FOREWORD

GSA through the National Archives and Records Service is responsible for administering the permanent noncurrent records of the Federal Government. These archival holdings, now amounting to about 900,000 cubic feet, date from the days of the Continental Congresses; they include the basic records of the three branches of our Government--Congress, the courts, and the executive departments and independent agencies. The Presidential Libraries--Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman, and Eisenhower--contain the papers of those Presidents and many of their associates in office. Among our holdings are many hallowed documents relating to great events of our Nation's history, preserved and venerated as symbols to stimulate a worthy patriotism in all of us. But most of the records are less dramatic, kept because of their continuing practical utility for the ordinary processes of government, for the protection of private rights, and for the research use of students and scholars.

To facilitate the use of the records and to describe their nature and content, our archivists prepare various kinds of finding aids. The present work is one such publication. We believe that it will prove valuable to anyone who wishes to use the records it describes.

Special lists are published by the National Archives as part of its records-description program. The special list describes in detail the contents of certain important records series, that is, units of records of the same form or that deal with the same subject or activity or that are arranged serially. Its form and style are not fixed but vary according to the nature of the records to which it relates. Its distinguishing characteristic is that it goes beyond the general description contained in a record group registration statement and a preliminary inventory and describes records in terms of individual record items.

In addition to lists and other finding aids that relate to particular record groups, the National Archives publishes some that give an overall picture of materials in its custody. A comprehensive Guide to the Records in the National Archives (1948) and a brief guide, Your Government's Records in the National Archives (revised 1950), have been issued. A guide devoted to one geographical area--Guide to Materials on Latin America in the National Archives (1961)--has been published. Forty-four Reference Information Papers, which analyze records in the National Archives on such subjects as transportation, small business, and the Middle East, have so far been issued. Records of the Civil War are described in Guide to Federal Archives Relating to the Civil War (1962) and Civil War Maps in the National Archives (1964), those of World War I in Handbook of Federal World War Agencies and Their Records, 1917-1921 (1943), and those of World War II in the two-volume guide, Federal Records of World War II (1950-51). Genealogical records are described in Guide to Genealogical Records in the National Archives (1964). Many bodies of records of high research value have been edited by the National Archives and reproduced on microfilm as a form of publication. Positive prints of this microfilm, many of which are described in the List of National Archives Microfilm Publications (1966), are available for purchase.

INTRODUCTION

I. Basis for Compilation and Date Range of the List

This list contains the names of more than 26,000 American-flag merchant vessels that received certificates of enrollment or registry at the port of New York during the years 1789-1867. It is based on either abstracts or copies of these certificates now in the National Archives.¹ The period covered by the list begins with the passage of the Navigation Act of September 1, 1789 (1 Stat. 55), and ends with 1867, the year in which the first annual List of Merchant Vessels of the United States² was published. No pertinent records relating to enrollments from September 1808 to March 1809 or to registers from September 1810 to March 1811 have been found in the National Archives. In most instances the names of the vessels documented during those two periods will not be listed. If, however, one of those vessels received another certificate at New York during the years 1789-1867, its name will appear in the list.

II. The List as a Guide to Records of Other Ports

Because of its prominence as a commercial center, many vessels stopped at New York on their inward and outward voyages. During these stops many of the vessels, usually documented at other American ports, required new certificates because of a change in ownership or in the type of trade (coastwise or foreign) in which the vessels were to engage. Thus this list can serve as a guide not only to the certificates of New York vessels but also to those of other American vessels, since it is frequently possible to compile a complete list of the certificates for a particular vessel from the information contained in an individual certificate or the abstract of it. Each certificate, for example, usually contains a citation to the number, date, and port of issue of the preceding certificate; and many certificates also include endorsements giving the place and date of surrender--information that will usually serve as a guide to the place and date of issuance of the succeeding certificate. The abstracts, described in greater detail in section IV, can be used in the same manner.

¹The abstracts and copies are among the records of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation (Record Group 41), except for copies of the 1791-1801 registers that are part of the French Spoliation Claims records of the Bureau of Customs (Record Group 36).

²Published annually by the Treasury Department, the Bureau of Navigation, the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation, and the Bureau of Customs, respectively.

III. A Brief History of Vessel Documentation³

During the period that the United States was governed under the Articles of Confederation (1783-89), the individual States continued to exercise the same authority over merchant vessels within their respective jurisdictions that they had exercised as British colonies. The Navigation Act of 1789 brought under the jurisdiction of the new Federal Government all American-flag merchant vessels of 5 tons burden and over engaged in foreign commerce. Three years later Congress placed all vessels engaged in the coastal and fishing trades under similar jurisdiction.⁴ These laws required that the certificates of registry and enrollment be issued after the proper admeasurement of each vessel and the presentation of proof of its build and ownership as evidence that the vessel was entitled to the rights and privileges of an American vessel (for example, lower tonnage duties and certain immunities under international law). Registers were granted to vessels measuring 5 tons and over engaged in foreign trade, and enrollments were granted to those measuring 20 tons or over engaged in various types of coastal and fishing trades. Whenever there was a change in a vessel's ownership, type of trade, tonnage, dimensions, rig, or name, a new certificate was issued and the old one was surrendered to the collector of customs at the nearest port. Two copies of each certificate were made--one for use on board the vessel and one for the collector. Surrendered copies (those used on board the vessel) were endorsed as to place, date, and reason for surrender and were sent to the Register of the Treasury in Washington, D.C.

During the period 1885-87 the Department of the Treasury called in the collectors' copies of the registers for the years 1791-1801 in connection with the settlement of the French Spoliation Claims; and those copies are now a part of Record Group 36, Records of the Bureau of Customs. Copies of the registers after 1801 are a part of Record Group 41, Records of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation. The enrollments are also a part of Record Group 41.

IV. Content of Individual Certificates and Abstracts

Each certificate contains the following information: the port and date of issue; and the name of the vessel, its place and date of build, ³For a more detailed history of vessel documentation, see Forrest R. Holdcamper, "Registers, Enrollments and Licenses in the National Archives," in American Neptune, 1:275-294 (July 1941).

⁴Acts of February 16, 1792 (1 Stat. 229), and February 18, 1793 (1 Stat. 305).

the rig, the interior length, the breadth and depth of the hull, the number of decks and masts, the names of the owners during the life of the certificate, the name of the master serving on the date the certificate was issued, and a citation to the preceding certificate. The place of residence and occasionally the occupation of the person securing the certificate are also given. After 1850 the places of residence of the other owners and the number of shares held by each are usually included. In many cases the first certificate issued for a particular vessel includes the name of the builder. The endorsement of surrender, when it does appear on the certificate, serves as a guide to the place and date that the next certificate was issued. The endorsement on the last certificate for a particular vessel sometimes contains data regarding the vessel's final disposition. A few documents also contain endorsements regarding changes of master or mortgages against the vessel. It is not possible to ascertain with certainty, from the certificates, the names of all the masters of a given vessel or to determine the tenure of a particular master's service. Master abstracts of both enrollments and registers were maintained by the office of the Register of the Treasury in Washington, D.C. They are arranged by calendar year, thereunder geographically by port of issue, and thereunder chronologically. Most entries in the abstracts contain the number of the certificate and the date of issue; the name of the vessel; the name of the person who secured the certificate (known as the husband or managing owner); the name of the master on the date of issue; a reference to the preceding document; the vessel's tonnage; and the place, date, and reason for the certificate's surrender. If the entry information is complete, it is possible--through the use of these abstracts--to compile a complete list of the certificates for the life of a particular vessel.

V. Arrangement of the List

This list is arranged alphabetically by name of vessel according to a pattern used until recently in the annual List of Merchant Vessels of the United States. The first initial or the first word in the name determines its place in the list. Within each letter of the alphabet, names consisting of that letter only come first and are followed by compound names beginning with that letter as an initial (E. Alexander Jones). These names are followed by compound names beginning with two initial letters (E. T. Cunningham). If the name consists of only two initials (E. Z.), it is placed at the beginning of the group of names starting with those two initial letters (E. Z., E. Z. Allen). Names beginning with three initial letters (E. A. R. Jones) come next. These names are followed by those consisting of or starting with a full word. If two compound names begin with the same initial letter or the same word, it is the second letter or word in the name that determines its place in the list. (For an illustration of the alphabetical pattern, see table on page 5.) The words "and," "of," and "the " are treated like any other words for purposes of alphabetization. "Mc" is placed between "Mab" and "Mac" (Mabel, McDonough, McMurry, MacArthur, MacClellan).

When there is more than one vessel with the same name, the arrangement is chronological by year of build; if this date is not known, the year of the first known New York certificate is used. If two vessels of the same name were built in the same year, the arrangement thereunder is by the date of the first known New York certificate. In the few cases where vessels of the same name, year build, and first New York certificate are listed, the arrangement is by tonnage--with names of those vessels of lesser tonnage coming first. Entries in the body of the list, consisting of cross-references to other names of a particular vessel, appear at the end of the group of identical names.

Each entry in the list contains the name of the vessel, its tonnage (fractions of a ton, expressed in 95ths through the year 1864 and in 100ths thereafter, are omitted⁵), rig, year and place of build, and date and type of its first known New York document. The data are given under the first known name of the vessel as documented at New York. Later changes in rig and tonnage are not given; but, when a change of name is known, it is indicated in a footnote at the bottom of the page. A cross-reference note in the body of the list indicates that the information regarding a particular vessel is given under its other name.

Since a vessel with a compound name is frequently known by the last part of its name, an index to compound names has been included at the end of the list.

Kenneth R. Hall

⁵The new vessel admeasurement system was outlined in an act of May 6, 1864 (13 Stat. 69). The original system of admeasurement was outlined in the Navigation Act of September 1, 1789 (1 Stat. 55).

TABLE ILLUSTRATING THE LIST'S PATTERN OF ALPHABETIZATION

Note: When the repetition of the same first word makes further refinement necessary, the second word becomes the deciding factor and the same pattern as above is observed. For a graphic illustration, cover the words "Garrett," "General," and "General Allen," respectively, in Groups I, II, and III. Note that within each group the entries to the right are in the same alphabetical sequence as the 9 entries at the beginning of the table. In Group III, if "Smith" seems to be a long word to begin a group, remember that it is alphabetized under "S," and the next entry begins the part alphabetized under "T." See page 3 for a verbal description of the alphabetization pattern and the rules that established it.
