work being entirely done by females. Here are breweries and a tannery and there is an extensive trade in timber. A large market is held on!Thursday for corn and general produce, as likewise a straw plait market. A fair is held yearly on Holy Thursday, for sheep and cattle, in the Rose and Crown yard, and a pleasure fair on the Thursday after Trinity Sunday.

Hemel Hempstead is the head quarters of D Company of the 2nd (Hertfordshire) Volunteer Battalion, Bedfordshire

Regiment.
The West Herts Infirmary, founded in 1826 and situated at Marlowes, between the town and Boxmoor railway staat Mariowes, between the win and Evaluation lating with tion, was built in 1875-1877, from designs by Messrs. Coe and Robinson, of Furnival's inn, at a cost of nearly £14,000; and Robinson, of Furnival sind, at a cost of nearly £14,000; the site adjoins the old building erected in 1831 and enlarged in 1863 and slopes rapidly to the west, being sheltered by hills on the north and east: the new building, opened November 17th, 1877, by H.R.H. the Duchess of Teck, is a structure of Cowley brick with red bands and Ancaster stone dressings, in the Italian style and forms three blocks; the centre being devoted to the administrative department and dwellings for the resident officers, operating-room and rooms for out-patients, while the wings are occupied by the in-patients, for whom there are fifty beds; the average number of in-patients is about 388 and of out-patients 740.

The King's College Hospital Convalescent Home, founded in 1878, by the trustees of that hospital and situated at Marlowes, consists of the old infirmary building, which has been enlarged to suit its new purpose, and is now a structure of brick with three gables in the Domestic style. The number of patients in 1889 was 393, of whom 154 came from King's College hospital and the remainder from other hospitals and various charitable societies and private sources.

Charities .- Under the will of Francis Coombe, of Hempstead Bury, dated 1641, an annual sum of £13 6s. 8d. is paid to the rector for preaching a sermon in the church every Thursday; the income of the living is also augmented by a yearly sum of £5 18s. 7d. from the same charity. A benefaction of £472 10s. New £3 per Cents. left in 1813 by Benjamin Collett, is applied to the benefit of four blind persons of the parish or neighbourhood. £9 6s. 6d. yearly, arising from a bequest in 1814 by Mary Field, is distributed in bread and coals to the poor; this charity also provides a yearly gratuity of 10s. to the mistress of the Sunday school and 5s. to the parish clerk. Thomas Warren of this parish, in 1796, left 3s. each to 50 poor widows yearly, on the 30th January

Nicholas Stratford, the son of a shoe maker in this town, and born here in 1633, was consecrated Bishop of Chester, 15 Sept. 1689, and held that office till 1707.

Boxmoor is an ecclesiastical district formed April 19, 1844, from the civil parish of Hemel Hempstead, with a station on the London and North Western railway. Boxmoor is managed by trustees appointed under the Act, 49 Geo. III, c. 169, in 1809: there are now three trustees (life governors), and the trust produces a net fund of over £400 yearly, derived from rents of houses, wharf &c.; the balance after meeting the expenses of the trust is voted to different objects by the inhabitants of Hemel Hempstead and Bovingdon, respectively, in vestry assembled in the proportions of three-fourths to Hernel Hempstead parish and one-fourth to Bovingdon. The trustees have recently by purchase become the owners of Rough Down, New Green and Shothanger Commons bounding the moor, and com-prising together about 261 acres, and held therewith for the use and recreation of the inhabitants of the parish. The church of St. John the Evangelist, rebuilt and consecrated in 1874, is an edifice of stone with dressings of Bath stone, in the Early English style, erected at a cost of £4,800 from designs by Mr. Norman Shaw, architect, and consists of chancel with aisles, nave of five bays, aisles, north and south porches, and a turret at the west end containing one bell: the east window, erected 1868, is a memorial to the late Rev. Thomas White and Miss Anne White, formerly of the Lawn and Corner Hall, who were co-founders of this church: and Corner Hall, who were co-founders of this church: there are 700 sittings, all being free. The register dates from the year 1820. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £34, gross yearly value £280, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Hernel Hempstead, and held since 1865 by the Rev. Alfred Cornelius Richings M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, and surrogate. The Baptist chapel has 500 sittings. The Public Hall, St. John's road, Boxmoor, was recorded in 280 go at a total section lates furnities and 328. erected in 1889-90 at a total cost, including furniture and gasfittings, of about £1,300, derived from funds produced by the annual surplus of Boxmoor, and voted for this purpose about 12 years since at the annual vestry: the building is of grey stock brick with red dressings, and a little Bath stone in the Domestic style of the 17th cent. from designs by Mr. W. A. Fisher, architect, of Marlowes, Hemel Hemproom, with lavatories &c.: the upper storey consists of a public assembly room 50 by 25 feet, with permanent stage and three retiring rooms; there are three separate exits to the hall: the chief exterior feature of the building is the quaint Dutch gable finished with a pediment 50 feet from the ground level. The area of the district is 2,000 acres; and the population in 1881 was 3,678.

HERTFORD.

HERTFORD is the county and assize town of Hertfordshire; | power from the river Beane at Waterford, from a well sunk it is also a municipal borough, market and union town, head of a petty sessional division and county court district and a meeting place (with St. Albans) of the Herts County Council, in the Eastern division of the county, and gives name to the hundred, in the rural deanery of Hertford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans, 21 miles from Shoreditch (by road), 26 by Great Eastern railway from London (Liverpool Street station), 28 by Great Northern railway from London (King's Cross), a mile and threequarters west from Ware, 4 miles north-west from Hoddes-don and 7 east from Hatfield.

The Great Eastern railway has a branch from their main line at Broxbourne, and in 1888 constructed a new passenger station somewhat nearer the town, the old terminus at the east end of the town being now utilised for goods traffic. The Great Northern railway has also a branch line from the main line at Hatfield, with a station at Cowbridge.

The ancient and important town of Hertford is pleasantly situated on the river Lee, near the junction of the Mimram. Beane, Rib, Quin and other small streams, at the extremity of the great plain extending from south to north for a distance of 25 miles and lies in the valley of the same river, with gentle hills rising in the neighbourhood, well wooded and presenting picturesque scenery: the Lee here becomes navigable and continues so to London. Many conjectures have been hazarded by Camden, Salmon and others as to as "Hertforde" from a very early period, and it seems most probable, on careful consideration, that it derived its name from being the spot where the red deer from the adjacent forests commonly crossed the river, a conclusion strengthened by the ancient borough seal, which represents a hart standing in a ford, a device in use before the time of Queen Elizabeth. Hertford was a place of importance even in Saxon times, and in 673 was the scene of an Ecclesiastical Synod, assembled here under Theodorus, Archbishop of Canterbury: at a later date it was held by the Danes, who were driven out by Alfred, and in the year 905 his son, Edward the Elder, erected a fortress, and subsequently built the city on both sides of the Lee and created it a borough. In the Conqueror's time it had two churches, three mills and a hundred and forty-six burgesses. Queen Isabella, wife of Edward II. resided for a short time at the Castle, and died there in 1358. In 1429 King Henry VI. kept his Easter at the castle, and in 1498 Henry VII. remained here some days: Henry VIII. seems to have frequently visited Hertford, and Edward VI. was residing at the castle with his sister Elizabeth when he received the news of his father's death; in 1561 Queen Elizabeth remained here from August 30th to September 15th. On account of the plague raging in London in 1582 and 1592, the Courts of Law were in those years temporarily removed

The borough formerly returned two members to Parliament until the passing of the "Representation of the People Act, 1867," reduced its representation to one member only; by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," it was disfranchised as a borough, and the representation merged in that of the county.

The town is governed by a mayor, four aldermen and 12 town councillors. The limits of the borough extend through a circuit of about 6 miles, and comprise the parish of All Saints and parts of the parishes of St. Andrew, St. John and Bengeo, with parts of the liberties of Brickendon and Little Amwell.

The borough has a commission of the peace. The police in the borough form part of the County force.

The town is well paved and lighted with gas from works situated at the east end of the town and belonging to the Hertford Gas Light Co. Water is supplied from two sources, viz. from the pumping-station at Molewood, where a well 100 feet deep has been sunk into the chalk, whence the water is pumped up by water-power into a reservoir at the top of Port hill, holding 300,000 gallons, and from thence it is delivered into the town by gravitation; the other pumping-station is at the Old Waterworks at Hartham, where the water is obtained from a deep well bored into the chalk, and supplied from thence by means of a loaded valve, at high pressure to those parts of the town which cannot be supplied by gravitation from the reservoir: the steam power at the foot of Port hill, which formerly supplied the greater part of the town, is not now used, but is held in reserve: the waterworks are the property of the corporation. Bengeo is provided with an independent supply, pumped by water-in the gravel closely adjoining: the two systems are connected, and by opening two sluice valves-one on the Hertford side of the boundary and the other on the Bengeo side -the two authorities in case of emergency can assist each other

Originally there were five parish churches, viz. St., John, St. Mary, St. Nicholas, All Saints and St. Andrew, of which only the last two remain.

All Saints is a large building of flint and stone, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, transepts, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower, with spire, and containing a clock and to bells, dating from 1771 to 1791, fitted with the late Rev. H. T. Ellacombe's chiming apparatus: the interior was repaired, repewed and decorated, and 80 new sittings added in 1872 and 1873; and in 1886 the east end. previously lighted by three small windows, was greatly improved by the insertion of an elegant triplet of lanceta, from designs by the late Mr. Vincent Wing A.R.I.B.A. architect, of London, and subsequently filled with stained glass, at a cost of £600, defrayed by the late George Ringrose esq.: in the south transept is a stained window to the late Matthew Skinner Longmore, town clerk of the borough: here also is a monument of white marble, with military emblems, to the officers and privates of the 49th (Hertfordshire) Regiment, who fell in the Russian war during the years 1854, '55 and '56; suspended above are the tattered remains of the Queen's and Regimental colours: there is an inscription on brass to John Hunger, master cook to Queen Catherine, wife of Henry V. ob. 1435, and another to Thomas Boole, ob. 1546, as well as memorials to Sir John Harrison knt. of Balls, ob. 1669, and his wife Mary, ob. 1705: Edward Harrison esq. ob. 1674, and others of that family; to the Right Hon. John, Lord Townshend P.C. d. 28 Feb. 1833: Rear-Admiral John, 4th Marquess Townshend, d. 10 Sept. 1863: Audrey (Harrison), widow of Charles, Viscount Townshend, d. 1788, besides others of that name: to Lord Dudley Coutts Stuart M.P. d. at Stockholm, 17 Nov. 1854: Sir Walter Minto Townsend Farquhar bart, M.P. for Hertford, d. 18 June, 1866: Sir John Dimsdale knt. of Theydon Gernon, Essex, d. 1726, Robert Dimsdale M.D. d. 1724 and to the families of Dunster, Morgan, Garnault, Bowles, Minors and many others: there are 1.442 sittings, 268 being free. The earliest register now in possession of the parish dates from the year 1653, and is in an excellent state of preservation; an earlier register, beginning in 1559, has been recently lost or mislaid. The living is a vicarage, united with St. John's rectory and the liberty of Brickendon, gross yearly value £650, including residence and 16 acres of globe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor and the Marquess Townshend alternately, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Thomas Lingley, of St. Aidans, who is also chaplain of Hertford union. parochial charities include about £89 yearly for distribution in money and kind; £48 for the organist and £5 for sermons. St. Andrew's, the original church of Hertford, the parish having been created A.D. 860, was rebuilt of flint with stane dressings in 1869: the beautiful tower, with clock and spire, 130 feet in height, being added by Earl Cowper z.c. in 1876; the style is of the Transitional period between Early English and Decorated, with some intermixture of French Gothic: it consists of apsidal chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, transepts, north porch, and a western tower containing 8 bells, furnished with the late Rev. H. T. Ellacombe's chiming hammers, so that the bells can be chimed for service by one man: a window in the south transept is partially stained as a memorial to Sabine Longmore, d. 1868 : on the east wall of the same is a painting in oil, representing Our Lord, with SS. Peter and John, presented to the church about 1825, by Dr. Luscombe, afterwards consecrated by the Scottish Episcopal Church as the first Bishop of the Anglican communion on the Continent of Europe: there are memorial inscriptions to the Hon. Nathaniel Dimsdale, baron of the Russian Empire M.P. for Hertford, 1790-1804, d. 3 July, 1811: the Hon. Thomas, Baron Dimsdale, d. 1800: the Hon. John. Baron Dimsdale, d. canon of St. Alban's, rural dean and surrogate. The parochial charities include about £25 yearly for distribution in money and kind, and 108. 6d. for sermons.

Christ Church ecclesiastical parish was formed June 22nd, 1869, from the parishes of St. Andrew and Bengeo. The church, situated at Port Vale, is a cruciform building of stone, in the Early Pointed style and was erected in 1868, at the sole cost of Abel Smith esq. M.P. and endowed by the same donor: it consists of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles and transepts, south porch, and a western turret containing one bell: there are 400 sittings, 200 being free. The register dates from the year 1869. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of Abel Smith esq. M.P. and held since 1869 by the Rev. Robert Butland M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and chaplain of Hertford Infirmary, who resides at Bengeo.

The Catholic Church, situated in St. John's road, and dedicated to the Immaculate Conception and St. Joseph, forms, together with the presbytery and school, a group of buildings constructed of flint, in the style of the 12th century: the interior of the church has a very elegant areading and includes a lady chapel: there is a handsome reredos and several of the windows are stained; the buildings were erected in 1860 near the site of the old Priory, in the rear of Christ's Hospital and consecrated in 1866 by Dr. Manning, the present Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster: attached to the church is a cemetery.

The Congregational Church, in Cowbridge, was erected in 1862, at a cost of £3,000, and has 500 sittings. There is a Baptist chapel, seating 300, a Calvinistic chapel, a Wesleyan Methodist chapel, seating 350, and a Friends' Meeting Honse, holding 170.

About half a mile on the road to Stevenage is a Cemetery of 2½ acres, the property of St. Andrew's parish, with a chapel and caretaker's residence.

The Society of Friends have a burial ground at Port Hill.

The Town, or Shire Hall, situated in the Market place, and erected in 1768, is a massive building of brick, in the Italian style, with two projecting illuminated clock dials: on the ground floor are the courts and magistrates' rooms and above a council chamber, assembly room and jury rooms: in 1886 nearly £3.000 was spent in carrying out the plans of the county surveyor for enlarging the court, providing judge's room, new cells &c.: the walls of the council chamber are hung with portraits of William III. George II. Queen Caroline and other members of the Royal Family, presented by George, Earl Cowper, in 1786 and also portraits of Thomas Slingsby Duncombe esq. and Sir Minto Farquhar bart, formerly members of Parliament for Hertford. The Corporation records date from 1422 and are kept in a fine old oaken chest of the Tudor period: the insignia comprise a silver gilt mace, a sword, made by Andrea Ferrari and presented by Sir Charles Cresar kt. in 1680, and several large silver-gilt tankards, dated 1615 and 1768: the quarter sessions and assizes are held at the Town Hall.

The Corn Exchange and Public Hall, crected in 1858-9, on the site of the old Butchers' Market, in Fore street, is an edifice of Bath stone, from designs by the late Mr. Hill, architect, of Leeds: the front being relieved with pilasters supporting a carved frieze and cornice: in the tympanum are the arms of the borough and the whole is surmounted by a colossal figure of Ceres: the interior is covered in by a roof of one span, chiefly of glass, beneath which is a ceiling of ground glass and there is a gallery at one end. Adjoining the Corn Exchange is the covered market, erected in 1889, from designs by Reginald Blomfield M.A. and the late William Henry Wilds, at a cost of £2,300.

The Public Library and School of Art, Old Cross, was erected in 1838-9, at a cost of about £3.000, and was opened by the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour M.P. August 29th, 1339: the library contains about 13.000 volumes: Mr. H. Norris, of Hertford, was the builder.

Hertford is the head quarters of the Hertford Militia, which forms the 4th Battalion of the Bedfordshire Regiment. The barracks are in the London road, erected 1883-4; Mr. H. Norris was the builder.

Hertford is also the head quarters of the Bedfordshire Regiment, 1st (Hertfordshire) Volunteer Battalion. The A and B companies, stationed in the town, have a total strength of 673, having their orderly room and armoury in Bull Plain. The practice ground is in Panshanger Park, where Earl Cowper x.C., P.C. has provided rifle ranges up to 800 yards; the corps drill at the Corn Exchange in winter.

The County Police Station, Queen's road, was erected in 1831 at a cost of £2,000, and the County Court offices, Queen's road, were built in 1883 at a cost of about £2,000.

An excellent open air swimming bath, the property of a Limited Liability Company, with a capital of £1,000, was opened June 22nd, 1876, in Hartham, at the junction of the Paper Mill stream and the river Beane; it is 120 feet long, 30 feet wide, and from 3 to 7 feet deep, and constructed to contain 110,000 gallous of water, continuously flowing, and is fitted up with private dressing-rooms and plunging-boards.

The Hertford General Infirmary, erected in 1832, is a building of stuccoed brick, situated on rising ground in the North road; it was enlarged and thoroughly repaired in 1878, at a cost of about £3,000, and has now beds for 42 patients; the number of in-patients admitted during the year 1839 was 304; and of out-patients, 1,923; the chapel adjoining was erected for the use of the inmates, at the sole cost of Robert Smith esq. the expense amounting to £500.

The Hertfordshire Sea Side Convalescent Home, at Bo-Peep, St. Leonard's-on-Sea, was opened in 1876, for the purpose of affording needy people, slowly recovering from illness, change of air, good food and rest. In 1880 the resources of the Home were increased by the erection of buildings for 42 patients, the cost of which amounted to £5.500; and during the year 1889 495 patients were admitted.

Pettyt's almshouses owe their foundation to Mary Pettyt, of St. Andrew's parish, widow, who by will, dated 29th March, 1649, gave two tenements near Cowbridge for as many poor widows; these were exchanged in 1824 for other houses in St. Andrew's street, now occupied by eight poor widows, nominated by the churchwardens of St. Andrew's. Dame Mary Harrison, widow of Sir John Harrison, of Balls, kt. built four almshouses in Butchery Green, and endowed them with £50 yearly, towards clothing the occupants; these falling into decay in 1854, the Dowager Marchioness Townshend erected six new houses near All Saints' Church, which are now occupied by as many aged women, but there is no weekly or other allowance, apart from parochial charities. About £350, the produce of various charities are the Chequer Rents, or Grass money, originally arising from land called the "King's Meads," given to the borough in 1627 by Charles I. and bequests by John Browne, of London, in 1628; Alderman Edward Carde, in 1631: and other benefactors from 1531 to 1838. There is also a sum of £100 yearly, left by H. Cowper, for public uses. H. Cowper's gift of £105 yearly is for the chaplain to the General Infirmary.

The trade of Hertford is chiefly confined to the sale and grinding of corn, the making of malt and oilcake, brewing, and the conveyance of coals and other commodities for the supply of a large district north of the town. There are two banks (the London and County and Messrs. Sharples and Co.), a savings bank, three newspapers, iron foundries, mathouses, breweries, brickfields, limekilns, the extensive coach works of H. McMullen and Son, wharves, rose gardens and nursery grounds.

The market is held on Saturday, and is one of the largest corn markets in the county. There are yearly fairs held on the third Saturday before Easter, on May 12th, July 5th and November 8th.

Edmund Gunter B.D. a distinguished mathematician, professor of astronomy at Gresham College in 1619, and the inventor of the rule of proportions or line of numbers called "Gunter's scale," was born here in 1581, and died in London, to Dec. 1626.

Hertford Castle is the residence of Alexander Peter McMullen esq.; the embattled wall and mound of the more ancient building still remain; but the portion now inhabited is comparatively modern, having grown up out of the constant repairs of the original castle; it is supposed to have been originally built or commenced in 905 by Edward the Elder, and it was afterwards materially strengthened by William the Conqueror; John of Gaunt made it his occasional abode, and here his son, Henry IV. held his court in 1399. John, King of France, and David Bruce, King of Scotland, were kept here as prisoners of war in the reign of Edward III.

Here was formerly a priory of the Benedictine order, a cell to the abbey of St. Albans, founded by Robert de Limesey, in the reign of William I. and dedicated to SS. Mary and James; the revenues were estimated at £72.

Ball's Park, the property of the Marquess Townshend, is at present the residence of George Faudel Phillips J.P. and alderman of London. The Marquess Townshend is lord of the manor of Amwell Parva; the Marquess of Salisbury K.G. is lord of the manor of Bayley Hall. The principal landowners are the Marquess of Salisbury K.G., P.C. Earl Cowper K.G., P.C. the Dimsdale family, George Elin esq. M.D., J.P. of Leahoe, Brickendon, and Benjamin Young esq.

Hayden George, blacksmith HINXWORTH is a parish and village, situated on the | and monks of the Cistercian convent of Pipewell (Northampton): John Gray, barrister-at-law, held it in 1614; Thomas Hanchett in 1620, and in 1629 by Sir Paul Bayning or Banning (late Malory), created in 1627 Baron and Viscount Bayning of Sudbury (ob. July 29, 1629): the armorial bearings of the three last mentioned families still appear in stained glass in one of the windows: the manor next descended to the Harleys, Earls of Oxford, who sold it and the advowson which had gone with it to Mr. Sergeant Peck, of the Inner Temple, and after passing through several hands it was purchased in 1801 by Robert Clutterbuck, an ancestor of the present rector, and from whose family the property connected with Hinxworth Place was bought in 1881 by Mr. John Sale, the present owner: the thick walls of clunch and mullioned windows point to the antiquity of the house. Another ancient manor in this parish is that of Cantilupe or Cantlow Bury, now called Hinxworth Bury. Roman coins and other remains have been found in the parish. The family of the late R. Clutterbuck esq. still hold the lordship of the manor and are the principal landowners. The soil is mixed learner and blue distance when the soil parish. town is governed by a local board of twelve members, formed } in December, 1873, and is supplied with water under the direction of the board from works situated in Queen street, and lighted with gas from works at Starling's Bridge by a company formed in 1833.

The church, formerly dedicated to St. Andrew, but after its rebuilding to St. Mary, was partly restored in 1858 and subsequent years at considerable expense and is an edifice of stone, covered with cement, in the Pointed style, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave of four bays, aisles, north and south porches, and an embattled western tower with small octagonal spire and containing a peal of 8 bells, dating from 1762 to 1784; the whole fabric is embattle 1, the chancel being ornamented with pinnacles: of the interesting south porch none of the exterior ornament remains, save a small carving, but it has a groined roof, and both aisles retain their original Perpendicular roofs: the font, of Roche Abbey stone, belongs to the earliest period of the existing church: amongst the monuments, which are very numerous, the most striking are those of the Radcliffe family, of Hitchin Priory, 1559-1783; there are also some fine brasses, several of which were discovered underneath the floor during the restoration, resumed in 1877-8; these include the following: in the south aisle a brass to John Pulter, draper, ob. 1421 (the teet only of the male effigy remaining), his wife Alice, and a merchant's mark; a merchant of the staple of Calais, ob. 1452, his wife Alice and ten children, now in the chancel near the pulpit; a civilian and wife, c. 1470, with nine children on an altar tomb, in the north chancel aisle; John Beel, effigy lost, and wife Margery, 1477, the latter in a shroud with eight children, near the pulpit; a man and his wife in shrouds, c. 1480, with six children, on an altar tomb. in the north chancel aisle; Nicholas Mattock, merchant of the staple of Calais, citizen and fishmonger of London, and his wife Elizabeth, ob. 1485, only female effigy in shroud now left in the north chancel aisle; in the chancel is a brass effigy of James Hert B.D. vicar, ob. 1498, in cope, but without inscription; and at the foot of the chancel steps, a heart, the only fragment left of the brass of John Spirenawk D.D. vicar and canon of Wells, ob. 1474; in the north chancel aisle on an altar tomb and engraved c. 1550, is a brass with arms to John Pulter esq. ob. 1485, and another, also with arms, to William Pulter esq. ob. 1549; in the north aisle is an effigy, traditionally brought here from Temple Dinsley when the chapel of the Preceptory of the Templars there was denoticized and accumulate representations of the Baliols, who the only fragment left of the brass of John Spirehawk D.D. demolished, and assumed to represent one of the Baliols, who were lords of the manor of Hitchin before the time of Edward I.; there are also two other efficies supposed to represent Robert de Kendall and his wife: the stained east window was placed in 1878, and in 1881 a memorial window was erected in the south chancel aisle to F. P. Delmé Radcliffe and Emma Delmé Radcliffe, d. 1875, by Francis Delmé Radcliffe esq. of Hitchin Priory: there are two other memorial windows to the late John and William Hawkins: the various restorations have cost upwards of £5,100, independent of the new organ, erected at an expense of £1,373: there are 1,300 sittings, including those for children; 500 being free. The register dates from the year 1562. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £372, with residence, in the gift of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1856 by the Rev. Lewis Hensley M.A. formerly fellow and assistant tutor of that college, hon. canon of St. Albans, and rural dean of Hitchin and surrogate.

The church of the Holy Saviour, to which a district, formed from the parish of St. Mary, was assigned 12 Sept. 1865, is in the Walsworth road, between the town and railway station, and is a building of red brick, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early decorated style, erected on a site given by, and at the cost of the Rev. George Gainsford M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford: it consists of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, south porch, organ chamber and vestry and a turret containing 3 bells: the chancel is fitted with cak stalls and has seddia of Bath stone: the organ was presented by the sister of the founder in the year 1865: the church was consecrated in May 1865 and will seat about 800 persons, some sittings in the nave and aisles being free. The register dates from the year 1865. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, in the gift of and held since 1865 by the Rev. George Gainsford M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford.

Here is a Congregational chapel with 750 sittings; Baptist chapel in Tilehouse street, seating 700, and in Walsworth road, seating 670; a Wesleyan chapel with sittings for 700 persons; a Calvinistic chapel seating 370, and a meeting house for the Society of Friends, which has 250 sittings: the original meeting house are allow in Cock sittings; the original meeting house, in an alley in Cock street, was built in 1694.

The Cemetery, situated on the east of the town and comprising 7 acres, was formed in 1857 at a cost of £3,084 123.5d, it has two mortuary chapels, and is under the control of a style, erected in 1840 at a cost of £3,314, and contains an assembly room 53 ft. by 33 ft. and 21 ft. high, in which entertainments are held; the petty sessions of the magistrates of the division were formerly held here, but have since been removed to the new police station, Bancroft.

The Corn Exchange, erected in 1851 at a cost of over (2,000, is a handsome structure of brick with stone facings the semi-classical style, and has a cupola.

Hitchin is the head quarters of the B Troop of Herts

Yeomanry Cavalry and the G company 1st (Hertfordshire)

Volunteer Battalion, Bedfordshire Regiment.

The North Herts and South Bels Infirmary, in Bedford road, erected in 1840, is a building of brick and contains 23 beds; during the year 1889 there were 230 in-patients and 1,156 out-patients.

The Mechanics' Institution and Public Library, established in 1836, at the Town Hall, contains a well selected library of nearly 8,000 volumes and is supplied with daily and weekly papers; the Institution is managed by a committee of 9 members and supported by subscriptions and voluntary contributions and has now (1890) 274 members.

The Training Home for Servants situated in the Triangle and founded in 1884 is supported by voluntary contributions. There is an open air swimming bath in Queen street, built in 1847 and under the control of the local board.

Straw-plait is extensively manufactured, and there is a plait market in Market place, held on Tuesdays at 9 a.m.: in 1874 a plait mart, which is still in existence, was opened in Queen street; there is also a good trade in corn, flour, malt and brewing.

The distillation of lavender is also largely and successfully carried on, the plantations being situated on the sunny slope of a hill north of the town; this enterprise was begun about 50 years since by the late Mr. Edward Perks, and there are now about 60 acres of lavender under cultivation.

The market day is on Tuesday: the market place extends over a considerable area and constitutes an important feature of the town. On Easter and Whit Tuesdays and Wednesdays pleasure fairs are held.

George Chapman, the translator of the Iliads of Homer, is George Chapman, the translator of the Iliads of Homer, is thought to have been the son of Thomas Chapman, a free-holder residing in Hitchin in 1561; other accounts placing his birth in Kent, at the earlier date of 1557 The former finished his translation at Hitchin and died in London in 1634. Henry Bessemer, widely celebrated for his improvements in the manufacture of steel, was born in the hamlet of Charlton in this parish, on the 19th Jan. 1813. Here also resided for a time the notorious Eugene Aram, executed for murder Aug. 1759, who was tutor in a school at Church House.

In connection with the Church of the Holy Saviour are almshouses, situated in Radcliffe road and erected in 1870 for 7 women or married couples; but there is allowance. There is also an orphanage, erected in 1873 by public subscriptions and available for 24 children. The orphanage is under the direction of the Sisters of St. Margaret's Home, East Grinstead, Sussex; principal, Sister Elizabeth. A fee of 5s. weekly is charged for each

There are several almshouses, including those of John Skynner, founded in 1666, for eight men or women; and of Ralph Skynner, of Hitchin, founded in 1696 for the same ; these consist of sixteen houses, with an aggregate income of 211 38. 1d.; Daniel Warner's, being parish houses, rebuilt by him in 1761 and consist of 6 houses for as many women, by him in 1761 and consist of 6 houses for as many women, with an annual income of  $\pounds 4$  1.18; the weekly allowance for all varies from 18. 3d. to 48. 2d. and the Dissenters' Almshouses, with a yearly income of  $\pounds 55$  188. 3d. of which  $\pounds 22$  98. 1d. is paid to the inmates,  $\pounds 25$  48. 2d. to the minister and  $\pounds 8$  58. distributed to Dissenting poor; these and numerous other charities produce a sum amounting to nearly £ 1,000 yearly.

Near the church of St. Mary formerly stood the priory of Biggin, founded for nuns of the Gilbertine order; some remains of the buildings, converted into a large mansion, were devised in 1654 by Joseph Kemp M.A. to trustees for charitable uses, and the structure is now inhabited by eighteen poor women, who receive about £3 annually.

Several benefit societies exist here, the principal being the Hitchin Friendly Institute, established in 1827 for mutual relief and maintenance in sickness, infancy and advanced age. Any person, male or female, between the ages of 10 and 50 and residing within 8 miles of Hitchin, may become a member; there are now (1890) about 323 members, with an accumulated capital of £19,500.

Amongst the principal seats are the Priory, the residence of Francis A. Delmé-Radeliffe esq. J.P. which in Edward II.'s time (1318) belonged to a society of White Friars or Carmelites, who erected buildings, including a conventual church; this religious house was surrendered in 1539, and being granted to Ralph Radcliffe, has remained in the possession of the family ever since.

Newlands is the residence of Mrs. Wilson.

Besides the Priory there was another religious fraternity in Hitchin, called the "Brotherhood," to which guild a chantry was attached; its possessions were seized by the Crown in the reign of Edward VI. but the house in Bancroft, known as "Brotherhood House," remains, though greatly modernized.

In the reign of Henry II. the manor of Hicche (Hitchin) was possessed by Bernard de Baliol, who held it under King Stephen, and was the founder of the Preceptory of the Stephen, and was the founder of the Preceptory of the Knights Templars of Temple Dinsley; his great grandson, John de Baliol, and Devorgilla, his wife, were the founders, in 1282, of Baliol College, Oxford; John de Baliol, son of the preceding, and King of Scotland from 1292, forfeited the manor of Hitchin to Edward I. in 1296.

Her Majesty the Queen is now lady of the manor.

The principal landowners are Francis A. Delmé-Radcliffe esq. J.P. Thomas Alexander Dashwood esq. M.A., J.P. of Oakfield Ippolitts, Charles Willes Wilshire esq. of the Frythe, Welwyn, Francis Frederic Lovell esq. of Hincheslea, Lymington, Hants, A. Ransom, W. Ransom, W. Lucas, S. Lucas and H. Pryor esqrs.

The area is 6,405 acres of land and 15 water; about 60 acres are planted with lavender; rateable value, £42,984; the population, including the hamlets, in 1881 was 9,070; of the town itself, 8,434, including 212 officers and immates of the workhouse, and 23 in the North Herts and South Beds Infirmary.

Preston, which contains a few scattered houses, is a hamlet in the parish of Hitchin, 3 miles south. Castle farm now occupies the site of Preston Castle, and has an old well, considered to be the largest in the county. Temple Dinsley was formerly the property of the Knights Templars, who established a preceptory here. At Wainwood is "Bunyan's Dell," in which it is said the author of the "Pilgrim's Progress" used to preach. There is a school chapel here, erected in the year 1850 by the late Thomas Harwood Darton esq. and licensed for divine service; it will seat 150 persons: there is also a Baptist chapel seating about 200. The area is 1,142 acres; the population in 1881 was 256.

POST OFFICE. -Mrs. Louisa Smith, receiver. Letters arrive from Hitchin at 8.15 a.m.; dispatched at 6.15 p.m. week days only. Hitchin is the nearest money order & telegraph office. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid

WALSWORTH HAMLET is I mile north-east, on the Purwell stream; PURWELL I mile east; BEARTON, half a mile north. ALMSHOEBURY is 3 miles south; near this place in the parish of Hitchin, are the remains of Minsden chapel, formerly attached to the church of Hitchin, but disused and in a decayed condition in 1650; baptisms and marriages were, however, regularly performed here down to 1626 and occasional marriages after that date, the last mentioned being in 1738; the registers are incorporated with those of Hitchin.

Langley is a hamlet in the parish of Hitchen, 4 miles south-east from the town, and 2 south-west from Stevenage and consists of a few farms and cottages. The National schoolroom, seating 100 persons, is licensed for divine service which is held here on Sundays. The area is 1,668 acres; and the population in 1881 was 163.

Letters through Stevenage, which is the nearest money order & telegraph office

4 north from Cheshunt, 4 south-east from Hertford and 4 south from Ware, in the Eastern division of the county, Cheshunt petty sessional division, Hertford hundred and county court district, Ware union and in the rural deanery of Ware and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The Broxbourne station on the Great Eastern railway is a mile south of the town and the Rye House station on the Hertford branch of the same railway about a mile north-east : the town is lighted with gas by a company from works situated near Broxbourne station, erected in 1866: in the centre of the town is a conduit, the gift of Marmaduke Rawdon esq. in 1679 and commemorated by the poet Matthew Prior: waterworks, situated near the Ware road and belonging to a company, were built in 1886: the town is well drained, the sewage being carried by gravitation to a sewage farm, situated a mile east from the town; the guardians of the Ware union constitute the local sanitary authority. The church of St. Catherine, erected in 1732 and repaired in 1822 and 1849, is a large building of red brick, with stone dressings, in mixed styles, consisting of chancel and nave, south porch and a western tower, erected in 1888 at a cost of £1,200, of which £1,000 was left for the purpose by the late Mrs. East; it is intended to add a peal of bells as soon as the necessary funds are forthcoming: three small windows in the chancel are stained: in 1865 the chancel and aisles were rebuilt, the whole church re-seated with open benches and an organ by subscription: there are 800 sittings, 400 being defrayed by subscription: there are 800 sittings, 400 being free. The existing registers date from 1840, but the early registers relating to this parish are included in those of Great Amwell. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, including one acre of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Horace J. Smith-Bosanquet esq. D.L., J.P. and held since 1881 by the Rev. Philip Esme Stewart Holland M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. The Society of Friends have a meeting-house in Lord street, with 100 sittings; and there is a Congrega-tional chapel in High street, erected in 1846 and enlarged in 1870, with sittings for 400 persons. The Brethren have a small chapel, situated in the Ware road, seating 120. The Wesleyan chapel in Roman street has sittings for 150 persons. A burial board, consisting of 9 members, was formed in the year 1880: the cemetery, situated to the north of the town, has an area of 5½ acres, purchased and laid out at a cost of £3,000: there is one mortuary chapel. The Town Hall, situated in High street, is a building of brick and stone, erected in the year 1835 at a cost of £500, and has a clock tower with an illuminated striking clock. The market is held every Wednesday for cattle, sheep and pigs, and special sales of horses, carriages and agricultural implements the fourth Wednesday in each month; but a pleasure fair is held on the 29th and 30th of June. A Court-leet and baron is held at the Salisbury Arms, High street. There is a Mutual Improvement Society, established in 1852, with premises in High street; it has now (1890) 110 members and a library of 763 volumes. The Working Men's Club, situated on the North road and founded in 1875, comprises a large reading room, bagatelle room and class room, also a large hall adjoining, holding 400 persons, with residence for the manager; there are now (1890) 120 members. is remarkable for the excellent fishing obtained in the neighbourhood, and for its very ancient inns, and there is still an important brewery; Prior, in his old ballad of "Down Hall,"
1715, thus mentions "The Bull"—
"Into an old inn did this equipage roll

At a town they call Hod'sdon, the sign of the Bull, Near a nymph with an urn that divides the highway,

And into a puddle throws mother of tea."

Here also Izaak Walton fished his favourite Lee and, in the company of his friend Sir Henry Wootton, took his morning cup of ale at the "Old Thatched House," now demolished. Rye House, one mile north-east from the town, the scene of Rumbold's plot against the life of Charles II. is much visited by excursionists and anglers: it is situated on the banks of the river Lee and has a station on the Hertford branch of the Great Eastern railway: the house has been modernized and converted into an hotel, but retains a fine dining hall: there is preserved "the great bed of Ware," a famous bedstead, sufficiently large to hold 12 persons: the grounds have been renovated and adorned with statues, and contain a dancing pavilion and a grotto and include also a long walk by the river side. The fine ruin of Nether Hall, the seat of Sir Henry Colt in the reign of Henry VIII. is in the neighbourhood. St. Catherine school is a private domestic school preparatory to the universities, army, navy and public schools; the house, erected on a gravel subsoil, is most pleasantly situated on a slight eminence half-a-mile northeast from Broxbourne Junction; Rev. H. P. Waller M.A.

Elmhurst Ladies' College, St. Catherine's head master. estate, is a well-built detached house on high land and gravel soil, with garden and tennis courts and surrounded by beautiful country. Woodlands is the residence of Compton Warner esq. Rawdon, the residence of Henry K. Ricardo esq. is an embattled building of red brick in the Elizabethan style, erected in 1622 and thoroughly restored and enlarged in 1877, two lodges b ing erected at the entrance: the house stands on an eminence looking east, and commands a very fine and picturesque view of Essex. High Leigh is the resi-dence of Robert Barclay esq. J.P.: Esdale House is the resi-dence of Charles Peter Christie esq. On St. Catherine's estate, situated about half-a-mile north-east of Broxbourne station and half-a-mile south of Hoddesdon, superior residences of picturesque design have been erected. quess of Salisbury K.G., P.C. who is lord of the manor, Horace James Smith-Bosanquet esq. D.L., J.P. of Broxbourne Bury, and Robert Barclay esq. J.P. are chief land-owners. The area is 2,574 acres of land and 29 water; rateable value, £17,810; the population in 1881 was 2,681; Parish Clerk, John Treble. Post, M. O. & T. O., S. B. & Annuity & Insurance Office, rural deanery of Buntingford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary is a small and ancient building of red brick and stone, apparently erected during the early part of the 12th century and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and a turret at the west end containing 2 bells: the most interesting feature in the church is a Norman doorway on the north side of the nave, the door itself affording a fine specimen of wrought iron ornament of early 17th century work: a south window in the chancel is a memorial to Robert Hasell Newell, 39 years rector of the parish, who died in 1852; there is another to Nathan Warren, 1862: there are 100 sittings, all being free. The register dates from the year 1582. The living is a The register dates from the year 1582. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £279, with 86 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of St. John's College, Cambridge, and held since 1890 by the Rev. George Smith M.A. of that college. The charities now (1890) amount to £56 yearly; the interest of money bequeathed to the parish in the year 1823 by John Wall Porter, whose father, a farm labourer, had enriched himself in 1797 with a large sum of Wilberforce Miss Soper William, farmer, Stonebury HUNSDON is a parish and village, 7 miles east from Hertford, 5 south-east from Ware, 3 north from Roydon and 3 east from St. Margaret's stations on the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, Branghing hundred, Ware union and petty sessional division, Hertford county court district, and in the rural deanery of Ware and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Dunstan, built about the end of the 15th century, is a small structure of flint, in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, with north aisle, nave, mortuary chapel, north porch and an embattled western tower, with spire, containing a clock and 8 bells, three of which were added by Spencer Charrington esq. M.P.: the church was once very rich in stained glass, placed there in 1440 and 1450 by Sir Wm. Oldhalle, Speaker of the House of Commons, a staunch adherent of the House of York and at that time owner of Hunsdon House, which is close to the church: much of this glass has disappeared, but there still remains in the head of the east window the Annunciation of Our Lady and Our Lord in glory adored by saints: in the chancel windows are several white roses of York and two fetterlocks, also a badge of that house, besides four canopies, which no doubt once surmounted figures of saints: in the west window are figures of six apostles and other fragments: there is a brass inscription to William Gray, ob. 1517 and in the nave is a brass with effigy in shroud and inscription to Margaret, wife of John Shelley, citizen and mercer of London, ob. 1495: on the north wall of the nave is a singular brass to James Gray, for 35 years park and bounders at the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the stat housekeeper at Hunsdon House, ob. 1591, representing a huntsman shooting at a deer with a crossbow and a figure of Death standing between them and striking both with a dart: in the chapel on the south side, erected by Sir John Cary knt. afterwards third Baron Hunsdon, about 1600 and separated from the chancel by a Jacobean screen of carred cat, is his tomb with recumbent figures of himself and Mary (Hyde) his lady; he died April, 1617; the tomb is built into the wall and inclosed by an iron railing with good wrought iron finish; at the back of the recess is a long inscription, but without date: in the chancel is a tomb to Sir Thomas Forster, knighted at Whitehall, 7th July, 1604, who died in 1612: the floriated ceiling decoration is original, and the font is that at which Queen Elizabeth stood sponsor, in 1575, to one of Lord Hunsdon's daughters: the church was renovated in 1851 and has 203 sittings, of which 50 are free. The register dates from the year 1546, and contains records of Queen Elizabeth having twice stood sponsor in the church in 1575 and 1584. > 1884 by the Rev. Hector Norton B.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge. Charities amounting to £38 16s. yearly arising from land left in 1615-16 by George and Henry Lords Hunsdon and in 1730 by Robert Chester esq. of Briggins Park are distributed in money. Hunsdon Bury, the property and residence of John Henry Buxton esq. 1.P. is a gabled mansion standing in park-like grounds of about 80 acres. Briggins Park, the seat of Aibert Deacon esq. occupies a prominent position about 14 miles south from the village. Hunsdon House, the seat of Spencer Charrington esq. M.P. who purchased the property in 1882 of Mr. A. Wyllie, was originally built by Sir John Oldhall in 1447 and had then a within a century, it became the property of Henry VIII.

> who erected here a palace, to which he frequently resorted > and which was used during his reign as a residence for his children: here, too, the unfortunate Henry Earl of Surrey K.G. executed 21 Jan. 1547, first met the Lady Elizabeth Fitzgerald, celebrated in his sonnets as "Geraldine." The shell of the existing building is supposed to be original work, and the cellars, a groined celling and two Jacobean chimney pieces also remain to illustrate its former characteristic features; otherwise the exterior has been modernised, the most filled up, and on the south front converted into a terrace. In 1804, a great part was pulled down and rebuilt by Nicholson Calvert. The palace of the Bishope of London was then at Hadham, four miles distant, and Bishop Ridley is known to have come over from Hadham to preach in Hunsdon church. When Queen Elizabeth came to the throne she gave Hunsdon to her cousin, Sir Henry Cary kt. and created him Baron Hunsdon, with a pension of £4,000 a year, and subsequently made him a Knight of the Garter. Queen Mary and Edward VI. also occasionally visited this Hunsdon Lodge was the old hunting lodge of Queen Elizabeth. Mead Lodge is a modern structure, the residence of Charles James Phelips esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor, and Salisbury Basendale eq. M.A., J.P. of Bonningtons, Stanstead Abbots, are principal landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans &c. The area is 1,963 acres of land; rateable value. £3,756; the population in 1881 was 526. Sexton, Charles Cannon.

KNEBWORTH is a parish and village, 8 miles north- of Lytton. The annual interest of f100, f2\frac{3}{2} per Cent. Conwest from Hertford, 3\frac{1}{2} south from Stevenage, and 27 from sols, left by William Johnson in 1811, is distributed on the London, with a station on the main line of the Great Northern railway, one mile east from the village; the parish is in the Northern division of the county, Broadwater hundred, Stevenage petty sessional division, Hitchin union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Welwyn and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is an ancient building of flint and brick, chiefly of Early English character, but with some Norman features; it consists of chancel with north chapel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with octagonal turret and a low spire and containing five bells: the chancel retains a piscina and is separated from the north chapel by iron palisading; three lights in the chancel, as well as the west window, are stained; and over the communion table is a painting of "The Lord's Supper:" on the south side of the nave is a very fine memorial window to Edward Rowland John Lytton, aged six years, d. July, 1871, and Henry Meredith Edward Lytton, aged two years, d. March, 1874, placed by their mother, Edith, Countess of Lytton C.I.: the church contains some fine old oak pews, including the family pew belonging to the Earl of Lytton, and an octagonal pulpit, the panels of which are beautifully carved and bear the date of 1567: there are numerous monuments and a brass to members of the Lytton family, dating from 1582 to 1732, and a fine brass to Simon Bache, clerk, treasurer of the household to Hen. V. and canon of St. Paul's, ob. 1414, with effigy in rich cope; there is another brass with effigy to Rowland Lytton esq. ob. 1582, and his wives Margaret (Tate) and Anne (Carleton, and three children, and a brass inscription to John Hotoft, treasurer of the household to Hen. VI. and wife, c. 1430, effigies and shields lost; against the south wall of the chancel is a black marble tablet, with brass crucifix and an inscription to Cathedral and rector of this parish 1838-74, d. 7 Jan. 1881: there are 150 sittings, 100 being free and unappropriated. The local register dates from the year 1606, but the earlier register of Knebworth, dating from the year 1553, is and has been for many years in the library of the late Dr. Williams, Grafton street, London w c. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge fire, with residence and 68 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Earl of Lytton P.C., G.C.B. and held since 1888 by the Rev. Herbert Edwin Jones M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is a Congregational chapel, built in 1887, and seating about 250 persons. Five almshouses on the Codicote road were erected by Mrs. Elizabeth Barbara Bulwer Lytton, in 1836, for old and deserving people of the parish; they are unendowed, but are supported by the Earl

Vicercy and Governor-General of India, 1876-80, and son of the first peer, the eminent poet, dramatist and statesman, is pleasantly situated on a lofty eminence and was originally built in 1563; the greater part of this house was pulled down in 1811 and the present pseudo-Gothic mansion erected. The chief attractions of Knebworth are its extensive gardens and noble deer park of 120 acres, which is finely wooded; the former entrance to the house is now the lodge gate and was carefully removed to its present site on the reconstruction of the mansion. In 1883 the mansion was restored and extensively enlarged; a new south wing with new entrance was added, the east side embattled and a new drive one mile in length made in the direction of Stevenage; three new lodges were also built and the old lodge in the centre of the grounds restored: new water works have been erected on the estate and the park has been divided by iron palisading, and with the exception of the deer park is let for grazing purposes. In the park, some little distance east of the church, is a large mausoleum, erected by Mrs. Bulwer-Lytton in 1817, with memorial inscriptions on the exterior. The Earl of Lytton is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clay, gravel and flint; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. LONG MARSTON is a district and ecclesiastical parish, formed Nov. 19, 1867, from the civil parishes of Tring, Herts, Drayton, Beauchamp and Marsworth, Bucks; the village is situated about I mile north of the Aylesbury canal and r mile south of Marston Gate station on the Aylesbury branch of the London and North Western railway, 3\frac{1}{2} miles north-west from Tring, 4\frac{1}{2} east from Aylesbury and 38 from London, in the Western division of the county, Dacorum hundred and petty sessional division, Berkhamsted union, Aylesbury county court district, rural deanery of Berkhamsted and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The old church of All Saints, a small structure in the Decorated style, having become very much dilapidated, was taken down in 1882, with the exception of the embattled tower, which is still standing in the now disused churchyard. The new parish church of All Saints, erected in 1883, at a cost of £4.000, on a site given by Lord Rothschild, adjoining the new burial ground, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, from designs by Mr. Herbert Carpenter, architect, of London and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle and a temporary wooden turret at the west end containing one bell: two piscinæ and most of the stone work of the windows of the former building have been inserted in the new church: there are 220 sittings. The register dates from the year The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £203, with

NORTH MIMMS is a village and parish, 19 miles from NORTH MIMMS is a village and parish, 19 miles from London, 3 south from Hatfield and 6 south-east from St. Albans, in the Mid division of the county, hundred of Dacorum, petty sessional division of Hertford, county court district of St. Albans, Hatfield union, and in the rural deanery of Barnet, and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a building of flint, with stone dressings in the pure Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, south porch, north chapel and a low embattled western tower with spire containing 6 bells, dated 1306: near the chancel door is a brass to Robert Knolles, Elizabeth his wife and children, 1458, but the effigy of the man and the heads of two children are missing; near these are the figures of a man in armour and woman, designed to represent Richard Boteler and Martha (Olvff) his wife, c. 1560, the former is in damascened armour over a tunic of ringed mail and there are some shields of arms, and 36 English verses, but the brass is undated : on the north wall of the chancel is an effigy of a priest in full eucharistic vestments with chalice and paten, under an enriched canopy, conjectured to represent Thomas de Horton, priest of North Minus, c. 1360: affixed to the south wall of the chancel are several other brasses, including the figure of a man in full armour, bare-headed, with his feet resting on a lion and representing Henry Covert, c. 1488: under it is another figure of a man in civil robes, with his wife and ten children, probably dating from about 1490: beneath the piscina is a brass with an inscription to Thomas Hawes, of Uxbridge, Middleser, eq. 1587 and Elizabeth his wife, 1590; there is another of a child to Thomas, son of John Leucas, gent, ob. 1531, and an inscription to William de Bakthone "Botyler al prince;" all these brasses were removed from the floor of the church at the restoration in 1859: on the north side of the chancel is a huge marble monument extending to the roof, erected by his sister, Lady Elizabeth Jekyll, who lived at Brookmans in this parish, to John, Lord Somers, Baron of Evesham and Lord Chancellor in William III.'s reign, who died 26th April, 1716: in the north aisle is a low altar tomb, which formerly stood inside the communion rail, on the top of which is the incised effigy of a lady in Elizabethan costume; round the edge of the tomb is an inscription, now in some places wholly illegible, to John Beresford, alias Barford esq. of the county of Derby, Margaret his wife and several children, 1556-84: near the chancel and separated from it by a low screen of oak is the chantry or chapel of St. Catherine, built and endowed by Simon de Swanlond in the year 1328, in the north-east corner of which is an altartomb without inscription, but, from a crest carved upon it, it has been assigned with probability to Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Henry Frowick, of Newberries, Herts, and wife of John Coningsby: in the windows are some remains of heraldic glass: the pulpit is of old carved oak: there are five stained windows, the east window being a memorial to Elizabeth Christian Gaussen: the communion plate includes a covered cup of silver-gilt, given by Charles DeLact, of this parish, in the 18th century; also a curious cup of carved amber, mounted with silver-gilt, given by will by Lady Mews in 1751: there are 350 sittings, 240 being free. The register of baptisms dates from 1565; marriages and burials from 1656. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £178, net value £300, including 8 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Captain Robert George Gaussen J.P. and held since 1880 by the Rev. George Staunton Batty. From a gift in 1674 of 2A. 2B. 20P. of land, by Martha Coningsby, widow, ten labourers in husbandry not in receipt of parochial relief, receive 10s. 6d. each every Shrove Tuesday, the distribution being made by the vicar and churchwardens. Sabine's charity, bestowed in 1816 by Joseph Sabine esq. produces yearly £3 5s. 9d. of which £1 is given to the farm labourer, not receiving parish relief, who has the largest family and the remainder is distributed in bread, meat and potatoes, among all the poor widows in the parish. Four benefactions, producing together a sum the parish. Four benefactions, producing together a sum of £46, are partly devoted to apprenticeships and to the relief of the widowed poor. Bread to the amount of £12 is given on Sundays throughout the year and £6 is distributed in the same way at the chief festivals to all labourers of good character who attend church; 20s. is also divided weekly between four poor widows who do not receive parish relief and 18, 3d, is given every week to another poor widow under a charity bequeathed in 1847 by Miss M. Holmes, of Baker street, London: all these widows are elected by the trustees. Miss Caroline Lydia Casamajor left by will, dated Dec. 6, 1849, an endowment of £82 10s, yearly to the girls' and infants' schools, erected by her at Water End, a portion of which money is expended in clothing. Brookmans is the seat of Captain Robert George Gaussen J.P.: the estate comprises about 4,000 acres and extends northwards as far as Hatfield and westward up to the parishes of St. Stephen and St. Peter's, in St. Albans: the house is beautifully situated on an eminence in the home park, which contains about 500 acres and is entered on the south side nearly a mile from the mansion through a lofty arched gateway, between square embattled towers, supposed to have been built by Sir Jeremy Sambrooke about 1740: the approach to the mansion from this gate is for a considerable distance through a magnificent avenue of elms: the park commands extensive views, with St. Albans Abbey in the distance: it is finely wooded and pleasantly diversified with water; adjoining the house are pleasantly diversing the noise are extensive pleasure grounds and a pinetum with many valuable specimen trees, including a Lucombe oak, presenting green foliage all the year, cork and tulip trees, Atlantic cedar, cedars of Lebanon, cut-leaved aller and a fine speciment. men of the Wellingtonia gigantea, with other varieties of coniferæ; the kitchen garden is separated from the pleasure grounds by a high wall, which is entirely hidden by splendid banks of laurels carefully trimmed. North Mimms Park, the seat of Andrew Hamilton Tyndall Bruce esq. is one mile long, watered by a feeder of the Colne and contains upwards of 1,100 acres; the house was built by Sir Ralph Coningsby, about 1600, and is a long and lofty building of brick, with wings terminating in gables at each end: it contains some good carving, especially a chimney piece, dated 1563: in the old mansion the Princess Elizabeth slept on her way from Ashridge to London, 15th Feb. 1553-4. Potterells, adjoining, is the residence of William Cotton Curtis esq.: the park contains upwards of 200 acres. Leggatts is a small estate in this parish, sold in 1881 to Samuel Gurney Sheppard. The chief landowners are Captain Robert George Gaussen J.P. lord of the manor of Brookmans and Andrew Hamilton Tyndall Bruce esq. lord of the manor of North Minms. The soil is strong loam intermixed with gravel; Minms. 1nº son is strong and subsoil, part London and yellow clay. The chief crops are grass, wheat and barley. The area is 4,925A. 3R. 23P. of land and 20 water; rateable value, £15,512; the population in 1881 was 1,266.

glebe, in the gift of John P. Kidston esq. of Nyn Park, and held since 1880 by the Rev. William Bonsey, M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. King James' Fund, derived from houses and 21A. 34P. of land and a mineral spring, produces £234 yearly; this property was purchased by money given by King James in 1618 to Northaw parish, in money given by King James in 1618 to Northaw parish, in compensation for a portion of Northaw Common which he inclosed to enlarge his park at Theobalds; about three-fourths of this charity is usually given in aid of the schools and the balance is expended in fuel and other necessary charges on the church. Richard Coulter, of Cuffley, by will (March 21st, 1620) left 160 for the purchase of lands, the profits, now amounting to £12 yearly, to be applied yearly as follows: 10s. to the minister of Northaw to preach a sermon on the first Sunday in Lent and the residue to be distributed on the same day among twelve of the most aged poor of the parish. Mrs. Rachel Bradgate, who died July 12th, 1687, by will (dated August 24th, 1671), left £50 to the minister and poor of Northaw, the profits, now of the annual value of £7 ros. to be applied as follows: ros. for a sermon, to be preached in the parish church of Northaw yearly, on the same day on which she should happen to decease and the residue to be distributed among the poor of the said parish yearly on the same day. Babington Staveley by will (dated May 5th, 1686), left £50 for the purchase of land; the profits, now amounting to 47 ros. are distributed by the vicar, churchwardens and feoffees of the parish of Northaw among such poor of the parish as they think fit, at Christmas. Bradgate's and Staveley's charities are now amalgamated. Anne, Countess of Warwick, founded in 1603, almshouses at Chenies in Bucks, supported by a rentcharge on the manor of Nyn, and to which this parish claimed a right to present: the almshouses having been sold, the rent-charge of £20 yearly is appropriated to the two oldest male and female poor persons who have never cost of about £450: there are sittings for about 4400 persons, received parochial relief, the amount granted being £10. chiefly free. The registers, dating from the year 1564, were burnt with the church in 1881. The living is a vicarage, and well wooded and contains an ornamental lake; the net yearly value £150, with residence and about 3 acres of residence is an elegant structure of red brick, built in 1774, PIRTON is an ancient village and parish, on the Bedford-shire border of the county, about 3½ miles north-west from Hitchin and 5½ south-west from Shefford, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, union, petty sessional are the arms of Doewra, inscribed below, "Thomas Doewra, division and county court district of Hitchin, and in the rural desnery of Hitchin and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. A church was founded here in the 11th century by Ralph de Limesie, and dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary, for the support of which he granted the tithes of all his lands in the parish to the Monastery of St. Albans. The existing church of St. Mary dates from the 12th century, and was originally cruciform; it now consists only of chancel, nave, south porch and a central embattled tower with slender spire, containing 5 bells, dated respectively 1781, 1763, 1756, 1731 and 1634; some Norman work is still visible in the tower arches, and in the south chancel wall is a good double piscina of the 14th century: there is a monumental inscription to Jane, relict of Thomas Docwra esq. ob. 1645, and a floor slab inscribed to James Hanscombe, of Pirton Grange, esq. ob. 1731: in 1877 the tower was rebuilt, and in 1883 a new roof and parapet were added to the nave: upwards of £3,000 has been expended in restorations, which are not (1890) fully completed: there are 250 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from 1562; marriages, 1560; burials, 1558. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value, derived from 164 acres of glebe, £218, with residence, in the gift of the dean and chapter of Ely, and held since 1851 by the Rev. Ralph Lindsay Lough-borough. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels, capable of seating about 150 and 50 respectively. Hammond's Trust is a charity consisting of two almshouses, built in 1607 and rebuilt in 1877, with an annual income of £17. Another charity, left by the same benefactor, consists of a field of 6A. 3n. the product of which, about £20 yearly, is applied to the apprenticing of lads of this village. Toot Hill, at the base of which there are still to be seen the remains of the most, is supposed to be the site of a castle of the De Lime-sies. High Down, once the mansion of the Docurras and built in the year 1612, is a fine example of a small Elizacombe esq. is an edifice in the Elizabethan style, erected in 1879, of red brick, pleasantly situated on an eminence; and the estate has been in the possession of the Hanscombes for upwards of 300 years. At the Conquest this manor, with other extensive possessions, was granted by King William to Ralph de Limesie, with whose descendants it continued until it passed successively into the families of Odingsells, Caunton and Clinton; in the year 1602 Thomas Docwra esq. died seised of this manor and it remained with this family till transferred in 1700 to the Warburtons, who sold it in 1727 to the family of Radcliffe. At the dissolution of the Monasteries, in the reign of Henry VIII. the manor of the rectory of Pirton was seized by the crown, and after various transfers became the property, in 1756, of Beversham rilmer esq.; in 1870 it was sold to Mr. Daniel Davies, farmer, for £17,500. Francis Delmé-Radcliffe esq. J. P. of The Priory, Httchin, who is lord of the manor, Daniel Davies and William Hanscombe esqrs. are the principal landowners. The soil is chalk; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 2,757 acres; rateable value. (2,62; the propulation in 1881 was a reserved. able value, £3,634; the population in 1881 was 1,125. PUTTENHAM is a village and parish, situated near the range of Clinton chalk hills, on the Buckinghamshire border of the county, close to the Aylesbury canal, about 2 miles from Marston Gate station on the Aylesbury branch of the London and North Western railway, 5\( \) east from Aylesbury and 4 north-west from Tring, in the Western division of the county, in Dacorum hundred and petty sessional division, Berkhamsted union, Aylesbury county court district and in the rural deanery of Berkhamsted and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. A brook rising in the Chiltern Hills flows through the parish and thence into the Thames. The church of St. Mary is a building in the Decorated and Early Tudor styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells, dating from 1656 to 1714: the tower is large in proportion to the church and is built of long square blocks of Ketton stone, with flints laid in squares between each block: the roof of the nave, which dates from about the time of Henry VI. is in a remarkably good state of preservation: the rafters are supported at the wall plates by figures of saints and angels: under the ridges are two shields, one bearing the arms of Zouch and the other of Wykeham: this church formerly belonged to the Priory of Ashby, Northamptonshire, to which religious house Alan la Zouch, a distinguished warrior in Gascony and Scotland, and governor of Rockingham Castle, Northants, who died in 1314, was a liberal benefactor: the benches and pews are solidly constructed of oak, and appear to date from the time of Henry VI.: the chancel was rebuilt in 1851 and is externally faced with flint: the upper part of the tower was rebuilt and new roofed in 1889, during which year about £700 was spent on the church, the nave roof being repaired and re-covered with lead, the south aisle roof renewed, the old porch taken down and rebuilt and a new floor laid down in the chancel: there are 150 sittings, all being free. The register dates from the year 1678. is a rectory, net yearly value £200, including 200 acress of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Robert Merrick M.A. of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. Lord Rothschild, who is lord of the manor, Joseph Grout Williams esq. J.P. of Pendley, Tring, and the rector are chief landowners. The soil is heavy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are beans, oats, with some pasture. The area is 744 acres; rateable value, £1,026; the population in 1881 was 121. BEDBOURN is a parish and ancient town, situated on the river Verlam and on the Watling street, with a station on the Luton and Hemel Hempstead branch of the Midland railway, 24 miles from London, 4 north-east from Hemel Hempstead and 4½ north-west from St. Albans, in the Mid division of the county, hundred of Cashio, St. Albans liberty, petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The village, which is lighted with gas, takes its name from the Red, a small stream about a mile in length, which rises a little north of Church end, where the village first stood.

The church of St. Mary, situated at Church end, is a building of stone, half a mile south-west, and consists of chancel. nave of six bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled west-ern tower containing 6 bells, dated from 1716 to 1875: the only remaining portion of Norman date is the arcade of the north aisle, consisting of three circular columns with fluted capitals supporting rounded arches with a simple billet moulding: the rest of the building is chiefly of the 15th century, with some later features: the most interesting object within the church is the very fine rood screen of carred oak, the only example of a groined and canopied screen in the county: in the chancel are sedilia and an Easter sepulchre: in the Lady chapel, at the east end of the south aisle, which formerly extended only to the chancel pier, is a piscina and there is another in the north aisle: on the south side of the chancel is an inscription on brass to Richard Pecock, ob. 1504, and Elizabeth his wife, removed from a stone in the south aisle, where still remains the figure of a man and four sons; beneath, on a marble panel, are the figures of a man armed and his wife, with six children, all kneeling, and over these an achievement of arms; this brass has no date or inscription, but evidently belongs to the middle of the 16th century; there are memorials in the church to the families of Baskerville, 1724-1846; Eccleston and Beynon, 1694-1734; Brandreth, 1724-1779; Burr and others, in the others : in the churchyard are two large altar-tombs to the family of Carpenter, 1730-82: the church will seat 600 persons, about half of the sittings being free. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1626; marriages from 1687. The limin in the sittings being free. 1685. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from title rent-charge £315, with 2½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Earl of Verulam, and held since 1887 by the Rev. William Alexander Pope M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge.

RICKMANSWORTH, formerly called "Richmeres-wearth" or "Rykemereswearth," signifying the "rich moor meadow," is a town and parish, situated on the river Colne, near its junction with the Gade and the Chess, on the Grand Junction canal and Reading and Hatfield road, with a station on the Metropolitan railway, and is the terminal station of a branch of the London and North Western railway from Watford, 4 miles south-west from Watford, 18 from London by road and 23\frac{3}{2} by railway: the parish is in the Western division of the county, Cashio hundred, Watford petty sessional division, union and county court district and in the rural deanery of Watford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The town is lighted with gas and supplied by a company, formed in 1852, with water obtained from an artesian well, 300 feet deep, belonging to the Rickmans-worth and Uxbridge Valley Water Works. The church of St. Mary, rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1826, as a rectangular structure of brick, has recently (1890) been again rebuilt of flint with stone dressings, in the Perpendicular style, from designs by Sir Arthur Blomfield M.A., A.B.A., F.S.A. at a cost of £5,500, raised by subscription, and now consists of chancel with aisles, nave of five bays with clerestory, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower of flint, erected in 1630 and containing a clock and 8 bells: the chancel has a piscina and three sedilia, and is fitted with oak choir stalls, given by parishioners and friends in memory of the late Rev. Alleyne Higgs Barker M.A. vicar (1853-84); the stone pulpit was presented by Mr. R. W. Henderson J.P. of Basinghouse, and the brass sermon desk by Mrs. Henderson; the communion table cover was worked by the Hon. Mrs. Thomas Grosvenor: the former east window contained ancient glass originally placed about 1550 in the church of St. John at Rouen, but sold at the Revolution of 1789-92, and purchased in 1805 by the Rev. E. Hodgson, then vicar, for about 150 guineas; this glass, taken down during the recent rebuilding, is about (1890) to be replaced: in the church is an altar tomb of marble lately restored, with shield of arms and an inscription to Sir Henry (Carey) K.B. second Baron Carey of Leppington, and second Earl of Monmouth of that name, his wife Martha (Cranfield), daughter of Sir Lionel Cranfield kt. first Earl of Middlesex and several children; on his death, 13 June, 1661, both the earldom and barony became extinct; there is also a brass with effigy holding a staff and book, to Thomas Day, ob. 10 July, 1613, his wife Alice, ob. 10 July, 1585, and his wife Joane, ob. 6 Aug. 1598: the font dates only from 1826: the organ has been improved at a cost of £50, and the north porch was built at the expense of Mr. Harvey W. Fellows, of the Limes: there are 600 sittings, half of which are free. The earliest date of register is 1653. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £500 with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Alfred Edward Northey M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The vicarage house is probably the oldest in the county, some portion of it dating from 1450-60. Here is a Baptist chapel, seating 350 and a Wesleyan chapel, seating 450 Here is a cemetery of 6 acres, formed in 1857, with two chapels, and under the control of a burial board of 9 members. There are five almshouses, erected 1682, by John Fotherley, of the Bury, for five poor widows: the endowment amounts to £5 yearly, which is paid by the owner of Rickmansworth Park. John Beresford, of Rickmansworth, guve two messuages as dwellings for four poor persons, conveyed to trustees in 1686; there are now four houses, but without endowment. The parish almshouse, for 12 poor women, is maintained from a bequest by William Ford in 1681, amounting to  $\mathcal{L}_{42}$  yearly. A sum of  $\mathcal{L}_{10}$ , arising from a bequest in 1798 by Ann Lady Franklin, is distributed. The Town Hall, erected by a company in 1869, upon the site of the old one, is a structure of brick in the Gothic style, and will hold 400 persons.

The Works of the Rickmansworth and Uxbridge Valley Water Works Co. situated here, constructed during the years 1883-9, under the superintendence of Mr. J. W. Grover M.I.C.H. at a cost of about £62,000, were opened on Saturday, 6 April, 1889, and supply Rickmansworth, Harefield, Hillingdon, Cowley, West Drayton, Hayes and Harlington.

A market was formerly held on Saturday, but has been scontinued for many years. A cattle fair is still held on A market was formerly here of Saddray, but has been discontinued for many years. A cattle fair is still held on November 24th; other fairs have been abolished. Here is the extensive brewery of Salter and Co. Limited. At Warren hill there is a remarkable echo. The celebrated William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, settled here on his marriage in 1672 and lived for four years in a house in the High street, now known as Basing House; he left Ricksmans.

worth for America in 1677, and returning to this country, eventually died at Ruscombe, Berks, 30 July, 1718. Morr Park, about a mile south, the seat of Lord Ebury P.C., J.P. is much admired for the variety and beauty of the views; the mansion is a magnificent building of Portland stone, erected about 1673, by James Fitzroy: Benjamin Heskin Styles esq. who bought the estate from the Duchess of Monmouth in 1720, may be said to have rebuilt the house; he added the present Corinthian portico, the columns of which are 50 feet high and constructed within a large hall, reaching to the roof; the interior was in part decorated by Sir James Thornhill and the whole work cost upwards of £150,000: Sir Lawrence Dundas bart. of Kerse House, Falkirk, who bought the estate in 1763, further embellished the interior; the wings, including a chapel, were removed by Mr. Thomas Bates Rous, who became the owner in 1785: the park covers 500 acres. Rickmansworth Park is the seat of John William Birch esq. J.P., F.R.G.s The manor, which with four others constituted the lordship of Pynesfield, was a part of the demesne of the Saxon kings and was bestowed by Offa on the abbots of St. Albans and confirmed by succeeding kings; subsequently, as the result of exchange, it came to Sir Ralph Boteler in 1456 and next to George Nevill, Archbishop of York (1464-76), on the seizure of whose estates by Edward IV. it came into the hands of the Crown and was granted by Henry VIII. to Cardinal Wolsey, after whose fall the king bestowed it on the Russells, by whom it was afterwards exchanged for Woburn Abbey. The principal landowners are Lord Ebury P.C. John Saunders Gilliat esq. M.A., M.P., J.P. of the Cedars, Chorley Wood, who is lord of the manor of Rickmansworth, and Thomas Clutterbuck esq. of Micklefield Hall, Croxley Green, lord of the manor of Micklefield. The area is 10,020 380 acres of land and 107 of water; rateable value, £30,630; the population in 1881 was 5,511.

BATCHWORTH is a hamlet adjoining on the Middlesex

The church of St. John the Baptist, restored in 1872, is a large structure of dressed flint and rubble in the Early English style, which formed part of the ancient conventual church and was erected between 1250 and 1280: it consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles and a lofty embattled western tower of the same materials, oblong in shape, with quoins of finely tooled stone, and four pinnacles, and containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast in 1739: the church contains the following brasses: -in the nave, to William Taverham, or Tabram, rector of Therfield, ob. 1432 or 1421, upper part of the effigy and the canopy only being extant; a plain cross, without inscription, within the altar rails on floor of chancel; a civilian and his wife, with effigies, c. 1500, in the nave; an inscription of eight English verses, c. 1500, now loose, in a chamber in the tower; an inscription to William Chamber, ob. 1546, in the north aisle; and at the east end of the north aisle is an effigy of a knight in armour, finely executed in alabaster, believed to represent a member of the family of Scales; a sketch of this figure in its perfect condition is given in Add. MS. 17,458, f. 86, Brit. Mus.: the old screen, discovered about 30 years ago, beneath the gallery: during the restoration, in the year 1872, three superb Early English lancet windows were discovered on either side of the chancel: there are some good stained windows: in the vestry under the tower is a library of about 200 volumes, mostly given by J. Chappelow to the Royston Library, described in the diary of Henry Crabb Robinson F.S.A. : there are many memorials in the church and churchyard to the Wortham and Beldam families: there are 600 sittings, 200 being free. The church is about to be enlarged by the erection of a new chancel with south aisle, and organ chamber and vestry; a sum of £2,200 has already (1890) been subscribed for this purpose. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from 1662; burials, 1678; the registers for 1745 are lost. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £130, including 8 acres of glebc, with residence and an annexation from the parish of Therfield, effected in the year 1857, value about £60 gross, in the gift of Lord Hampden P.C., G.C.B. and held since 1877 by the Rev. Joseph Harrison

M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge.

The Congregational chapel, in John street, first founded in 1705, was erected in 1843 at a cost of £4,000 and a school-room adjoining at a cost of about £850; the chapel was 18-seated and restored in 1884 at a cost of about £600.

The Congregational chapel, in Kneesworth street, built in 795, has sittings for about 600 persons and a small attached burial ground; in 1879 a Sunday school was erected on adjacent ground, and in 1887 the chapel was thoroughly restored.

Here is also a Unitarian chapel, with 75 sittings. The Wesleyan chapel, in Queen's road, built in 1887 at a cost of £770, is a structure of brick with atone dressings, seating 250 persons.

An additional churchyard, in the Melbourn road, was formed and consecrated in 1878 at a cost of about £600; it is nearly two acres in extent and has a mortuary chapel.

A Nonconformist cemetery of one acre, situated in the Melbourn road, was formed in 1865 at a cost of about £800, and has one mortuary chapel; it is the property of the Royston Cemetery Co. Limited.

The Institute is a substantial building of white brick at the corner of Melbourn street, erected by subscription in 1855, at a cost of about f 1,600, and opened in 1856 by the Earl of Hardwicke: on the ground floor there is a fine museum with class and lecture rooms and above these is a lecture hall with a gallery, holding altogether 500 persons. The library contains about 2,000 volumes; it is managed by a committee appointed annually by the members.

The Market House, situated on Market hill, is a brick building, erected about 1836; the market for corn and cattle is held on Wednesday.

Fairs are held on Ash Wednesday, Easter Wednesday,
Whit Wednesday, first Wednesday in July and first Wednesday in July and first Wednesday in July and first Wednesday in July and first Wednesday in July and first Wednesday in July and first Wednesday in July and first Wednesday in July and first Wednesday.

nesday after the 10th of October for cattle.

Here are two banks; one belongs to Messrs. Fordham, Gibson and Co. and the other is a branch of Fosters', at Cambridge (open on Wednesday); there are gas, water and manure works and steam flour mills; some malting, brewing and lime burning is also carried on.

Two weekly newspapers are published here: the "Herts and Cambs Reporter and Royston Crow," edited and printed in the town; and the "Royston Weekly News."

The Royston cricket club have frequent matches on the heath during the season.

A Cottage Hospital was erected in 1869, at a cost of about £1,000, raised by subscription: the building is of two stories, containing four wards, and has eight beds: the institution is supported by donations and annual subscriptions from the public, aided by small weekly payments from those patients who can afford them: there are no paid officers except the matron and nurse. The average yearly number of patients is 46; during the year 1889 there were 49 patients.

There are almshouses belonging to this parish, situated in the parish of Bassingbourn, Cambridgeshire, and endowed by deed in 1833 by Mrs. Barfield, widow of a dissenting minister, at one time resident in Royston, for eight widows of good moral character and not under 60 years of age: the allowance to each widow is five shillings weekly and a ton of coals yearly. The income is now £120 yearly, derived from money in Indian stocks. In 1885 four other almshouses were erected in Queen's road and form a private charity (as distinguished from trusts which are subject to the control of the Charity Commissioners), intended for spinsters, chiefly of, but not limited to, Royston; each inmate receives 30s. a month, the income being derived from the rental of a house built at a cost of £1.000. Other charities, producing £25 yearly, for distribution in kind, are derived chiefly from lands and tenements left by Chester, Braud, Joseph Wortham, — Warden, Sir T. Foot and others from 1609 to 1851. Lee's Charity (the Cave estate), consisting of two houses, produces about 28 yearly for public uses.

Here was a priory of Black or Austin Canons, founded in the reign of Henry II. about 1180, by Eustace de Mere, in honour of SS. Mary and John the Baptist, and St. Thomas of Canterbury. At the Dissolution there were ten Canons and the revenues were estimated at £89.

A hunting-seat was built at Royston by James I. and for upwards of 40 years was the occasional residence of that parish of Royston by Order in Council, 1890.

monarch and of Charles I. who last visited it on the 24th June, 1647, when he was brought hither from Newmarket in the custody of General Fairfax : a portion of this building is still standing and in good condition. King James' stables, now used as cottages, are on the outskirts of Royston Heath.

On the range of hills to the east and west are a great many barrows, and antiquities are found in the neighbourhood.

Under part of Melbourn street, which separates the counties of Herts and Cambs is a curious subterranean cavern, known as the "Cave:" it is hewn out of pure chalk and was discovered by accident, in August, 1742, by some workmen, while engaged in fixing a post in the Market place: the height of the cave, from the floor to the top of the dome, is 253 feet; the length of the aperture leading to the surface is 23 feet, altogether 28 feet; the bottom is not quite circular and is 17 feet in diameter; the broad step, or polium, surrounding the floor is hexagonal, 6 inches high and 3 feet wide; 7 feet above the floor a cornice, 2 feet broad, runs round the walls; almost the whole circle between the podium and the cornice has been sculptured in low relief with crucifixes, saints, has been sculptured in low retrieves with cutanase, sames, martyrs and historical pieces; many, if not all of them, have been coloured: a pamphlet on "the Origin and Use of the Royston Cave," by the late Joseph Beldam esq. F.s.A. has been published by Mr. Warren. Mr. Beldam recapitulates in these words:—"The result of our whole inquiry is the following:-ist. That the cave was first formed by means of shafts, either of British or Romano-British construction, at a period anterior to Christianity. 2nd. That at a somewhat later period it was used as a Roman sepulchre. 3rd. That about the time of the Crusades it received the greater part of its present decorations and was then, if not before, converted into a Christian oratory, to which a hermitage was probably attached. 4th. That it remained open until the Reformation, when it was finally filled up, closed and subsequently forgotten."

Royston gives name to the hooded crow, the Corous Cornix of Linnæus, which visits the town about the beginning of winter and leaves in the spring.

The Rookery is the residence of Henry Fordham esq. J.P. and Yew Tree House that of Francis John Fordham esq. J.P.

Viscount Hampden P.C., G.C.B. is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The other landowners are Francis John Fordham esq. J.P. John Phillips esq. J.P. and Hale Wortham esq. D.L.

By letters patent granted 28 August, 1877, on the foundation of the bishopric, this town is now styled "The City of St. Alban."

The ancient liberty of St. Alban formerly had a separate commission of the peace and other privileges, but the County of Hertford and Liberty of St. Alban Act, 1874, divided the county into the eastern or Hertford division and the western or liberty of St. Alban division, and justices of the peace now act for the whole county. Courts of quarter sessions are held here four times a year for the trial of prisoners, such county administrative business as appertains to Justices in Quarter Sessions being taken at Easter and Petty sessions for the city are held every Wednesday and for the liberty division every Saturday.

The government of the city is vested in its corporation, which consists of a mayor, 4 alderman and 12 councillors who also act as the Urban Sanitary Authority. The city has a commission of the peace.

property of a company, were established about 1865, and furnish an abundant supply of water from wells situated at the north-east part of the city.

Verulam is one of the most ancient places in the country, being of Euskarian, British or Belgic origin, and deriving its name from the river Ver or Verlam, which flowed beneath its walls and at one time formed a great pool in the lower town, the memory of which is preserved in the name of Fishpool street. On its coins the name of the town appears rising on the time and it is said to have been the residence or capital of Cassivellaunus, prince of the Cassii, whose territory was afterwards in part transferred to the Monastery of St. Alban, under the name of Albaneston, which the Normans exchanged for the still existing appellation of Caisho or Cashio; on the second still existing appellation of Caisho or Cashio; on the second invasion of Britain by Cæsar n.c. 54, Cassivellaunus was defeated and the Britons, it is supposed, retreated into Verulam; about A.D. 42 it acquired the distinction of municipal rights and privileges, but the fidelity of its inhabitants to the Roman power aroused the anger of Boadicea, Queen of the Iceni, who, in A.D. 67, indiscriminated and the company of the Iceni, who, have not without still the company of the Iceni, who, in Iceni, who have without still the company of the Iceni, who have without still the Iceni, who have without still the Iceni, who is a company though not without still the Iceni, who is a company though not without still the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, who is a company to the Iceni, whe nately massacred 70,000 persons, though not without quick retaliation by Paulinus, the Roman general, who retook the city and slaughtered the Britons. Alban, a Roman officer, who stands recorded in history as the proto-martyr of Britain, under the name of St. Alban, had given shelter and hospitality to Amphibalus, a Christian deacon, and having further assisted him to escape and adopted from him the Christian faith, he brought upon himself the death designed for his friend and was executed A.D. 286 on Holmhurst Hill. where the abbey charch now stands. In the sixth century the city fell into the hands of the Saxons, who changed the name to Watlingceaster, from that of the Roman road, Watling street, which passed through it. About the year 793, Offa II., King of Mercia, animated to this work, as William of Malmesbury affirms, by Charlemagne, founded at the place of his martyrdom, a monastery, dedicated to St. Alban and having recovered the buried relics of the saint, deposited them in a reliquary adorned with gold, silver and precious stones, and conveyed them back with great solemnity to the little church, which he had repaired as an asylum, till a more worthy edifice should be built: having obtained the Gas Works were erected in 1826, and in 1853 the present more worthy edifice should be built: having obtained the company purchased the works. The Water Works, also the consent of Pope Adrian and the formal canonization of the

The Abbey church, one of the finest buildings of the kind in the kingdom, is in the form of a Latin cross, the axis pointing about 20 degrees to the south of east, and consisting of nave with western porches, aisles, transepts, choir with aisles, saint's chapel, eastern Lady chapel with antechapel and a chantry chapel on its south side, and a central tower containing 8 bells (of which the tenor weighs 30 cwt.) and a sanctus bell: the central parts are the most ancient and are built of Roman bricks from the ruins of Verulam: the external length from east to west is 548 feet 4 inches and from the great east to west window 424 feet 10 inches, the width between the outer faces of the transepts being 189 feet 6 inches and the height of the tower 144 feet : the Lady chapel, which appears to have been in building from 1280 to 1320, formerly communicated with the general structure through its ante-chapel, by three Pointed arches, which in 1553 were blocked up and a public thoroughfare constructed through the ante-chapel; but during the restoration this thoroughfare was closed and the antechapel has now resumed its original form: the transepte were until lately surmounted at their southern angles by circular turrets, of Norman date, each of which originally terminated in a conical roof; at the northern angles were smaller octagonal turrets formed when the fronts of these transepts were changed from the Norman to the Early Pointed style, and the parapets and turrets were subsequently embattled: during the operations of Lord Grimthorpe, 1887-9, the ancient exterior features of the transepts have been almost wholly destroyed: the great tower at first had turrets at the four angles; these gave way in the thirteenth century to an octagonal lantern and this in its turn disappearing leaves the original Norman design incomplete. The remains of the cloisters, 150 feet square, are visible against the south wall of the nave, but the elegant Decorated tracery of the arcading has been cut into or concealed by new buttresses, erected by Lord Grimthorpe: the chapter house stood in front of the south transept and the sacristy was immediately under its eastern front, the refectories and dormitories being south of the cloisters and forming a range of buildings parallel with the nave.

The Lady chapel, erected in the time of Hugh de Eversden,

1308 to 1326, together with its ante-chapel, has undergone partial restoration, the expense of which was borne by a special fund contributed to by the ladies of Hertfordshire; the east window of this chapel has been renewed and filled with stained glass at the sole cost of the Corporation of London: many persons of note, among whom were Henry (Percy), and Earl of Northumberland, Edmund (Beaufort) k.G. 1st Duke of Somerset and John, Lord Clifford, were buried in this chapel after the first battle of St. Albans, May 23rd, 1455: in the centre of the ante-chapel stood the shrine of St. Amphibalus, whose remains were discovered at Redbourn and brought to the abbey in the time of Abbot de Gorham, 1151-66; in 1872, during the process of clearing out the arches at the east end of the Saint's chapel and also of removing, not long afterwards, the material filling in some of the windows in the Lady chapel, pieces of finely carred white stone or clunch, from the Totternhoe quarries, in Bedfordshire, were met with, which proved to have formed part of the pedestal of the shrine; these fragments have been carefully reunited and set up on the spot they formerly occupied, and the structure, although far from complete, is sufficiently so to convey an accurate idea of its original design; the basement, 23 inches in height, 4 feet wide and 6 long, is sculptured all round with fretwork and on its western face bears the letters "AMPHIB...S;" shove the basement at each end is an arched niche and on each side an open arcade of two bays, all being canopied; above is a cornice 12 inches high; the whole being of rather late Decorated work: immediately opposite the exterior door leading into the south aisle of the choir is the iron grylle through which a sight was afforded to pilgrims of the shrine of St. Alban: on the south side of the aisle is a memorial window to Archdeacon Watson, who died in 1839, having held the archdeaconry of St. Albans for 23 years: beneath this is a tabletomb, the slab of which, incised with 5 crosses, was formerly that of an altar and near it the brass effigy of Rauff Rowlatt, merchant of the Staple and a lineal ancestor of Sarah. Duchess of Mariborough, and Jane, his wife, 1519: from this aisle a doorway admits into the Saint's chapel, so-called because it inclosed the relics of the pro-martyr, St. Alban, which remained here, it is believed, until the Dissolution in 1539: in the centre of the chapel stands the partially restored pedestal or sub-structure on which the feretrum or shrine, properly so called, containing the bones of the saint, once rested: the fragments of Purbeck marble and clunch (chiefly the former) from which it has been reconstructed and numbering upwards of 2,000, were discovered in 1872, built into various blocked up arches adjacent; this pedestal is of early r4th century work, oblong in form, nearly 9 feet in height and 3 feet 2 inches wide and consists of 3 basement, raised on two steps, supporting ten canopiel niches, four on each side and one at each end, above which is a cornice, 6 inches high; projecting from the lowest part of the pedestal and surrounding it, are fourteen small bases. each of which support a slender shaft attached to the main structure and terminating in a finial; below these, on either side, are three hexagonal bases, formerly supporting six twisted shafts, perhaps used to sustain tapers or images; the shrine itself which reposed on this pedestal, consisted of an inner chest containing the remains of the saint, and an onter case richly adorned with silver gilt and jewels, and above all was a canopy let down and drawn up by a rope: on the north side of the chapel is the watching loft of carved oak in which a monk was posted and hence designated custos feretri on the south side is the elegant and elaborate monument of Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, th and youngest son of Henry IV. and Protector during the minority of Henry VI. and Protector during the minority of Henry VI. who died in 1446: the remains of the royal duke, contained in a leaden coffin, covered by a wooden case, lie in a rault immediately below, to which access is readily obtained by a 'restored and a new west front built in the Early English and short flight of stone steps from the floor above.

The saint's chapel is separated from the sanctuary by the magnificent altar-screen of stone, erected, as is believed, by William Wallingford, 36th abbot and restored in 1890 at the William Wallingford, 36th abbot and restored in 1890 at the expense of Henry Hucks Gibbs esq. of Aldenham House, by Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter, under the direction of Sir Arthur W. Blomfield M.A., A.R.A., F.S.A. architect: the vacant niches have been filled with statues and the damaged stone work renewed and the screen now forms one of the most attractive features of the interior: in the north aisle is the fine chantry of Abbot Ramryge, appropriated in 1678 as the burial place of the Farington family: opposite to it is the simpler chantry of John of Wheathamnstead. 22rd abbot. bb. 1462, in which is deposited tamily: opposite to it is the simpler chantry of John of Wheathampstead, 3grd abbot, ob. 1463, in which is deposited the very fine Flemish brass (engraved c. 1360) of John de le Mare, 3oth abbot, ob. 1396: on the floor are the despoiled gravestones of Abbots de la Moote, Mentmore, Wallingford and Eversden: here also is the brass effigy of Sir Anthony de Grey, of Ruthyn, son and heir of Edmund, Earl of Kent, ob. 1480, and a similar memorial to Robert Beauner, a monk of the abbey, ob. c. 1470: next the north door is the elaborate, but rained brass of John Stoke, abbot, ob. 1451, and near it those of Richard Standon, a priest, ob. 1500 and of Henry Grymbald, chaplain, ob. 1522: adjoining these is a defaced slab, with a Norman-French inscription in Lombardic characters, to John of Berkhampstead, 25th abbot, ob. 1302 and next this is a slab with the figures of a knight in armour and his lady, inscribed to Bartholomew Halsey and Florens his wife: and there are besides several other brasses in a more or less mutilated condition: on either side of the sanctuary are projecting structures of 13th century work, with doorways leading into the aisles and supporting lofty and elegant canopies: the roof is groined in wood and painted with the Evangelistic symbols: the central tower rests on four mas-Evalueistic symbols: the central tower tease above these, where it has been newly ceiled with panelled oak bearing the red and white roses of the Houses of York and Lancaster: the baptistery extends from the western arch of the tower to within one bay of the rood screen, the organ being placed in within one day of the room screen, the organ terms places in a gallery near the screen; at the south-east angle, under the tower arch, is the Bishop's throne, a modern canopied structure of oak, lent by the Dean and Chapter of Rochester: overhead is a magnificent painted ceiling, executed between 1376 and 1400, the panels containing representations of the coronation of Our Lord and of the B. V. M. with the arms of nearly all the kingdoms in Europe, as well as the Te Deum and quotations from the antiphons at matins and lauds in the Sarum breviary: the transepts, forming part of the Norman structure raised by Paul de Caen, 14th abbot (1077-97), have been largely rebuilt by Lord Grimthorpe : the Perpendicular windows in the north and south fronts have been removed and replaced on the south by five enormous graduated lancets rising into the gable but cut across within by the new roof, and made to appear of equal height: the columns of the triforium, both here and in the south transept and tower are remarkable for their rudeness and want of uniformity and may be regarded as remnants of the Saxon church, assigned to these positions when it was superseded by the present building: on the right hand of the south transept is the grated window of a watching chamber, formed by excavation in the solid brickwork, the entrance to which is still discernible on the outside wall and beneath it on the floor is the memorial slab, with brass figure and inscription, of Thomas Rutlond, sub-prior, ob. 1521: this transept had originally two apsidal chapels on its eastern side, dedicated to the Virgin and St. Simeon, but removed in the time of Edward II. to make room for a spacious sacristy: the Norman doorway in the south-west angle of this transept originally led only to the triforium and clerestory and to some chambers and passages outside the walls of the church, but later the wall was entirely pierced, giving an entrance into the Abbot's Cloister: the roofs of both transepts previous to Lord Grimthorpe's restoration were flat and panelled, and painted with shields of arms and the letters I. H. S. within chaplets; they are now replaced by plain panelled wooden

The nave proper, including the portion inclosed by the rood screen, consists of 13 bays, 9 of these now constituting the actual nave in which Divine service is held: this part of the edifice is of three periods, the whole of the north side, with the exception of four bays of Early Pointed work, being part of the original Norman church : its transformation was begun by John de Cella, 21st abbot and continued and completed by William de Trumpington, his successor, the work including the conversion of the porch and of five bays on the south side: the remaining portion, on account of the fall of some part of it, was in part restored in the Decorated style

Decorated styles, under the direction and at the cost of Lord Grimthorpe, and was reopened in October, 1885: the nine windows in the north aisles of the ante-choir and nave are the work of Abbot Wheathampstead, who also filled them with stained glass, some of which still remains, including the lamb and cagle cognizances of Wheathampstead and the royal arms of Edward III. and three of his sons, viz. Edward the Black Prince, Lionel, Duke of Clarence and John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster: in the western part of the south aisle is the entrance to a passage, formerly leading to the aisle is the entrance to a passage, formerly leading to the cloisters; its eastern part, forming the south aisle of the ante-choir, is also pierced by the abbut's door, a fine composition consisting of a central doorway, flanked by recessed arches, containing panelled pedestals, the whole finished by a carved cornice with cresting, and here a new but incongruous porch has been built by Lord Grimthorpe, constructed of imitation Roman bricks: in the wall of this aisle is a piscina resting on a pedestal of clustered columns beneath the arch of a recessed tomb; above which an inscription records the interment here of the hermits Roger and Sigar, the former dwelling in a hermitage near Dunstable and the latter in the wood of Northaw; the monument of Roger and Sigar is mentioned in Harleian MS. No. 3775, "Monumenta Ecclesiæ S. Albani," and dated 1429: Holy Cross screen, formerly extending entirely across the church, divides the nave from the choir, which is reached by a door on either side; the foundation of the screen, three feet in breadth, is continued across the south aisle to the outer wall, and has recently been extended across the north aisle by Lord Grimthorpe; upon its western side are distinctly visible the ancient positions of two alters, the central alter being for the service of the people congregated in the nave, and that on the north side being an "altare animarum," at which masses were celebrated for the dead; the space above these is finely canopied and crowned by an elaborate crested cornice: the building has little of external ornament, but presents numerous features of interest; on the east walls of the transept the pitch of the roofs of the apsidal chapels, removed in the 15th century, may still be observed, and on the south wall of the nave the panelled tracery of the cloisters: since the dissolution of the abbey, the church has received various contributions of money at intervals for repairs and restor-

In 1612 James I. after personally viewing the structure on his progress to the north, granted a brief for collections to be made throughout England and Wales and a sum of about £2,000 was thus collected ; in 1681 further collections were made by brief and expended upon the building in 1683, as the date in the east window records and at the same time the arms of certain nobility and gentry who contributed, were emblazoned on shields and affixed to the groining of the roof, where they still remain: in 1689 a grant was made to the church for repairs out of certain ecclesiastical funds: in 1721 there was another brief and again in 1764: in 1832 great repairs and improvements were effected under the superintendence of Mr. Cottingham, architect, the cost being defrayed by voluntary subscriptions, chiefly in the county of Herts : in 1856 a public county meeting was held at St. Albans, under the presidency of the Earl of Verulam, to consider the best means of restoring and upholding the Abbey church and of obtaining for it the dignity of a cathedral; but the operations of the committee then appointed were eventually limited to the purchase of a plot of ground on the north side of the church and the carrying out of a on the north side of the church and the carrying out of a series of important works during the years 1860-1, by the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A.: the repair of the fabric was afterwards undertaken and has been going on for several years from the designs and at the cost of the Right Hon. Buron Grimthorpe P.C., LL.D. of Batchwood; in 1870-1 the piers on the north side of the presbytery were renewed, and the tower, which had for some time shown signs of subsidence, was extensively repaired with concrete, brickwork and cement and bound together with iron ties: new floors were laid down for the ringing chambers, a new bell frame inserted and the bells rebung, and on the 30th December, 1871, the bells were rung for the first time for 40 years: among the mural monuments in the church may be mentioned one in the south aisle of the choir to Mr. John Thrale, his wife Margaret and children, with two marble busts. 1704-8 and opposite to this another and finer monument of the same character in white and coloured marbles to William King esq. 1766: in the nave is a memorial to John Jones, undermaster of the grammar school, ob. 1886, and author of a poem entitled "Fanum Sancti Albani," now quite unknown: some interesting frescoes were laid open by the late Dr. Nicholson in 1862 on the western faces of the Norman piers between the nave and north aisle, as well as by Hugh de Eversden, 27th abbot and completed by Richard de Mentmore. 29th abbot, 1335-1349: the nave has been Christopher, the Annunciation, the Crucifixion and of Our Lord in glory, and are supposed to indicate "stations" at ! which prayers were offered during processions &c. and to have been executed at periods extending from the 12th to the 14th century: the admission to the nave of the church is free: the public are admitted daily to view other portions of the cathedral by tickets 6d. each, obtainable at the booksellers' shops in the town and of the verger at the abbey : the proceeds are appropriated to the restoration fund.

At a short distance north-west of the abbey stands the gate house, a fine Perpendicular structure, for many years used as a gaol, with reference to which purpose it was first constructed and rebuilt by Thomas de la Mare, 30th abbot, 1349-96; this gate house, now occupied by the Grammar school, led to the chief court of the Abbey and in the field beyond are hillocks marking the site of the domestic buildings. The register dates from the year 1558, but the portion from 1691 to 1741 is missing. The living of the abbey is a rectory, gross yearly value about £350, with residence, and held since 1868 by the Ven. Walter John Lawrance M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, Archdeacon of St. Albans, Under the operation of the Municipal Corand surrogate. porations Act of 1835 the advowson was sold by the Corporation and purchased by Dr. Nicholson and by him devised to the Bishop of Rochester, and is now under the provisions of the St. Albans Bishopric Act, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans. In the immediate vicinity, on the three principal roads leading from the monastery can be perceived the three churches built by Ulsinus, sixth abbot of St. Albans, and dedicated respectively to St. Peter, St. Michael and St.

St. Peter's church, standing on a commanding site north of the town, by the side of the road leading to Wheathampstead, consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a central tower with plain parapet, rebuilt with brick in 1804 and containing a clock and a fine modern peal of 12 bells, the tenor D weighing 24 cwt.; the bells, one of which had to be recast, were rehung in 1889, with new frames and fit-tings, the belfry and ringing chamber refloored, and the tower repaired internally under the direction of Mr. F. W. Kinneir-Tarke, architect, of St. Albans and London, at a total cost of about £300, raised by local subscription and churchwardens' fund: this church was formerly cruciform, with north and south transepts, the chancel extending 40 feet the structure, being in bad repair, were pulled down and the materials sold in 1799: the nave is separated from the aisles by six lofty arches of Early Perpendicular date on either side: in each of the five windows of the north aisle are fragments of ancient glass, dating from about 1400 and consisting of knightly, ecclesiastical and other figures, and in one are the arms of Edmund of Langley, fifth son of Edward III. ob. 1 Aug. 1402: all the windows in the south aisle and some others are filled with modern stained glass, some being gifts to the church; the west front displays in the centre an Early English doorway, with a Perpendicular window above, flanked on either side by an hexagonal turret: Edward Strong, master mason of St. Paul's Cathedral, who died in 1723, is buried in the north aisle, under a tomb of white and grey marble, supporting his bust with a long inscription to himself, his wife and daughter: there are also memorials to Lieut. Col. William Dobyns, lieutenant gover-nor of Berwick, 1738-9 and others of that family; to the Rev. Robert Rumney, for twenty-eight years vicar of this church, ob. 1743 and to John Rudston LL.D. ob. 1691: the churchyard contains the tombs of Dr. Nathaniel Cotton M.D. the poet and the friend of Cowper, d. 2 August, 1788; the inscription also commemorates his wife and son: Elizabeth, daughter of William, 4th Earl of Essex, and widow of John third Lord Monson, is also buried here; she died 23 Feb. 1834: there are brasses with effigies to Roger Pemberton esq. high sheriff and founder of almshouses in the city, ob. 1627, and Elizabeth, his wife with 6 children, one of whom. Ralph, was mayor of St. Albans; and on the reverse of the inscription is one to John Ball, brick maker, ob. 1515; there is another brass with impaled shields of arms to Mrs. Elizabeth Windham, d. 5 Mar. 1735; the organ, given by Christopher Pache M.D. was placed in a gallery built for it Christopher Pacne M.D. was placed in a given about 1725-6: there are nearly 800 sittings, all being free. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe-rent charge £327 with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1842 by the Rev. Horatio Nelson Dudding M.A. late fellow of Exeter College, Oxford.

St. Michael's church, situated on the west side of the town. is an ancient building, partly Saxon, founded about the roth century by Ulsinus, sixth abbot of St. Albans, and is believed to occupy the site of a heatine temple, within the site of the ancient Verulam: the churchyard, although it has been used for centuries, still includes ground where, by reason of solid masonry beneath, it is almost impossible to dig a grave; the church is built of flint largely intermixed with tiles taken from the ruins of Verulamium and consists of chancel, nave of five bays, north aisle, south chapel, south porch and an embattled western tower with turret containing a clock and 6 bells, five of which are dated 1739 and the remaining one, 1845; the church was generally restored in 1867: the south chapel is lighted at its eastern end by a small circular window, between two tall lancets: the east window of the chancel is Decorated: the church contains some fine specimens of stained glass, chiefly memorial, the west window, with figures of St. Michael and attendant angels, being inserted to the memory of Joshua Lomax, the chief attraction of this church is the monument of Sir Francis Bacon, Viscount St. Albans, and Lord Chancellor in the reign of James I. which is fixed in the north wall of the chancel and consists of a marble statue of the great chancellor seated in a high-backed chair within a round-headed niche; beneath is an inscription in Latin and the date of his death, 9 April, 1626: there is a brass in the nave to Thomas Wolvey, surveyor and esq. to Richard II. ob. 1430; and one in the south chapel with the figures of a man and his wife and a shield of arms to John Peacock and his wife Maud, c. 1380: on the south wall of this chapel are the remains of a memorial fresco with eight shields of arms to John Maynard, ob. 1556, and in the exterior north wall of the chancel, near its junction with the aisle, is a recessed Decorated arch, within which lies a flat coffin-shaped slab bearing a raised floriated cross: above the arch westward is a small and very narrow opening in the wall, perhaps intended for a low side window: at the east end of the wall, higher up, is a small arched recess: by the side of the pathway, a little south-west of the tower, is a Roman coffin, found in a field on Kingsbury farm, in this parish, inMarch, 1813: there are 420 sittings, 210 being free. The register dates from the year 1643 and contains several entries of marriages performed at Gorhambury. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £322, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Verulam, impropriator of the great tithes, and held since 1850 by the Rev. Benjamin Hutchinson, surrogate, and domestic chaplain to the Earl of Verulam. At Childwick Green is a private chapel belonging to John Blundell Maple esq. M.P. holding about 120 persons, and served by the clergy of St. Michael's.

St. Stephen's church, standing south-west of the town, on the Watford road, was also founded by Abbot Ulsinus in the 10th century and consists of a chancel with chapel on the south side, nave of five bays with small clerestory, south aisle, south porch and a wooden belfry with broach spire on the western gable, supported on the arches of oak, and containing a peal of 6 bells: the oldest part of this church appears to be the west wall, which is pierced by two small but widely-splayed Norman windows: one large and welldefined Norman arch, part of the arcading of the now lost north aisle remains in the nave wall and other portions are visible on the outside: the south aisle is late 13th century work and has a large double piscina: to this date also belongs the south arcade: the other parts of the church belong to the 15th and 16th centuries: the chancel arch of oak is, for the most part, a restoration: the most interesting object within the building is an ancient brass eagle lectern, formerly in the Abbey Church at Holyrood, Edinburgh 5 feet 7 inches high and about 2 feet in width across the outstretched wings of the bird : on the globe supporting the eagle are the arms of Crichton, with a mitre and crosier and the inscription, · Georgius Crichtoun Episcopus Dunkeldensis "and it would hence appear that the lectern was given to Holyrood Abbey by this bishop, who had previously been its abbot, from 1515 to 1524; it was found buried near the vestry door in the churchyard in 1750 and is supposed to have been placed there for safety, having been brought from Scotland, as is affirmed, by Sir Richard Lee, on his mission thither in 1544 with Edward (Seymour) Earl of Hertford: several of the windows are stained, the east window being a memorial to Marcus Richard Southwell, 1860: in the south chapel are the brass figures of a man and his wife, with nine children, believed to represent William Robins esq. clerk of the signet to Edward IV. ob. 1482 and his wife Katherine: the font, a 15th century work, is octagonal, the bowl being adorned with angels and shields: the church was restored in 1860, at an expense of £2,600, subscribed by the parishioners, and has about 200 sittings. The register of marriages and burials dates from 1558; baptisms, 1597. The living is 8 vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £469, with 17 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1880 by the Rev. William Dudley Waddell-Dudley M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge.

Christ Church is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1859, out of the parishes of St. Alban and St. Michael. The church, in Verulam road, was partly built in 1847 by the late Alexander Raphael esq. M.P. for St. Albans, for a Catholic church and left in an unfinished state: at his decease it was sold to Mrs. Isabella Worley, of New Barnes, in the parish of St. Peter, who completed it in 1856 as a Protestant church, with residence for incumbent and schools, at a total cost of fir, 500; it is a building of Bath stone in ! the Lombardic style, consisting of chancel, nave of six bays, aisles and a western campanile containing one bell : in the chancel is a memorial window erected in 1887 to the Rev. Henry Smith, late incumbent, 1859-87: the oak lectern presented by public subscription the same year also com-memorates him: there are 350 sittings, 250 free. The register dates from the year 1859. The living is a vicarage, net value £180, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and beld since 1887 by the Rev. Edward Cumming Ince M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The church is endowed with £3,390 £2} per Cent. Consols and the pew rents, amounting together to about £180 yearly, besides annual grants from Queen Anne's Bounty and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to the amount of £1,133. The population in 1881 was Dagnall Street Baptist Chapel. The church worshipping here was founded about 1600 at the village of Kensworth, and was removed to St. Albans about 1700. The chapel, built on the site of the former one removed in 1884, is a building of red brick and stone in the Early English style, from designs by Mr. Morton M. Glover, architect, and consists of nave with apse, organ chamber and behind the apse an octagonal baptistery: the windows are stained: there are sittings for 600 persons: under the chapel is a large and lofty schoolroom and there are 16 class rooms, a vestry and

In the town were formerly three nunneries, in one of the road leading to Dunstable; it was founded in 1190 by which—that of St. Mary at Sopwell—it is said Henry VIII. was married to Anne Boleyn; this religious house, situated on the south bank of the Ver, was built in 1140 by Geoffrey de Gorham, sixteenth abbot of St. Albans, for sixteen nuns of the Benedictine order; among its inmates were many ladies of rank and fortune, one of these being Dame Juliana Berners, authoress of the famous "Boke of St. Albans." Sir John Mandeville, a famous traveller in the middle ages of Tartary, the Holy Land and India, was born here about 1300; he died at Liege, 17 November, 1371.

Among the educational establishments of the city is Oxford House School, principal and head master, Mr. James Thornhill F.L.s. which affords the individual care and attention of private tuition with the thoroughness and variety of the education of a public school.

Gorhambury, 2 miles west, is the seat of the Earl of Verulam: the present mansion, the fourth which has stood here, is situated on an eminence in the centre of the great park bearing that name, and is surrounded by extensive woods and rich plantations: it is a large rectangular edifice, 120 feet long by 80 in width, and was built in 1778 by James, 3rd Viscount Grimston, from designs furnished by Sir Robert Taylor; large additions, especially on the northern side, have been made in recent years: its front or grand entrance has ten Corinthian columns supporting a pediment reaching to the roof: the hall is a noble apartment, of unusual size and is adorned with many portraits, chiefly of the 17th century, including Francis Bacon, Viscount St. Albans, George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, and Algernon Percy, Earl of Northumberland; in the dining-room are portraits of King Charles 1st, Ludovic (Stuart), Duke of Lennox and Richmond, Thomas Wentworth, Earl of Cleveland, Sir Nathaniel Bacon, Thomas Wentworth Earl of Strafford, and Thomas, 3rd Duke of Norfolk; in the ball room is a portrait of Queen Elizabeth and two others of James, 3rd Viscount Grimston, by Sir Joshua Reynolds; in the library is a portrait of William Pitt, by Hoppner; the most interesting in the whole collection is the portrait of Sir Edward Grimston, a small picture on panel, painted in Burgundy in 1446, by Petrus Christus: the mansion contains many other objects of interest, among which are the "Verulam Jug," a glass vessel found in a Roman coffin, discovered at Kings-bury farm in 1813, and a workbox, once the property of Mary, Queen of Scots: the library fronts the principal entrance and has a selection of books in various languages, paintings and busts of eminent characters: about 300 yards south is the Royal or Queen Elizabeth's Oak, measuring about 21 feet in girth and there are also some fine cedars. The first building here was crected by Geoffrey de Gorham about 1128 and stood about 400 yards east of the present edifice; it was certainly demolished before 1400, perhaps earlier; a little to the west are the ruins of the second house, built by Sir Nicholas Bacon between 1563 and 1568 and visited by Queen Elizabeth in August, 1572 and May, 1577: a third mansion at the Pondyards, formerly the seat of the celebrated Lord Bacon, was erected by him about 1601; the ruins include portions of the tower, bearing the family arms, inlaid in marble and supported by buttresses: in the vicinity is a dilapidated three-quarter effigy of Henry VIII.

Oaklands, the residence of Charles Dymoke Green esq. J P. is an irregular building in the Elizabethan style, delightfully situated in an open park of 333 acres, and affording a view of Hatfield House, the princely mansion of the Marquess of Salisbury K.G.

On the north of the river, in Fishpool street, is the ancient residence of the Gape family: some of the ceilings are of carved oak, with the date 1568 deeply incised.

Batch Wood, the seat of Rt. Hon. Lord Grimthorpe Q.C., J.P., LL.D. is a spacious red brick mansion, 13 miles northwest, on the Redbourne road.

Childwickbury is the seat of John Blundell Maple esq. M.P.

Serge Hill, Bedmond, the seat of Henry Reynolds Solly esq. B.A., J.P. is in St. Stephen's parish.

In the parish of St. Stephen, about a quarter of a mile are held on Sunday at 3 p.m.), Gorhambury and wishing are held on Sunday at 3 p.m.), Gorhambury and wishing and endowed by Geoffrey de Gorham, abbot of St. Albans, about 1125 and dedicated to St. Julian: the hospital of St. Mary de Pratis appears to have stood at a little distance north-west of St. Albans, the estate occupying both sides of vacant; Holy Trinity, Frogmore, Henry George.

Warnie, 20th Abbot of St. Albans, for leprous nuns of the order of St. Benedict; no traces of the building now remain; the present house, known as "The Pré," is quite a modern building, now occupied by Henry J. Toulmin esq. J.P.; the ancient churches of St. Andrew, St. Germain, St. James, St. Mary Magdalen, SS. Nicholas and Simon were all destroyed at the Reformation.

FROGMORE, 2 miles south from St. Albans, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 27 Sept. 1859, from the civil parish of St. Stephen. Here is a station on the St. Albans branch of the London and North Western railway, known as "Park Street" and "Frogmore." Holy Trinity church is a structure of brick and flint, with stone dressings, in the late Norman style, erected in 1842 from the designs of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and is one of his earliest works: it consists of apsidal chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, and a western turret containing one bell: the centre light of the three small chancel windows is a memorial to the late Francis Robert Silvester esq. of Hedges, d. 1873; the north window in the apse is a memorial to the late Rev. Marcus Richard Southwell M.A. vicar of the mother parish of St. Stephen 1830-80, and was erected by friends; and there are other memorial windows to the late Francis Wigg esq. of Frogmore House, d. 1868, put up by friends and neighbours; to his wife, d. 1873, and to Hanson-Marcus, Hilda and Mabel Oliver, who died in their infancy, erected by their parents: there are 462 sittings, all but 69 being free. The register dates from the year 1859. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value 163, including 41 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of Mn. E. A. Oliver, and held since 1859 by the Rev. Frederick Lipscomb M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. There are three almshouses, the gift of the Wigg family, erected in 1842, for three poor persons. A flower show, established for many years, is held on the last Wednesday in July and village sports take place on the second Wednesday in June; there is also an excellent cricket and football club. The vicarage house was erected in 1863: the area is 3,600 acres; the population in 1881 was 1,080.

The city includes St. Albans and parts of the civil parishes of St. Peter, St. Michael, St. Stephen and Sandridge. The area and population in 1881 were as follows :-

	Area	in	city.	Popula- tion.	Rateable value.
	8.	r.	р.
St. Albans (or Abbey)	166	1	30	4,097	€12,893
St. Peter's	434	0	23	6,779	34,487
St. Michael's	289	I	13	12,256	11,995
St. Stephen's	62	I	22	1,763	15,437
Sandridge	45	0	30	841	11.974

+Including 185 officers and inmates in the workhouse.

Total population of parishes, 15,736; within the city, 10,930—without, 4,804. A very small portion of St. Stephen is within the city, numbering only 111 persons.

The area of the entire parish of St. Stephen is 7,350 acres of land and 37 of water, and comprises the hamlets of Park Street, 4 miles south, on the London road, with a station on the North Western railway. COLNEY STREET is a mile beyond Park Street; BRICKET WOOD COMMON, 42 miles south; FROGMORE and SMOG OAK, 3 miles south, WIND-RIDGE is a ward of St. Stephen. The area of the entire parish of St. Peter is 6,656 acres of land and 17 water, and comprises the hamlets of SLRAP, 2 miles east, and SMALL-FORD, 3 miles east, included in the ecclesiastical parish of Colney Heath.

TITTENHANGER is a hamlet; it includes London Colney on the London road and is given in this work with London

The area of the parish of St. Michael is 6,540 acres of land and 18 of water, and includes CHILDWICK GREEN (where there is a chapel of ease to St. Michael's, in which services are held on Sunday at 3 p.m.), GORHAMBURY and WESTWICE

The parish church of St. Leonard is a very socient building, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of three bays, aisles, north and south porches and a western tower containing a clock given by T. P. Martin esq. in the year 1842, and 6 bells, completed by the relatives and friends of the late Mr. Thomas Smith, of Pound farm : it was consecrated as a chapel by Herbert Losinga, first Bishop of Norwich, about 1110 and the chancel was rebuilt about the year 1399, by John de la Mothe, abbot of St. Albans: the tower fell about the year 1688 and was replaced in 1837 by snother, pulled down and rebuilt at the late restoration in 1888: previous to the late restoration, the exterior appearance of this church was very singular, the nave and aisles being covered by a continuous roof of slight elevation, and the chancel by a roof rising to a greater height; the most striking peculiarity within the church was, until lately, the division between the nave and chancel, which consisted of a solid wall rising to the roof with a central doorway of Saxon or Norman date, constructed of Roman bricks, flanked on either side by square-headed Perpendicular fenestrations of three lights, with cusped trefoiled heads and a similar opening of two lights above the door; the screen being plain on its eastern, but enriched on its western side: in the course of the restoration it was partially removed and superseded by screen work of oak, yet tauty removed and superseded by screen work of oak, yet without interfering more than was absolutely necessary with the architectural effect: the stained east window is a memorial to the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kinder, of Sandridgebury, and was presented by their family; and there is also a memorial window in the chancel to the late Mr. George Young, of Nash's farm, given by his sister, Mrs. Burchmore: the nave and aisles are divided by Norman arcades of three arches on either side: the church was completely restored and lengthened in 1887-8, at a cost of about £3,400, under the direction of Mr. William White, F.S.A. architect, when the tower was entirely rebuilt, a vestry erected, the flooring relaid, the interior reseated in oak and refitted and the roofs constructed anew: the pulpit was presented at a cost of £50 by Mrs. T. P. Marten, and the eagle lectern by the Misses Marten: the communion plate includes a chalice and paten, dated 1776, to which a flagon, chalice and two patens, all of silver, were added in 1876; there are 350 sittings: the churchyard was levelled in 1888 and a new path made. The register of burials dates from 1558; baptisms, 1559; marriages, 1594. The living

Jackson Tom, Rose & Crown P.H Low Frank W. farmer, Bride Hall farm SARRATT is a parish and village, situated on the river | and close by it a square aumbry: on the south side is a deanery of Watford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The parish church of the Holy Cross is an ancient cruciform building of Late Norman date, constructed of flint, with quoins and dressings of Totternhoe and Caen stone, and consists of chancel, nave, transepts, aisles, south porch and a low square tower with saddle-back roof, containing 3 bells, dated respectively 1719, 1606 and 1865: the nave is separated from the aisles by two plain pointed arches on each side resting on massive piers: in the north wall of the chancel is a deep apsidal niche, perhaps an Easter sepulchre, Bennington, gave in 1556, 20s, to the poor of this parish, Near St. Albans and in this parish is Bernards' Heath, where the second battle of St. Albans was fought, on Shrove Tuesday, Feb. 17th, 1461; it is now used as a cricket ground. On the large furzy common, called "No Man's Land," is a great boulder of the conglomerate known as "pudding stone," which marks the division between Wheathampstead and Sandridge and which in former days indicated the boundary between the possessions of the rival monasteries of Westminster and St. Albans; near this monasteries of Westminster and St. Albans; near this boundary stone is an ancient entrenchment called the "Devil's Dyke," about 35 feet deep and 70 or 80 feet wide, and partly in Wheathampstead parish: eastwards from the dyke and parallel to it for about a third of its length is a most called the "Slad," always, even in the dryest summer, filled with water and said to be very deep. Another ancient dyke runs through part of the parish between the two roads from St. Albans to Harpenden and Sandridge. Marshall's Wick is a mansion standing in beautiful grounds and a park, and is the residence of George Nisbet Marten and a park, and is the residence of George Misbet Marten esq. J.P. Sandridgebury is the seat of Charles Waugh Tanqueray esq. The principal landowners are Earl Spencer K.G., P.C. who is lord of the manor, Earl Cowper K.G., P.C. Mrs. Garrard and George Nisbet Marten esq. J.P. of Marshall's Wick. Earl Spencer inherits the manor from Sarah Jennings, wife of the Great Duke of Marlborough, who took his first English title, Baron Churchhill, of Sandridge, from this manor. The soil is light; subsoil, gravelly. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and clover. The area is 5,753 acres; rateable value, £1,298; the population in 1881 was 841.

railway, in the Eastern division of the county, Hertford hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Welwyn and archdea-conry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Peter is a building of brick, flint and rubble, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells, of which the first is dated 1799 and the rest 1673: the stained east window was the gift of George Burnand esq. of Tewin Water: in the south porch, the entrance to which is built up, is a marble monument about 15 feet high, to General Joseph Sabine, governor of Gibraltar, who died there in 1739; this consists of a huge pyramid on a massive marble base, with the recumbent figure of a man in Roman armour and is adorned with shields of arms: on the floor of the aiste is an ancient slab with a defaced inscription in Lombardic capitals to Walter de Louthe: here also is the brast, with effigy, of a man in civil robes and an inscription to Thomas emgy, of a man in civil robes and an inscription to Thomas Pygott, gent. ob. 1610, and his daughters Rebekah and Elizabeth; there are other memorials to Edward Botteler esq. ob. 1653; Thomas Montfort D.D. ob. 1632; Rev. Charles Proby D.D. d. 1727, both former rectors; Sir George Boteler bart. ob. June, 1657; Fulke Tudor D.D. rector, 1688; the Right Hon. Lady Catheart, wife of Charles, 8th Baron Catheart, d. 1780, and many others: the church was partially restored and reseated in 1864: in the churchyard, a little to the east of the chancel, is a plain altar-tomb to Lady Ann the east of the chancel, is a plain alter-tomb to Lady Ann Grimston, wife of Sir Samuel Grimston bart. of Gorhambury, d. 22 Nov. 1710; issuing from beneath the tomb are seven ash trees growing from one root and three sycamores similarly connected; these have lifted up the solid stone work of the tomb and the iron railings inclosing it are in some places so completely embedded in the wood that it is impossible to sever them; a fence has been erected around it, by subscription, at a cost of £40, for the purpose of protecting the tomb, which is visited every year by thousands of curious or superstitious persons: there are about 200 sittings, all being free. The parish register, in good preservation, dates from the year 1559 and contains some curious and valuable records of events in the parish between 1711 and 1724, made by the Rev. Charles Proby. The living is s rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £430, with residence and 42 acres of glebe, in the gift of Jesus College. Cambridge, and held since 1843 by the Rev. Henry Jones Daubeny M.A. late fellow of that college. The poor have £5 143. 8d. yearly in clothes from Sabine's charity left in 1748 by Mrs. Margaret Sabine, of Tewin; the interest of £166 left by Ledy Cathcart, of Tewin Water, in 1783, and

THROCKING is a village and parish, 2 miles north | cluding one by Nollekens to Hester, wife of Cary Elwes eq. west from Buntingford terminal station on the Great Eastern railway and 72 south from Royston, in the Northern division of the county, Edwinstree hundred, Buntingford union and petty sessional division, county court district of Royston and in the rural deanery of Buntingford and archdesconry and diocese of St. Albans. A very small part of the town of Buntingford is in this parish, detached from the body of the parish of Throcking. The church of the Holy Trinity, said to be erected on a more clevated site than any other chuch in the county, is a small edifice of stone in the Early English and Decorated styles, the upper part of the tower, added in 1660, being of red brick; it consists of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing one bell, recast in 1855: there are some fine monuments into himself and his second wife Elizabeth, 1770-1820; and another by Rysbrack to Robert Elwes esq. and Martha, his widow, 1752-68: the lower part of the tower dates from 1180; it was heightened in 1660 by Sir Thomas Soame, alderman of London, knighted at Hampton Court, December 3rd, 1641, who died January 1st, 1670 and is buried here in the chancel, beneath an inscribed slab, together with others of his family: the church was extensively repaired in the year 1880, at a cost of about £1,000, half of which had been left by the late rector for that purpose, the other half being raised by subscription: the east window was also filled with stained glass, and a reredos erected in memory of the Rev. W. Adams, for 38 years rector of this parish, who died in 1878: there are 100 sittings, nearly all being free. The Scotton John, The Green TRING is a market town and parish situated on the road to Aylesbury and on the Buckinghamshire border of the county, 7 miles south-east from Aylesbury and 4½ north-west from Berkhamsted, in the Western division of the county, in Dacorum hundred and petty sessional division, Berkhamsted union, Aylesbury county court district, and in the rural deanery of Berkhamsted and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans; the town is of ancient origin and stands on a site in close proximity to Icknield Street, near which Roman remains have been found. The London and North Western Railway station (31% miles from London) is a mile and three quarters from the town (in the parish of Aldbury) and the Grand Junction canal passes near. A Local Board of Health was established in February, 1859, consisting of 9 members, and the town is lighted with gas, by a company, from the 1st of October to the 1st of April. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is an ancient building of stone and flint in the Perpendicular style, with features of an earlier date, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a massive embattled western tower containing 8 bells, dating from 1624 to 1882: the interior was thoroughly restored in 1862 and the church partially rebuilt during the years 1880 and 1881, a new clock, chiming the quarters, being at the same time placed in the tower; the restoration, which was finished in March, 1882, cost about £3,500, furnished by voluntary contributions. The register dates from 1566. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value (393, with residence, in the gift of J. G. Williams esq. of Pendley Manor, and held since 1881 by the Rev. William Quennell M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. Long Marston, formerly a part of this parish, was formed into a separate ecclesiastical parish in 1871. Here is a Baptist chapel, with 450 sittings; a Particular Baptist chapel, seating 1,000, and a Primitive Methodist chapel, with 100 sittings. The Market House, situated in the High street, was erected in 1750 and is a building of wood with a tiled roof and iron railings in front. is held on Friday, which in the earlier part of the day is attended by hundreds of women from the neighbouring villages, who obtain their living by making straw plait and meet here the buyers from Luton and other parts; the corn market is also held here at 2 p.m. throughout the year; the fair on Easter Monday and Old Michaelmas Day is still held. The business of the town consists chiefly in canvas weaving, straw plaiting, silk throwing and weaving and brewing. The Victoria Hall in Akeman street, erected in 1886, on the site of the former assembly room, built in 1825, is a building of red brick with stone dressings, in the Italian Renaissance style. from designs by Mr. William Huckvale, architect, of Tring, and contains on the ground floor a spacious entrance hall, reading room, library and committee room and on the first floor an assembly room 36 ft. by 70 ft. with a platform and seating 500 persons; there is also an audit room: the reading room and library are occupied by the Tring District Working Men's Conservative club, which has 100 members. There is a Mechanics' Institute, founded in 1855, with a library of 800 volumes, reading and other rooms; there are now (1890) 60 members; librarian, Alfred Fincher. The Dorcas Society and Lying-in Institution, established about 1830, is managed by committees of ladies in the town and holds meetings for the teaching of needlework; a trained lady nurse was appointed to the Lying-in Institution in 1884, to attend to the poor in illness, at a cost of about £ 160 a year, contributed by volunteer subcomparison. by voluntary subscriptions: there are also a coal club and a district visiting society, both supported by contributions. The Tring Poor's Land, formerly consisting of 107A. 3E. 7P. of land and 3 houses, but now sold and the proceeds irrested in Consols, produces an annual income of upwards of £180, and is distributed in coal at Christmas. The other charities, now consolidated, with an income of about £140, are administered under a new scheme from the Charity Commissioners, dated 1884, which allows the application of its funds in several channels for the benefit of the poor and mainly for the encouragement of thrift and independence. Park, the property and residence of Lord Rothschild, is pleasantly situated amid lovely woodland scenery, with undulating slopes richly timbered on all sides. Lord Rothschild is lord of the manor of Tring, and Joseph Grout Williams esq. J.P. of the manor of Pendley. The principal landowners are Lord Rothschild, Joseph Grout Williams J.P. of Pendley Manor. Large Grange are and the Dean and Charles. of Pendley Manor, James Grange esq. and the Dean and Clapter of Christ Church, Oxford. The soil, which rests on the lower chalk formation, varies considerably. The area is 7,625 acres of land and 221 water; rateable value, £23,401; the population in 1881 was 5,357, including Long Marston and Wilstone, while that of the town only is 4,354.

LITTLE TRING and TRING GROVE are hamlets. Tring, I mile from Tring, are the Grand Junction Canal Water Works and reservoir; the latter is 405 feet above the sea, being a trifle higher than the summit of St. Paul's, London; there are 55 locks on the canal between Northchurch and the Thames.

Wilstone is a small bamlet and chapelry of Tring, from which it is 2 miles north-west and 64 east from Aylesbury. The village is pleasantly situated in a valley under the hills, on the Aylesbury canal. The church of St. Cross, built and opened in 1877, but not yet consecrated, is an edifice of flint and brick, in the Early English style, consisting at present of a nave only, seating about 200 persons; the Rev. John WALKERN is a village and parish, situated on the river Beane, which runs into the Lee near Hoddesdon, 92 miles north-by-west from Hertford, 8 miles north-north-east from Knebworth and 5 east from Stevenage stations on the main line of the Great Northern railway and 32 from London, in the Northern division of the county, Broadwater hundred, Stevenage petty sessional division, Hertford union, Hitchin county court district and in the rural deanery of Baldock and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The street forming the village is about 1 mile long. The church of St.

Mary the Virgin is an edifice of flint and stone, dating from about 1200 and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, dating from 1713 to 1833: there are some remains of Norman work in the arcade of the north aisle, but the greater part of the existing church belongs to the Perpendicular period; the chancel was rebuilt in 1878 in the Early English style and an organ chamber and vestry added : in a recess on the south wall is a remarkably fine effigy in Purbeck marble of a knight in complete chain mail, with armed legs, probably representing one of the family of Lanvalei, who were lords of the manor from 1160 to 1220: there is a brass with effigies to Edward Humberstone, ob. 1583 and Anna (Welche) his wife and 8 children; another, with effigies, to William Chapman, citizen and haberdasher of London, ob. 1621 and Anne, his wife, ob. 1636 and 12 children and a third of a civilian and his wife, c. 1480, inscripside of the chancel by the Rev. J. G. Cotton Browne in place of a faculty pew which had belonged to the family at Walkern Hall; the aisle, designed by Mr. Hugh Roumieu Gough, architect, was opened on St. Andrew's Day, Nov. Gough, architect, was opened on St. Andrew's Day, Nov. 30th, 1882: there are aco sittings, 240 being free. The register dates from the year 1680. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £540, with 20 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of King's College, Cambridge, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Henry John Phillpotts M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. Here are Baptist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The charities for distribution amount to £12 13s. 4d. yearly, derived from 11 acres of land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the parish and including a yearly sum of the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated in the land situated situated situated in the land situated PRIVATE RESIDENTS. WALLINGTON is a village and parish, situated near | Hitchin and Cambridge branch of the Great Northern raila feeler of the river Beane and on the ridge of the chalk way, 7 north-west from Buntingford and 8 south-west from range, 3 miles from Baldock and Ashwell stations on the Royston, in the Northern division of the county, Odsey hundred and petty sessional division, Buntingford union, Royston county court district, rural deanery of Baldock and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary is an ancient structure of flint in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, a lofty open south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, all dated 1794: the chancel was rebuilt in 1864 by the Rev. G. R. Tuck, late rector, d. Feb. 8, 1878 and Marianne, his wife, as a memorial to their only son, Edward John, d. 9th Feb. 1860: at the east end of the aisle and separated from it by a Perpendicular screen is a chapel, extending in length nearly as far as the east wall of the chancel; on its north side is an altar-tomb, with matrices of brasses; on the side are niches with figures of saints and shields of arms; it is believed to have been erected to John Prysot and Margaret, his wife: the principal portion of the sittings in the nave and aisles are of old and massive oak and the aisle is covered by a good Perpendicular roof of 15th century work: there are 200 sittings, all being free. The register dates from the year 1661. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge commuted at £376, with 20 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Master and Fellows of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Charles Whitley Clarke M.A. Trinity College, Cambridge. There are charities producing about £4 yearly, arising from be-

WALTHAM CROSS is one of the three wards or divisions of the parish of Cheshunt and was formed Oct. 5, 1855, into a separate ecclesiastical parish; it is 11 miles from London by road and 142 by railway, situated on the high road from London to Cambridge, with a station on the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, Cheshunt petty sessional division, Hertford hundred, Edmonton union, county court district of Waltham Abbey, rural deanery of Ware and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. Trinity church, erected in 1832, is an embattled structure of brick, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel and nave with two crocketed turrets at the west end and small turret containing one bell: the interior was restored in 1878 and the windows filled with stained glass: there are 460 sittings, 232 being free. The register dates from the year 1855. The living is a vicarage without enfrom the year 1855. The living is a vicarage without enendowment, net yearly value, derived exclusively from pew rents and fees, about £120, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Cheshunt, and held since 1834 by the Rev. Huson Silvester Davies M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. The vicarage house was erected by subscription, on land granted by the Misses Batho, of Cheshunt, at a cost of about £2,600, towards which the Ecclesiastical Commissioners contributed £1,500. The Catholic Church, dedicated to the Immaculate Conception and St. Joseph, and situated in the Eleanor road, is a small building seating about 200 persons: the furroad, is a small clinings were the gifts of the late F.C. Wilson esq. of Theobalds in this parish, who also bequeathed to the church a sum of money and all the fittings of his private chapel: it is proposed to erect a finer and more spacious edifice, for which purpose a sum of over £1,000 is already in hand. The Beaumont Spital Almshouses, founded in 1625, consist of four alm-houses for four poor widows, under the management of the trustees of the Beaumont

Charity; each inmate receives £4 per quarter, one 2-quartern loaf of bread a week and 12 cwt. of coals a year. Britten's Charity, of £21 yearly, is for the general uses of the poor of the parish, at the discretion of the vicar. Here are the extensive nursery grounds of Messrs. William Paul and Son. Waltham Cross is said to derive its name from the cross erected here by Edward I. in memory of his consort Eleanor, whose body was rested at the Four Swans inn, which is still standing, on the journey from Harby, Notts, where she died, to Westminster. There were originally 12 such crosses, at Lincoln, Grantham, Stamford, Geddington, Hardingstone (generally known as Queen's Cross Northampton), Stony Stratford, Woburn, Dunstable, St. Albans, Waltham, West-cheap and Westminter, called Charing Cross; but only three of these are now in existence: one at Geddington, near Kettering, Queen's Cross, near Northampton, and Waltham Cross, the latter being originally by far the finest of the twelve. It stands on the east side of the high road from Hertford to London, adjoining the Falcon inu, and at a point where the road is met by that from Waltham Abbey: the structure, raised on a stepped basement, is hexagonal in plan and consists of three stages, decreasing towards the top, which is finished with a crocketed spirelet and cross; the latter, renewed in 1833, claims no comparison with the original either in design or proportion; the lower stage is enriched with triangular-headed panelled tracery, inclosing the arms of England, Castile and Leon, and Ponthieu; the spandris being filled with diapered work, and the whole surmounted by an embattled cornice: the second stage exhibits an ele-quests of land and money, left in 1736 by the Rev. John Brown and by Joseph Edmonds, of Cumberlow and an unknown donor. Admiral the Hon. George Henry Douglas J.P. of Newsells Park, Barkway, is lord of the manor and the chief landowner. The soil is principally light; subsoil, chalk. The crops are chiefly on the four-course system. The area is 2,042 acres; rateable value, £1,854; the population in 1881 was 191.

On METLEY HILL, I mile north, is Bush Barrow. SHAW GREEN is I mile south, partly in this parish and partly in the parish of Rushden. RED HILL is a hamlet, balf a mile south, partly in Wallington and partly in Sandon parishes. Sexton, James Pickett.

H gant arrangement of elaborately crocketed canopies, three of which contain statues of Queen Eleanor by William de Ireland and Alexander of Abingdon; the upper stage is filled with panelled tracery, and each of the three compartments is surmounted at the angles by pinnacled buttresses. The cross appears to have been really designed by one William Torel, but is usually attributed to Pietro Cavalini, a Roman sculptor and architect, and was begun in 1291 and completed in 1294, the steps and three stages of the work being executed in Caen stone by Dominic de Leger, of Rheims, and Roger de Crundale, and other portions, of Purbeck marble, from Corfe, were worked by William of Ireland and Alexander of Abingdon; it was partially restored in 1833, under the direction of W. B. Clark esq. but the whole of Mr. Clark's work, executed in soft Bath stone, having since that time become very much dilapidated, a movement was set on foot in August, 1885, for its complete restoration at an estimated cost of £1,550, based on a report and plans furnished by Mr. C. E. Ponting, architect, of Marlborough, and approved, with certain modifications, by the Council of the British Archæological Association, the Society of Antiquaries of London and other kindred societies. For the accomplishment of this project an influential committee was formed under the presidency of Sir Henry Bruce Meux bart. of Theobalds, who has with great munificence and public spirit purchased the whole of the premises forming the Falcon inn for the express purpose of widening the road on that side, and thus freeing the monument from any encroachment: the restoration has since been carried out in Ketton stone by Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter, various fragments of the original structure, laid aside at the time of Mr. Clark's restoration, having been re-incorporated; the cost, amounting to about £1,000, was contributed from all parts of the kingdom and included £25 from Her Majesty the Queen. The Four Swans inn, mentioned above, though bearing on its quaint sign, ornamented with figures of swans, the date 1260, is, of course, as now existing, of a much later period, but its large chimneys and the chestnut and oak timber with which much of it is built, seem to bespeak for the house a considerable antiquity

Theobalds park is the seat of Sir Henry Bruce Meux lart.; the mansion, situated on rising ground in a park of 200 acres, is of brick, and was erected in the last century by Sir George William Prescott bart.; in plan it somewhat resembles St. James's palace, London, but has been considerable being the palace of brunels. ably enlarged and improved by the first and second baronets and by the present Sir Henry Meux bart. Temple Bar, removed from Fleet street, London, in Jan. 1878, and given to Sir H. B. Meux bart. was re-erected in 1888 at one of the entrances to Theobalds park. The original house, which is supposed to have stood on a slight eminence of no great extent, but still visible, was result by Sir William Cecil kt. afterwards Baron Burghley K.G. and Lord High Treasurer, who purchased the estate in 1560-1 and here in 1564 was visited by Queen Elizabeth; this house, surrounded by beautiful gardens and a wide most filled with water, was James I. who gave in exchange for it to Sir Robert Cecil kt afterwards 1st Earl of Salisbury, the more valuable mansion of Hatfield, now the residence of his descendant, the present Marquess of Salisbury K.G. and it continued to be a royal palace until the outbreak of the Civil War; here James I. died 27 March, 1625; and from Theobalds Charles I. set out in 1642 to raise his standard at Nottingham. The palace, as then existing, was an embattled structure of considerable extent, and consisted of two principal quadrangles, besides several courts, one of which, 86 feet square, had a cloister on the east side, and in the centre a fountain of black and white marble; the middle court or quadrangle, 110 feet square, was also cloistered, and had a chapel on the south square, was also conserved, and used a chaper on the south side; over the east cloister was a gallery, 100 feet by 12 feet, and above the west cloister another gallery, 109 feet by 14 feet; the principal entrance was through a rectangular battlemented gatehouse, with octagonal turrets at the angles, and a similar gatehouse with a clock turret above it led to the second quadrangle, besides which there were other towers; on the south side of the mansion was a large open cloister, enriched with paintings, inscriptions and pedigrees. which remained until 1765, although the greater part of the palace was pulled down in 1650; but one of the chapels contimed to be used by the Presbyterians till 1689, when the site of the palace and the park of 2,500 acres were granted by William III. to Hans William, 1st Earl of Portland K.G. these having been previously held for some time by George, Duke of Albemarle, by grant from Charles II.; the site of the last remaining portion of the palace is now occupied by the houses forming Theobalds square in the village of Cheshunt and on portions of the gardens still possessing some fine cedars and other trees and evergreen shrubs, several large mansions have been erected; fragments of the ancient garden walls, containing a number of small niches, are yet standing, and parts of the wall, 10 miles in extent, erected standing, and parts of the wall, to littles in takent, exceed by James I. to inclose the estate, may be seen at Aldbury place, Cheshunt, now the residence of George Belles, and at Cuffley and Bury Green; the park was converted into farms

The manor of Theobalds, anciently called "Tibbalds" and "Thebaudes," belonged in the 14th century to William Attendre, of Cheshunt, and in 1441 was granted by the Crown to John Carpenter, Master of St. Anthony's Hospital, in Threadneedle street, London; after passing through rarious other hands it was purchased in 1560-1 by SirWilliam Cecil kt. and remained in that family until its exchange for

Hatfield by Sir Robert Cecil, Earl of Salisbury, with King James I.; subsequently it became dissociated from the palace and was held by the Bentincks, Earls of Portland and by the Prescott family, and at the end of the 18th century belonged to Oliver Cromwell esq. last male descendant of Henry Cromwell, son of the Lord Protector; the manor now (1890) belongs to the devisees of the late Thomas A. Russell esq. The principal landowners are Sir George Rendlesham Prescott bart, of Isenhurst, Hawkhurst, Sussex, who is lord of the manor, Sir Henry Bruce Meux bart. and Bethlehem Hospital. The area is 1,898 acres; rateable value, £24,502; the population in 1881 of the ecclesiastical value, £24,502; the population in 1851 of the ecclesiastical parish was 4,000.

WARE, formerly a market town, is a parish and the head of a petty sessional division and union, situated on the river Lee, 2 miles east from Hertford, 21 north from London by Lee, 2 miles east from Hercuord, 22 mores from London of road and 22½ by rail, with a station on the Broxbourne and Hertford branch of the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Braughing, county court district of Hertford, rural deanery of Ware and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The town is governed by a local board of 9 members, established in 1849, and is lighted with gas supplied from works erected in 1830 by a private company. The water works, on Musley Hill, by a private company. half a mile distant, are managed by the local board, the supply being obtained from a large well. There is good water communication, via the navigable river Lee (over which an iron bridge was erected in 1845), with the Thames at Blackwall, 20 miles distant; the New River head is half a mile distant. The parish church of St. Mary the Virgin, situated in the centre of the town, is a cruciform edifice of flint and stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with south chapel, nave of five bays, transepts, aisles, south porch, and an embattled western tower containing s bells, dating from 1731, and a clock striking the hours and quarters, with chimes playing seven tunes: the chancel was built, it is conjectured, by the Lady Margaret (Beaufort). Countess of Richmond and mother of Henry VII. to whom. after the battle of Bosworth Field, August 22, 1485, the manor was granted by her son: the nave and aisles belong to the time of Richard II. and the tower may be assigned to the reign of Edward III.: the south chapel, separated from the transpart by an open correspondence and there are the transpart by an open correspondence of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the the transept by an oaken screen, contains a piscina, and there is another piscina in the south transept : the font is octagonal and consists of a bowl supported on a single column richy carved and moulded; each side bears the figure of a saint carved in high relief; the date of the work being about 1380; the oaken cover is Perpendicular: the stained east window is a memorial to John Charles of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the con is a memorial to John Chuck, of Ware, and his wife Anna, and was erected by their son Edward Chuck in 1850: in the aisle is an unfinished inscription on brass to William Pyrof

To this place, the Danes, in the reign of Alfred, are said to have brought their vessels. Ware is also the "town of fame" alluded to by Cowper in his merry ballad of "John Gilnin." At Rye House, about 2½ miles distant, in Hoddesdon parish, is preserved the famous "Great bed of Ware," which is sufficiently large to hold 12 persons. The priory of Ware took its rise from a grant before 1081, by Hugo De Grentmaisnel, lord of this place, of the church of St. Mary to the Benedictine Abbey of St. Ebrulf, at St. Evreux, in Normandy, to which it then became a cell, but was suppressed with other alten priories 2 Hen. V. (1414) the revenues being then estimated at £200, and the next year was granted to the nunnery at Sheen, Surrey, on the dissolution of which, 36 Hen. VIII. it was transferred to Trinity College, Cambridge. There was also here, in the north part of the town, a house of Francisasso here, in the forth part of the town, a mass of rranciscan or Grey Friars, to whom, as appears from the Patent Rolls, 12 Edw. III. (17 Feb. 1337) a grant of land was made by Thomas Wake under a license in mortunain from the King; this house, on its surrender, 36 Hen. VIII. was granted to Thomas Byrche, and after being for nearly 200 years in the possession of the Hadsley family, was purchased in 1881 by and is now the seat of Robert Walters esq. by whom important restorations have been effected, and much 13th century work brought to light. Wilkins William, baker, Amwell end WATFORD is an ancient market town and parish, the | The register dates from the year 1858. The living is a head of a union, petty sessional division and county court district, situated on the road from London to Aylesbury, the road from Uxbridge to St. Albans and on the river Coine road from Vortige to S. Albans and of the river come and Grand Junction canal, 172 miles from London by rail-way and 15 by road, 8 south-west from St. Albans and 32 east from Rickmansworth; it is in the Western division of the county, hundred of Cashio, rural deanery of Watford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The North Western railway has a junction station with branches diverging to St. Albans and Rickmansworth, with another station on the latter line in the centre of the High street, Watford; beyond the junction is a long tunnel: Bushey adjoins and may be considered a suburb of Watford, with which it is considered a suburb of watford, with which it is considered a suburb of watford, with which it is considered as well as a problem arrows the Column The nected by a bridge of five arches across the Colne. town is governed by a local board of twelve members, convisit s governed by a local board of twelve memoers, constituted by 13 & 14 Vict. c. 108 and extended by 45 & 46 Vict. c. In. the district including part of Bushey; it is lighted with gas by a company, from works situated at the bottom of the High street, and supplied with water from a reservoir; a site of 5½ acres was purchased by the board some time since and a new reservoir constructed in 1881 to contain one million gallons: extensive drainage works have also been carried out under the direction of the board. Near the railway station is the Clarendon hotel, with an extensive range of stables. The church of St. Mary, a building of stone, dating from the Early English period, consists of chancel, nave of six bays, aisles, transepts, north and south porches, two chapels, one dedicated to St. Catherine and the other a mortuary chapel of the Capels, Earls of Essex, vestries and a fine embattled western tower with spire 100 feet high, containing a clock and 8 bells, all recast in 1750; the tenor weighs 22 cwt.: in 1848 the interior and in 1871 the exterior was restored, the whole at a cost of about £11,000, including a new organ, font, reredos and windows: in the Essex chapel, built in 1595 by Bridget (Hussey) widow of Sir Richard Morrison kt. and subsequently wife of Prancis, and Earl of Bedford, are some fine monuments to the Morrisons of Cashiobury; these include on the south side a stately tomb of marble by Nicholas Stone, to Sir Charles Morrison kt. the elder, ob. 1599, and Dorothy (Clark) his wife, with columns of the Corinthian order supporting a pedimented canopy, beneath which are kneeling effigies of both, the knight being in complete armour; on the north side is another marble monument, also by Stone, to Sir Charles Morrison, his son, K.B. and bart. ob. 1628, and the Hon. Mary (Hicks), his wife, with a recumbent effigy of the former placing his hand upon a skull, and below this a similar effigy of his lady in flowing robes; on either side are kneeling figures of his daughter Elizabeth, wife of Arthur, 1st Baron Capell of Hadham, and of two sons, who died young; above all rises a pedimented canopy supported on four columns of the Corinthian order; on the wall near the chancel is a brass (removed from the floor in 1871) with effigies in clocks, to Henry Dickson, ob. 25th June, 1610, George Miller, ob. 5 April, 1613 and Authony Cooper, servants to Sir Charles Morrison the Elder, and placed by Dorothea, Lady Morrison; here also is another brass with effigies to Hugh de Holes or Huls, Justice of the King's Bench from 1389, ob. 1415, and Margaret (Domville) his wife, ob. 5 March, 1416; and there are others to Henry Baldwyn of Rudheath, in this parish, ob. 1601, and Alice (Martyn) his wife and three children; and to James Moss, messenger to George II. and many years servant to William, Earl of Essex, ob. 27 Dec. 1758; there is also a modern brass to Louisa Caroline Elizabeth (Boyle), 2nd wife of Arthur Algernon, 6th Earl of Essex, to whose memory the marble chancel steps were presented in 1877 by the vicar, churchwardens and parishioners; she died 5 May, 1876: the church affords 900 sittings. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £551, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Essex, and held since June, 1855, by the Rev. Richard Lee James 1.L.B. of Clare College, Cambridge, and B.C.L. oxon, and hon, chaplain to the Herts Yeomanry corps. Attached to the church is a lectureship of £142 yearly, now held by the vicar. St. John's temporary church, Sotheron road, a chapel of ease to the parish church, is an iron building, erected in 1873, and will seat 450 persons St. Andrew's church, near the railway station, to which a district was assigned in 1858, is an edifice of stone and flint in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of six bays, aisles, south porch, and a tower with pinnacles at the north-east angle containing a clock and 5 bells: the east window is stained and there is a stained window in the south

perpetual curacy, net yearly value £450 and residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1870 by the Rev. William Yalden Thomson D. Theol. Giessen University, Germany. The Catholic chapel of Mary the Immaculate and St. Andrew will seat 200 persons. The Catholic church of the Andrew will seat 200 persons. Andrew will seat 200 persons. The Catholic church of the Holy Rood, Market street, built in 1890, at a cost of over £5,000, defrayed by Stephen Taprell Holland esq. of Otterspool, Aldenham, who also gave the site, is a building of stone and flint in the Decorated style, and has several attached chapels; a presbytery and schools are also in course of erection. The Baptist chapel, in Beechen grove, opened in the Italian style and was built entirely became and was built entirely became in 1878, is in the Italian style and was built entirely by subscription at a cost of £9,000: it will seat 900 people. is also a Congregational chapel with 300 sittings; a Wes-leyan chapel seating 1,050, and a Primitive Methodist chapel with sittings for 350 persons. The cemetery, formed in 1858, is 14 acres in extent and has two mortuary chapels; it is under the control of a burial board of nine members. The Masonic Hall, situated at the back of the Essex Arms hotel, is a building of brick, erected in 1873, and will hold 140, Watford Public Library and College of Science, Art, Music and Literature, Queen street, was erected in 1873-4, by voluntary contributions, aided by a Government grant towards the science and art department, at a cost of about £2,400 and on a site given by Thomas Clutterbuck esq. and a further sum of £1,000 was expended between 1383 and 1880 in acquiring additional ground and enlarging the building, which is of brick, with stone dressings and carvings, in the Iteration study. outloing, which is of ories, with scole dressing and carrings, in the Italian style, and consists on the first floor of a lecture hall, holding 375 persons, rooms for elementary painting and modelling and music rooms, and on the ground floor a lending and reference library of 10,000 volumes, reading and a lending and reference library of 10,000 volumes, reading and class rooms: the College is managed by a committee, and the various schools by sub-committees. The A Company and (Herts) Volunteer Battalion, Bedfordshire Regiment, is stationed in the town. The Cottage Hospital established in 1898 has 10 beds. In Church road, St. Andrew's, are the almshouses of the Salters' Company, erected in 1864, for twelve females and six men, each receiving 16s. weekly: a garden is attached to each house and two acres of ground in front are laid out in flower beds and grass plots: the total area is about 5 acres. In 1876 the late Countess of Essex erected two almshouses in Rickmansworth road for the reception of two superannuated servants. There are other charities of about £80 yearly value for distribution. The church lands of 36a. 3R. 29P. together with four houses produce £148 a year for church repairs. Here are corn mills, steam laundry, several malt kilns, three extensive breweries and an iron foundry; agricultural fork handles are also made here. The market is held on Tuesday. There are branch banks in the High street of the London and County Banking Co. and the Bucks and Oxon Bank. The parish comprises 10,699 acres of land and 81 of water: rateable value, £98,030; the population in 1881 was 15,507 (including 250 officers and inmates of the workhouse). The population of the local board district is 12,162, of whom 1,769 are in Bushey parish.

Cashio and Leavesden are hamlets; Leavesden was CASHIO and LHAVESDEN are hamlets: Leavesden was formed Sept. 6, 1853, into an ecclesiastical parish and is given under a separate head. Cashiobury, said to have been the residence of the Kings of Mercia, was the property of the Morrisons, from whom it passed by marriage to Arthur Capell, created 6 August, 1641, Baron Capell of Little Hadham, in this county, and beheaded in Old Palace yard, March 9, 1648-9, for his adherence to Charles I.; his son, 1st Earl of Essex, was imprisoned in the Tower charged with complicity in the Rwe House plot and found dead in with complicity in the Rye House plot and found dead in his cell; the mansion now the seat of his descendant, the Earl of Essex, is a castellated Gothic building of red brick, erected in 1800, by Wyatt, of quadrangular form surrounding an inner court, and contains some exquisite carvings by Grinling Gibbons, a collection of fine pictures and an extensive library: among the relics preserved here is the handkerchief, still stained with blood, with which Thomas Coningsby esq. (an ancestor of the present earl) and afterwards created Baron Coningsby, staunched the wound of William III. at the battle of the Boyne, July z, 1690: there are also some memorials of Charles I.: the park and grounds, containing about 670 acres, are watered by the river Gade and adorned with fine fir trees and immense beeches; also cedars, for which the estate is noted. Newton Price B.A. of London University.

Oxhey chapel, the property of T. F. Blackwell esq. lord of the manor of Oxhey, and still used for Divine service in the summer months, is a small rectangular building of brick, situated about midway between Pinner and Bushey stations and half a mile west of the railway and is about 30 feet long and 14 wide and lighted by windows of simple character: the principal feature of the interior is the reredos, which occupies the whole of the east end and reaches to the ceiling:

cornice and pediment, the whole being a good example of early 17th century work: on the south wall is a large monument to Sir James Altham, knighted at Whitehall, 6 Jan. 1609, and Helen (Saunderson), his 3rd wife; he was a Baron of the Exchequer and founder of the chapel and died 21st Feb. 1617; there are kneeling figures of both under a canopy of alabaster, bearing a shield of arms, the judge being habited in his judicial robes; beneath is an inscription and near the monument an inscribed tablet recording the erection of the chapel by Sir James Altham in 1612: one other monument on the north wall was placed in 1797 to John Askell Bucknall esq. ob. 1796. The Rev. Newton Price B.A. vicar of Oxhey, has been chaplain here since 1872.

At Oxhey hall is an ancient carved oak ceiling of great beauty, arranged in 16 panels, but somewhat rough executed: the farm house has been modernised, but this room still remains intact. The area is 2,425 acres; the population in 1881 was 2,392.

WELWYN is a small town and parish and the head of a union and petty sessional division, in the Northern division of the county, Broadwater hun lred, Hertford county court district, rural deanery of Welwyn and architeacoury and diocese of St. Albans: it is situated in a valley, the river Maran, or Minrain, passing through it and on the Great North road, 25 miles from London, 5 north from Hatfield, 9 south from Hitchin and 7 west from Hertford, with a station on the main line of the Great Northern railway 1½ miles west of the town. The town is lighted with gas by a company, from works situated at the bottom of Welwyn hill and company. hill and supplied with water from wells. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, standing in the centre of the town, is an ancient edifice originally in the Early Pointed style, but now chiefly Decorated and consisting of chancel with south aisle, vestry and organ chamber, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower of red brick, with pinnacles and a stair turret at its south-east angle and containing a clock and 2 bells: in the chancel is an ancient piscina and a large molern sedile: the east window is a memorial to William Wilshere esq. of The Frythe, d. 1867, and there are several other stained windows, also memorials:

Dr. Edward Young, the author of "Night Thoughts," was rector of this parish from 1730 to 1765, and here died 18 April, 1765, and was buried in the church, together with the Lady Elizabeth (Lee), his wife, widow of Col. Lee and third Lady Elizabith (Lee), his wire, weave of confined and three daughter of Sir Edward Henry Lee bart, 1st Earl of Lichfield of that name; she died in 1741: there is a memorial to him erected by his son, Frederick Young, in 1766: there are 400 sittings. The register of burials dates from 1558 and of baptisms and marriages from 1559; in it is recorded the following memorandum:—" This book was mislaid for several years and found after Dr. Young's death in his study by his son and given into the custody of John Jones, curate, by his son and given into one customs, or some somes, curate, in 1767." The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge, £625, with 53 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of All Souls College, Oxford, and held since 1870 by the Rev. Charles Lee Wingfield M.A. formerly fellow of that college, rural dean of Welwyn, honorary canon of St. Albans and surrogate. Dr. Young is said to have composed his "Night Thoughts" beneath what is now a noble avenue of trees planted by himself about ten years previously: at the upper end of this avenue, on a square pedestal, is a memorial inscription in Latin to the poet. A cometery of one acre was formed

WESTMILL is a small village and parish, near the Great North road, on the river Rib, 8 miles south from Royston, a mile and a half south from Buntingford and 34 from London, with a station on the Buntingford branch of the Great Eastern railway, in the Northern division of the county, Braughing hundred, Buntingford union and petty sessional division, Royston county court district, and in the rural deanery of Buntingford and archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Mary, probably erected towards the close of the 13th century, is a structure of flint in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave of two bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with spire containing 5 bells, of which the 3rd bears the legend "Sancta Margareta ora pro nobis;" the 4th has merely the maker's name; the others are respectively dated 1838, 1759 and 1616: the interior of the church is particularly striking, on account of the height of the nave; the massive pier supporting the arches of the north aisle is a portion of the original wall of the church; on the floor of the nave is an ancient slab, with an incised marginal inscription in Norman-French to Thomas de Leukenor and within the rails of the sacrarium are four slabs inscribed to John, third Baron Bellenden, d. 16 March, 1740; Mary, his widow, d. 1792; Jane, their daughter, d. 1763; and Ker, fourth Baron Bellenden, d. 1754; there are several stained windows, that at the most raid to marginal to H. Grand and that at the west end is a memorial to R. H. Greg esq. of Coles Hall; the east window was erected by Dr. Henry Pepys, Bishop of Worcester (1841-61), and formerly rector of Westmill, to the memory of his four children who died in 1853, and are buried under the chancel: there are 242 sittings, all being free. The register of baptisms dates from 1550; marriages, 1562; burials, 1565. WHEATHAMPSTEAD is an ancient parish and for the purpose of apprenticing out the children of the poor of town, pleasantly situated on the river Lee, with a station on the Hatfield, Luton and Dunstable branch of the Great Northern railway, 26 miles from London, 5 north-east from St. Albans and 55 north-west from Hatfield, in the Mid division of the county, hundred of Dacorum, petty sessional divi-sion, union and county court district of St. Albans, and in the rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of St. Albans. The church of St. Helen is an ancient cruciform building of flint with stone dressings, consisting of chancel, with sacristy on the north side, nave, transepts, asises, north and south porches and a central tower with broach spire, containing a clock and 6 bells: the general style of the church is Early English, with Decorated and Perpendicular insertions: in the chancel are triple sedilia and a piscina with a lofty Decorated canopy: in the south transept, or Brocket chapel, are the remains of an ancient shrine, and in its south wall is a piscina and a very ancient doorway: beneath the east window of the north transept is a reredos of luxuriant design, consisting of seven niches, under floriated canonies: the pews here were brought from the private chapel at Lamer and bear date 1638: a dwarf screen, from the same chapel, separates this transept from the body of the church : the stained east window of the chancel was the gift of Mrs. Drake-Garrard, of Lamer Park: there is also a stained window, in the south transept, to the memory of the Rev. Chancellor and Mrs. Pretyman, 1859-67: the west window is filled with stained glass as a memorial to Mrs. Fenwick, of High Firs: in the north transept is a memorial window to Charles Benet Drake-Garrard esq. of Lamer Park, d. 1884; and there are also brass figures of a man and woman, loosely robed, and a rhymed inscription to Hugh Bostock and Marrobed, and a rymed massiphers to About John, of Wheat-bampstead : near this is another brass with figures, inscribed to John Heyworth gent ob. 1520, and his wife Elizabeth, with nine children; and a third, with similar figures, but without inscription, c. 1510: against the east wall of the Brocket chapel, in front of the shrine above mentioned, is a large altar tomb, with alabaster effigies of Sir John Brocket th, in plate armour and his wife Margaret, 1543: there are other memorials of this family up to 1699, and of the family of Garrard from 1622 to 1862, including the fine monument in the north transept, with life-sized recumbent effigies in marble, to Sir John Garrard bart. of Lamer, ob. 1637, and Elizabeth (Barkham) his wife, ob. 17th April, 1632: in the same spot is an incised marble tablet, with kneeling figures, same spot is an incised marble tablet, with kneeling figures, to John Heyworth and his wife Joan, 1558: the communion plate includes a chalice and paten, dated 1648 and a flagon and paten, given by Dean Lambe, of Ely, and formerly rector here, in 1708: there are 649 sittings, all being free. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a rectory, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £734, with 40 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Peterborough, and held since 1859 by the Rev. Owen William Davys M.A. of St. John's College. Cambridge, here game of Davys M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, hon. canon of St. Albans, surrogate and rural dean.
