If it's Tuesday, this must be the Autobahn. Tired of the same old scenery? Feeling a little steering-wheel wanderlust? Well, here's your chance to visit the Old Country and burn the doors off a few Saab's and VW's in the process. From the northern plains to the central mountains to the southern coasts, here are the toughest—and most beautiful—roads in Europe. Enjoy, amusez-vous, sich amüsieren...

 The Netherlands. Explode down the narrow roads of the Friesland countryside, twisting past the lush green meadows, dazzling tulip beds and windmills.

 Germany. Tame the wild Autobahn near Munich, where maximum speed is essential and four lanes give you plenty of room to strut your spetzel.

 Switzerland. They say the chalets are lovely this time of year. But who wants to stop when there are rugged, two-sided Alpine passes to cross and long dark tunnels to pierce?

 Italy. Solo mio. Just you, the Roman Coliseum, a few ancient roadside attractions—and legions of Latins who'd love to give you the boot.

 France. Cannes. Nice. The cobalt blue waters of the Mediterranean and the bone-white sands of the French Riviera. Not just another pretty road.

 Spain. Ola conquistador. Do you have what it takes to conquer the castles of the Moorish plains, then handle the snakelike curves along the Costa Brava?
