THE GAME

It is 2150. The war with the evil Peradusians continues apace, the planetary forces continue to slug it out on the surfaces of forgotten planets with names such as Farantoo and Seratzo.

Terra is allied with the so-called Black Swans from Cygnis, huge badger-like creatures with dexterous hands, and the Jaharians, the exotic blue-green coloured aliens from the Lesser Magellenic Cloud, also called the Space Fairies due to their resemblance to those mythical creatures of elder times – even though they do not have wings.

The allies have been fighting a long and bitter war, but they could not compete with the faster breeding of their insectoid enemy, which means that they can replace their casualties much quicker than the allies. Therefore they have been forced to resort to hit and run tactics, sending one man ships far behind the line of combat to disrupt the Peradusians' economy.

You have been sent to fly one on the long range penetration flights, on a one man mission behind enemy lines. You have to take your craft into the heart of the Peradusians' territory to disrupt enemy activities by destroying their space convoys.

The convoys are protected by close in fighter escorts. Be careful – they fly fast and are heavily armed with the latest Laser cannon.

Gameplay

At each level you will be given a number of craft to destroy. You can shoot the escort fighters or the hatches on the cargo ships. When you have shot enough craft you will move on to the next level.

The fighters will shoot you. Avoid the bullets.
