

STIFFLIP & Co.

An Action Back-Packed Adventure!

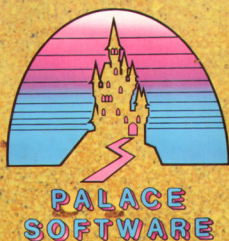

MISS PALMYRA PRIMBOTTOM – youngest ever troop leader in the Girl Guides and first winner of the badge for department. Has travelled the world collecting rare skin disorders and is the authoress of "The Young Ladies Companion to Tropical Exploration". Member of the Women's Temperance League for Clothing the Savages. Family motto: "Godliness is next to cleanliness", and in the tropics "Cleanliness is next to impossible". A champion embroiderer with a part-time position as a missionary it is often said that Palmyra Primbottom put the 'p' back into 'pith helmet'.

PROFESSOR BRAINDEATH – was declared clinically dead over a decade before the start of our adventure. Fortunately he has kept going thanks to his "Sonneund-windhalter" – a solar powered bow-tie which can act as a windmill during periods of extended darkness. Keen to visit the tropics on account of "all that sun". Worked for many years on a device to put the middle back into doughnuts, and went on to apply the same technology to toilet seats until the bottom fell out of the market – has since become one of our back-room boys. Founder of the ACME corporation, Prof Braindeath is living(?) proof that not all mad professors are bad mad professors.

VISCOUNT SEBASTIAN STIFFLIP – Englishman, eccentric and explorer – a comic hero in every sense. Though Captain of Cricket at school, Sebastian grew up in the shadow of his cousin Sylvester Stiffshirt, who trod on a mine in WW1, ensuring 3 corners of a foreign field that are forever England. Always proud of his modesty, a flying ace in the Great War, feared by his friends and loved by his foes and known by all as "The Yellow Viscount". After four years of tea at 5 o'clock, bandits at 6 o'clock and bed at 7:30, our have-a-go hero was promoted to inactive duty on the Stifflipe estate in darkest Surrey. Favourite colours: red, white and blue (equally). Hobbies: Defender of the Truth, the Faith and the Empire.

COLONEL R. G. BARGIE (G.N.T. and bar) of unknown wartime experience. Tall and dashing; blue-blooded, yellow-bellied, red-eyed and green-fingered and known to his friends as 'RGB' on account of his colourful personality. Joined our adventure to avoid bad tempered creditors at home and not a bit persuaded by talk of South American riches. Pet hates: hates pets (especially creepy-crawlies). Breeds clay pigeons. Favourite colour: Gold. Distinguished by an eye-patch but for little else.
