Dear Friend,

I learned to fly at 14 when a Korean War Veteran took me up in an old L-5, spotter aircraft. It was the same type of aircraft he flew during that conflict and he really knew how to handle that bird! I was scared to death!! Anything that could be at the same time so scary, magnificent, thrilling, exciting, and wonderful had to be something I wanted to do for the rest of my life!! With SOLO FLIGHT, my partner Sid Meier and his software guys, have brought to you some of that same exhilaration I feel every time I advance the throttles for takeoff in my A-37 Dragonfly.

When we started on SOLO FLIGHT, I told Sid it had to be as realistic in the feel of flying as it was in the fancy graphics he could put on the screen.

I would gladly give up pretty colors and fancy building pictures for proper glide ratios, good stick feel, emergency procedures, and fun. The first week of development, I rented a C-172, and took Sid out to teach him to fly. Since I have taught more than 200 Air Force Lieutenants to fly, one brilliant software guru was a snap! SOLO FLIGHT is the result of much good design, much hard work, many rejections of the product by me because it didn't feel like flying, and a great desire to bring you the easiest to learn, MOST FUN, most like flying, most tested by real pilots, Primary Flight Training Simulator on the market today!!!

Special thanks to all the play testers including the 103rd TASS of the PA Air National Guard and for the software guys who made it all possible. We are very proud of their achievements in SOLO FLIGHT. I'd say more but I know you are anxious to get airborne and so am I.

Bill Jr. is one of SOLO FLIGHT's greatest fans. At 12 and with considerably fewer flying hours than Dad's 3000 hours he is also one of the best SOLO FLIGHT pilots around. Today, we are going to practice our SFO's (Simulated Flame Out Landings). We take turns climbing each other to various heights above the airfield, cutting the engines, and seeing if we can make the field. Then after that little warmup, we'll be ready for the real challenge — the MAIL PILOT GAME — we are going tough — the COMMAND level in COLORADO! We will have great fun with SOLO FLIGHT today and I know you will too!! GOOD FLYING TO YOU!!
