INTRODUCTION.

Two volumes of the Lower Norfolk County Virginia Antiquary have been given to the public and favorably received, and the Editor is emboldened to hope for as favorable a reception for the third volume, of which this is the first part. Notwithstanding the Editor announced in the introduction to No. 1, Part 1, that he would answer no questions, he is in the constant receipt of letters and visits, is stopped in the streets, and has been followed into places of business where he has gone to make purchases. The Editor is engaged in this work for his own pleasure and in the future he will not answer<sup>1</sup> any letters or questions about genealogical or historical matters. This may appear selfish, but he, as all others who are engaged in this kind of work, has seen enough to be convinced of the impossibility of pleasing everybody. People generally have high notions about their ancestors, and are almost always disappointed<sup>2</sup> and offended when told that there is no evidence and no good reason for believing that they are descended from the important European families whose names they happen to bear, and that remote traditions are almost always misleading and unreliable. Comparatively few of our Colonial American families are able to connect<sup>3</sup> with any one on the other side;

<sup>2</sup>Mr. Hayden in the Virginia Genealogies says: "If family claims can be used as a scale of measurement, there are very few American families that are not of noble or royal descent," and he adds that if the genealogist "omits, rejects or disproves, even by infallible evidence, some long-held but baseless tradition," "he estranges friends and incurs the sharp criticism of others."

<sup>3</sup>Of the few American Colonial families that connect on the other and when they do, it is almost always with people of minor importance. The Editor's name in this number appears in full on the title page. The Editor's name is Edward Wilson James, and there are in Norfolk an Edward Walter James and a W. Edward James. The three Edwards are not related or side, a very few trace to families with titles, one here and there to the Squirearchy, a sprinkling to the petty gentry, but the overwhelming majority to uninfluential people of good repute. The mere fact that one bears a distinguished name is no evidence of connection with the distinguished family. Great numbers of men, soldiers, sailors, and members of the theatrical profession in particular, for various reasons change their names, and thousands of foundlings are picked up in the streets of cities every year and are frequently given the names of the most influential men in the country. The Editor read in the Baltimore Sun some years ago of two little foundlings in Baltimore being given the names the one of Benjamin Harrison and the other that of Bayard Hancock. In addition to this, in former ages, the bondsmen and tenants on the large estates in England largely took the names of the estates and thus acquired the names of the owners of the estates, just as the negroes after the War of Secession took the names of their owners. The great majority of the founders of the leading families in the seventeenth century were merchants, clergymen, physicians, sea captains, coopers, tanners, shoemakers and tailors, and to this number of occupations in the following century may be added that of the lawyer. It is probable that a large majority of the people who came to America down to about 1820 were too poor to pay their way, and were sold here, to people who paid their passage-money, for a term of years, or were consigned to people for whom they worked out their indebtedness thus acquired. This may not be palatable to the vain, but Americans should learn to be proud of their strong-armed and stout-hearted ancestors who had the courage to found homes in a wilderness, and stop wasting their time and fooling away their money in ridiculous searches after noble and royal ancestors, almost invariably the result of vanity and almost invariably ending in failure. Of the convicts who were sent to the Colonies little need be said. The overwhelming majority were undoubtedly men, and it is highly improbable that many of the women were of the kind to become the mothers of families, and it is therefore improbable that they to any extent perpetuated themselves. If an American should find himself the descendant of an indentured servant, he need not blush, for he will find himself in illustrious company. The Rev. Dr. Jessopp, in "Village Life in Norfolk Six Hundred Years Ago," in the 19th Century for February, 1883, says that if a villein on an estate could manage to get ordained he became free, and that a certain villein at Rougham, Ralph Red, got ordained and became a connected, but they not unfrequently get each other's letters. The father of W. Edward is from Lancaster County, the grandfather of Edward Walter came from one of the Eastern Shore counties, and the father of the Editor from Princess Anne County.—EDITOR.

chaplain, saved his money and bought the freedom of his father and family, and that in less than one hundred and fifty years afterwards a descendant of the father became the lord of the manor of Rougham, and that he, having no son, his daughter married a learned Judge, Sir William Yelverton, Knight of the Bath, from whom were descended the Yelvertons, Earls of Sussex, and the present Lord Avonmore, who is a scion of the same stock.

In the refusing to answer questions the Editor does not mean to give offense. To even attempt to do so would take all of his time, and he merely wishes to protect himself. If he answers for one he must for all, and as in genealogical enquiries accuracy is absolutely necessary, it is impossible to rely on the memory, which is too frequently treacherous where fact for the sake of fact is desired. People, too, who make enquiries, frequently expect miracles to be performed in their favor, and unless they are, they are disappointed. If you tell them that you do not know, they think that you are disobliging and selfish and do not wish to answer; if you tell them that you do not talk on the subject, they think that you are simply trying to hide your ignorance; if you tell them, and it is at variance with what they wish, they frequently become enemies. They never, or but seldom, consider that in order to answer their questions, every answer must be the result of a detailed examination of notes, which as they are gathered here and there at various times, are scattered about in different note-books and on slips of paper, and that no investigator who values his reputation will answer without making a careful examination, which always takes up a great deal of time.

MY MOTHER.

AT NEW KENT.

Some time after this (the British having burned us out at the Ship Yard<sup>1</sup>) I moved to a farm in New Kent, seven miles further up, belonging to Jerry Waden, where, I thought, it should be out of the way. Indeed, they all assured me that it was on the Middle Road, (for it seems, there was an upper

My brother-in-law the late Littleton T. Waller, of Lombardy, James City Co., resided about three miles from the Ship-Yard on the Chickahominy river, and at low water had often seen the wreck of the vessel (the Thetis) which was being built under Capt. Maxwell's superintendence during the war of the Revolution—and which was burnt on the stocks by the British (date unknown). In April, 1857, the writer visited the spot, but as the tide was high, no trace of it could be seen—the only visible memorials of the former Navy Yard being the scattered fragments of one from the Black-smith shops and the ruined foundations of several small houses, in one of which Capt. Maxwell's family probably resided.

<sup>1</sup> "Mrs. Mary F. Maxwell. This venerable Christian woman died at her home, in Richmond, Va., on Monday afternoon, November 8th, in the ninetieth year of her age. She was Miss Mary Frances Robertson, of Norfolk, sister of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Waller, and widow of William Maxwell, LL.D., a distinguished lawyer, at one time President of Hampden-Sidney College. Mrs. Maxwell was a woman of devout piety, of culture and wide intelligence. Because of feeble health she has been confined to her apartments, and a limited circle of attached friends. She has been a member of the Second church for many years, almost from the date of its organization. The funeral was from the Second church, on Wednesday afternoon." "The death of the venerable Mrs. Mary Maxwell, which occurred on Monday afternoon at her home in Richmond, recalls the career of her distinguished husband, the Hon. William Maxwell, LL.D., a name to be remembered in Virginia. He was born of English parentage at Norfolk, Va., February 27th, 1784. Graduating at Yale in 1802, he studied law in Richmond, and began the practice of his profession in Norfolk in 1808. After serving in both Houses of the Virginia Legislature, he became President of Hampden-Sidney College in 1838. In 1844, he removed to Richmond, where with the practice of law, he gave much efficient assistance to various educational and literary enterprises. He revived the Historical and Philosophical Society of Virginia, and established the 'Virginia Historical Register.' He was a ruling elder of the Presbyterian Church, and filled that office with devoted piety and intelligent zeal. He was prominent in the Church judicatories, and in the Assembly of 1837, took a notable part in the debates, connected with the old and new school controversy. His death occurred January 9th, 1857, near Williamsburg, Va., and his tomb is in Hollywood." From the "Central Presbyterian," Richmond, Va., November 16, 1898. William Maxwell was not born of English parents as is above stated. His father was born in Northumberland, England, and his mother in Norfolk, Va. See second volume, page 56, of this publication.

and lower road also), which hardly anybody travelled, and where, I should be quiet, safe and snug. Here, shortly afterwards, my young brother Savage came up from Norfolk and joined me. He was about fifteen years old, and had a Coat . . . not like Joseph's of many colors . . . but furnished with a set of silver buttons; . . . for buttons were very scarce and hard to get then, and those who could afford it, got silver ones, which they could shift from Coat to coat, for whose sake he loved his Coat as he did his eyes. Indeed, he frankly confessed, that he had come so far, not simply to see me and to enjoy my good company but to save his darling Coat with the silver buttons. We had not been here long, however, before we learned that the British were coming down on their way to York, and one morning I looked out and saw turning the corner of the fence and coming straight up for the gate a company of refugees. "Oh, sister," cried Savage, in great alarm, "What shall I do with my Coat? Oh! I have thought of it. Here! just take up the child (little John) from the cradle, and I will take it off and put it under the clothes, and will keep rocking the cradle." So said, so done,—while I went to the door to attend to my new unbidden and most unwelcome guests. Very soon, however, I was startled by a cry from poor Savage—"Oh, sister, he has got my Coat"—when I went back and found the lad in a tussel with one of the company, who had turned the child the first thing, without much ceremony, and seized upon the prize, which Savage was trying to get from him, but in vain, "Oh, sister!" said he, with a despairing cry, "make him give up my Coat." At this I called out, "Who is the captain among you?"—when one of them, with a cowskin on his head (who had been a hog driver I suppose) stepped up and said, "I am captain here, Madam." "Well then, good Captain," said I, "do make this man give up my brother's Coat to him." "That I will, Madam," said he, and instantly began paying away with the cowskin on the fellow's back, in a merry style, till he was glad to let go the coat, and leave it quietly in my brother's hands. "Well, Well," said Savage, after the company were gone, "I think I will never put my coat in the cradle again." "No," said I, "if you have a mind to save your silver buttons, you had better keep it on your back." "That I will," said he, "though I should get a cowskin over it for my pains."

NEW KENT.

Not long afterwards I looked out and saw a fine company of light horse coming round the corner of the fence, and making up to the great gate in front of the house. "Well now," said I to myself, "I will pluck up a little courage this time and meet them boldly if I can." So, I went, at once, to the door, where they were all drawn up before me in the yard. They were a foraging party. Every horseman had a soldier behind him. The captain was a genteel-looking man, with a form as fine as a well drawn pair of stays could make it, (my sister Peggy told me afterwards that she knew him, and that he certainly wore stays). His name was Captain Evall. "Well, Madam," said he, accosting me in a gay and careless manner—"Where is your husband? or have you any?" "Yes, Sir," said I, "I have a husband; at least I hope I have, for I have not seen him for sometime. I really don't know where he is at present, but, I believe, with the Marquis La Fayette—as he went to join him, after your people burned us out at the ship yard." "So," said he, "he keeps good company. And have you any brush boys about here?" "Oh, yes!—plenty of them—two or three at least, to every bush." (I saw he did not like that.) "But to come to the point, come—my good madam," said he, "what have you got for us? for, we are beating about for provisions." "Indeed, sir," said I, "I am sorry to say, I have got very little for you, for so many of your friends have been along before you, that they have left me hardly anything to spare." "Well, Well," said he, but you have got some flour?" "Yes, I have a little flour." "And, some sugar?" "I have a little sugar, too." "And some bacon, no doubt?" "I have a little of that, too." "A little—and a little, and a little." "Here," said he, to one of his officers—"go along with this good lady, and see what she calls a little, and mind—don't take more than half of what she has got, for we must be generous to her." So, the officer came in, and with the men to help him proceeded very politely to rob me of what he called half of all my provisions in the house—though,

I thought he took full two-thirds. In the meantime, I found out that these people were only part of a larger body who were all encamped on my very plantation, and were hid from my eyes only by a small forest of woods. I was of course, in great alarm, lest I should be exposed to further depredations from them, and requested the Captain (who was growing more soft and civil) in consideration of my supplies, to send me a guard, for the protection of my house. This, however, he assured me was not necessary, but shortly after he had gone away with his troops, there came two soldiers, a Hessian and a Scotchman, the latter of whom told me that the Captain had sent them over to take care of my property. The Hessian was a frightful-looking fellow who could not speak a word of English, and soon after, threw himself down, apparently overcome with fatigue, and slept profoundly. The Scotchman, who was a good-looking man, said to me, "Madam, these Hessians are devils, but I will protect you at the hazard of my life. Only, don't go out of my sight, but keep always where I can have you in view, or I will not answer for your safety." He also said, "I am sick of this service. They tell us we are getting on, but I think we are going off every day—here a few and there a few—till we shall have few left." After this several Hessian soldiers straggled over to the house, and some of them seemed well disposed to be rude, but my trusty Scot kept them off according to his word. The next morning, when the bugle blew, the Scotchman took his leave to join the troop who were under arms for a march, but all he could do, he could not wake up the Hessian, who still slept and moved again; and he was obliged to go and leave him. "Shortly afterwards Savage came in with a hatchet in his hand, and flourishing it over the sleeping Hessian's neck, in a truly savage style: "Now, sister," said he, "say the word and I'll settle him while he is sleeping." "Oh, no," said I, "not for the world, Savage, would I have the poor fellow killed here in my house, and in this state." So, I saved his life; and that afternoon, after sleeping all day, he woke up and went off to overtake the army as fast as he could. Towards evening, Savage, who had gone out to reconnoitre, returned with the joyful news that the British had all passed over the Bridge (Dyer's or New began bridge) and broke it down after them to keep our people from following them too closely; and "Come, now, sister," said he, "you have slept none for several nights past, but now the enemy has gone, you may sleep quietly with no fears about your stays, and I shall have none about my Coat." Accordingly, I retired soon afterwards to rest, taking off my stays, in whose capacious breast I had carried the purse of gold for so many anxious nights, and composed myself to rest. Just as I was falling asleep, however, I was roused by the trampling of a horse galloping towards the house, and starting up I called out to Savage, "There they are again." "No! indeed," said he, answering, "I promise you there is not a man of them on this side of the river. If it is anyone, it must be one of our own people." Just then listening with all my ears, I caught the sound of a well-known voice—it was my husband talking with the negroes who had come out to take his horse. In an instant he was in the room, and I was in his arms. "Oh!" said I, "are you come again? And what have you been about? Here is Cornwallis, has gone up the country and taken my trunk of valuables at the Point of Fork, and down the country, taking every thing his own way. And pretty fellows are you and the Marquis La Fayette, and all the rest of you, to let the British and Refugees come and harry poor women and children this way." "Hush," said he, "the Marquis knows what he is about. He has had but a handful of men with him all the time yet, and quite too few to join battle with. But our turn is coming. The country is rising around us. Our men are coming in from all quarters. The enemy are flying to York, where we shall catch them all as cleverly as you ever saw a partridge caught in a trap. Then hey! for Norfolk and happy times!" So, he cheered me up with his lively spirit, and I told him the story of Savage and his coat, and my other adventures since we had parted, at which, he laughed very heartily. Indeed, they were more pleasant to tell, than they had been to bear. Some time before this, my Aunt Blake, who had been obliged to leave Charleston in consequence of the siege, and had gone with her husband and family somewhere to the North, was returning home again, and I received an invitation from my sister Marsden, then living in Hanover, to come up from New Kent to spend the Christmas with them all at her house.

NOTES.

(By the Editor.)

“As appears from the previous number” “a Jury of women examined Grace Sherwood 7th March 170<sup>5</sup>/<sub>6</sub>, and found certain indications of a witch upon her person.” But the court did not know what course to take upon this report, and so a stop was put to the proceedings. Thereupon, Luke Hill brought the matter before the Virginia council, and according to the council books the following action was taken :

“At a council held at her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Royall Capitoll the 28th day of March 1706 :

“Luke Hill by his petition informing this Board that one Grace Sherwood of Princess Anne County being suspected of witchcraft upon his complaint to that county court that she had bewitched y<sup>e</sup> petitioners wife, the court ordered a jury of women to serch y<sup>e</sup> said Grace Sherwood who upon search brought in a verdict ag<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> said Grace, but y<sup>e</sup> court not knowing how to proceed to judgment thereon, the petitioner prays that y<sup>e</sup> attorney Gen<sup>l</sup> may be directed to prosecute y<sup>e</sup> said Grace for y<sup>e</sup> same.

“Ordrd y<sup>t</sup> y<sup>s</sup> d<sup>a</sup> peticon be referred to M<sup>r</sup> Attorney Gen<sup>l</sup> to consider & report his opinion to his Excelley and y<sup>e</sup> council on y<sup>e</sup> first day of y<sup>e</sup> next Gen<sup>l</sup> court ”

County Courts given by a late act of Assembly in criminal cases made & provided & if they thought there was sufficient cause to have (according to that Law) committed her to y<sup>e</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup> prison of this Colony whereby it would have come regularly before the Gen<sup>l</sup> Court and whereupon I should have prepared a bill for y<sup>e</sup> Grand jury & if they had found it I should have prosecuted it. I therefore with humble submission offer & conceive it proper that y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> County Court do make a further Enquiry into the matter, and if they are of opinion there be cause they act according to the above said Law and I shall be ready to present a Bill and if found proceed thereon

Ordered that a copy of y<sup>e</sup> said Report be sent to y<sup>e</sup> court of Princess Anne County for their direction in y<sup>e</sup> premises."

The council book has never been quoted in connection with this subject before, and it shows that the published account of the opinion of the Attorney General, Stephens Thompson, in the calendar of State Papers (vol. 1, p. 100) is defective in omitting the words in Italics. After this order, referring the whole subject back to the County Court, the proceedings reported in the text took place.

MY MOTHER.<sup>1</sup>

I went up, accordingly, and was highly gratified with my visit. My aunt, especially, engaged my attention. She was a small woman, but of a neat straight figure and of a high spirit, as you may judge from what I shall tell you. I happened one day to say, in course of conversation, that I was so heartily tired of this war, that, I believed I would consent to have peace on any terms. “What”! said my aunt, indignant at my poor <sup>1</sup> Mrs. Read was buried in St. Paul's Churchyard between the graves of her husbands. “In Memory of Cap<sup>t</sup> James Maxwell Who was born in Northumberland, England, But became a resident of this Borough in the year 1767, and afterward the Commonwealth of Virginia. In the Revolutionary War as Superintendent of her Navy Yard, Commissioner of her Navy and Captain of an armed ship in her service,” “Died on the 4th day of October, 1795, in the 62<sup>d</sup> year of his age.” “In Memory of Doct. John K. Read, Who was born in Philadelphia and came to reside in this Borough about the year 1796, Where he practised physic with distinguishd reputation Served the Corporation as Alderman & Mayor with uncommon ability Died the 10th day of February, 1805, In the 59th year of his age.” In Memory of M<sup>rs</sup> Helen Read, Wife of Cap<sup>t</sup> James Maxwell by her first marriage, and of Doc. John K. Read by her second, Who was born in this Borough on the 20th of June, 1750, and after passing through many trying Scenes in the Revolutionary War, lived to a good old age, fell asleep in Christ on the 31st of March, A. D., 1833, in the 83<sup>d</sup> year of her age. Dr. Read was a widower at the time of his marriage to Mrs. Maxwell. He was married to his former wife, Frances Payne, widow of Jesse Payne, in March 1773, in Goochland County.

tame-spirited speech, and gathering herself up so as not to lose a single inch of her height: "What do you say, Nelly"? Recall those words this instant. No! peace on our own terms, or, war forever"! And, by the bye, she had a daughter, almost as good stuff as herself. This Mrs. Linen, who during the siege of Charleston, had retired for safety with the rest of the ladies on board of a ship in the harbour; leaving her husband with the rest of the men to man the works, but aware of his passion for her, or suspecting his courage perhaps, she told him that if he left his post to visit her, she would never see his face again. Still he could not refrain, but actually went off swimming to the vessel in which she was, to get an interview with her; but she was true to her word, and positively refused to let him come on board, and he had to swim back again for his pains. I think I understood that he shot or otherwise killed himself in despair. This same lady, they say, was once accosted by the famous Col. Tarleton with "Well, Madam, I expect to see Col. Washington or some others of your friends, very shortly, and what shall I say to them for you?" "My compliments to them, Sir, if you please," said she, "and tell them, I beg them not to believe one half of anything that Col. Tarleton says to them." This to so fierce an officer, who made everybody tremble far and near. She was some years afterwards here on a visit, where she was much admired for her allegiance and spirit, and my poor brother Jonathan fell desperately in love with her, but my mother would not hear of a match between them because they were cousins, and they parted as they met, and she went back to Charleston. But to return to my aunt Blake—the good lady did not live to see the glorious peace which she was determined to have on her own terms or none, but died in that very journey on her way to Charleston, and some distance from it on the road, and, I believe, of a fever contracted on the way. I could tell you a good deal about her descendants—her son John Blake, the President of the Bank, Mrs. Purcell, who you remember paid us a visit some time ago, and some others, but I must not branch out too much. Whilst I resided in New Kent, I got acquainted with a worthy gentleman of that county, who lived about a mile off—a Col. Bat Dandridge, the brother of Lady

Washington—and who had a fine woman for his wife. The Col. came over to see me one day, and told me he had a great favor to ask of me, so great that he was almost afraid to name it, but I begging him to tell me what it was, assured him that if it was anything in reason, I could not refuse him. “Why, ma’am,” said he, “it is that you will take a young lady who is a ward of mine, and has a little fortune, to board with you, for I am anxious to have her well brought up, and I am sure that you will treat her as you do your daughters; you can make a fine woman of her.” I thanked the Col. for his compliment, of course, though I felt very unwilling to take this new trouble upon myself, but, for my word’s sake, and to oblige so worthy a man, I consented to take his ward, and he went away overjoyed. The young lady, however, very kindly undertook to relieve me from my expected burden, by running off with a young man, and getting married to him, for which I was not very sorry in my heart. Not long afterwards, Mrs. Dandridge came over also to see me on a more pleasing business, for her object was to invite me to come and spend a day with Lady Washington, who had come down to pass some days at her house, in the hopes of seeing her husband, the General, who was expected to pass by on his way to Yorktown. “So, you must all come over,” said she, “and spend the day with us, and you must be sure and bring your little daughter Nelly with you, for my sister you must know, has a grand-daughter with her (Miss Custis) whom she thinks a nonsuch, and I want to let her see that there is one in our own county that is more than a match for her, (for Nelly had just returned from boarding school at Williamsburg, with all Miss Hallams airs and graces and was, though I say it, a charming child indeed). “And perhaps, also,” said Mrs. D., “we may treat you to a sight of the General himself.” These were great inducements, and I promised her a course, to accept her invitation. The next day, however, I was unfortunately sick, and unable to go myself, but I sent my little daughter over, and Mrs. D. told me afterwards, that Lady Washington had confessed that my little Nelly would bear the bell from any girl she had ever seen, not excepting her own darling and pet, which, you may suppose was a great joy to my heart. A few days after this, having recovered from my indisposition I resolved to go over myself to see my kind neighbor, and her guest, and perhaps the hero into the bargain. So we set off, Mr. M. and I, on foot, as the distance was short, and I was a good walker, and we took my brother Savage with us, who had on his coat with silver buttons, and moreover, under his arm, a game cock, which he was very anxious to shew to the Col's. boys Julius and Bat, who were about his own age. When we got over to the house, however, we were all greatly mortified to find that the General had gone down to York by another road without calling to see his wife, being more anxious just then to see the British army; and she had, thereupon, returned home. Still we continued to spend a pleasant day with our good friends, and to make up for our disappointment, after we had taken our leave of them, and just as we had got through the great gate into the high road, what should we see but—not the old General, indeed—but the young Marquis La Fayette at the head of a large troop of horse—the finest sight I ever saw. The Marquis was then a fine looking young man,—he could hardly have been more than twenty—with a ruddy face and light sandy hair, and rode on an elegant horse. He was delighted to see Mr. M. and stopped to shake hands with him, and ask him a thousand questions. All the other officers, too, did the same, for they all knew Mr. M. and was glad to meet him here. They were on their way to York—in fine spirits. All this time, the cock which Savage had under his arm (though he tried to keep him under his coat) kept crowing out at a merry rate, which, you know, the troop might take as a good omen, and especially the Marquis, as the cock was an emblem of his own country too. Sometime after the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at York, we moved down to Norfolk, but as the town was not yet rebuilt, and it was impossible to get a house in it, we accepted the invitation of Mr. Plume who had a small house at Pattenween, near Fort Norfolk, to take a part of it, until we could obtain one of our own. Here I had my son William (1784). In the meantime Mr. M. had bought a part of the confiscated estate of Neil Jameison, a Scotch tory, who had gone off with Lord Dunmore, and began to build a wharf with two or three warehouses on it, and also a dwelling house in little Water Street, at the head of it. He had become owner, also, of two or three Hampton Boats, and become jointly concerned in the Ferry with Capt. Hunter of that town. He was thus making money rapidly. About this time Mr. Plume, who was in partnership with one Newton in the ropewalk which they had established where it now stands, made an overture to Mr. Maxwell to go out to the West Indies to collect debts owing to them there, and Mr. M., who was also desirous of collecting those which were due to the late firm of Marsden, Maxwell & Co., consented to go, provided they would build him a ship for the purpose. This they did, and he superintended the building of her in Scott's neck, near Fort Nelson, and afterwards sailed away in her, leaving me, with my two small boys, Max and James, to manage the wharfs and boats, and look after the carpenters who were building our dwelling house. Accordingly Mr. Plume and I used to go over to Norfolk every morning in a canoe, I often with William in my arms, and look after our different engagements and return in the evening. When Mr. M. returned from his voyage, we went into our new house.

<sup>1</sup> This appeared in the William and Mary College Quarterly Historical Magazine for July, 1895, and this note is by its editor, Lyon G Tyler, LL.D.—“The date of this order is 10th July, 1706, the same day as the last order in the previous number. The Court, it is presumed, adjourned to witness the ceremony at what is still known as the witches duck, near William Harper’s plantation. The ceremony seemed to the Justices to justify Grace Sherwood’s imprisonment till a future trial; but as the record is entirely silent respecting any future procedure, she must have been released, but how long after it cannot be said. The history of witchcraft in Virginia would not be complete without some reference to several cases which went up to the general Court. In the Robinson Transcripts are the following entries :

“December, 1657.—Barbary Winbrough arraigned for a witch, but acquitted. Who should pay the witnesses referred to assembly.

January 12, 1658.—Capt. Barrett had to appear at the admiralty court to answer the putting to death of Kate Grady as a witch at sea.

October 16, 1668.—Alice Stephens accused as a witch, but not cleared.

November 24, 1668.—Judgment for calling a woman and her children witches. Pardon craved.”

<sup>2</sup> "Witchcraft, the practice of witches," a supernatural power which it was thought in old times people could acquire by making compacts with Satan. The witch, almost always an old woman, sold herself, soul and body, and he conferred on her the power to turn herself into a cat or hare, and to ride through the air on a broomstick, and torture or otherwise punish her enemies. Satan was represented in proxy by a man in black. After the bargain has been completed, she receives a piece of money of him, and writes with her own blood on a piece of parchment, her name and makes her mark, and sometimes would put "one hand to the sole of her foot and the other to the crown of her head." The devil then gave her "an imp or familiar spirit to be ready at call, and to do whatever it was directed."

<sup>3</sup> When a woman suspected of witchcraft was subjected to trial by water she "was stripped naked and cross bound, the right thumb to the left toe, and the left thumb to the right toe," and cast into a river or some other deep water, where it was believed she would not sink if guilty.

"The special mark of a witch was a third pap or teat on some part of her body." In a discourse written by John Bell, minister of the gospel at Gladesmuir, 1705, is written: "This mark is sometimes like a little Teate; sometimes like a blewish spot; and I myself have seen it in the body of a confessing Witch like a little powder mark of a blea colour, somewhat hard, and withal insensible, so as it did not bleed when I pricked it."

<sup>4</sup> The last trial for witchcraft in England was that of Jane Wenham, who was convicted at Hertford in 1712, but was not executed. "The last execution in Scotland took place in 1722, after conviction before the sheriff of Sutherland," and the last one in Europe at Posen, Germany, in 1793. In the North American colonies in New England in 1692. Before the year 1700 only a few very bold and courageous men dared to speak against the existence of witchcraft. In 1768 John Wesley wrote: “The English in general, and indeed most of the men of learning in Europe, have given up all accounts of witches ‘as mere old wives’ fables.’ I am sorry for it, and I willingly take this opportunity of entering my solemn protest against this violent compliment which so many that believe the Bible pay to those who do not believe it.” By a resolution passed in 1773, the divines of the Associated Presbytery declared their belief in witchcraft, and in 1785 a body of seceders from the Scotch Kirk confessed “that the penal statutes against witches have been repealed by Parliament contrary to the express law of God. (Exod. xxii, 18.)”

Jane Wenham, the last woman condemned for witchcraft in England, was born in Hertfordshire. She obtained a warrant on the 9th of February, 1712, against a farmer who had called her a witch. The rector of Walkern, John Gardiner, to whom the quarrel had been referred, told her that she should in the future live on more amicable terms with her neighbors, and gave her from the farmer one shilling damages. The servant girl at the parsonage, a short time after Jane had left the presence of the parson, behaved very unaccountably and it was said that Jane had bewitched her in the same manner in which she had been accused by the people of the village of bewitching a laborer. A warrant was obtained to arrest her from the local justice, Sir Henry Chauncy, by whom four women were ordered to search her for witch marks, but none were found. Not wishing to be sent to jail she agreed to submit to the swimming test. The vicar, however, of the adjoining parish of Ardley, as an alternative, tried her with the Lord's Prayer. This having been incorrectly repeated she confessed herself a witch and was sent for three weeks to the Hertford jail to await the assizes. She was on the 4th of March tried before Sir John Powell, and sixteen witnesses, three of them clergymen, appeared against her. The only charge which the lawyers would draw up against her was for talking with the devil in the form of a cat. The jury found her guilty on this indictment, and she was sentenced to death. The Queen pardoned her at the intercession of Powell, and many of the Country clergy attempted to get up a demonstration and a protest. A war of pamphlets followed, and the clergy who had interested themselves in the prosecution expressed their belief in her guilt, severely animadverted upon the judge's conduct and concluded with the solemn words: "Liberavimus animas nostras." She was the last person in England condemned to death on the charge of witchcraft.

<sup>1</sup>There were two Charles Henleys, father and son—Charles, Sen., the father, and Charles, Jr., the son. After the death of Charles, Sen., Charles, Jr. was called Charles Henley, Senr. He gave bond for fifteen hundred dollars with John and James Lewis securities. In a deed made June 29th 1798, Charles Henley Sen<sup>r</sup> gave to his son Charles Henley Jr "Sixty Acres of Land more or less, being part of the Land" he "bought of William Leggett Begining at the Dam Neck Road forty feet to the Westward of his Ditch, ajoining the plantation whereon" he was living "runing near S. S. West course to Cap<sup>t</sup> John James loin, by a loin of marked trees, thence bounded by the said James loin to the Dams Bridge, thence bounded by the dam neck road, to the begining place." In his will made April 4, 1807, and recorded Oct 5th the same year, he left his son Charles, "one negroe man named Frank" "and on gun barrel" and also his "small still holding about fifteen gallons" and desired that his "apple tree nursery should be sold for the good of the Estate." Father and son appear to have been ministers, but I have not been able to find out when the father qualified before the Court to perform marriages.

<sup>1</sup> The selling of slaves was not in the eighteenth century confined to the South but was in full vogue in New England and the Middle Colonies. Alice Morse Earle in “Customs and Fashions in Old New England” p 89, says “I have never seen in any Southern newspapers advertisements of negro sales that surpass in heartlessness and viciousness the advertisements of our New England newspapers of the eighteenth century. Negro children were advertised to be given away in Boston, and were sold by the pound as was other merchandise. Samuel Pewter advertised in the Weekly Rehearsal in 1737 that he would sell horses for ten shillings pay if the horse sale were accomplished, and five shillings if he endeavoured to sell and could not; and for negroes “six pence a pound on all he sells, and a reasonable price if he does not sell.” William Root Bliss in “Side Glimpses from the Colonial Meeting House,” chapter 11 “Rum and Slavery” says, “It was rum that forced the growth of Slavery in New England.” “In the year 1750, there were more than sixty distilleries in Massachusetts and thirty in Rhode Island.” “The commerce in rum and slaves—making a circuit from New England to the West India Islands, thence to Africa, thence back to the Islands with slaves, thence home with molasses and such negroes as had not been disposed of at the islands—furnished nearly all the money that was annually remitted to pay for merchandise brought from England” “The first arrival at Boston was by the ship Desire, February 26, 1637, bringing negroes, tobacco, and cotton, from Barbados. She had sailed from Boston eleven months before, carrying captives to the Bermudas to be sold as slaves, and thus she became noted as the first New England slave-ship." "Sometimes the trade in slaves was kept going at such a brisk gait as to strip the market of rum. In the year 1752, Isaac Freeman wanted a cargo of rum and molasses within five weeks. His correspondent at Newport replied that it could not be had in three months. There are so many vessels, he said, loading for Guinea we cant get one hogshead of rum for the Cash" "Simeon Potter was for watering the rum and turning it out to the negroes in short measure. He instructed his captain sailing for Africa in the year 1768: Make your Chief Trade with the Blacks." "Worter ye Rum as much as possible and sell as much by short measure as you can" "A deacon of the church in Newport esteemed the slave trade with its rum accessories as home missionary work. It is said that on the first Sunday after the arrival of his slaver he was accustomed to offer thanks that an overruling Providence had been pleased to bring to this land of freedom another cargo of benighted heathen to enjoy the blessings of a Gospel dispensation" There is a widespread belief in the South that the Negroes were brought to the South by the Yankees. This belief is largely true, but is not all true. The old Maryland and Virginia newspapers show that many of the first men in the two colonies were willing to get rich in the same nefarious trade.

INTRODUCTION.

The folly of the attempt to please all is soon made apparent to those who attempt to please a few only. When the Editor of the Antiquary started it, he did it to gratify a taste of his own and to make accessible to the students of history some of the least known yet most important facts in the history of his own section, and his success, so far as he can judge from the approbation of students of history, has been encouraging, and it has also met with the kindly greetings of the most of the friends and acquaintances to whom it has been sent. A few persons, however, have condemned it, with more or less severity, because of the articles relating purely to the social and economic features of our past life; and in two anonymous letters, lately received, the Editor has been charged with attempting to draw invidious distinctions by publishing lists of property owners and land and slave owners and carriage owners and piano owners. To those who entertain such views only would such views appear natural, and the Editor does not hold himself responsible for the exaggerated importance with which such persons may invest such things. The articles named are regarded by the Editor and by economists as the most valuable because they throw the most light on the life and condition of the people. An idle-minded man here and there may pride himself because of his grandfather's wealth, and a morbid egotist here and there may, for fear of the opinion of the idle-minded man, chafe and fret because of his grandfather's comparative poverty, but history cannot remain unwritten because of such persons. The articles referred to show the sizes of estates, and show that instead of there having been a few rich and many poor people in the South, as has been believed abroad, there were a few rich and many well to do and comfortably fixed people in the South. The possession of riding vehicles and pianos shows the progress of refinement and the development of civilization. This kind of information is now being appreciated at its value,<sup>1</sup> and the Editor will close this with the remark that he will in the future as in the past manage the Antiquary in accordance with his own best judgment, and for his own pleasure and satisfaction, and will pay no attention to the criticisms of the morbid and the unduly dissatisfied.—[EDITOR.]

<sup>1</sup>“Collector William F. Stone yesterday forwarded an application from the officers of the Maryland Historical Society to the Secretary of the Treasury requesting the Government to allow the Maryland Historical Society to take charge of a number of colonial records which were recently discovered in the record office of the Custom House. The records which the Society is most anxious to secure are tax books for the year 1798, which contain a complete list of the taxpayers, location of property and number of slaves owned by individuals that year. These tax books are complete for Anne Arundel county, Baltimore city, Baltimore county, Charles, Caroline, Harford, Prince George’s, Queen Anne’s, Montgomery, St. Mary’s, Somerset and Talbot counties. In addition to these books there are several tax books containing the names of property and slaveholders in the city of Washington. The Historical Society officials say that these books are of inestimable value and contain information, both as to individuals and property, which cannot be found elsewhere.”—From the Baltimore Sun, Thursday morning, July 26, 1900.

bly of our Colony and Dominion of Virginia, hath been appointed and laid out for a town, called by the name of Norfolk; which place of late years, especially during the administration of our trusty and well beloved William Gooch, Esq., our Lieutenant Governor of our said Colony, hath very greatly increased in the number of its inhabitants and buildings, in so much that the said town not being capable of containing all such persons as have resorted thereto, divers of our loving subjects have seated themselves and families upon the adjoining lands, so far as a place called the Town Bridge. Know ye, That we being willing to encourage all our good and faithful subjects, as well at present residing and inhabiting, as shall or may hereafter reside and inhabit within the said town of Norfolk and the places thereto adjoining, so far as the Town Bridge, at the instance and petition of divers of our dutiful and loyal subjects, inhabitants of the said town and places adjacent, of our Royal grace, good will, certain knowledge, and mere motion, with the advice of our Council of our said Colony, have constituted and erected, and by these our Letters Patent do constitute and erect the said town of Norfolk, and the said parts thereto adjoining so far as the said Bridge, A Borough by the name of the Borough of Norfolk; and for us, our heirs and successors do by these presents grant to the inhabitants of the said Borough and of the parts adjacent, that the said Borough and the parts adjacent shall be a Borough Incorporate, consisting of a Mayor, one person learned in the law, stiled and bearing the office of Recorder of the said Borough, eight Aldermen, and sixteen other persons to be Common Council Men, of the said Borough; which said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Common Council Men, shall be a body incorporate, and one Community forever, in right and in fact; and by the name of Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common Council of the Borough of Norfolk, and as such shall be persons able and capable in law to acquire, purchase, and receive manors, lands, tenements, and hereditaments not exceeding one thousand pounds sterling per annum, and all goods and chattels whatsoever, to have, hold and enjoy, to them and their successors forever. And also that they the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common Council, by the same name, plead and be impleaded, prosecute and defend, answer and be answered in all and singular, causes, complaints, actions real, personal and mixt, of what kind or nature soever, in all courts, and places, and before all judges and justices whatsoever, and also that the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common Council, and their successors, shall have one common seal, to be used for their causes and business; and that it shall be lawful for them the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common Council, and their successors, their said seal at their pleasure to break, change, and to make anew from time to time as to them shall seem expedient: And we will, and by these presents declare, name, and appoint Samuel Boush, gent. to be Mayor of the said Borough for the year ensuing, and afterwards until the day for electing a Mayor hereinafter appointed; and Sir John Randolph, Knight, to be Recorder for the said Borough; George Newton, Samuel Boush, the younger, John Hutchins, Robert Tucker, John Taylor, Samuel Smith, the younger, James Ivey and Alexander Campbell, gents., inhabitants of the said Borough, to be Aldermen thereof for so long a time as they shall well behave themselves in their respective offices and places: and we do further order and direct, that the said Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen, before they shall enter into or upon the execution of their said offices, shall take the several oaths by law appointed for the security of our person and government, and subscribe the same, and the oath by our said Lieutenant Governor, appointed to be taken by the Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen of the said Borough, and subscribe the test, which oath shall be administered to them by our said Lieutenant Governor, or by such person or persons as he shall authorise and appoint to administer the same.

And we grant that the said Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen, or the major part of them shall elect and choose other of the most sufficient inhabitants of the said Borough, being freemen thereof, to be of the Common Council of the said Borough, for so long a time as they shall well behave themselves in their respective places.—And to perpetuate the succession of the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Common Councilmen in all time to come, We do Grant, That for the future they shall assemble in some convenient place in the said Borough, upon the feast day of St. John the Baptist, in every year; and shall elect and choose by the major vote of such of them as shall be then present, one other of the Aldermen of the said Borough, for the time being, to be Mayor of the said Borough for the ensuing year. And upon death, removal, or resignation of the said Mayor, Recorder, or Aldermen, or any of them, or within one month after such respective death or deaths, removal or removals, resignation or resignations, the rest of the said Aldermen, together with the said Mayor and Recorder, if they should be living, and Common Councilmen, or the major part of them, shall at a time by them to be appointed, meet within the said Borough and elect and nominate some other person or persons to be Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen of the said Borough, in the place and places of such person or persons so deceased or removed, as the case shall require, so as the said Mayor so to be elected and nominated, be at the time of such election and nomination actually one of the Aldermen of the said Borough; and so as the said Recorder so to be elected and nominated, be a person learned in the law; and so as the Aldermen or Aldermen so elected and nominated, at the time of such election and nomination, be actually of the Common Council of the said Borough; and the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Aldermen so elected and nominated, shall at the time and place of election take the several oaths above mentioned, and subscribe the same, and subscribe the test; which oath the said Mayor, Recorder, or any one of the Aldermen may, and is hereby required to administer; and shall then likewise, or on the said feast of St. John the Baptist, out of, and from among the inhabitants and free holders of the said Borough, elect and nominate so many persons to be of the Common Council as shall be wanting to make up the full number of sixteen persons, and that the persons hereby appointed and named, or hereafter to be elected and nominated Mayor, Recorder and Alderman, be Justices of the Peace within the said Borough, the precincts and liberties thereof, and directors of the buildings and streets in the said Borough; and that they or any three of them, whereof the Mayor or Recorder for the time being shall always be one, shall have within the said Borough and the precincts and liberties thereof, full power and authority to make Constables, Surveyors of the Highways, and other necessary Officers; and to rule, order and govern the inhabitants, and the buildings, and the streets thereof, as Justices of the Peace, and Directors are or shall be authorised to do, and shall have power, and may execute all the Laws, Ordinances and Statutes in that behalf made, as fully and amply as if they were authorised thereto by express commission, willing and commanding that no other Justices of the Peace or quorum within our said Colony do at any time hereafter take upon them, or any of them, to execute the office of a Justice of the Peace within the said Borough or precinct thereof, in any cause, matter or thing hereby declared to be cognizable by the said Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen, notwithstanding any commission at large authorising them thereunto, saving always the authority and jurisdiction of our Justices of the Peace of our County of Norfolk; nor at any time hereafter to be assigned during the time of their holding their Courts in the said Borough, saving also to all and every other Judges, Justices and officers, all such rights, powers, Jurisdictions and authorities granted, or which shall be granted to them or any of them by any statute or any act of Assembly of this Colony.

And further, we will and grant unto the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Common Councilmen of the said Borough for the time being, full power and authority to erect work houses, houses of correction, and prisons within the said Borough, and to make, order and appoint such by-laws, rules and ordinances for the regulation and good government of the trade and other matters, exigencies and things, within the said Borough and precincts, as to them or the major part of them shall seem meet, and to be consonant to reason and justice, and not contrary but as near as conveniently may be agreeable to the laws, acts of Assembly and statutes now in force; which said by-laws, rules and ordinances shall be observed, kept and performed by all manner of persons trading or residing within the said Borough, under such reasonable pains, penalties and forfeitures as shall be imposed by the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Common Councilmen, or the major part of them then assembled, from time to time, not exceeding forty shillings, current money of Virginia ; which said pains, penalties and forfeitures shall be levied by distress and sale of the goods of the person offending, to be employed for the public benefit of the said Borough, at their discretion.

And further, we have given and granted unto the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Common Council of the said Borough, and to their successors forever, and to all freeholders of the said Borough owning half a lot of land with a house built thereon according to law, and to all persons actually residing and inhabiting in the said Borough having a visible estate of the value of fifty pounds current money, at the least ; and all persons who shall hereafter serve five years to any trade within the said Borough, and shall after the expiration of their time of service be actually house keepers and inhabitants of said Borough ; and for us and our successors, by these presents, do give and grant to them full powers and absolute authority to name, elect, and send one Burgess out of the inhabitants actually residing and being within the said Borough ; which Burgess elected shall have a freehold or visible estate within the said Borough, of the value of two hundred pounds sterling ; and if such person so elected be not actually residing within the said Borough, then he shall have a free hold or other visible estate of the value of five hundred pounds sterling, to be present, sit and vote in the house of Burgesses of our said Colony of Virginia, and then to do and consent to those things which by the Common Council of our said Colony shall happen to be ordained. And do hereby grant and order that writ or writs of election of a Burgess for the said Borough shall be issued and sent to the said Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen, for the time being, when and so often as a General Assembly shall be called, or occasion shall require :—Provided always, That all such electors and voters shall and do, before they be admitted to give their vote at such election, make oath of their freehold, and the value of their personal estate, if the candidates or other electors shall require the same to be done.

And further, we, of our especial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, for us, our heirs and successors, by these presents give and grant to the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Common Council of the said Borough, and to their successors forever, full and free license, power and authority, to have, hold and keep three Markets weekly in some convenient place in the said Borough, to be by them appointed (that is to say) on every Tuesday, on every Thursday, and on every Saturday in the week; and also two Fairs yearly, to be held and kept on the first Monday in October, and on the first Monday in April, in every year, for the sale and vending all manner of cattle, victuals, provisions, goods, wares and merchandise whatsoever, on which Fair days, and on two days next before, and two days next after each of the said Fair days, all persons coming to, or being at the said Fairs, together with their cattle, goods and merchandise, shall be exempted and privileged from all arrests, attachments, or executions, except for toll and process from the Court of Pie-Poudre; and that the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Common Council, and their successors forever, shall have power to set such reasonable toll on all such cattle, goods, wares and merchandise, and all other commodities, as shall be sold in the said Markets and Fairs respectively, as shall be by them thought reasonable, not exceeding six pence on every beast, and three pence on every hog, and the twentieth part of the value of any other commodity sold therein:—Provided always, That the toll to be rated and assessed on the cattle and goods so sold, which shall be belonging to the freemen inhabitants of the said Borough, shall be but one half of the said toll which shall be rated on persons not freemen of the said Borough; and that the said Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen or any three of them, of which the Mayor or Recorder shall be one, shall and may hold a Court of Piepoudre, during the time of the said Fairs, for hearing and determining all controversies, suits and quarrels, that may arise and happen therein, according to the usual and legal courses in the like cases in England; and we do, for us and our successors, give and grant to the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Common Council, and their successors forever, all and every toll, profits and perquisites arising, due and incident from or to the said Markets, Fairs and Courts of Piepoudre, to be and by them, or the major part of them, used laid out and expended for the benefit and advantages of the said Borough.

And further, we do grant, for us and our successors, that the said Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen, and their successors, or any four or more of them, of which the said Mayor, Recorder, or the last preceding Mayor, or senior Alderman shall be one, shall hold a Court of Hustings once in every month within the said Borough, of which Court they are hereby empowered to appoint and make Clerks and other proper officers from time to time as there shall be occasion, and to settle and allow reasonable fees, not exceeding the fees now settled and allowed in our County Courts of our said Colony; and shall have jurisdiction and hold plea of trespass and ejection, and of all writs of dower for any lands and tenements within the said Borough, and all other acts personal and mixed, arising the said Borough, precincts and liberties thereof; and as a Court of Record, give judgment and award executions thereon, according to the Laws and Statutes of England, and of the said Colony; Provided, the demand in the said action personal and mixed do not exceed twenty pounds, current money, or four thousand pounds of Tobacco. And provided nevertheless, That any party or parties, plaintiff or defendant, shall be at liberty to appeal from the judgment of the said Court of Hustings to the General Court, or to obtain a Writ of Error, or Supercedeas to such judgment returnable to the said General Court, under such limitations, rules and orders as are already prescribed and set down by the Act of Assembly, or Rules of the said General Court, for obtaining and prosecuting Appeals, Writs of Error, and Supersedeas, from the Judgment of the County Courts to the General Court.

In Witness whereof, we have caused these our letters to be made Patent; witness our trusty and well beloved William Gooch, Esq., our Lieutenant Governor, and Commander-in-Chief of our said Colony and Dominion of Virginia, at Williamsburg, under the Seal of our said Colony, the fifteenth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, in the tenth year of our reign

“To Norfolk belongs the distinction of having the oldest Masonic lodge in the United States. This organization, known as Norfolk Lodge, No. 1, was instituted in 1729 and chartered under the title of Royal Exchange Lodge No. 172. Under the Grand Lodge of England it operated until 1741, when it surrendered its English charter and received one from the Grand Lodge of Scotland, which conferred the title of St. John’s Lodge, No. 177. Then came a period when the Revolutionary War cut it off from communication with the Grand Lodge. At Williamsburg in 1777 a convention of Virginia lodges was held. P. M. Mathew Phripp, of St. John’s Lodge, was elected president. Four years later the Grand Lodge of Virginia was organized, and in 1790 St. John’s was chartered under its present title. Since that time the lodge has played a prominent part in the history of the city. In 1806 the corner stone of the first Masonic hall was laid in this city by Norfolk Lodge, which on Sunday, October 24, 1824, was honored by the presence of the Marquis de Lafayette, who was received with exalted Masonic honors. Mr. J. Hardy Hendren is the oldest living member of the Norfolk Lodge. Mr. Hendren was raised to the sublime degree March 5, 1853. The original charter of the lodge adorns the walls of the Blue Lodge room in Masonic Temple. The relic is highly prized. Another priceless relic in possession of the lodge is a past master’s jewel of gold, said to be one of the oldest jewels of any Masonic order in America. The jewel bears this inscription: Presented December 27, 5804 A. L. (which is 1804 A. D.), by the Lodge No. 1, Norfolk, Va., to the R. W. James Whitehead, P. M., as a testimony of respect and gratitude for the zeal and abilities displayed by him in his exalted station.”

toleration in Maryland under Lord Baltimore and answered some recent critics. Continuing, he said in part: Toleration is a general word frequently misunderstood. It is really the patience with which we suffer a thing which we judge to be bad, but which we think it desirable not to punish. The thing which we tolerate we always regard as wrong. It is an abuse of language to say that we tolerate the truth. Truth in the scientific order is one, changeless and intolerant. Intolerance in the order of ideas is simply a firm adhesion to the truth without any concession or deviation. This is the correct principle in the domain of thought. It is the Catholic principle as applied to religious truth, and is maintained by the authority of the infallible Church. The modern non-Catholic position is that one religion is as good as another. This results from the fact that they have no definite standard or test by which one form of religion can be determined to be better than another. This position is illogical, as different sects hold contradictory opinions, one of which, at least, must be false, and to affirm that one is as good as another is to affirm that error is as good as truth and equally pleasing to Him who has said: Ego sum veritas. The agnostic takes the same position that there can be nothing but opinion or individual predilection as to religious truth, and practically both work together in excluding religion from education on the ground that it has no attainable certainty. This is wrong. Religious truth is definitely ascertainable and must be believed with certainty. It is often thought that universal toleration is the principle now admitted by all in the relation of government to religious belief and practices. This is not entirely true. Our Government would punish any religion that offered human sacrifice as part of its creed; or suicide, as in the case of the Hindoo widow; or immorality, as in the worship of Venus at Rome under the Empire. We punish Mormonism, enforce Sunday laws and restrain Christian Scientists. The truth is that every government will restrain practices against the universal social and moral sentiment of its people, whether such practices are indulged in as the result of a religious belief or not, and the right to do this has been affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States. The ages of persecution are frequently misunderstood. Punishments were barbarous, but so were they in the administration of civil justice. Persecution was not confined to religions. The pagan Nero and the infidel Robespierre were typical persecutors. It is a universal fact in history, whose roots are in human nature. Governments persecuted more then because there was more religion in their laws. Modern toleration is the result of a great number of causes. Indifference as to what is true, the presence of a multitude of opinions, the lassitude that comes from constant struggle, the ease and rapidity with which ideas are disseminated all over the world, the breaking down of provincial boundaries, the strength of commercial organization, increased gentleness of manners—these are some of the causes which have brought about our present toleration.”—From the Baltimore Sun for Friday morning, March 23, 1900.

I, John M<sup>c</sup>Clennan having been educated in the principles of the Roman Church, and being convinced that, since the Rise of the Pope's temporal Power, the Members of the said Church have been cruelly imposed upon by their Priests, who vainly pretended that they could grant Absolution for Sin, and Dispensations for Sums of Money, thus usurping an Authority over the Consciences of Men, & who have supported the Doctrine of the real Pressence at the Administration of the Eucharist, do now solemnly abjure the supremacy of the Pope, and hereby renounce all the superstitious errors of the said Church of Rome, and declare that I will be a Member of the reformed Church, holding the Faith of a Protestant from this day, being the 22<sup>d</sup> of July 1792.

The Methodist Protestant Church in Norfolk, For Sale. The Trustees desirous of building a Church better suited to the purposes of the denomination, in another part of the town, offer for sale their present house of worship on Fen Church street. This building is about 90 feet long, by 40 feet wide and 23 feet pitch, with a good basement story mostly above ground, and the walls are among the best in town, with some slight alterations, it might be made a suitable edifice for public assemblies of any kind. It would answer well for a Lyceum, a Temperance Hall, or a place for political meetings. The Corporation might do well to make this property their own, and thereby put themselves in possession of a most commodious and delightful house in which to hold all meetings of general interest to the Borough. The terms will be accommodating

None of them are to be taken to make up any legacy in this will, nor to decend to any of my children, for I abhor the idea of slavery. Sister Mary Smith executed to him for all her property a deed which was in her possession. "Now if the said deed is confirmed to me I direct the executors of her former husband E. Francis Mason was a member of the Court of Lower Norfolk County from May 15th 1637 to August 15th, 1648, was sheriff in 1646 & 47 and Churchwarden in 1640 and vestryman in 1648. He was twice married, and by his first wife Mary had a daughter named Anne. Mr J Henry Lea in his article Certificates of Head Rights in the County Court of Lower Norfolk, Virginia, in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register for January 1893, page 68, implies that Elizabeth was by the first wife. The fact that she is not mentioned in the Muster of her father Francis Mason in 1624 is proof that she was born afterwards, and was by the second wife. Francis Mason came to Virginia in 1613 and his wife Alice in 1622. In 1642 he received a patent for land and two of the head rights were Alice and Margerie Ganey, and Mr Lea in a note to an abstract from the will of Margaret Cheeseman of St Mary Magdalen Bermondsey widow, page 250, of the April, 1893, number of the same magazine says "the Ganey connection before indicated, is made certain" yet in this very will Lemuell Mason is spoken of as "my very loving knsman," and Elizabeth Thelaball as "my cousin." Lemuell always spoke of her as his sister and not as his half sister. "To all Chian people to whome this p'sent Writing shall come. ## CHARLES REID

Charles Reid the eldest son of George Reid and Elizabeth Taylor his wife was born in Forfar Scotland on the 4th of April, 1800, and dying at his residence, 524 East Main street Norfolk, Virginia, Tuesday morning, January 17th, 1899<sup>1</sup> was the last living link in Lower Norfolk County<sup>2</sup> who connected the 18th century with the 19th, and the last person who had lived in Lower Norfolk County continuously from the first year of the 19th Century. He came with his parents in 1801,<sup>3</sup> to Virginia, where they settled first in Portsmouth, and afterwards in Norfolk. His parents<sup>4</sup> returned to Scotland temporarily in 1816, and left him with his uncle, Robert Soutter,<sup>5</sup> a Scotch merchant, who entrusted him with the settling of his father's business. At the age of 21 years, after he had received the best education to be obtained in this section, he, with the assistance of his uncle, Mr. Soutter, went into the grocery and commission business in Water Street, near Commercial Place. On Edward Mack, the pastor of the church, was too ill to be present, and the services were conducted by Rev. Dr. J. H. Howerton of Charlotte, N. C., assisted by Rev. Edwin B. McCluer of Park Avenue Presbyterian Church and Rev J. W. Lawson. He was buried in Cedar Grove Cemetery.

In his will made November, 1849, he left to his "wife Betty, negro girl Eliza until the said girl attain to the age of twenty years which will be on the fifth day of December one thousand eight hundred and sixty five at which time I hereby emancipate and set free the said girl Eliza" In memory of Elizabeth wife of George Reid, born in Forfar, Scotland. She came to Norfolk in 1801. In 1858 she removed to Baltimore where she died Jan 26, 1863, aged 86.

the 17th of March, 1825, he married Miss Lucretia Nash,<sup>6</sup> of Portsmouth, who died in 1868. A short time after his marriage he formed a partnership with his brother George<sup>7</sup>, and did business on Commercial Row, near the ferry wharf. The firm prospered, and for 15 years they transacted a large commission and stave exporting business. George then withdrew from the firm, and Charles retired from the grocery business and with Robert<sup>8</sup> Soutter, Jr., established the stave exporting commission and guano business on Nivison's wharf under the name of Reid & Soutter, and continued the business until Mr. Soutter withdrew to accept a position in New York. After the close of the War of Secession he "associated with himself his two sons, George C. and James T. S. Reid, under the firm

PRICE OF CORN, 1779.

For a barrel of Corn

Tho<sup>s</sup> Hunter, Sen

<sup>10</sup> Charles (now dead) George C., Robert S., James T. S., Mrs Benjamin Gray of Richmond; Mrs George D. Armstrong of this city; Mrs James C. Spence, of Baltimore, and Mrs Charles E. Thorburn, of New York City. It is probable that Mr. Reid was the oldest person who ever lived in Norfolk. The American Mortality Table used by the Equitable Insurance Company says that out of 100,000 persons 10 years of age, 3 live to be 95 years old, and in the article, Life Insurance, in the American Cyclopaedia, published by the Appletons in 1875, British tables show that out of 100,000 persons 10 years of age, 4 live to be 98 and 1 reaches the age of 99. A former president of the Institute of Actuaries, in his book On Centenarians; and The Duration of the Human Race, London, 1899,—his enquiries were restricted to instances of Centenarians exhibited in the experience of Assurance Companies and the National Debt Office—was only able to find 22 centenarians—18 female and 4 male, of which the oldest, a female, attained to the age of 105 years and 8 months. The New York Sun for January 16, 1901, says: "Hiram Cronk, the only survivor of the War of 1812, was born April 27, 1800."

<sup>1</sup> A Virginia pound was \$3.33 $\frac{1}{3}$ —the price of the barrel of corn was therefore ten dollars in the depreciated Virginia money of the time.

LAND AND SLAVE OWNERS P. A. COUNTY, 1775.

(A Recapitulation)

There were in Princess Anne County in 1775, not including the Black Water Precinct, the report of which has not been found, 445 land owners who owned 107,958 acres of land, or more than 242 $\frac{1}{2}$  acres to each owner.

<sup>2 & 3</sup> The Porters were brothers. “The custom of giving two sons the same Christian name was not uncommon in England at this period (1656). There are instances where three brothers bore the same name. In one of the latter cases, cited by Col. Joseph L. Chester in a letter to the writer, they are designated in one document “John the elder, John the younger, and John the middle.”—The Hilton Family, by John T. Hassam, A. M.
