

OF

Of course there is a part two to this sight word. It is not the greatest file of all-time, but it is a piece of cake (easy) to learn!

Collective Nouns

Collective nouns are a group of people, animals or things acting as a single unit.

"A pack of thieves stuck in a cloud of dust was attacked by an army of ants."

Collective nouns are singular in American English. Since the noun is singular, the verbs and pronouns are almost always singular.

"A pack of wolves is running after a sheep."

The verb "is" equals one; "are" equals more than one.

"A school of fish is a group of fish swimming in the same direction in a coordinated manner."

"V-shaped formations allows a flock of birds to use less energy (wind resistance)."

"A swarm of bees is most likely to be seen in late spring or early summer."

"The world record for largest litter of kittens is 19."

"Even a zebra should avoid a pack of dogs."

"A pride of lions can easily eat a buffalo."

"In Africa, a herd of buffalo can have more than 1,000 members."

Collective Nouns

"Ferdinand Magellan and his crew of sailors departed in 1519 to find another sea route to Asia."

"A fleet of ships does not have an exact number, but they have a common goal."

"A class of children is excited to learn collective nouns."

"Everyone used a deck of cards to learn math."

"A panel of experts sat around a table."

"We received a basket of fruit as a gift."

"Would you prefer a bunch of grapes or a bunch of bananas?"

"How many oyster should I gather take to make a string of pearls?"

"The bouquet of flowers was for my wife."

A bouquet of flowers is redundant.

All bouquets are flowers! (Notice it is more than one bouquet.)

A bouquet of roses is more descriptive.

Strangely, the collective noun police gets a plural verb.

"In Thailand, police are required to wear a Hello Kitty armband if they break the law. The people are happy with this ruling."

If you are ever in doubt on what verb to use, introduce the collective noun with the word members. Then use a plural verb. The members of _____ are acting as individuals.

Collective Noun

a pack of thieves

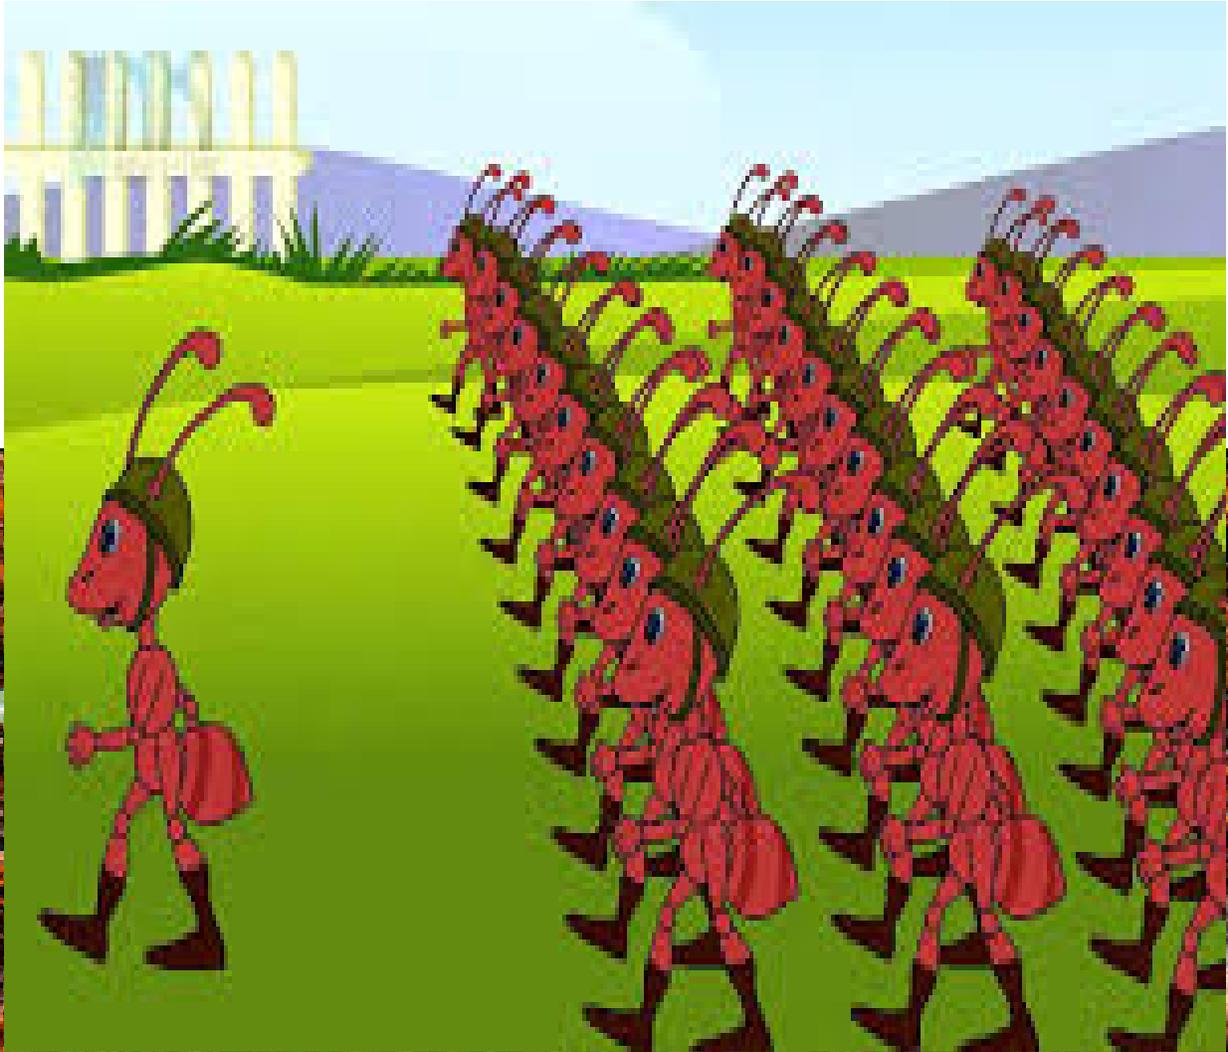

Collective Noun

a cloud of dust

Collective Noun

an army of ants

Collective Noun

a pack of wolves

Collective Noun

a school of fish

Collective Noun

a flock of birds

Collective Noun

a swarm of bees

Collective Noun

a litter of kittens

Collective Noun

a pack of dogs

Collective Noun

a pride of lions

Collective Noun

a herd of buffalo

Collective Noun

a crew of sailors

Collective Noun

a fleet of ships

Collective Noun

a class of children

Collective Noun

a deck of cards

Collective Noun

a panel of experts

Collective Noun

a basket of fruit

Collective Noun

a bunch of grapes

Collective Noun

a bunch of bananas

Collective Noun

a string of pearls

Collective Noun

a bouquet

A bouquet of flowers is redundant.
All bouquets are flowers!
A bouquet of roses is more descriptive.

Good job.

We make a great team!

The collective noun team can also be plural.

The two teams are playing this weekend.

Now we use a plural verb.

See the next page for more than one family.

Collective Noun

families

Two families are going on a picnic.

Oddball Collective Noun police

Strangely, the collective noun police gets a plural verb. "In Thailand, police are required to wear a Hello Kitty armband if they break the law."