Dear Colleague,

May I be the first to congratulate you on your promotion to the rank of Superintendent.

As you already know, the task of the police is never easy and you now have one of the most difficult tasks in The Force. You will be expected to:

- 1 Deploy the units and men in your division so that the crime rate is kept under control.
- 2 Ensure that the public are in no danger and that their goodwill towards The Force is growing.
- 3 Make sure that all the events in the division are well policed and that they pass without incident.
- 4 Control the traffic computer in your division so that maximum traffic flow is obtained.

Enclosed in this pack are all the tools that you need to make your task more simple. We have provided three manuals, all written for the newly appointed Superintendent. The Force Training manual covers all the details of your week by week tasks, The Local Information Manual will give you an overview of your area and the Computer System New User Guide will have you in control of our Force computer within minutes.

We at headquarters look forward to hearing about your progress and to seeing Middletown Division continue as an exceptional example of good police practice.

Yours sincerely,

James
