Wearing shoes is a terrible price to pay for an education, according to Ingrid Larsen, coed at the University of Minnesota and a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. At home in Hawaii she never wears shoes, so Miss Larsen defers hers as soon as she gets home from classes. Above, barefooted, she is garbed in a holo, formal Hawaiian party dress.

immie Hidler ...in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—Star makes the surest headlines in Hollywood. Bill Powell and Myrna Loy—as a duo—are far more popular than any other pair. Along with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers consort with one another as harmoniously as bread and butter, while Fred, on his own for the first time in "Damsel in Distress," comes too close a cropper for comfort. MacMurtry and Lombard, Laurel and Hardy, MacDonald and Eddy—those are all names to conjure with—as long as they are linked on the theatre marquee. Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell—as a team—were worth millions. After they were separated, Janet went into a decline and Charlie vanished from the screen.

The priceless coquette in every such combination seems to be the personal harmony between the co-stars. Gaynor and Farrell were in love, consequently their love scenes were believable and appealing. All the other great team combinations have been based on personal friendship.

That is exactly why I cannot understand the continued trend of Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond. Ann is a grand little scene, Gene, to the majority of fans, is a peeping personality. Either one, alone, would have a chance to come to the top. Together they are a dismal loss. I do not profess to like one another more thoroughly than any other team, but I have history. Keeping them together comes under the general heading of senseless cruelty.

Today, sitting in the Twentieth Century-Fox cafe, I watched the antics of the extra girls and girls. Somewhere in the background an orchestra should have been playing. "The Girl in the White Painted Doll." Some are blondes, some are brunettes, a few are red-heads. They are all dressed in tall, some are neither short nor tall—but each wears the same make-up, the same style of dress and the same general atmosphere of artificiality. They look like nothing so much as mannikins standing out in a machine. While I watched one of the studio's scenarists and I tried to decide why they all conform to a single type, they gave up the task after making a few minor observations. For example, each one has her eyebrows in exactly the same "exotic" fashion and, as a result, each has an expression of wide-eyed surprise.

When Sonja Henie and Tyrone Power—about a few weeks ago in the most publicized westhustle in Hollywood—met in the theatre, the first thing that happened was that everyone leans forward and does everything but cup an ear in the effort to hear any conversation between them. We are not really romantic, but, by heaven, we are the most curious, interfering, gossip-mongering people that ever lived. But every day the meeting occurs—and every day we have listened to the consumer, said Senator Rochester. "The sweat of your brow is no longer a source of wealth," he declared, referring to the displacement of labor by machinery. The machine, he said, concentrates wealth in a few hands.

Maret, 30, of Santa Ana, who died January 16, left residential property valued at $2500 to his parents, John and Emma Maret, of Santa Ana, it was stated when his will was filed for probate in superior court. He intentionally omitted his estranged wife, Pearl Maret, 29, the will stated.

Raps Machine Age
U. S. Department of Labor statistics, he said, show that steam machinery permits 4,000,000 men to do the work of 21,000,000, that electrical machinery enables 10 men to do the work of 100, that the steam engine, 3,500,000 farmers, with machinery, can do the work of 12,000,000 farmers.

"We have said, we were producing only 89 per cent of our capacity, but even then produced 67 per cent more than we could consume. Blaming a maladjustment of wages, the speaker quoted figures of Personal Repeal Federation to show that in 1930 the cost of living had increased 86 per cent, but wages increased only 6 per cent.

"We produce goods at a higher rate than we can consume, and we buy those goods," declared the speaker. Reviewing the steps taken, first by Hoover and later by Roosevelt, to meet the conditions of panic, the speaker declared both had failed to touch the cause. The present administration proposals for wage reform, crop control and governmental reorganization will not solve the problem, he said. Taxes can't be reduced, wages can't be raised, he said. The declaration of the Republican Glenn Frank for an economy of plenty is no nearer the mark, he said. "They tell you what is needed, but they don't tell you how to get it," he said. "We had so much of everything in 1929 that we almost starved."

"New System Needed"

A new monetary system must be found, he declared. "So long as we allow the 16,000 privately owned banks, having $500 billion more credit than there is currency, to regulate our monetary system, we cannot allow all the money to flow in the wealth of our country," he added. "A new medium of exchange is necessary to our ability to produce the answer."

Samuel Hart introduced Senator Rochester to the group, explaining that he had known the senator since the latter's boyhood. President E. F. Roosevelt, of the association, presided over the meeting. Secretary J. C. Metzger introduced various guests, including Secretary Newton Smith and National Breakfast club, of Glendale, which is also an organization of housewives.

Newman spoke briefly on the growth of that organization, pointing out the many problems of the home-owned business. Others introduced included Sheriff Logan Jackson, Attorney Tryon E. Stephens, Assessor James Sleeper, Auditor W. T. Lambert, Mayor Fred Rowland and Councilman George Smith and Ernest Layton of Santa Ana; City Judge J. G. Mitchell; Secretary Howard J. Wood of the West Street Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Marie Gothard, secretary of the Santa Ana Realty Board; and Attorney Arthur E. Koepsel.

Sleeper Applauded

Assessor James Sleeper, in remarks on the "household problems," drew applause when he referred to the harm done by the community by "uninsured and vicious charges" and expressed the hope that the county grand jury would fully report its investigation of such charges.

Referring to accusations against him from Supervisor N. E. West, whom the grand jury recently charged with misconduct in office, Sleeper declared he had submitted a handwritten $16,000 in public funds he came into office, and has accounted for every cent of it.

Seven miles of drifts eight to 12 feet deep lay ahead. An unknown number of men were marooned at Carey's Camp on the Silver Lake road 11 miles north of Minn.
