

"Dialogue at a Morgue" Sight Word #228 morgue

A man climbing a mountain was fatigued.

He fell, cried and died.

His friend, who worked in an office,
was sent a notice about the man's death.

The friend must visit a morgue.

One thing for certain,
the directions to the morgue were vague.

At the morgue, the friend was surrounded by many dead people who died from a plague.

All of a sudden, the "dead" bodies at the morgue jumped up and began dancing!

The friend was more shocked than intrigued.

He asked why he was tricked.

Everyone told him that teaching the sight word
morgue should be fun.

The friend stuck his tongue out at everyone and laughed.
