

Consonant G

"A Juggler Staggered Down the Street"

A colleague, George, looked fatigue. Even though it was muggy, he felt sluggish. They had a dialogue. The juggler yelled, "The government cut my funding! They support other programs, such as toupees (fake hair) for bald eagles. However, they don't give money to people throwing balls in the air. Now the balls hit the ground. I look like a clown!"

George replied, "I am sure it's a struggle to get money, but be aggressive! Organize an event, where men dress like penguins and get photographed for a magazine. The invited guest can eat spaghetti. I guarantee you, people will giggle with you."

The juggler looked intrigue, then stuck his tongue out at George.